Cohasset native part of Endeavour team

Astronaut readies for today's launch

By Jill Michaels
CORRESPONDENT

When space shuttle Endeavour launches on STS-126, Cohasset native Steve Bowen will become NASA's first 'supermariner.'

Capt. Bowen, 44, was serving as a Navy submariner when he got the call eight years ago that he had been selected for NASA's astronaut program. He and his wife Deborah changed course to Houston in order to accommodate his new tour.

STS-126 is currently scheduled for liftoff today (Friday, Nov. 14) at 7:55 p.m. EST.

After the space mission's preflight crew conference last Monday in Houston, Bowen revealed that about 100 people plan to attend his shuttle launch at "the other Cape," eastern Florida's Cape Canaveral.

The analogy of a submarine and the ISS (International Space Station) cruising through the black ocean of space was not lost on astronaut Don Pettit, a former space station resident who is now one of the seven STS-126 crewmembers. During last week's conference, the scientifically charged Pettit introduced Bowen as "a Navy officer used to going into a can."

STS-126 will prepare the ISS for a rotating crew of six, starting next spring, for continued long-duration flights on the orbiting outpost. Endeavour will deliver a new galley, a water recycling system, an additional toilet, more sleeping quarters and exercise equipment. NASA describes this mission as "extreme home improvements."

The STS-126 and ISS Expedition 18 astronauts and cosmonauts will mark a significant milestone during their flight — the 10th anniversary of the ISS. Russia launched the station's first component on Nov. 20, 1998.

Also on the books for this shuttle crew are four spacewalks, or EVAs, to service the rotary joints of the station's solar arrays, allowing the panels to track the sun and generate operating power. Bowen will participate in the first, third and fourth spacewalks during flight days 5, 9 and 11. He will take turns working outside the ISS with fellow astronauts Heide Stefanyshyn-Piper and Shane Kimbrough.

Said Chris Ferguson, the commander of the STS-126 mission: "Steve is a very competent and highly-tasked guy. He has three EVAs, and he is leading one. That was Heide's call, and I concurred."

Piper flew with Ferguson two years ago on STS-115. A Navy diver herself, she said regarding Bowen: "Steve gets the ultimate dive. Spacewalking is really similar to diving. You wear protective gear and a helmet. It's like being in your own bubble."

By coincidence, Piper and Bowen are both alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "It makes it easy to work together," she said.

Bowen comes from a family of six children, two girls and four boys. "I was the third of four boys. I was the fifth of six. My sister still lives in Cohasset. Two of my brothers and my other sister live in Hanover. My parents live on the Cape. My other brother moved to Belfast, Northern Ireland."

Attired in a training version of the Extravehicular Mobility Unit (EMU) spacesuit, astronaut Stephen G. Bowen, STS-126 mission specialist, awaits the start of a training session in the waters of the Neutral Buoyancy Laboratory (NBL) near NASA's Johnson Space Center.

Grinning widely, he added: "They keep me humble. There is a certain level of sarcasm in Boston."

"I still consider Cohasset my hometown. There's still that reassuring quality you get when you go back home."

NASA permits astronauts to fly a few personal items aboard the shuttle. What got packed inside the STS-126 astronauts' flight kits?

Ferguson quipped: "I'm bringing Don Pettit."

Bowen made a confession. "I'm not very big on souvenirs. Most of the things I will fly are actually for other people."

So what figurative items would he like to bring with him on the shuttle on behalf of his hometown neighbors?

Bowen said he would take some weather from Cohasset. "I'd like the weather to be cooler than it is in Houston. I miss the changing of the seasons."

How has his past duties underwater influenced his view of his current job on orbit? Bowen related an anecdote to illustrate.

"After we first came here, to Houston, NASA took the astronaut spouses on a tour of Building 9, inside the space station mockup. The wives were looking around and saying 'wow.' Then my wife walked in, looked around and said: 'Steve will be so happy. He's never had this much space in his life.' "

Shuttle crewmates often get to know each other very well during the months leading up to their space mission. STS-126 pilot Eric Boe warmly described Bowen as "a very good friend of mine. We were in the same astronaut class. He is a very down-to-earth guy. He's looking forward to his EVAs."

Bowen graduated from Cohasset High School in 1982. He reminisced about some of his teachers and ice hockey coaches: Mr. Deacon, Mr. Lavine and Mr. Walsh. Still a fan of the sport, Bowen taught all three of his children how to skate.

After attending high school and the U.S. Naval Academy, Bowen participated in the MIT/WHOI joint program in ocean engineering. He eventually qualified for command of nuclear powered submarines. It was then that NASA diverted him into the pipeline to eventually fly in space.

Even so, Bowen cannot escape the comparison of a submarine to the ISS. Might that even shape his future as a NASA 'supermariner'?

Without presuming to be a prophet, astronaut Kimbrough — Bowen's final spacewalk partner on STS-126 — offered his personal observations. "As a submariner, Steve is familiar with an environment closer to space. He is the perfect person to operate in a station environment."

"He is an excellent candidate for an ISS mission."

(STS-126 is the space shuttle mission to the International Space Station [ISS] which will be flown by Space Shuttle Endeavour)

"I still consider Cohasset my hometown. There's still that reassuring quality you get when you go back home."
— Steve Bowen

Attired in a training version of his shuttle launch and entry suit, astronaut Stephen G. Bowen, STS-126 mission specialist, awaits the start of a training session in the Space Vehicle Mockup Facility at Johnson Space Center.

Astronaut Steve Bowen, STS-126 mission specialist, dons a training version of his shuttle launch and entry suit in preparation for a training session in the Space Vehicle Mock-up Facility at NASA's Johnson Space Center. United Space Alliance suit technician Fred Utley assisted Bowen.

About Steve Bowen

- Born Feb. 13, 1964 in Cohasset. Married Deborah Alden, they have three children.
- Graduated from Cohasset High School in 1982; BS Electrical Engineering, US Naval Academy, 1986; Degree of Ocean Engineering, MIT, 1993.
- First submarine officer selected by NASA in July 2000 as a mission specialist.
- Assigned to the crew of the STS-126. Endeavour will carry a reusable logistics module that will hold supplies and equipment essential to sustain a crew of six on the International Space Station, including additional crew quarters, a regenerative life support system and a Resistive Exercise Device (RED).

DONATE YOUR USED BOOKS
at LOCAL drop-off containers to benefit LOCAL nonprofits.
TOO MANY TO DROP-OFF? GOT BOOKS OFFERS A FREE PICK-UP SERVICE!
You may have noticed the gray containers in parking lots near your home or job.
They're hard to miss with their lively purple and yellow "Donate Books" signs.
What is the deal with these? In most cases, these are raising money for local schools, clubs, churches and other nonprofits that have placed the container in their parking lot to collect donations of books, videos, CDs and DVDs. Every time a container fills, local organization Got Books empties it and sends a check to the organization hosting the container. An easy fundraiser for these groups and a way to get your beloved books re-circulated to people who will also enjoy them.

YOU CAN HELP BY DONATING BOOKS.
When you donate books, Got Books sorts them to find their best use. Some books will be sent overseas to the troops, while others will be given free to local schools, given free or at extreme discounts to local teachers, or sold at the Charity Book Sale where 50% of all profits are donated directly to local charity partners, while a small percentage will be sold online to help cover the costs of all these programs. No book will EVER end up in the trash. Damaged or unusable books get recycled as a last resort... Saving trees, not bad for a worst case scenario. With 8 years of experience, Got Books will find a great new home for your used books. Through their wide variety of programs, they have the best chance of finding a use for the books you once enjoyed.
To schedule a FREE pick-up or to learn more about re-circulating your books into the community, please call 978-327-7674 or visit www.GotBooks.com.

Melinda Wojcieszak of Cohasset and Wendy Ferullo have opened Bloom, a fine lingerie boutique, on Water Street in Hingham.

'We have lingerie for every woman'

Cohasset woman co-owner of new Hingham boutique

By Liz Fuller
CORRESPONDENT

Melinda Wojcieszak and Wendy Ferullo, owners of Bloom, a high-end lingerie boutique located at 61 Water St., saw their dream come to fruition as the pair opened the doors to their new boutique. Wojcieszak, a massage therapist at The Bodywork Center and a Cohasset resident, felt that opening the lingerie shop next door to the center would complement each business.

"I thought it would be very compatible," she said. "The clients that we have at Bodyworks could be the same clients for the boutique. I thought it would be a perfect fit."

Ferullo, who previously worked in the financial industry and in event planning, had always wanted to open her own store and was intrigued by Wojcieszak's idea to open the boutique. "When Melinda brought this idea to me, we just did it," she said.

Carrying designer brands such as Wacoal, Hanro, Le Mystère, Chantelle, and others, Wojcieszak and Ferullo feel that their collections are likely to appeal to sophisticated and discerning customers. Wojcieszak compared their stock to Neiman Marcus, Nordstrom's, and Saks Fifth Avenue.

"We want the store to be a destination," she said. "Our philosophy is to be more event-based and have fun. We want to create excitement." The boutique will also host events for bridal showers, bachelorette parties, and girls' night out.

While Victoria's Secret is located at The Derby Street Shoppes, Wojcieszak doesn't see the chain store as competition.

"Victoria's Secret has a very narrow market," she said. "We have lingerie for every woman."

Co-owner Ferullo agreed. "The level of service we offer, you can't get there."

Wojcieszak explained that Bloom offers fit specialists that can help customers to ensure a proper fit for foundation wear. "We can also special order items, as well." While the majority of their merchandise is directed toward adults, there is also a teen section in the boutique. Wojcieszak said it is intended as a way for mothers and daughters to shop together and have some family time.

Wojcieszak explained that the name for the store also has family ties of sorts. As a former florist, she said, "My floral design company was named Design In Bloom. My husband's nickname for me is also Bloom. The name has been in the family so to speak. More importantly, there are many associations with flowers and a woman's beauty throughout history and poetry. We envision that our lingerie will bring a woman's beauty into full bloom and believe the blossom of great romance starts with Bloom Lingerie."

For more about the new shop or to speak to Wojcieszak or Ferullo, call 781-749-0063 or by email: melinda@bloomlingerieboutique.com.

Filling a void

Five businesses open on Depot Court

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For nearly two years there has been an empty space in the Village, a missing link to connect the Main Street shops with the Ripley Road and Pleasant Street businesses.

This month all that changed.

Built from the ground up, the new building, now open, at 15 Depot Court houses five businesses and one apartment. The 7,000 square foot building with a farmer's porch and varying rooflines is the first new construction in the village in recent memory.

The area has been under construction for the better part of a year and building owner Sean Cunning is optimistic the building's completion will draw more of a crowd to a changing portion of Cohasset Village. Over the last year, several businesses have moved out or re-located along Ripley Road and the James Brook Crossing shops. Connecting all the corners of the village was one of the main goals of village bylaw revisions passed at last year's Special Town Meeting.

"We're thrilled to be open," said Cunning sitting in his new office space earlier this week. Cunning has moved his business, Sullivan, Garrity & Donnelly Insurance Agency, to the first floor of the building. He intended to open in September, but delays in construction pushed back the opening date.

With the exception of Cunning, all the new businesses are woman-owned. Next door to SG&D Insurance is the Focus Gallery, a photography gallery, which has moved from its smaller location on Ripley Road. Also on the first floor is Pink Tulip, a women's clothing boutique. Upstairs is Balance Studio, a classical pilates and yoga studio, as well as Mariposa, which does massage and body therapy.

"There's really good synergy in the building," said Cindy Doody, owner of Mariposa Massage and Body Therapy. "It's a lot of positive energy and the feeling we're all in the same boat."

Cunning agrees, "there's a good camaraderie among the businesses."

The small business owners plan to refer customers to the other businesses and generally work together to ensure success for each other.

Their first effort is to host an open house party today, Friday, Nov. 14 from 6 to 9p.m. with appetizers, drinks and music.

"My hope is the community will support these businesses even in the tough economy. When you're buying locally you're keeping your money in the town," said Cunning. "So far, the response from the town has been great."

While over the summer there was a lot of commercial business musical chairs, so to speak, many of the vacancies have been filled and the "for lease" signs have dwindled. The Depot Court building has left two vacancies in the village — SG&D's former office space tucked off South Main Street and the Focus Gallery's original location on Ripley Road.

Cunning has already has inquires on his former office and expects it to be filled soon.

The building is fully handicap accessible, with the exception of an elevator (which is on order). A ramp currently gives access to first floor shops. The building is 100 percent sprinkled, a good thing given the building's proximity to other village business, said Cunning. There are 10 new parking spaces in the front and side of the building allowing easy in and out access.

The building, formerly owned by Richard Brown for over 25 years and home to Dramatic Kitchens and Sunroom Conservatories, Ltd., suffered a two-alarm fire in February 2007. The fire, water and smoke damage were too much and subsequently, the building was torn down and plans approved for a new building in 2007.

Cunning purchased the partially complete building from Brown this past May and finished the work on the site. Wrapped into construction was the removal of about 700 cubic yard of contaminated soil left over from when the site was a gas station many years ago.

Although Cunning owns the building SG&D Insurance Agency currently occupies, this is his first foray into construction and admits the experience has been a learning curve.

"I was a hands-on owner," said Cunning, who was often seen painting or checking up on work during the course of construction. Cunning made a point to hire local contractors to work on the site.

Balance Studio

When Kellie Lynch heard about the new building going up at Depot Court following the fire, she knew it was the perfect location for her pilates and yoga business.

"There's just something about the village," said Lynch, a 17-year resident of Cohasset. "The village really speaks to me, I love what the other business owners are doing and love the camaraderie of the village."

Lynch has a full and encompassing fitness schedule that caters to all skill levels, fitness goals and work out style.

Balance Studio, which is located on the second floor of the building, offers instruction in classical pilates, offered in a class environment and on a individual basis. There are four classical tower reformers, chairs and barrel equipment.

"It's really fun and works the whole body," said Lynch.

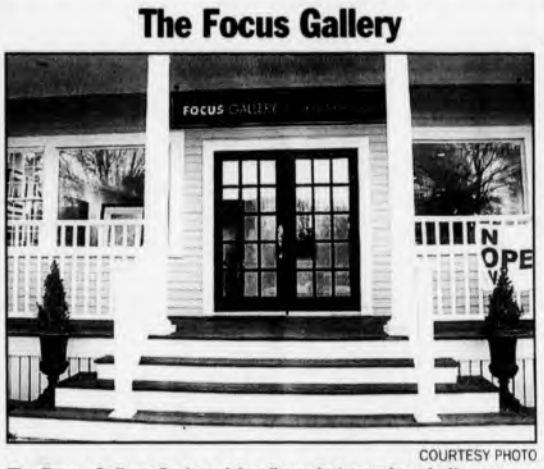
Lynch and her sister, Shannon Lynch, who both teach pilates are sticklers when it comes to correct form, "we're all about safety, alignment and position…it's so easy to get hurt (if you don't learn form correctly)."

In a separate room, there is the yoga studio featuring a variety of classes including, hot vinyasa flow yoga, gentle yoga, meditation and classical pilates mat classes.

Balance Studio is also offering teen yoga classes as well as children's yoga. Most of her business is drop-in and 10-class passes are available.

Lynch designed the Balance Studio to be a place of retreat for her clients, "the goal was when people come up here they are in a haven."

More than the décor, Lynch strives everyday to create a safe, supportive, non-judgmental environment for her clients.



Balance Studio has classes seven days a week, see www.balancestudiocohasset.com for a complete schedule. For more information, call 339-337-3660.

The Focus Gallery

COURTESY PHOTO

The Focus Gallery displays 14 gallery photographers in its new location on Depot Court. Owner and photographer Cindy Vallino will change up the look of the gallery on a regular basis.

Twice the size of her original location across the street on Ripley Road, Focus Gallery owner Cindy Vallino has expanded the number of gallery photographers from 10 to 14. Among her newest gallery artists are Onne van der Wal of Newport, Rhode Island who is a renowned nautical photographer and Cary Wolinsky of Norwell, who has traveled the world shooting photos for National Geographic.

"Already there's not enough wall space," Vallino quipped. She hopes to change up the look of the gallery on a regular basis so there is always something fresh on the walls. A gallery devoted just to photography is unusual and she draws clients from all over the South Shore. She has tried to keep her gallery artists local so most are from the surrounding area.

With the bright and airy space that includes a small kitchen, bathroom and storage, she plans to host more events and teach photo workshops. Vallino also does corporate and business art consultation.

"The community really supported us (through our first two years in town) and we wanted to stick around," said Vallino. "Here we have a lot more visibility and it's fun having like minded artistic people in the building."

To find out more about Focus Gallery, visit www.thefocusgallery.com or call 781-383-0663. The gallery will be open seven days a week from 10a.m. to 5p.m. An opening party with the gallery artists will be held on Friday, December 5.

SG&D Insurance Agency

Sean Cunning, who also owns the 15 Depot Court building, has moved his business, Sullivan, Garrity & Donnelly Insurance Agency, to a roomier and more visible office space on the first floor. Formerly located in a small space tucked off Main Street, Cunning is hoping the move will bring more walk-in traffic and show Cohasset his commitment both to his business and the town.

"We're here for the long haul, we're not going anywhere," said Cunning, who opened the Cohasset office of SG&D insurance in 2003. "We've grown beyond our expectation and forecast."

A fourth generation family-run business, SG&D Insurance Agency, has five other locations, four in Worcester and one in Chatham. Home, auto, boat and commercial insurance are among the services available.

One of the company's niche markets is insuring large coastal homes, which Cunning said is a complicated business and many insurance carriers won't insure the homes. "We've saved a lot of sales," said Cunning.

Local golf courses like Cohasset Golf Club and Black Rock Country Club in Hingham are insured by SG&D. Many buildings in the village, including his own Depot Court building, are insured with SG&D.

"With a new family in town, we can do everything and put their mind at ease," said Cunning.

Pink Tulip

"Classic with a distinctly modern twist" is how Pink Tulip owner Christine Nagle describes the style of her women's clothing and accessories store.

Her first fashion venture, Nagle said the idea for a women's shop came evolved out of her love for fashion and clothes. After selling the high tech business she helped found in 2004, she had been mulling over the idea of her own shop.

A Scituate resident, she looked at several possible locations including Hingham's Derby Street Shoppes. Then, as she was dropping off her kids at the South Shore Art Center and looked across the street at the Depot Court building construction. She noticed she wasn't the only woman in the area, there were mothers picking up kids at the nursery school and, like her, dropping kids off at the Art Center. Almost immediately, she inquired about a space and the rest is history.

One of the most important elements for Nagle was to ensure the store offered a fun and organized shopping experience. She has organized the clothes into categories—out and about for everyday wear, going out for special occasions and working out for those hours at the gym.

"It's merchandise you can't find anywhere else," said Nagle. One of her favorite lines is Yoana Baraschi, who designs eveningwear. There is also handmade jewelry made by Hilary Repa, a local artisan, and handbags by G's Glory.

To further enhance the shopping experience, Nagle has small information cards about the designers and interesting items around the shop.

For more information about Pink Tulip,stop by the store, visit www.pinktulip.com, or call 781-210-9584.

Mariposa

Mariposa means butterfly in Spanish and Cindy Doody chose it as the name of her massage and body therapy business because of the word's symbolism for her. Butterflies representing new beginnings and tranquil transformations, which is what she hopes her clients will leave feeling.

"I hope people will see massage as a necessity not a luxury," said Doody, a licensed massage therapist and Scituate resident.

Mariposa shares the second floor of the building with Balance Studio and Doody said the two businesses are a great complement, "we're both treating the mind, body-spirit connection."

A variety of massages are available and can be customized to fit every client's needs. Swedish massage, muscle therapy/deep tissue massage, hot stone therapy massage, reflexology, reiki, pre-natal massage and even oncology massage are all available. Along with Doody, Caleena Morrissey, a graduate of Cortiva Institute in Watertown specializes in swedish, deep tissue, and pregnancy massage.

"Our massages are so much more than a spa massage," said Doody, they look at the physical, medical, and structure of the body.

To enhance her focus on the clients and create a serene atmosphere, Mariposa does not have a receptionist and the majority of booking Doody hopes will be done online.

"I think it empowers people to make their own schedule," said Doody.

Another vital piece of Mariposa is its emphasis on environmental consciousness. Doody chose all sustainable products for her suite: renewable bamboo flooring, non-VOC paint, organic cotton sheets, green cleaning products.

"It's all part of our philosophy," said Doody.

For more information on Mariposa or to book an appointment, visit www.mariposabody.com or call 339-337-3635.

'Proud my son's a soldier'

Eddie is six years old, and he wants to join the Army when he grows up.

Sitting in her sunny living room, his mother squares back her shoulders.

"I'll be proud if Eddie becomes a soldier. We need soldiers," she said.

We need soldiers.

We need freedom fighters, homeland protectors, and peacekeepers.

We need men and women who value our country above self.

Veterans Day is set aside across the nation so we can show how deeply we value our military men and women of yesteryear and today.

We should never forget these men and women who fought, who still fight, to grant us the divine gift of freedom.

Our freedom is sacred.

So is the life of each of our freedom fighters.

Since the birth of our country, they have been our defenders.

Veterans Day had its origin in Armistice Day, commemorating the end of Word War I. In 1954, Armistice Day officially became Veterans Day.

On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918, the United States signed the peace treaty that ended the bloodshed of World War I. Contemporaries saw the First World War as The Great War, the war to make the world safe for democracy. Yet the battle for freedom continues in 2008 as fiercely as in 1914.

Taps have sounded for the brave doughboys of World War I.

This is now the 11th hour of our World War II veterans.

As we honor our men and women who served in Korea, Vietnam, the Mid East and other venues around the world, we should especially cherish our World War II veterans; each year, their ranks grow thinner.

Many of us recall the "The Last Leaf" by Oliver Wendell Holmes, a heart-touching poem about what it is like to be the last leaf on the tree, the last of a generation.

This is the 11th hour of the greatest generation, a generation that faced hostilities on a battlefield that stretched over the globe, in a war that threatened the survival of democracy. Many paid the supreme sacrifice to win the right for us to remain free. The memories of this horrendous conflict remain vivid to our veterans, even after more than six decades have passed.

Does Veterans Day still mean as much to us as to our servicemen and women who put self aside to serve their country in World War II?

We cannot let the hardships our veterans have endured and the lessons of bravery and dedication they taught the world fade into just words on the pages of a history book.

Let us honor all our veterans with a special heartfelt gratitude to our World War II warriors.

Let us honor them while we can, before the last leaf falls from the tree and drifts away into the heavens.

As their days fade away, their prayer is for the good of all the young men and women who follow in their tradition.

Don't allow this to be the 11th hour of their hope for their brothers and sisters who, inspired by their heroism, donned a uniform.

Just as we honor the sacrifices of our veterans, we should honor their well-being when they come back to the States. After their many sacrifices on the battlefield, they should not have to sacrifice their health, their education, their homes, and their peace of mind. Our military should see our gratitude to them expressed in our actions, as well as our words.

Today little Eddie is moving his plastic infantry of toy soldiers across the living room floor. One day he may be a commander of real soldiers. He is the veteran of tomorrow.

This Nov. 11, he stood on the sidewalk and cheered for his heroes, and surely his heart swelled with pride as the crowd around him also cheered.

On Veterans Day, we remember and revere the fallen.

And we honor the living.

Not just for one day of speeches and flag-waving, but with our ongoing concern and care.

Let's make Eddie even prouder he wants to be a soldier.

'Forgive Us Our Trespasses'

TO THE EDITOR:

Further to Mr. Antico's letter in last week's Mariner concerning public funding for the Treat's Pond project, I offer the following observations.

In recent weeks I have shot hoops in the Our World playground, dribbled a soccer ball on Alumni Field and walked the entire length of Forest Avenue along the sidewalk. At no time was I accosted by an angry landowner threatening me with prosecution for trespass, and no police officer showed up at my house.

Impact of turbines, a real concern

TO THE EDITOR:

What about the community?

When it comes to the wind farm debate, our primary concern as residents of Cohasset should be to look out for the well being of our neighbors. The two Graham Waste wind turbines will stand as high as Boston skyscrapers over residential neighborhoods to the North and East, and force many to live with two hulking, noisy turbines so as to accommodate the plans of a single private developer.

To date, there is no agreement for the town to receive any benefit other than the nominal tax receipt that any business in that zone would produce. We have all worked hard to afford to live in a town like Cohasset with the safety, peace and tranquility it brings, so why are we trading that away for nothing? Are we just going to accept the developer's claims that the residents in the impact area would not experience nearly constant noise and noxious flicker?

I have spoken with an unbiased industry analyst who assures me that noise and flicker are a material fact, which can have very negative implications for surrounding areas. Lower property values are a common-sense reality that would provide an unjustified blow to a number of our residents and also provide a lower tax base for the town. I am absolutely pro-wind, but we need to be much more at the front end of understanding how these huge structures will impact the residents who will be forced to live with them. It's not nearly as simple as pointing to Hull and then accepting a developer's partial analysis as empirical evidence. Both of the proposed turbines are 65 percent larger than the larger Hull II turbine and will be placed together. Hull placed their much smaller turbines miles apart which mitigates the noise and flicker on any one area. Years of impact data have been gathered worldwide since Hull broke ground and now even Hull is no longer building land based turbines.

I just can't understand the big rush to construct the two largest wind turbines in all of New England close to multiple neighborhoods without truly understanding what their impact will be.

COMMENTARY

MELISSA SCHORR

As a nearby resident, I was disturbed to read the Alternative Energy Committee's recent commentary (Oct. 24, 2008) on the proposed wind turbine project in Cohasset. While attempting to assuage concerns about the project, it was highly dismissive about the possible decreased quality of life effects on residents who live, work or attend elementary school near the turbines.

From what I understand, these include a constant, low-frequency thumping noise and a pervasive strobe-like "flicker" effect caused by shadows cast by the blades. I found the suggestion that residents should simply "close their shades" every afternoon to avoid shadows flashing throughout their homes half the year to be a less than helpful solution.

In addition, the comment that the committee could find "no peer review and published reports" on health effects of living too close to these turbines was a little disingenuous. As a longtime health journalist and a MIT Knight Science Journalism Fellow, a few minutes of simple research produced the fact that there have been reports by physicians here and abroad documenting the deleterious effect on residents who live and work in close proximity to these turbines. Those may include sleep disruptions, headaches, stress and loss of concentration.

For example, Swedish researchers studying those living near wind turbines reported findings on an increase in sleep impairments in the 2007 Journal of Occupational and Environmental Medicine, and a decrease in well-being in the 2004 Journal of the Acoustical Society of America.

Additionally, there is a long body of research on the health effects of noise emissions. Several studies, including one in the 2005 Lancet, looked at schoolchildren's exposure to increased noise (in this case caused by airplanes) and found it linked to impaired reading com-

Nighttime work along the tracks

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

An Interesting Greenbush Tidbit – Last week after our deadline had passed for this column, we received a call from the Greenbush project notifying us that they would be replacing some underground wiring alongside the tracks from Pond Street to Sohier Street. The wiring that they will be replacing includes both power wiring and signal wiring. It is interesting to note that when they originally placed this wiring we asked why they direct-buried the wires rather than place it in conduit underground. Well, it turns out that's exactly what they are going to do this time around; bury the cables in conduit, which will provide physical protection for the wires. From what we hear the original cables developed serious problems.

Exactly how they are going to do this is a very interesting bit of trivia. Most of you might remember from grade school discussions of farming and, in particular, plowing the soil. As a refresher, a plow is drawn by a tractor (or in the good old days a horse or mule) and digs a narrow slot in the ground turning the earth to the side. In this instance special equipment has been developed to dig a narrow slot into which flexible plastic conduit is placed and the earth is allowed to close up after the conduit is dropped into the slot.

It is also interesting to note, from what we have read, the conduit can be plowed as far down as six feet under the ground. The photo we have added shows a similar operation placing multiple conduits in the ground alongside a highway.

In our case, the contractor will be working alongside the tracks during the nighttime. This means that they will be using equipment and doing the cable burying after the last train at night has completed its run. They will then work until the first train in the morning, which is about 5:50 a.m. in Cohasset. By the time this early train goes through they will need to have their equipment out of the track area and put away until they resume work the next night. The MBTA thinks that in Cohasset this whole thing should take between 4 to 6 nights. In anticipation of this work, we did a reverse 911 phone call to all of the abutters in the affected area. If for any reason you didn't get notification, you may want to check with the Town's website to make sure that your notification information is up to date.

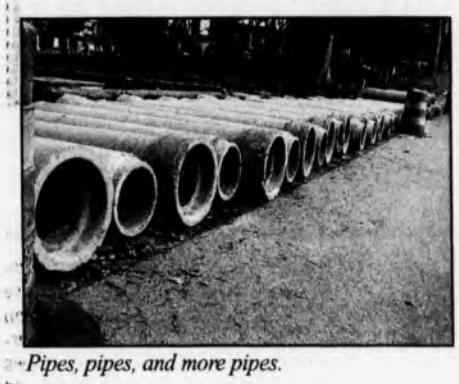
Little Harbor Project – We have mentioned before that this project is much more than just a sewer project. It includes upgrades to the Cohasset Water System, paid for by the Water Department and upgrades of the drainage system, paid for by the Town. We think you'll agree it just makes common sense to do as much as possible while the contractor is in Town and the roads are opened up. However, keep in mind in the case of both water and storm drainage, we can only do as much as we have the funds to do. So, work in these areas has been carefully prioritized to match the available funding.



One area for storm drain work is on North Main Street starting around Green Street and turning left onto Joy Place, proceeding past Central Cemetery to an outfall at Little Harbor. (Where, by the way, the storm water ended up naturally.) This week we stopped down and saw all of the pipe and underground structures waiting for their turn to be placed underground. Some of the large underground structures are eight or so feet high. That's a lot of digging to get these guys buried.

We thought you might like to see how much material actually is required to construct a new storm drain system.

More Little Harbor Stuff – Next week we will be reclaiming a number of smaller streets in the little Harbor area. Some of these are, Hobart Lane, Lothrop Lane, Meadow Lane, Bridal Path and possibly a few others. So, "What's reclaiming?" Reclaiming is a process whereby the paving that already exists on a road is ground up into very fine bits and mixed with a bit of the soil under the roadway. The machine that does this is a real giant, nasty beast. It has a drum covered with carbide tipped teeth that literally tears up the asphalt into fine bits and mixes it with some of the soil underneath. When the resulting mixture is rolled smooth it is nearly as stable as asphalt itself as a road surface. For any subsequent construction in the area it is easy to dig up, making life easier for the contractor. If there is a lot of asphalt on a given street, some of the "reclaimed" material is removed from the roadway and saved. The reason for removing it is to avoid a build-up of paving which raises the road surface too high. Incidentally, the saved reclaimed material is prized by the DPW as an excellent material for backfilling construction areas in the roadway. We plan to notify all the residents residing on the streets that will be reclaimed so they can make arrangements for access during reclaiming.

A dog's life in the White House

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

My lasting recollection of the Clinton Administration has nothing to do with Monica Lewinski.

It's a picture of Socks, the First Cat, lying on the grass while the White House paparazzi rolled around on their ample bellies seeking the best angle to shoot the little feline celebrity.

Consequently, my most memorable recollection of the Bush 43 Administration is likely to have nothing to do with 9/11, Iraq or Wall Street.

It'll be the sight, caught on tape, of Barney, the First Dog, taking a bite out of the finger of that reporter from Reuters, most certainly a Republican comment on bias in the media.

Choosing the official White House pet can be as daunting as picking a vice president or a secretary of state, which is why President-elect Obama has what amounts to a second transition team seeking a puppy for 10-year-old Malia.

Dogs, cats and a wide assortment of exotic animals have graced the presidential presence ever since George Washington kept the strangely named quartet of Virginia hounds, Drunkard, Taster, Tippler and Tipsy, at Mount Vernon.

Some have been rather erudite, like Millie, the First Dog of the Bush 41 Administration, whose best selling memoir, "Millie's Book, as Dictated to Barbara Bush," outsold her master's own effort.

Others became the center of political storms, like Fala, the First Dog of the Roosevelt Administration, who was castigated by the biased media for bumping a homeward-bound serviceman on a wartime flight from Alaska.

Incidentally, Fala's full name was a patricianly "Murray the Outlaw from Fala Hill." Don't ask me why.

President Nixon had three dogs, Pasha, Vicky and King Timahoe, but it was Vice President Nixon's cocker spaniel, Checkers, that is remembered.

Nixon was running on the Republican ticket with General Eisenhower in 1952 when he was accused of maintaining a secret slush fund for his personal use contributed by fat cat donors.

He replied in a 30-minute nationally televised speech in which he listed his personally acquired assets and liabilities but admitted accepting the gift of a cocker spaniel named Checkers "and regardless of what they say, we are going to keep it."

The speech saved Nixon's political career and sent down forever as "the Checkers speech."

Him and Her, two beagles owned by Lyndon Johnson, made the cover of Life magazine when the President himself picked them up by their ears, drawing down the wrath of dog lovers everywhere.

Harry Truman, the cynic who once said, "If you want the have a friend in Washington, get a dog," didn't have a dog.

Two Roosevelt dogs were pariahs on the international front.

FDR's German shepherd, Major, once tore a hole in British Prime Minster Ramsey MacDonald's pants while Teddy's bull terrier, Pete, was rusticated after chomping on the French ambassador.

And Warren Harding's airedale, Laddie Boy, stood out so during his master's term in office that there is a bronze statue of him in the Smithsonian Museum of American History, probably representing the best of Harding's miserable administration.

An introduction to Cohasset

DRIVING WHILE TYPING

JOHN LENGYEL

Editor's note: The following is one of John's most popular columns. We are running it again this week so our readers can enjoy it once again.

I've always written my column with only a local audience in mind. But the Mariner is available for free on the Internet these days, which means in theory anyone in the world can read it as soon as it's published. An Australian kangaroo farmer could be perusing the paper on-line as we speak, reading with concern about the latest Buick to beach itself on the railroad tracks. For all we know our stormwater bylaw is a huge hit in China. They've got 1.3 billion people over there, so even if only a hundred million of them follow the Little Harbor Sewer Expansion Project, that's a lot of people to you and me.

I believe it's time we stopped thinking of the Mariner as just a "local" phenomenon, and used the web's international reach to introduce ourselves to a curious, tech-savvy, purely hypothetical global audience.

Hello, Others!

Cohasset Massachusetts is a picturesque seaside village on Boston's South Shore. Translated roughly from Algonquin, the name Cohasset means "long rocky place." The Wampanoags called the area, "long, goddam rocky place," while the Nausets called it, "the place where we dump all our rocks." It definitely has that "small town" feel. Imagine a spy satellite that can look straight down your pants and tell the CIA whether you're going commando. That satellite would miss Cohasset, and the fact that we all go commando remains the town's best kept secret.

Translated roughly from Algonquin, the name Cohasset means "long rocky place." The Wampanoags called the area, "long, goddam rocky place"...

A cozy community like Cohasset has many advantages. For instance you don't have to "ring up" your friends and neighbors in order to see them every day. Just go to the library. Or the school. Or the grocery store, or the Girl Scout dropoff, or the dump. Or all five in succession. Wherever you go, they'll be there for you, ready to talk about anyone who's somewhere else at the time.

Its charming look and ideal location might evoke images of homogeneity and privilege, but Cohasset is a town that celebrates racial diversity. As it happens we don't have any ourselves, but we're quite happy for towns that do. Besides, what we lack in color we make up for in other kinds of variety. For instance every mansion is just a little different. As are the professional interests of Cohasset's working residents, which range everywhere from finance to investments to financial investments. And if you're looking for physical diversity, all it takes is a June afternoon stroll on Sandy Beach to see that not everyone in town takes spinning classes over the winter. You Cohasset readers know who I'm talking about I'm sure!

Cohasset has a very low crime rate, a luxury that affords its residents extra time to worry incessantly about what little crime there is. A purse is snatched from the passenger seat of an open BMW convertible parked at the post office with its engine running, and serious consideration is given to hiring more police officers. In the end, since extra police tend to cost money, it's decided that half the force normally assigned to directing traffic around landscaping trucks will be pulled off to comb the woods for empty Coach bags, and another town meeting is adjourned.

Leaving valuables behind while we run errands may seem careless until you realize just how many valuables we have to keep track of here. Our key chains alone weigh close to five pounds. We've got three or four car keys, keys for our house, keys for our previous house that we've been trying to sell since 2006 — it's a pain to carry them all around. So we leave them in the car. Cohasset is like one big Hertz Gold Club parking lot. It's the AAA recommended pit stop for fugitives involved in high-speed police chases. Reaching the Music Circus is like crossing the Mason-Dixon line. We would take our keys with us into the house at night but then our whole tourism industry would go in the tank.

I hope the information I've shared has made the stories you read in the Cohasset Mariner easier to understand for those of you in other parts of the world, like Marshfield or Greece. Naturally we in Cohasset have many questions about your culture as well. Do you love your children too? What exactly is a Babka? Is there anything in your Holy books that can explain how David Tyree hung onto that pass? And what is your traditional reaction when you see a set of train tracks veering off the road toward a golf course? We'd love to hear from you!

John Lengyel lives in Cohasset. He apologizes for blowing the lid off the whole commando thing.

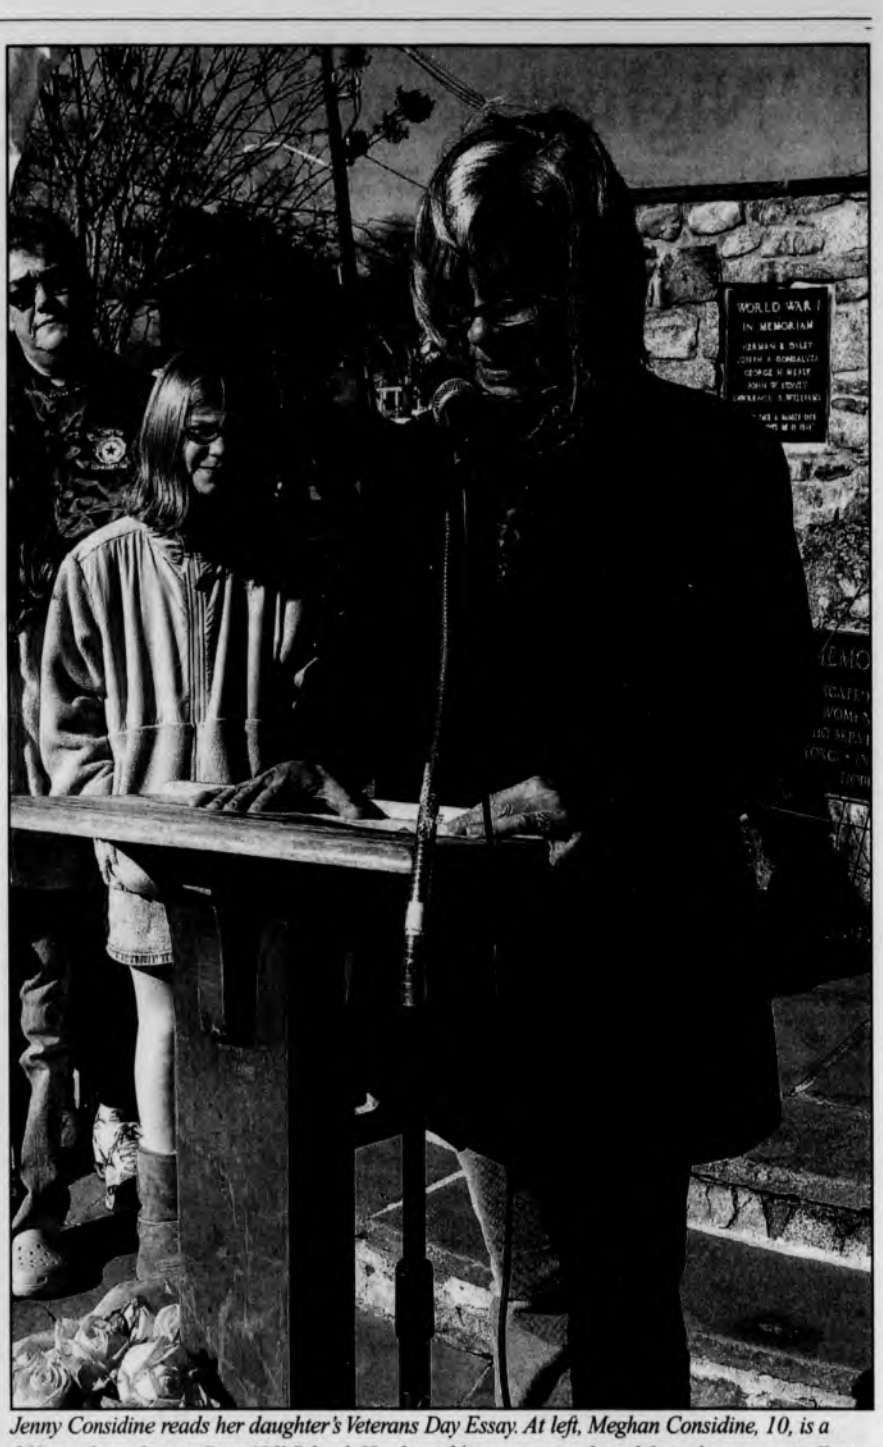
Cohasset Mariner 'drop box'

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the left after you enter the front door.



The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

HEALTH NOTES

Health questions on artificial turf fields

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

As the turf ages and weathers, lead is released in dust that could then be ingested or inhaled, and the risk for harmful exposure increases.

Cities and towns in Massachusetts have increasingly opted for replacement of grass fields with artificial turf. Proposed advantages over natural grass fields are reduced watering and maintenance, avoiding the need for pesticides, reduced injuries, and an "all-weather" playing surface. The more expensive turfs use recycled rubber tires as an underlayment which accounts for reduced injuries. Recent tests by the New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services (NJDHSS) of artificial turf playing fields in that state have found certain fields contain potentially unhealthy levels of lead dust.

Fields made of nylon or nylon/polyethylene blend fibers contain levels of lead that pose a potential public health concern. Tests on fields made with only polyethylene fibers showed very low levels of lead.

The risk for harmful lead exposure is low from new fields with elevated lead levels in their turf fibers because the turf fibers are still intact and the lead is unlikely to be available for harmful exposures to occur. As the turf ages and weathers, lead is released in dust that could then be ingested or inhaled, and the risk for harmful exposure increases. If enough lead is absorbed, it can cause neurological development symptoms (e.g. deficits in IQ). Additional tests are being performed to help us better understand the absorption of lead from these products.

Questions have been raised regarding health, safety and environmental aspects of the rubber underlayment. Rubber contains industrial chemicals that can be released into the air during playing and which may run off into the environment in rainwater. Early studies have been made of the potential health effects to athletes and spectators, many of whom are school-age children, when using these fields.

Given the variety and types of chemicals involved, it is not surprising that some have toxic or carcinogenic activity when tested in laboratory animals. Release of volatile organics from crumb rubber infill is expected to be greatest in sunny, hot weather. Particle release may be affected by the number of athletes using the field and the intensity of their exercise. Generally temperature gradients and wind will afford rapid dilution and low concentrations in the breathing zones of athletes and spectators, although less for spectators.

Chemicals emitted from the rubber granules are similar to those found in urban and suburban air. Some comes from rubber itself. For example, 1-2 percent of the respirable dust in Los Angeles is estimated to come from the wearing of tires. These chemicals are also quite common including car exhaust, furnaces, consumer products, etc. Based upon the current evidence, a public health risk from artificial turf appears unlikely providing they contain NO lead products. However, there is still uncertainty and additional investigation is warranted. While we do not believe there is a unique or significant health threat from chemical releases that can be inhaled or ingested, the uncertainties warrant further investigation. Currently federal or state regulations have not imposed limits on the installation of turf fields. However, the potential exposures and risks have not been fully characterized. (e.g., cost, maintenance, public acceptability).

CDC has long recommended the elimination of all nonessential uses of lead. If artificial turf contains any lead at this time, the CDC recommends periodic testing of fields that appear worn or weathered. Concerned parents/caregivers should consult their medical providers for further information.

General Recommendations on the Use of Fields with Artificial Turf containing any lead

At this time, CDC does not yet understand the potential risks associated with exposure to dust from worn artificial turf. The following precautions have been proposed to minimize any potential risk: Field managers should consider implementing dust-suppression measures and testing of worn turf.

To protect the public, in particular young children, the Town should consider posting signs indicating that:

- After playing on the field, individuals are encouraged to perform aggressive hand and body washing for at least 20 seconds using soap and warm water.
- Clothes worn on the field should be taken off and turned inside out as soon as possible after using the field to avoid tracking contaminated dust to other places. In vehicles, people can sit on a large towel or blanket if it is not feasible to remove their clothes. These clothes, towels, and blankets should be washed separately and shoes worn on the field should be kept outside of the home.
- Eating while on the field or turf product should be discouraged.
- Avoid contaminating drinking containers with dust and fibers from the field. When not drinking, close them and keep them in a bag, cooler or other covered container on the side of the field.

Key to wind turbines is placement

prehension. Another study from the 2004 Journal of Sound Vibration found a connection between low-frequency noise of this level and impaired concentration and performance at work.

According to the editorial itself, noise levels for those within a half mile could be as high as 45 decibels, which the World Health Organization has, in fact, linked to sleep disturbances in adults – and would likely affect those known to be even more susceptible, such as napping children and the elderly at Sunrise Assisted Living. "WHO guidelines say that for good sleep, sound level should not exceed 30 dB(A) for continuous background noise, and individual noises events exceeding 45 dB(A) should be avoided."

While the science related specifically to wind turbine effects is still in its infancy, I think the town would be wise to consider the testimony of at least one medical expert in this field before making a decision that could adversely affect the health of our families.

For example, Dr. Nina Pierpont, a New York physician who has researched this issue and has testified to the New York State Legislature Energy Committee, states "It is absolutely essential that windmills not be sited any closer than 1.25 miles (2 km) from people's homes... In hilly or mountainous topographies, this should be extended anywhere from 2-3 miles from homes. Siting, after all, is the crux of the issue."

The French Academy of Medicine and the U.K Noise Association also have published reports recommending a 1-mile buffer zone. Other communities, such as Riverside County, Calif., have opted to protect their residents by establishing a 2-mile buffer zone between these turbines and people's homes. It is unclear why Cohasset is going to the other extreme, putting turbines into a fairly concentrated residential area.

While I applaud the energy commission's laudable goal of pursuing alternate wind energy, I agree with the experts — the key issue here is placement, and putting these turbines just a few blocks from my family, for all the reasons stated above, simply feels too close for comfort.

Lady Skippers avenge regular season losses by ousting E.B., 4-1

By MikeSpellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Revenge is a dish best served cold… or, as is often the case in Mass. State soccer, cold weather.

The Cohasset High girls soccer team knocked their East Bridgewater counterparts out of postseason play on chilly Alumni Field Monday night with a 4-1 win that was every bit as dominating as the score would seem to indicate.

East Bridgewater edged the Skippers in South Shore League play twice by the score of 2-1 in the regular season, accounting for two-thirds of the Cohasset (15-3-1) losses on the season. However, it took junior Christine Coner a mere 10 minutes Monday night to match her team's scoring total in the pre-

Skippers nearly pull off upset

Cohasset drops a close one to undefeated Abington, 16-13

By Jason Kenney
JKENNEY@CNC.COM

They went in as overwhelming underdogs, but they nearly proved their critics wrong.

Despite strong play on both sides of the ball, the Cohasset Skippers fell just short against Abington.

"The kids did a great job, it was one of our most enthusiastic games all season," Cohasset head coach Peter Afanasiw said. "We just made a few too many mistakes."

Offensively the Skippers got off to a slow start. Abington defensive back Steve Perakslis ended Cohasset's first drive with an interception.

Starting at their own 28-yard line, the Green Wave embarked on a 10-play drive that positioned them deep in Cohasset territory. However, a Keith Faxon fumble stalled the drive and gave the Skippers possession at their own 18-yard line.

After another uneventful drive from Cohasset, Abington took over at its own 45-yard line.

It only took four plays for the Green Wave to get into scoring position and Abington tailback Kristian LaPointe finished the drive. With 8:59 remaining in the half, LaPointe scored his 15th touchdown of the season on a nine-yard run. Perakslis' extra point made the score 7-0.

Abington regained possession with 5:47 remaining in the half and their offense remained hot. LaPointe capped off an 11-play, 90-yard drive with a five-yard touchdown run. A failed two-point conversion kept the score at 13-0 going into the half.

"The first half was difficult, but the kids never gave up and they never backed down," Afanasiw said.

After dominating in the first half, Abington let the Skippers steal the momentum.

After an unsuccessful fourth down conversion attempt, Abington turned ball over at its 47-yard line. Five plays later, Cohasset tailback Dana Valentine scored on a five-yard run. A successful extra-point cut Abington's lead to 14-7.

It didn't get much better for Abington's offense on its next possession. On the second play of the drive, another fumble gave Cohasset possession at Abington's 42-yard line.

Unfortunately for Cohasset, Abington's defense was able to bail them out. Abington defensive back John Lane intercepted a Jeff Cavanaro pass to end a golden opportunity for the Skippers.

Abington was unable to capitalize on the interception, punting after a three-play drive. Staring at their own 26-yard line, the Skippers embarked on a 13-play drive to secure their second touchdown. On fourth and goal from Abington's one-yard line, Valentine stretched the ball over the plane of the end zone to make the score 14-13.

Trailing by one point with 4:07 remaining, Afanasiw opted to go for the win. On the ensuing two-point conversion attempt, LaPointe intercepted a Cavanaro pass and took it 102 yards for an Abington two-point conversion.

"I felt we would have a chance to score again if we didn't get it," Afanasiw said. "We didn't expect them to run it back. That was a hell of a play, you have to give him a lot of credit."

The Skippers had one more chance late in the fourth quarter, but the Green Wave met the challenge. Constant harassment from Abington's defense prevented Cavanaro from getting a clean passing attempt. After a short four-play drive, the Skippers left Abington with a razor-close, 16-13 loss.

Cohasset will attempt to bounce back when they host the Norwell Clippers on Friday.

"Norwell is a young team, but they are very aggressive," Afanasiw said. "They've been improving every week."

Stingrays cap season as co-Super Bowl Champs!

Second-third graders come back to tie undefeated Hanover

This game would be another back-and-forth battle that would come right down to the last few seconds of the contest.

The SciCoh Stingray Mites traveled to Middleboro on Sunday Nov. 9 to play in the Super Bowl against an undefeated Hanover team who had barely beaten the Stingrays earlier in the year 16-14. This game would be another back-and-forth battle that would come right down to the last few seconds of the contest.

The Stingrays started out a bit tight and nervous, and allowed Hanover to take an early 14-0 lead in the first quarter. The tone of the game changed dramatically on the ensuing kickoff, as Will Schwartz caught the short kick and plowed over two Hanover players. The hard run ignited the SciCoh team and their fans.

Quarterback Deven Varney led the offense on their first scoring drive of the day, which was capped by a 40-yard TD sprint off left tackle by Will Greer. Greer would make an amazing play on the critical two-point conversion as he faked to Varney, ran right and as he was being tackled, reached out and touched the pylon with the ball.

Now that the offense had found its stride, the SciCoh defense started to shut down the potent Hanover attack. The big tough D line of Mason Fitzgerald, Victor Najjar, Greg Shea, Chase Bomeisler, Schwartz and Charlie Pyne started to get penetration and made several key stops. Kyle Ferreira, Jake Koncius, Luke Murphy, Tommy Carrabes, Cal Osten, Jackson Mansi, Will Bowen and Greer shut down Hanover's outside running game

The SciCoh offense would tie the game on a long, time-consuming drive in the second quarter. Center Josh Comeau and guards Kevin Long and Schwartz started blowing open big holes in the Hanover interior line and Fullback Will Bowen would not be denied as he started carrying defenders on his back. Bowen crashed into the end zone on fourth down from the two-yard line and the game would go into halftime with a score of 14-14.

In the second half, the Stingrays would take control of the game but could not quite get the clinching score. The duo of Greer and Bowen took turns pounding the ball down the field behind great blocking by Wingba..s Liam Maguire and Danny Durkin. With time running out, the Stingrays finished the game just 10 yards away from the winning score and the game ended in a 14-14 tie.

Both SciCoh and Hanover were declared Super Bowl champions and a great season came to a conclusion. Special thanks go out to the coaches who dedicated so many hours to the team. The parents deserve major kudos for their wonderful support all year long. The JV team also finished the season on a high note by beating Marshfield 12-8 in their final game and was a huge part of the overall team success.

Will Greer (#11) hits the hole.

Reflecting on the cross country season

By Coach Mingels
COHASSET VARSITY
CROSS COUNTRY COACH

As we near the end of the Cross Country season, it's a bittersweet time. Part of me will be happy to have a bit more time but another part is saddened by having this inaugural season end. I find myself thinking about where we have ended up but can't help thinking back to where we began. The Cohasset-Hull Cross Country teams have had a remarkable season this year and it has nothing to do with their win-loss records (Boys were 4-3 and the girls were 1-6).

This year marks the return of Cross Country as a varsity sport and I am proud of the student-athletes who have dedicated their time and effort. However, and perhaps more importantly, I am even more proud of how they have transformed themselves from individual athletes into a team.

I have seen the emergence of team leaders in Terry MacCormack and Tatyana Nakashima; their guidance and example for the other runners translates directly to the positive group dynamic we have on both halves of this co-op team. I have seen commitment to the team by Matt Beck, who was injured most of the season but still attended practice every day. I have seen a remarkable level of improvement in runners Matt Durant, Ariya Gruber, and Chrissy Secatore as well as others. This type of dedication, commitment and leadership sets the table for a very successful program.

Finally, I would like to thank the Town of Cohasset and the Cohasset School System for standing by and supporting the team. It has been a great season, the team and I have had a blast. I can hardly wait until next year when we can do it all over again.

Kenton Gilmartin of Hull turns the corner and heads into the woods of Wheelwright Park at the start of a meet against Harwich.

vious two games, as she scored the game's first goal five minutes in from her right outside mid spot, finding space by the far post to head home a perfect cross from senior captain Torey Hart (two assists), and then a few minutes later sent in sophomore Kaci Kucinski for her first of two goals to make it a 2-0 game.

"It couldn't have happened for a nicer girl than Christine," said Cohasset coach Deb Beal of the soft-spoken Coner. "She's been flying below the radar a little, not putting up the numbers a couple of our others players have, but she's a good been a strong, steady player, and she played the game of her life when we needed it tonight."

The score would remain 2-nil until the break. The home crowd got a little antsy when E.B put a long free kick just over Cohasset senior keeper Johanna Brophy at 19:12. The Cohasset faithful weren't on the edge of their seats for long, though, as senior captain Maggie McGoldrick scored just 44 seconds after the re-start.

Kucinski would put the final nail in E.B.'s coffin with 15 minutes to play.

Kucinski went through a bit of a swoon late in the season, but Beal declared that her super soph, who also scored three goals in the tourney opening 8-0 blowout over Bishop Connolly, was "all the way back."

"Oh, Kaci is definitely back on right page," said Beal. "She's staying active and moving all the time. That's the key to success for her."

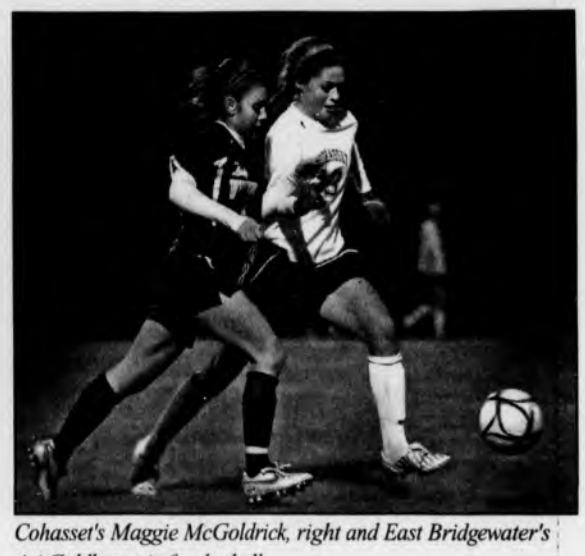
Brophy, returning from a concussion to see her first game action in nearly three weeks, stopped all but that one perfectly placed direct kick.

"Johanna didn't have to do anything spectacular, but it was good to see her back in there and getting involved," said Beal. "She had a couple of balls skid through to her early in the game, so that got her hands busy and got her into to the flow."



The third seeded Lady Skippers (15-3-1) will now play at Whitman-Hanson High School for Friday's semifinals against Bourne, the winner of Tuesday's showdown between Holbrook (10th seed, 12-5) and Bourne (2nd seed, 14-3-1).

"We came in with a game plan, and we stuck to it," Beal concluded. "That's how teams win in these tourney games when the margin for error gets smaller every round."

The Scituate-Cohasset ("SCICOH") Shark Mites take the field at Cohasset High's Alumni Field for a game earlier this season.

Shark Mites wrap up season with 'Super' effort

From the moment both teams took the field, it was clear this one would be a nail biter.

Another outstanding season has come to an end for the Scituate-Cohasset ("SCICOH") Shark Mites, who traveled to Plymouth this past Sunday to face rival Bridgewater once again in the Super Bowl. The fan support began early with a caravan of heavily decorated vehicles leaving the Knights of Columbus in Scituate to make the journey south. With the inspiring Shark Mite cheerleaders and an unparalleled fan club rooting them on, the Sharks took the field hoping to make tuna of the Badgers and avenge their 2007 Super Bowl defeat.

From the moment both teams took the field, it was clear this one would be a nail biter. In the first series of the game, a swarming Shark defense forced a turnover to take over near midfield. Although the Sharks defense frustrated the Badgers for most of the game, a short touchdown run was the only score of the day. The Sharks bit back with a couple of key offensive drives but the Badger defense was too stout. The Sharks were not able to convert, ultimately losing to the Badgers 6-0.

It was a battle from start to finish, but as they consistently showed all season, the Sharks never gave up. And though the day ended for the Sharks in defeat on the field, one thing is certain . . . these boys and their coaches walked away winners.

The 2008 Shark season was full of highlights, but one in particular stands out as worthy of mention. It happened at a particulary cold and wet mid-week junior varsity game during which the varsity team practice broke early. Instead of heading to the warmth of their homes, each and every one of the varsity players headed to the stands to support their teammates, just as those teammates had done for them all season long. Standing and cheering in the cold and rain, chanting the players' names, the varsity players showed their appreciation for the JV's commitment all season long to the success of the team.

Over the course of the season, it wasn't uncommon for some players to wait on the sidelines until late in the game before taking the field. Not everyone played as much as they wanted during the season, but each player continued to show up night after night and work hard to improve themselves and their team. Every athlete should watch the movie "Rudy", paying particular attention to the scene when the Notre Dame starter asks Rudy why he works so hard at practice when he has little chance of playing in a game.

Without a doubt, the kids have learned something about the game of football, competition and themselves. Most of all, they had fun and formed new friendships. Many agree that football is the most team-oriented game of any sport. In this case, parents, family and fans watched 68 individuals become teammates and work with a single focus to achieve a common goal.

Thanks to the exceptional coaching staff of Mark Brady, Jeff Granatino, Chuck Allard, Paul Sullivan, Tom DeCoste, Paul Prescott, Scott Nelson, Tom Durkin, and Eric Damon, who not only taught these boys the physical skills necessary to play to game, but the character needed to play it with heart.

With a team of 68 kids, everyone deserves some mention, including the parents who gave of their time and support. Special thanks goes to the Shark Mite cheerleaders and their coaches who have faithfully supported and inspired the team and fans alike. Also a special thanks to Brian Woods for the spectacular photos that captured the action and emotions of all our kids throughout season. Last, but not least, much appreciation goes out to Michelle Varnum and Cheryl Nelson for keeping the team hydrated, taking care of our coaches, organizing our season-end celebration, and managing all the little details that were so important in making this season special.

No substitute for experience

Growing pains of '08 expected to pay dividends for CHS boys in '09

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Growing pains are an inevitable part of any occupation or avocation. There are few arenas in which that truism is less escapable than high school sports.

The Cohasset High boys' soccer team started preparations back in late August needing to replace seven starters lost to the caps and gowns. A serious ankle injury to senior captain Connor Ofsthun kept an eighth incumbent off the field for all of the pre-season prep work and the first few weeks of the regular season to boot.

"No doubt about it: it seemed like we were starting over in a lot of ways," said second year Skippers coach Jim Willis, who directed the Skippers to a 10-6-2 record in his 2007 debut season at the helm.

The Skippers started slowly with Ofsthun out of action (0-5-1, to be precise) but then lost only five more over the final 13 games, finishing 3-10-6 overall.

In particular, the Skippers felt the losses to the caps and gowns of front field standouts Mike Grimm and Sam Roth, both two-time South Shore league all-stars.

Like many coaches faced with a major rebuilding project, Willis focused on constructing from the back forward. In other words, he placed the emphasis on starting with a strong defense. Seniors Ofsthun, Lennert Browne and Owen Landon were stalwarts in the rear in 2007, and Willis kept them right there playing in front of All-South Shore League keeper Will Wise, a returning junior starter.

Looking back on the season earlier this week, Willis conceded that he felt for this year's five seniors who played out the string on a rebuilding squad.

"Five good kids who worked hard," noted Willis. "All of them will be missed and hard to replace."

Of the seniors, Landon was arguably the most pleasant surprise this season, stepping into the starting stopper spot and making a noteworthy splash.

"Owen was a very steady and feisty player for us all year," said Willis. "He worked hard every minute he was on the field and set the example as a senior leader."

The coach had similar praises for Brown and Ofsthun, the latter of whom joined Wise as a member of the South Shore League All-Star team.

Brown also received a few all-league votes from SSL coaches. His candidacy was hurt by the fact he was moved from sweeper to the midfield midway through the season to bolster the struggling offense, and his final numbers weren't on a par with other front field all-stars.

"Lennert probably belonged on the all-star team too," offered Willis. "In terms of skills and understanding of the game, he was probably our best player, but it's tough to get three guys voted on (to all-stars) when you win only three games."

As for Ofsthun, the argument for putting him on the all-star team was carried by the difference he made to the overall competitiveness of the Skippers after returning to action three weeks into the season.

"Connor was such a force in back for us," said Willis, who saw his team's goals against average drop more than one per match with Ofsthun on the lineup card. "He was absolutely ferocious taking people on. He'll be extremely difficult to replace."

The other two players who finished up their high school soccer careers last week were forwards Ivan Sceery and August Oddliefson.

Sceery was the team's only proven scorer heading into this fall. He finished second in the team scoring race to Roth as a junior with nine goals and seven assists. Not surprisingly, he was marked up by the top opposing fullbacks to start the season and was often doubled when the ball was near him. He finished his final year of high school soccer with one goal and two assists.

"Ivan never had a lot of room to operate this year," said Willis. "He lost Grimm and Roth as running mates and saw them replaced by a lot of guys who'd never played varsity soccer."

Oddliefson (2 goals, 2 assists) was the first front-field player off the bench, and netted the game winning goals in two of the Skippers three victories (Abington and Hull).

"August had a knack for getting in the right place at the right time, and we'll really miss that skill," said Willis.

Indeed, the Skippers greatly appreciated any and all offensive attributes this season, having scored a mere 15 goals in their 19 games, while surrendering a very respectable 30.

"We had a lot of players get their varsity baptism under fire this year," said Willis. "I think the talent is there with a lot of these players. The only thing lacking was experience. That was one of the good things about this season; a lot of guys we'll be looking to next year got some great experience, and you could see the progress as the season went along."

No player progressed as far as sophomore Anders Goetz. After backing up Roth as a freshman last year, Goetz came on to lead the Skippers offense this fall, having a hand in better than half of their goals with team bests in tallies (three) and assists (five).

"Anders really stepped up, and set himself up to be marked pretty closely next year," said Willis. "But I think a couple of other guys will be ready to step in as scorers next year."

Junior Tyler Durant and freshman Jonah Adkins are two of the top candidates to fill those voids.

"Jonah is an extremely skilled player who does just about everything well on the soccer field," said Willis of the frosh midfielder. "The last piece of the puzzle with him is figuring out how to set up his shot. He's getting closer, and I think he's ready to bust out next year,"

Durant has the makings to be a tone setter.

"Tyler is just ferocious and can really control the ball," lauded Willis. "He looks like he's ready to take that next step too."

Most importantly, Willis figures his team will be a lot more balanced up front next year. Undeniably talented athletes such as juniors Drew Cobin and Andrew Littauer (who returned to soccer from football), sophomores Mike Monaco and John McGoldrick and freshman Jamie Timothy all started at times this fall in the front six.

"We were a senior-heavy league this year, so to get all these players back with lots of varsity playing time under their belts gives us a nice leg up," said Willis. "I think all of those guys are ready to do get a lot more done at the offensive end next year."

Expected to further add to the depth are this fall's JV standouts Brendan Karney, Sam Richardson and Tucker Oddliefson.

Of course, the key building block for next year's squad will be Will Wise, the Skippers' starter between the pipes since his freshman year. The best testimony to Wise's level of play as keeper this season is the fact his team won just three games yet he received the third highest vote total from SSL head coaches for league MVP honors, earning him a spot on the All Eastern Mass team. Wise recorded five shutouts on the season and literally notched better than twice as many saves as the two keepers who finished with better goals against averages.

"I don't even want to think about where we would have been without Will," said Willis. "He's such a talented keeper. Knowing we've got him in back of a team that's returning a lot of talent is pretty exciting."

Undeniably, Landon and Ofsthun leave some big cleats in back to fill. However, Willis feels three players who received extended minutes in the rear this fall are all ready to take the next step in 2009.

Sophomore Travers Craven stepped in as starting sweeper near the mid-season point, with Brown sliding up to the midfield, and juniors Mike Filby and Jack Murphy ended the season as the starting fullbacks.

Murphy, a keeper throughout his youth soccer days, returned to the pitch this fall after taking his sophomore year off. With Wise entrenched at keeper, the junior decided to give fullback a shot. By the end of the year, Willis noted that Murphy had made himself a very tough player to take off the field.

"In all my years of coaching, I've never seen a player come further over the course of a single season than Jack," said Willis, previously the head varsity coach at Scituate High for seven years. "He went from being a player who said he didn't know if he could kick or carry a ball to a guy who was routinely getting by players with nice moves and making great clearing passes."

Lack of experience is an excuse Willis figures he's not going to use again for a while, having finished this season with just five juniors but double digit players from the sophomore, freshman and eighth grade classes.

Most encouraging is the fact that, even with 10 eighth graders and no upperclassmen, the JV team finished with a winning record (9-7-2).

"We've got good numbers and talent at the underclass levels," said Willis. "More important, the attitudes appear to be great. Hopefully, that will translate to a nice run of winning seasons starting next year."

School assembly includes veterans

Meghan Considine delivers a heartfelt and articulate Student Essay during the Veterans Day Ceremony.

'Bravery, determination, and passion'

By Meghan Considine

Veterans are brave men and women who serve our country during wartime or peace. On Veterans Day we thank these extraordinary people who risk their lives to protect us. Nov. 11 comes around once a year, but I believe we should honor our bold veterans every day.

In my opinion a veteran must have bravery, determination, and passion. Their country is their passion and a veteran's deepest desire is to help keep America strong and free. I believe a veteran should have determination, so they never give up under any circumstance. Bravery, for 100 reasons, but it also takes bravery, to join the military, and to be in the military, it's a hard decision to make; should I stay with my family, or serve my country? Whatever traits a veteran has, bad or good, a veteran serves their country, which makes them wonderful, courageous people.

What words can I use to say why a veteran should be honored? For one thing, some veterans have seen things so horribly unimaginable, it could be on their minds for years and years, impossible to forget, someone who serves their country deserves help getting over something that terrible. Some have felt regret, sorrow, and anger, but every day veterans fight to keep us a safe, strong country. Lastly, a veteran should be honored because they could be sacrificing their lives to protect you and I believe that should be honored. So thank your heroic veterans, pray for them, show your appreciation any way you can. Without them, who knows what our country would become?

Meghan Considine's thoughtful essay was selected from many fine essays written by Deer Hill students.

Warsaw Reborn

Stephen Jermanok
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

PHOTOS COURTESY OF WWW.WARSAW-LIFE.COM

Warsaw's rebuilt Old Town attracts tourists with its restaurants and shops and cobblestone streets.

"Before World War II," opines translator Joanna Maria Olejek, "Warsaw was more beautiful than Prague, than Budapest."

But then the Nazis arrived and destroyed much of the city with a special concentration on the most important cultural attractions. Hitler was swiftly followed by Stalin, who cleaned up the mess but gave the city a bland Communist-era sheen. And looking today at Warsaw's expanse of multistoried apartments, sprinkled with high-rise hotels, you yearn for a more compelling skyline.

But a visitor to Warsaw quickly learns the city's vitality is down at street level. Classy restaurants and bars beckon the growing number of international visitors, many of whom have come to the city to make a buck since Poland joined the European Union in 2005. Property development is everywhere as evidenced by the number of cranes rising above high-rise condos and office buildings, some of which were designed by world-class architects like Norman Foster and Daniel Libeskind.

The main tourist lure? Poland is still on its local currency, the zloty, and won't change over to the euro until at least 2012. So Warsaw is far more affordable for Americans than Paris, London and other cities in Western Europe.

And history is being reclaimed. You'll see details of exactly which plazas, palaces and centuries-old cathedrals were blown up by Hitler's troops in late summer 1944 at the Museum of the Warsaw Uprising. The Germans were in retreat on all fronts and Russia's Red Army was in striking distance of Warsaw when Polish resistance fighters decided to tackle the Nazis head-on. The resistance lasted several weeks, but civilian casualties were heavy and the Russians never held up their end of the bargain, simply waiting for the Germans and Poles to fight it out before they entered the city. Hitler was so irate with the Uprising that he ordered the annihilation of the city, dynamiting cultural institutions one by one.

By 1944, Hitler's barbarism had already reared its ugly head in the nearby Warsaw Ghetto, where few of the 380,000 Jews survived the forced starvation or transfer to death camps. Today, the neighborhood where some 750 Jewish fighters fought valiantly for a month to hold off the better-armed Germans is dotted with drab apartment buildings. But a new Museum of Polish Jewry is under construction and expected to be completed by 2011. Rather than dwell on Nazi persecution or the Holocaust, officials said the museum will focus on the millennium-long history of Jewish life in Poland prior to World War II.

Miraculously, the pre-War Nozyk Synagogue still stands in Grzybowski Square and has been renovated thanks to the generosity of businessman/philanthropist Ronald Lauder (Estee Lauder cosmetics) and other Americans. It's very much an active part of the Jewish community today in Poland, which now numbers over 20,000.

Next door is a Yiddish theater and across the square is Prozna Street, home to one of the few remaining historic tenements in the city. Roman Polanski used the burned-out brick facade as a backdrop for his film, "The Pianist."

The city's attempts to resurrect its history are also in evidence at the Royal Castle, once home to Polish kings in the Middle Ages, and reopened as a museum in 1984. The city's Old Town, completely destroyed at the end of World War II, has been rebuilt, too, complete with a cobblestone square and narrow side streets - original bricks were used - and today attracts tourists to its shops and restaurants. It's a much smaller version of Krakow's heralded Medieval Square, but still worthy of a stop for a tall glass of local beer or a snifter of honey-flavored vodka called Krupnik.

Roam Old Town's winding streets and you'll find eateries like Pod Golebiami (ul. Piwna 4A), popular with both locals and out-of-towners for homey Polish comfort food like pierogies, tasty herring in oil, lightly fried potato pancakes, and stuffed cabbage in a tomato cream sauce that brought back memories of my grandmother's cooking in a small flat in Brooklyn.

More upscale fare can be found across from the Ministry of Culture at Gessler Restaurant (ul. Ossolinskich 7; www.gessler.pl), housed in the former kitchen of the historic Hotel Europejski. Sous chefs dice and spice steak tartar tableside, while entrees of tender brisket and fish are washed down with good Italian sangiovese.

For a nightcap, grab a tatanka, a mix of apple juice and Zubrowka vodka, at one of the large tables at Folksal 19.

Hear old-school r&b thumping and watch the crowd jumping in this upscale club, and you'll know Warsaw is alive and well. Having risen from Hitler's ashes and shed its Communist coat, it's finding its place as a cosmopolitan city in the European Union.

Good luck to Skippers girls soccer!

LIFE AT CHS

LAUREN MACK

The game will be today at 5 o'clock at Whitman-Hanson High School against Bourne.

Hello everyone, I hope you all had a relaxing Veterans Day! And to those who made Monday a holiday as well, I'm confident that there was most certainly a valid excuse behind the absence. I believe it's also worth mentioning that there are no more full weeks of school left in the month of November. How exciting.

"Good news this week is that the girl's varsity soccer squad won against East Bridgewater on Monday 4-1, therefore advancing them to the semi-finals. The game will be today at 5 o'clock at Whitman-Hanson High School against Bourne. Good luck, ladies!

Also this week, report cards were sent home. This may have been either an exciting or traumatic event — nevertheless, it's necessary to report on either way.

This week's Teacher Quote of the Week comes from a teacher in the foreign language department who learned the values of hard work on her day off. Ms. "Señora" Jordan is her name, and she teachers a variety of language classes ranging from Spanish I to AP Spanish and even took some of her students to Spain this past summer. When I asked Señora how she spent her Veterans Day, she responded: "Well! I spent FOUR hours raking leaves at la casa de mi Madre, my mother's house. We tried to make it fun, but eventually we got tired and got out the leaf blowers. Boy, I'll tell ya! Those things could really kick a soccer ball across the field!" And with that, I leave you all until next Friday! Ciao!

'Fall into Reading!' at Osgood Book Fair

The Joseph Osgood School Parent School Organization, PSO, will host a Book Fair Fundraiser from 2 to 7 pm on Wednesday, Nov. 19

This year, the Joseph Osgood School PSO is once again delighted to welcome "Bookfairs by Bookends." This dynamic company has been hosting "books only" book fairs that are packed with a premier selection of books from over 40 different publishers. There will be hundreds of quality books with titles that you and your children will be excited to read! Lively picture books, captivating beginning readers, enchanting chapter books, and timeless classics and award winners will be among fact-packed science and reference books, current popular adult titles and perfect gift books for the holidays. As a sign of the times, "Bookfairs by Bookends" has also added "special buy" books throughout the fair – these current books will be value priced!

Attendees can also help the school build classroom libraries and the school library by purchasing books for teachers through the Classroom Wish List.

The PSO is a non-profit organization. The role of the PSO is to act as an advocate for public education. It is the official link between parents and schools. The PSO voices parental responses to school issues, and provides forums for administrators, teachers, and students to present their programs and policies to the public. Through fundraising efforts, like the upcoming Book Fair, the PSO provides programs and activities that enrich the school experience for students, teachers, and parents. Families, teachers, and all members of the community are invited to attend the Fair.

CEF seeks volunteers

The Cohasset Education Foundation (CEF) is looking for volunteers to coordinate their Teacher Appreciation Program, "Extra Credit". It is a rewarding program that allows donors to make a truly meaningful gesture to our dedicated teachers while raising money at the same time. Your participation will be greatly appreciated.

Please contact sarah.murphy@comcast.net and visit cohasseteducation.org to learn more about Extra Credit and the CEF.

Hola! Bon Jour!

Su Escuela is now opening their doors for registration to the foreign language winter session taking place at the Cohasset Elementary Schools. The 12-week program will begin the week of Jan. 13.

After-school classes will be offered at Osgood and Deer Hill schools in Spanish on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons and in French on Tuesdays.

Contact Su Escuela Director, Sandra Baldeon for more information at 781-383-2585, sbaldeon@suescuela.us or stop by Su Escuela (across from Shaws Supermarket on 3A) to find out more about these exciting programs. Come join the fun!

Child Find being conducted

Cohasset Public Schools, in accordance with Federal Law IDEA 2004 and Massachusetts Special Education Regulations 603 CMR 28.00, are in the process of conducting Child Find. The school department is seeking children with suspected disabilities residing in Cohasset who may be in need of Special Education services.

Cohasset Public Schools will evaluate students from age 3 through high school age who are unable to progress effectively in a regular education program due to a suspected disability in one of the following areas: developmental or intellectual delay, sensory, neurological, emotional, communication, physical, specific learning disability or health impairment. Cohasset Public Schools will also arrange for an evaluation of young people ages 16 through 21 who have not graduated from high school and who are not now attending school.

In addition, screenings for 3- to 5-year-olds will take place the third Friday of each month at Osgood School. Call the Integrated Pre-school staff at 781-383-6117 for more information.

Cohasset provides all children with an opportunity to participate in the public school programs using a continuous and systematic process to identify students in need of special education. All programs and services are offered without regard to color, race, sex, religion, national origin, sexual orientation or disability.

Parents who have a child they suspect may have a disability or know a child with a disability who may be in need of special education services, can call the director of student services, Linda Gill, at 781-383-6104 for information regarding the referral process.

How to Hear Better Before the Holidays

1. Have a complete and thorough Hearing Evaluation done by a State Licensed Specialist or Audiologist.
2. Find out if the problem is just earwax.
3. Consult with an Expert or Professional who lives and breathes the latest in hearing instrument technologies.
4. Be sure that your professional will demonstrate, with actual real hearing instruments on you, how much your hearing will improve.
5. See that your hearing system looks good on you and feels comfortable.
6. Go to a hearing practice that will offer very competitive pricing.
7. Get all the above at one location and with no obligation to purchase.
8. Make sure that all the above is completely free.
9. Do it now.

Just pick up the phone and call us. We will provide you with the first 8 points. The 9th can only be done by you (or your loved one).

As a Doctor of Audiology, I supervise and train our Specialists or Audiologists and will make sure that you get the straight answers that you need. Caroline Plant Fund — local help is available

By Rev. Margot D. Critchfield, Rector
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Yes, I said, available.

In 1947, a former parishioner of St Stephen's Episcopal Church named Caroline G. Plant died in Winter Park, Florida, leaving behind her a considerable estate. According to an article in The Patriot Ledger (July 16, 1987) Caroline was abandoned by her husband Thomas in 1903, who walked out of their 28-room Cohasset mansion overlooking Mill River — leaving behind a check for $1,000,000 in Caroline's napkin ring.

Thomas landed in Moultonboro, New Hampshire, married his private secretary, built a 28-room mansion where he lived with her until his death (along with 30 servants) and is rumored to have died penniless.

Caroline, however, did not. Included in her estate was a trust fund known as the "Caroline G. Plant Fund for Assistance," that provides for the Rector of St Stephen's Episcopal Church to help parishioners and others in the Cohasset area in time of need. Mrs. Plant's will stipulates that "One third of the net income shall be made available and paid over to or upon the order of Reverend Charles C. Wilson, Rector of St Stephen's Parish of Cohasset, Massachusetts, or his successor or successors in said office, for use as in his judgment and in the judgment of his successor or successors is desirable to assist the poor of Cohasset and North Scituate in time of need, to provide medical and surgical treatment for them when such treatment is not otherwise obtainable, and to assist the so-called genteel poor in time of trouble."

While the term "genteel poor" is not defined, and is probably not a moniker any of us would want attached to our names, the general sense of the term would apply to any of us who, while not "poor" by any reasonable standard, might find ourselves temporarily in need of financial assistance nonetheless.

The will further stipulates that "The use of such net income shall be at the sole discretion of said Reverend Charles C Wilson, or his successor or successors serving as Rector of St Stephen's Parish, none of whom shall be required to account for the disposition thereof." In fact, the Rector does offer an accounting of disbursements from the fund to the Fund Officer at SunTrust Bank, but recipients of this assistance are otherwise kept totally confidential by the Rector.

If you, or someone you know in Cohasset or N. Scituate is in need of help, and you think this fund might be of assistance, please make an appointment to see the Rev. Margot D Critchfield at St Stephen's. What a lovely way to honor the memory of Caroline Plant!

"...we commend to thy fatherly goodness all those who are in any way afflicted or distressed, in mind, body, or estate; that it may please you to comfort and relieve them according to their necessities..." (from the Episcopal Book of Common Prayer, 1979)

The Rev. Margot D. Critchfield is Rector of St. Stephen's Church.

Word is getting out that Cohasset C.A.R.E.S.

The group is made of spiritual leaders from the town and representatives from numerous organizations like the Social Service League, elder services, the food pantry, Wellspring, town officials and others.

A new community group formed to respond to the economic crisis, Cohasset C.A.R.E.S spent last week distributing its new information card around town. The group hopes the card will do two things; first, let people know where they can get help if they need it for anything from fuel assistance to spiritual support, and second, also let people know that if they do need help, they are not alone.

"When C.A.R.E.S first started meeting, we had the sense that for some people, this may be the first time in their life they find themselves needing help, whether that means needing extra food from the food pantry or whether it means support in coping with fear and uncertainty," said Rev. Colette Wood, assistant rector at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. "We hope that if someone is in need, they will see our information card and stick it in their pocket until they are ready to call someone."

The CARES in Cohasset C.A.R.E.S. stands for caring and responding economically and spiritually. The group is made of spiritual leaders from the town and representatives from numerous organizations like the Social Service League, elder services, the food pantry, Wellspring, town officials and others.

The blue and white information cards created by C.A.R.E.S. were recently sent to town residents with the Social Service League's community mailing. C.A.R.E.S. members also began distributing them through around town including places like the library, town hall, the town nurse's office, veterinarian offices, the food pantry, police station, and schools.

On the front cover of the card is a list of all the churches and spiritual centers in Cohasset and surrounding towns. C.A.R.E.S. hopes that it will remind residents that their local clergy are available for pastoral care and spiritual direction and that places of worship often offer a sense of community that is comforting during challenging times. The backside of the card lets residents know where to turn for help with fuel costs, food, prescription medicine, substance abuse and other needs.

Over the next month, C.A.R.E.S. will be looking at planning a town-wide community meal for some time in January and the possibility of new informational groups or seminars on topics related to the economy like job transitions.

Residents, who have not received a copy of the C.A.R.E.S. info card and would like one, are encouraged to call or stop in one of the town churches.

Thanksgiving ecumenical service Nov. 26

The annual Thanksgiving Ecumenical Worship Service will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 26th at 8 pm at the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset. Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
NOV. 10, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Decisions involving your finances might seem to be foolproof. But they could have underlying risks you should know about. Don't act on anything until all the facts are in.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're attracted to a situation that appeals to your Bovine intellect. And that's good. But don't neglect your passionate side when romance comes calling later in the week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A recent development enhances that special relationship. Spending more time together also helps make the bonding process stronger. Expect news about a possible career change.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A suspicious situation should be dealt with before it leads to serious problems. Get all the facts needed to resolve it. Then refocus your energies on those tasks that need your attention.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Try to be more open-minded in working toward a resolution of that standoff between yourself and a colleague or family member. A little flexibility now could work to your advantage later.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might feel a bit threatened by a proposed workplace change. The best way to deal with it is to ask questions. You'll find that those involved will be happy to provide you with the facts.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Feeling alone in a crowd during the early part of the week is an unsettling emotion. But your spirits soon perk up, putting you into the right mood to start making holiday plans.

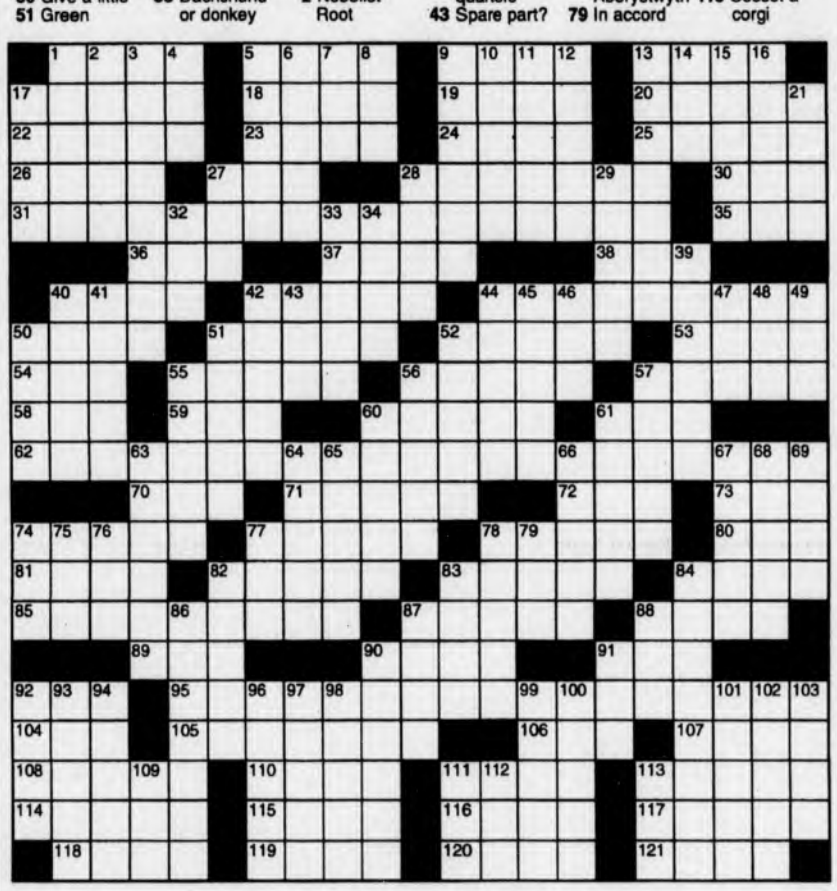
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A pesky problem should be dealt with immediately so you can put your time and effort into something more important. Someone from your past could have significant news for you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) High-energy aspects dominate, both on the job and at home. Use this time to put some long-range plans into operation. Things level off later in the week.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Even the usually gregarious Goat might feel overwhelmed by a flurry of activities. Be patient. Things soon return to your normal social routine.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Career choices that seem too confusing to deal with at this point probably are. More information would help uncomplicate them. On the personal side, a friend might need your advice.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your Piscean imagination is stimulated by possibilities you see in a new opportunity. But keep those ideas to yourself until you feel ready to translate them into a workable format.



(c) 2008 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have an ingratiating way of helping people deal with their fears. Have you considered a career in social work or with the clergy?

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Jingle Bell Walk is Nov. 28

The South Shore Community Center invites families and friends to our Fourteenth Annual Jingle Bell Walk, which will be held on Friday, Nov. 28. Come to beautiful Cohasset Harbor at 2 p.m. and watch as Santa, Mrs. Claus and their many elf assistants arrive by fishing boat.

Santa and his elves will distribute jingle bells and then will board a horse-drawn wagon for the 'parade' to the South Shore Community Center. Everyone is invited to follow Santa and Friends to the Community Center for hot cocoa, punch and cookies.

Santa and his elves will distribute jingle bells and then will board a horse-drawn wagon for the 'parade' to the South Shore Community Center.

Enjoy the community sing-along of traditional holiday favorites sung by Mrs. Claus, Santa, Frosty, Rudolph and the merry Elves.

There will be photos with Santa, open bowling, face painting, a turkey trot and hayrides on the Common.

The Rusty Skippers Band will entertain at the end of the day and the lighting of the Christmas tree will take place on the Common at dusk. This is a wonderful community event that is sure to put everyone into the holiday spirit.

Art Center's 'Walk the Line' fundraiser is Nov. 15

South Shore Art Center's national drawing show will be the backdrop for its "Walk the Line" fundraiser, a casual evening of music, food and art, Saturday, Nov. 15. With a nod to country legend Johnny Cash, the evening will feature country and popular music by musician Chuck McDermott and friends, fun finger-foods, cash bar and a participatory art project. Guests will be given a drawing implement to add their touch to an evolving 12-by-6-foot work of art.

Get out your cowboy boots, put on your jeans, and come relax and have fun, all to benefit the art education and exhibition programs of South Shore Art Center. The event is $45 for Art Center members; $55 for nonmembers. The cost includes complimentary drink ticket, hors d'oeuvres, great music, door prizes and the chance to contribute to a work of art.

For reservations or more information, contact the Art Center at 781-383-2787 or festival@ssac.org.

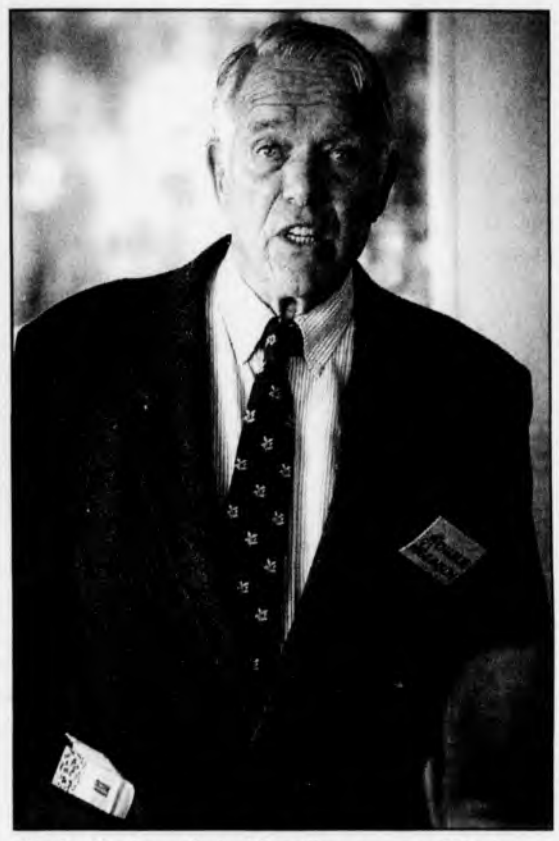
'Old Goats' savor stimulating discussions

Group welcomes local speakers

By Maureen McCarthy
CORRESPONDENT

STAFF PHOTOS/GARY HIGGINS



The Old Goats, a group of retired Cohasset men, meet on the first and frouth Thursday of every month. Each table hosts its own discussion.

As President-Elect Barack Obama builds his administration and prepares to take on the nation's economic woes, a group of accomplished Cohasset retirees — affectionately called the "Old Goats" — spent Thursday afternoon (Nov. 6) discussing presidential agenda items.

"This new administration is going to be very different," said guest speaker and Old Goats member, Lincoln Bloomfield, 88. "Obama will have the wind at his back for a while…but will come up against some painful realities."

Bloomfield, a retired political science professor for Massachusetts Institute of Technology and former director of global issues for the U.S. State Department said Obama will face four critical challenges during his presidency: The war in Iraq and Afghanistan; Iran's nuclear ambitions and relieving the United States from oil dependency.

"Barack Obama is coming in and people are rooting for him," said Old Goats speaker, Charles Higginson, 76, a retired career foreign-service officer. "I think he will press on global warming and climate change."

Charles Higginson, Retired State Department and Foreign Service Officer, speaks to members of the Old Goats. The group meets twice a month in Cohasset.

Both viewpoints coupled with a room bustling with congenial conversation – have all the makings of a typical Old Goats meeting.

"It is just a fascinating group of people with real diverse backgrounds," said the group's former president, Joe Nedrow, 70. "Because the discussions are all different, you are always fascinated with the conversation and the perspectives of different people."

Impeccably dressed in suit coats and ties, the Old Goats luncheon welcomed 40 retired, Cohasset residents – ranging in age from mid 60s to 93. Founded in 1966, the vision of the all-male group is to promote fellowship and compatibility and to stimulate conversation.

"The comradeship is very important," said current president, Diarmuid O'Connell, 80, referencing the benefits of socializing and thought-provoking conversation. "They (the members) savor stimulating discussions about Cohasset and other issues around the world."

Considered an accomplished and diverse group by townspeople, the organization is made up of former CEOs, sailors, diplomats, attorneys and investment counselors, to name just a few – all whom dine together twice a month at Atlantica Restaurant to discuss the issues facing their town, the nation and the world.

Former treasurer and informal historian, Dave Pottenger said the benefits of rich and inspiring conversation are many. "You need to get out and connect with society and this group offers that," he said.

In 2008, members welcomed local speakers including town manager, William Griffin, police Chief James Hussey and fire Chief Robert Silvia.

"This is a very informal and collegial group," said 2007 president Gault Grant, 75. "As a group, we don't take positions or get involved politically. It is to get together for fellowship."

Restricted to 40 members, there is currently a wait list, O'Connell said. All new members must be nominated by a fellow Old Goat and the only time there is a vacancy, he said, is if a member cannot attend all meetings, a change in residency or someone dies.

O'Connell described his eight-year Old Goats experience as stimulating.

"It is a very eclectic, educated and accomplished group," he said. "Our goal is to stay healthy and live long."

Former MIT political science professor Lincoln Bloomfield shares his knowledge with members of Old Goats. The group meets twice a month in Cohasset.

BEANPOT OF 'SPAMALOT'

Monte Python spoof back for second run in Boston

By R. Scott Reedy

Camelot scene in Monty Python's Spamalot.

For theater performers, being on the road with a show usually means living out of a suitcase. Singer and dancer Angelina Mullins will be able to unpack her bags next week, however, and stay with her family in Mansfield while she appears in "Monty Python's Spamalot" at Boston's Colonial Theatre.

"It's great to be able to live with my family when the show is in Boston. My mom takes really good care of me and when I'm not working I'll be able to spend time catching up with family and friends in the area," said Mullins by telephone. "I'm expecting many of my friends and family to come see the show, too, which is always fun."

They'll join the throngs of theatergoers who've already applauded the national tour of the show that won three 2005 Tony Awards, including Best Musical. Lovingly "ripped off" by creator Eric Idle from his most popular motion picture, "Monty Python and the Holy Grail" — which featured the irreverent British comedy troupe of Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Terry Gilliam, Idle, Terry Jones and Michael Palin — "Monty Python's Spamalot" is directed by Mike Nichols with a score by Idle and John Du Prez. Telling the tale of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table and their quest for the Holy Grail, "Spamalot" features a chorus line of dancing divas — including Mullins — and kooky knights in the court of King Arthur.

Angelina Mullins

Although she grew up mostly unaware of the madcap antics of Monty Python, the 22-year-old Mullins admits she is now a full-fledged convert.

"The whole Monty Python thing was a little before my time, and I didn't really get the British humor at first. I had to see the show a few times to really get it. After being in it for a while, and experiencing such an overwhelmingly positive response from audiences, I realized it truly has something for everyone."

With Mullins in the cast, that often includes her parents, Ann-Marie and David, and her brother, David, a 2008 graduate of Mansfield High School. "I see my parents every six weeks or so and often my brother, too. They've joined me on the road many times in some amazing places like Denver and Seattle. It's been a great opportunity for all of us to see the country," said Mullins, who was also with "Spamalot" when it played Boston's Opera House last winter.

The song and dance skills that have Mullins touring the country were honed in another part of the professional dance world as a Boston Ballet School student, first at the South Shore Studio in Norwell and then in Boston. The 2003 Mansfield High School graduate danced on area stages many times during 10 years with the Boston Ballet Company, most notably as Clara in "The Nutcracker." By age 17, however, she was already considering other career options.

"I grew up in the Boston Ballet of artistic directors Bruce Marks and Anna-Marie Holmes, and it was an experience I will carry with me always, but once I met Annie Reinking I was really on the path to musical theater."

Completing her Mansfield High senior-year class work months early, Mullins — who now lives in New York — was offered a part in the national tour of the stage version of "Saturday Night Fever" in the spring of 2003.

"At that point, I was also still auditioning for ballet companies, but I was being drawn more and more to musical theater," recalls Mullins. Following "Saturday Night Fever," Mullins joined the national — and subsequently international — tour of "Fosse," the 1999 Tony Award-winning Best Musical that celebrates Bob Fosse's genius as a choreographer, director, and performer.

"It was the realization of a lifelong dream for me to do that show. My skin tingled every night when the curtain went up. The whole 'Fosse' experience was very moving for me and it is something I will be grateful for as long as I live."

While Mullins — who passed on a short-term contract with CBS-TV's "Guiding Light" to take "Fosse" — looks forward to a possible future in television and films, she's also clearly enjoying her current assignment.

"This whole 'Spamalot' tour has been just amazing. We're very lucky, because we have a great cast and company and we're all very close, which is a rare experience in this business. I've never felt such genuine camaraderie before. When Mike Nichols comes out to check on the show, he always encourages us to just go wild and have fun. It is good advice and easy to take, because this whole show is just a really well-written spoof that everyone seems to love, including those of us in the cast."

"Monty Python's Spamalot" will be at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston St., Boston, Nov. 18-23. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 617-931-2787 or go online at broadwayacrossamerica.com.

Eusebio (Jaime Tirelli) and Flora (Socorro Santiago) star in the Huntington Theatre Company's production of 'Boleros for the Disenchanted' at the Boston Center for the Arts.

'Boleros' is engaging, heartfelt

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

As the 40-year marriage of Flora and Eusebio — the Puerto Rican couple at the heart of the Huntington Theatre Company's thoughtfully rendered production of Jose Rivera's beautifully written "Boleros for the Disenchanted," now at Boston's Wimberly Theatre — demonstrates there are storms to be weathered in any long union.

At the outset of the first act, Flora is a passionate young woman engaged to marry the handsome Manuelo. While she has saved herself for marriage, her suitor has done quite the opposite, and the pair soon part. Before long, Flora finds new love with Eusebio and the pair decides to leave behind life on "The Enchanted Island" of Puerto Rico, not to mention Flora's ever-present parents, for a fresh start on Long Island.

Four decades have passed when we see the couple in act two, and while their youthful promise has long faded, their love endures.

With "Boleros," the playwright tells a very personal story based on his own parents. But while it is touching and emotionally engaging, it does not feel complete. We are introduced to Flora and Eusebio as they meet each other in 1952 and then see them again some 40 years later as they grapple with the inevitability of death. What is missing, however, is any substantive sense of what the middle of their lives must have been. Many, many thousands of Puerto Rican immigrants came to the United States before 1960, quite a few of whom were met with less than open arms. When the promise of success in America failed to materialize, or came at too high a price, many Puerto Ricans chose to return home.

Rivera touches on those kinds of difficulties only briefly, when Flora speaks of her six children, whom we never see, or reads a letter aloud from the cousin she left behind in Puerto Rico. But we want to know more. One wishes that Rivera had gone into more detail about his parents' long life together.

What part he has shared, however, is a vivid testament to the sustaining power of love shown through proud and exquisitely realistic portrayals of both his mother and father.

Director Chay Yew has assembled a very talented and versatile cast, led by Socorro Santiago, who portrays Donna Milla, Flora's mother, in Act I, and Flora in Act II; and Jaimie Tirelli, first as Don Fermin, Flora's father, and later as the bedridden Eusebio. The pair are near-perfect acting partners.

Monica Raymond and Elliot Vinar are terrific, too, as the young Flora and Eusebio whose inner strength as individuals and as a couple is clear from the first encounter. In Act II, Raymond is also good as a compassionate home health aide while Vinar brings appealing vigor to his portrayal of Oskar.

Maria-Christina Oliveras is memorable, too, as the lively cousin Petra in Act I and the equally appealing Monica in Act II, while Juan Javiar Cardenas is good as both the rascalish Manuelo and a host of understandably similar-looking priests.

Set designer Alexander Dodge (HTC's "Brendan" and "Present Laughter") places the first act proceedings on either the large veranda or front lawn of a modest palm tree-embraced home in Puerto Rico, with Flora even dressing for her wedding outside. Act II is set entirely inside a tiny Alabama house that shows America may not have fully lived up to its promise for Flora and Eusebio.

The production is also well-served by Paul Whittaker's solid lighting, Anita Yavich's always time-appropriate costumes and Fabian Obispo's mood-setting music.

(The Huntington Theatre Company production of "Boleros for the Disenchanted" will be the Wimberly Theatre in the Calderwood Pavilion at the Boston Center for the Arts, 527 Tremont St., through Nov. 15. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 617-266-0800, or go online at huntingtontheatre.org)

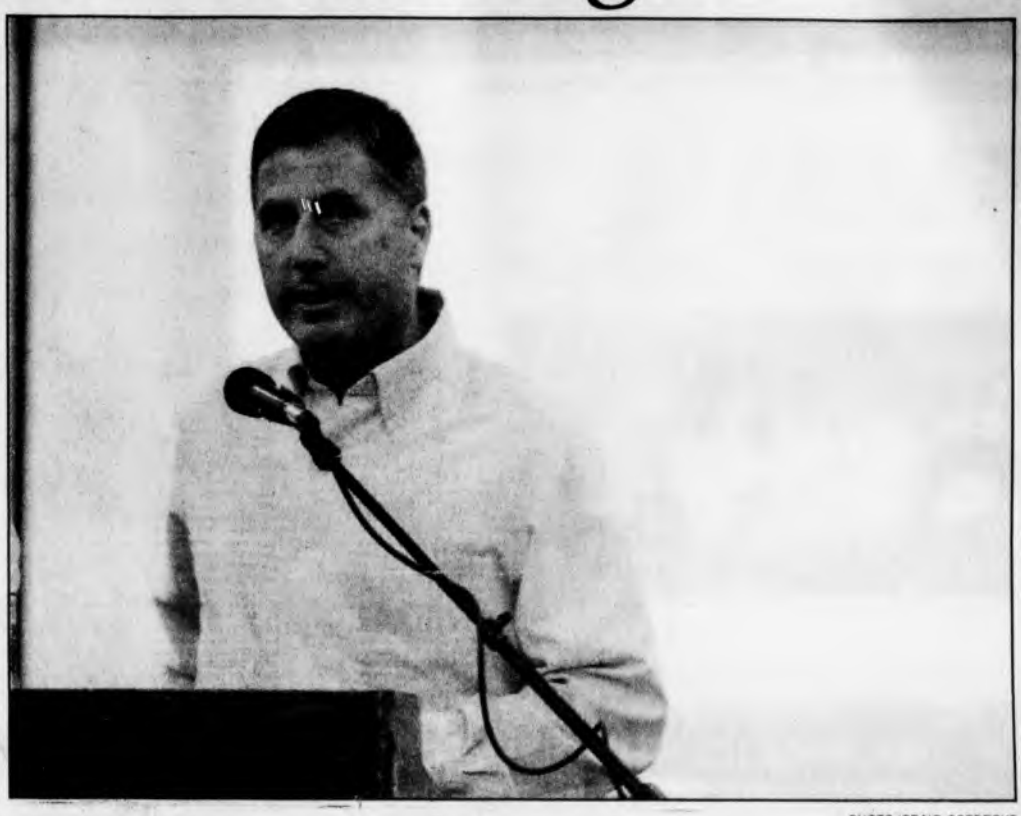
SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

Turf field is a go

Voters ok public-private partnership

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM



In a year's time, the town of Cohasset could be the proud owners of a synthetic turf field. With just a handful of nay votes at Town Meeting Monday night, the public-private partnership to build a turf field at the high school is moving forward.

Proponents of the turf field, which was put forth in a citizen's petition, said the installation of a turf field is the equivalent of building three new grass fields because of the possibility of nearly constant play. It will also ease up the stress and scheduling crunch on the Deer Hill and Milliken fields.

"There has been a great deal of increase in participation for youth sports, but the town has not kept pace with the amount of playing fields," said McGoldrick. "Alumni is vacant while Milliken is flooded with 700 kids, 700 siblings and 1,400 parents trying to get all their kids' games."

The article, which was the last piece of business taken up by Town Meeting, passed after 25 minutes of discussion, mostly devoted to a presentation given by Cohasset Sports Partnership presi-

George McGoldrick, president of the Cohasset Sports Partnership, makes a presentation at Monday's Special Town Meeting about the proposed synthetic turf field. The total cost to design, permit and build the synthetic turf field is estimated to be $1,050,000, with the partnership covering half that amount.

Ripley Road project can take next step

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

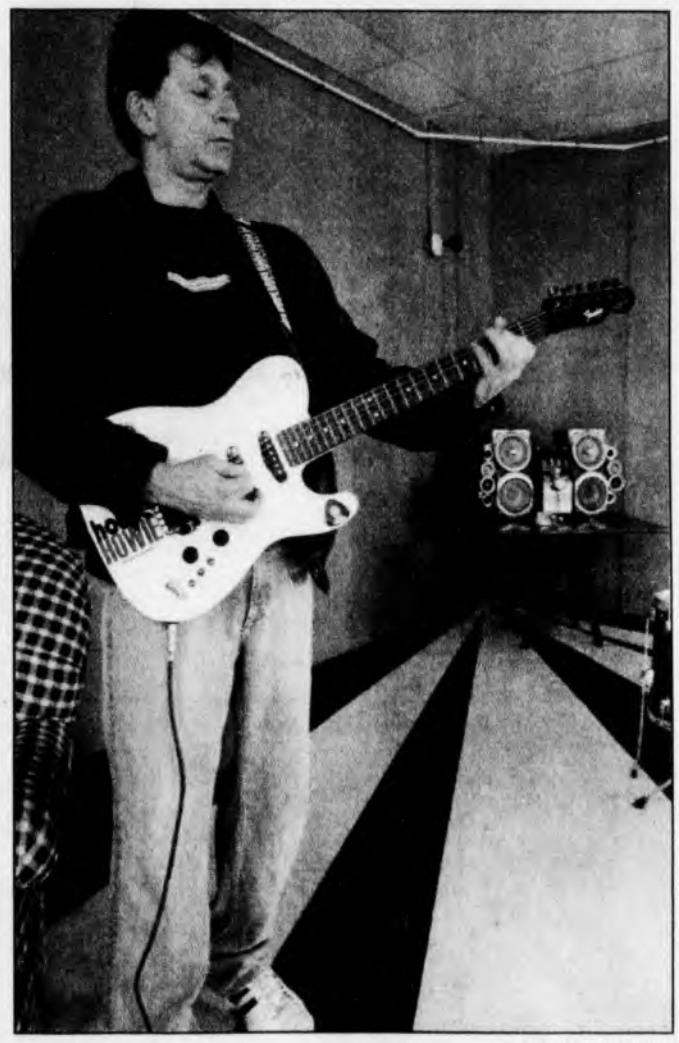
This week, Mass. Housing, a state agency, gave the proposed affordable housing project at 25 Ripley Road its initial determination that the project is eligible for state funding.

This is an early step toward making the project a reality. Approval from the state means the proposed seven-unit development, two of which will be considered affordable units, can now apply for a local permit.

Site owner and developer Will Charles was encouraged by the findings of the Mass Housing Finance Agency and plans to file for a comprehensive permit application with the Zoning Board of Appeals in the near future.

"I'm going to continue to move forward," said Charles in a phone interview. "With this approval, I hope to revisit the Housing Partnership to see if we can work together. I still want to work with the town."

The approval comes on the heels of the Board of Selectmen's refusal to work cooperatively with the developer and myriad neighbor concerns about the project's impact on the area. Many neighbors, the Housing Partnership Committee and the Board of Selectmen enumerated their concerns with the project in letters to Mass Housing back in the spring. Density, visual impact, increase in traffic and noise, sewer issues and developer experience topped their concerns.



The issue of affordable housing is significant for Cohasset, which has only about 2 percent of its housing stock

Sunday Jams can really rock

Rec Dept. unveils music program

Howie Altholtz of Cohasset warms up before the start of Sunday's jam session. Instruments have been loaned to the program from Crossroads of Hanover.

Practice, practice, practice.

That's the mantra of music teachers across the country. But, there comes a point when musical scales, though vitally important to learning an instrument, aren't really that fun. Wouldn't it be fun to take the skills kids have learned in music class, get together with their friends and just jam?

That's the attitude behind a new weekly program, Sunday Jams, put on by the Recreation Department. Each Sunday from 4 to 6p.m. musically ambitious teens can come to the Rec Center "garage" to get creative.

Recreation Department director Ted Carroll has tapped music industry veteran and Cohasset resident Howie Altholtz to help coordinate Sunday Jams.

"I envision everyone learning from each other," says Altholtz. "I hope to get a big mix of different kids – girls and boys – and different instruments."

While the program has only been running for a few weeks, Altholtz has big plans for the program. Altholtz has been involved in the music business for more than 25 years, as a writer, performing artist, producer and lawyer. Carroll called on Altholtz because he had heard about his experience in the music business, and Altholtz enthusiastically took on the project.

As more kids begin to get involved, Altholtz hopes to round out the jam sessions with sessions on the music business and clinics on songwriting. He hopes to utilize some of his music

Wind Turbine hearing Dec. 1

The Planning Board's continued public hearing on the proposed wind turbines at Graham Waste originally scheduled for Monday Oct. 27, has been postponed to Monday, Dec. 1.

This is the second time the applicant has asked for a postponement in order to gather information since the first public hearing in September.

As a procedural matter, the continued public hearing reconvened on Oct. 27 only to immediately be continued to Dec. 1. No discussion or information on the project took place on Oct. 27.

CCI Energy is proposing installing two turbines on the Graham Waste site off of Route 3A behind Hingham Lumber. The project calls for two 1.65-megawatt turbines each approximately 141-meters, or 462-feet, from ground to the top of the blade.

POLICE BEAT

K-9 unit helps catch suspect

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Police believe a stolen car found Saturday morning may be related to the attempted break-in at a Cedar Street home on Saturday.

Stephen J. Carney, 44, of 4 Spinnaker Hill Lane, Hull, who has been charged with breaking and entering, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct following the incident, is currently being held at Bridgewater State Prison/Hospital for drug/alcohol evaluation.

A gray 2002 Jeep Cherokee with a flat front tire, open windows and damage on the side of vehicle had been abandoned at the RTF early Saturday morning. Police said a caller reported seeing the Jeep hit the curb at N. Main Street and Forest Avenue earlier that morning.

The Jeep had been stolen out of Hanson, police said.

The Jeep is being processed for prints, including palm prints, to see if they are Carney's, police said.

Carney could be facing Hanson charges if it turns out he stole the car, police said.

On Saturday (Nov. 15) at 11 a.m., Cohasset police responded to a house on Cedar Street to investigate a breaking and entering in progress. A woman was reporting that a man was attempting to climb into her bedroom window.

On arrival Cohasset officers determined the man had been scared off by the resident and fled into the nearby woods. Cohasset police, with the assistance of Hull and Hingham K-9 units, established a perimeter, and began a coordinated search for the suspect.

At about 1 p.m. "Axel," along with his handler, Officer Foss, located the suspect secreted in the wooded area in the backyards off Fisher Road in Hingham, which is about 1/4 mile from Cedar Street.

Hingham police spokesman, Lt. Michael Peraino said a 9-1-1 call came in to Hingham dispatch at 12:50 p.m. from a Fisher Road resident who reported seeing a man just off his property in a marsh that borders the Cohasset Golf Club.

"He said he noticed a lot of police activity," Peraino said. "He provided a description of the man's clothing which fit the description of the suspect.

"He then told us he saw the police dog with the K-9 officer coming," Peraino said. "He continued to give us a play-by-play."

Peraino said Hingham police sent officers, John Walden and Anthony Marcella, to the scene to provide backup. Foss told the suspect, who was later identified as Carney, to empty his pockets. Police said Foss ordered him to the ground four times, but he refused, so Foss released the dog to the suspect.

It took officers from Cohasset, Hull and Hingham to bring the suspect under control and into custody.

Police said Carney, who has a long criminal history, was held on $5,000 cash bail at the Cohasset Police Station until his arraignment Monday (Nov. 17). He was arraigned on the charges breaking and entering in the daytime, resisting arrest, and disorderly conduct.

Cohasset police said Carney voluntarily committed himself for a 20-day drug/alcohol evaluation. The Norfolk County DA's office has reserved their right to argue bail when he is released or if he tries to leave the program. He is being held at Bridgewater State Prison/Hospital and will return to court on Dec. 16.

Cohasset Lt. William Quigley said the arrest was an excellent example of teamwork.

"Cohasset, Hingham and Hull police, working in unison, did an exceptional job and were able to take this person off the street," Quigley said.

Lt. Peraino said apprehension of the suspect is a great example of how well the K-9 unit works.

"Two hours after the break-in, the unit was able to track the man down in a heavily wooded area," Peraino said

B&E

Police have an active warrant for the arrest of a 26-year-old Hingham man, Daniel Kearney of Hull Street, who allegedly pushed his way into a Hull Street house in Cohasset, beating the male resident and later coming back and smashing the picture window of the house.

Police said the Kearney, who is known to the residents of the Cohasset home, was banging on the door at 1:48 a.m. on Saturday (Nov. 8) yelling "This is the police, open up." The 21-year-old female resident opened the door and the suspect pushed his way in and beat up her 21-year-old boyfriend. The intruder fled and then returned and smashed out the picture window.

Police will seek charges of burglary while armed, vandalizing property, assault & battery and impersonating a police officer. The incident revolved around an ongoing dispute between the suspect and victims. Police said the suspect is still at large.

Are You OK?

Police responded to a house on Woodland Drive last week after the sheriff's office "Are You OK?" program called after not being able to reach the resident. Cohasset police checked on the resident and reported that he was home and was fine.

Sheriff Bellotti's "Are You OK?" program is designed to allow elderly folks to feel confident and safe while maintaining their independence by living in their own homes. Sheriff's officers place a daily phone call to program participants to check on their well-being.

The calls are made every day between 6 a.m. and noon at a time requested by the participant. All calls are monitored by the Sheriff's "Are You OK?" officers. If the participant fails to answer the phone, or if the officers detects that something is amiss during the call, emergency help can be sent to the home immediately.

If the person plans on being away, a simple phone call to the Sheriff's Are You O.K.? officer will discontinue the calls and reactivate them when the person comes back.

For more information, please call Sheriff Bellotti's Are You O.K.? officer toll free at 781-751-3504,. For more information, visit: www.norfolksheriff.com.

Vandalism

Police are investigating the vandalism of the new mural in the pocket park between Tedeschi's and French Memories in Cohasset Village. Sometime between 5 p.m. Thursday (Nov. 13) and 5 a.m. Friday (Nov. 14), an individual or individuals used black spray paint to destroy much of the mural which features the Minot Light Replica. High school students finished the mural last week.

Police said the perpetrator could face the criminal charges of vandalism to property and tagging, which is a felony punishable by jail time. Someone found guilty of tagging (spray painting over something) could also lose their license for a year.

Cohasset detectives are investigating and are checking their sources, police said.

Ring found

A 1957 Dartmouth High School gold-colored ring with RMK engraved inside the band was found outside Curtis Liquors on Friday (Nov. 7). The person who found it notified the manager and brought the ring to the police station.

Car damaged

A 63-year-old Winthrop man reported that his 2004 Chrysler Sebring was hit while parked in the Shaw's lot last week (Monday, Nov. 10 at 10:42 a.m.). The responding officer reviewed video tapes which did not cover the angle of the parking lot where the car was parked. Police said it is not clear if the car was damaged while parked there. The man noticed the damage when he returned to his car but could not be sure if it occurred while he was parked there.

Motorcycle

Police responded to two complaints about a yellow dirt bike/motorcycle racing up and down Jerusalem Road last week. The callers said the rider was not wearing a helmet and the bike did not have a license plate. Police spoke to the man who explained he was trying out the bike after some repairs. Police explained motorcycles must be registered before being driven on the roads. The calls came in on Monday afternoon (Nov. 10).

Winter parking

Winter parking regulations are in effect Nov. 15 through April 1.

No overnight on-street parking between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. is allowed during winter parking regulations.

Violators are subject to a fine of $25.

Police say the mural at Ship Cove Park was defaced sometime overnight Thursday-Friday (Nov. 13-14). Tagging (spray painting graffiti over something) is a felony and the perpetrators could be prosecuted.

Students react to defaced mural

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Disappointed is the best way to describe the Cohasset High School Art Major class.

Sometime overnight on Thursday, an individual or a group, vandalized the mural the class had nearly completed in the village pocket park between Tedeschi's and French Memories. In black spray paint, the vandals wrote "Cohasset sux, Hull rocks," blacked out the classes signature and painted initials. The spray paint affected nearly all parts of the mural.

"I was shocked someone would have the nerve to do something like that," said senior Lauren Johnson.

"It was a blatant disregard for the time we put into the project. It makes you more frustrated than anything," said senior Katelyn Ryan.

Word spread pretty quickly about the vandalized mural around the high school on Friday. Some students heard when their friends showed them photos they had taken on their cell phones, others got phone calls from friends or parents, and others found out when their teacher, Nina Berkowitz, told them.

The Art Major class worked on the project for over a month. The mural was nearly complete, only a few touch-ups and a protective layer to make cleaning the mural easy remained to be done. The painted mural was of a view of the Cohasset Harbor from Governor's Island, with the iconic Minot Light replica in the foreground. A mural depicting the four seasons had been in the spot previously and in recent memory had not been the target of vandalism.

"It saddens me to find out that after several months of working on the piece that someone can come along and ruin it so easily. I'm not as angry at the individual as I am disappointed," said senior Nick Bemis. "I'm not sure how an individual can see something that had so much time and effort put into it as simply an way to vent their disliking of the town."

Now, with the weather getting colder, the class faces the challenge of keeping their fingers nimble enough to hold a paintbrush in the cold in order to restore the mural.

"I'm disappointed and the students are disappointed. They worked so hard on this project. They're not even getting a grade for it, they were doing it out of their own desire to improve the community," said art teacher Nina Berkowitz. "It changes the way they feel about doing something like this in the future."

Some students mused about the timing of the vandalism — it occurred right after the class finished the mural.

"Whoever it was got there quickly," said junior Amy Meikleham. The students didn't have any leads as to who could have done this to the mural, but despite what the graffiti said some had doubts it was even someone from Hull.

"There's always been a rivalry between Hull and Cohasset, but that doesn't mean it was someone from Hull," said Lauren Johnson.

Despite their disappointment and, in some cases, anger, the class is resolved to restore the mural to its proper beauty.

"We don't know how many coats of paint it will take to cover it, but we made a promise to do it and we're not going to leave it like that," Lauren said.

Volunteers needed for SHINE program

Norfolk County Regional SHINE program is currently recruiting volunteers to be trained as SHINE counselors. The Serving the Health Information Needs of Elders program is sponsored by the Executive Office of Elder Affairs and staffed by a network of volunteer counselors who provide information, counseling and assistance to Medicare beneficiaries.

Volunteers participate in a 10-day training program that provides an understanding of Medicare, Medicare Supplement Insurance, Medicare HMOs, Medicare Prescription Drug Program and a number of public benefit programs. Volunteers receive certification from the Executive Office of Elder Affairs upon completion of the training program.

Ripley Road housing project to move forward deemed affordable by state standards. Chapter 40-B mandates 10 percent of the town's housing stock be deemed affordable. Towns that are under the 10 percent threshold of their housing stock deemed as affordable by state standards, like Cohasset, are vulnerable to Chapter 40-B projects.

Chapter 40-B allows developers to bypass certain zoning bylaws as long as 20 to 25 percent of the units have long-term affordability restrictions.

Affordable units must be priced to be affordable to the households making no more than 80 percent of the area median income. The most recent median family income for a four-person household for Cohasset is $66,150.

In a four-page letter from Mass Housing, it states they found the site of the proposed project "generally appropriate for residential development" and the project "appeared to be financially feasible within the housing market."

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer said he was somewhat surprised at Mass Housing's approval of the project.

"My own view is the project needs a compromise. Seven units is sort of pushing it in that building, it is really too much to put into this one building," said Dormitzer in a phone interview. He said a five-unit development might be more appropriate for the site.

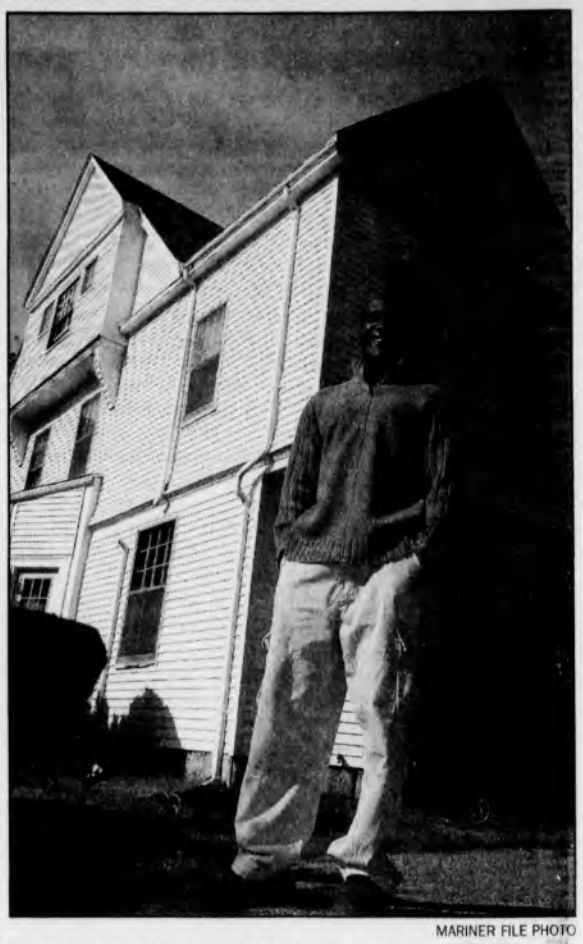
Dormitzer reiterated the Selectmen's concerns of financial feasibility and sewer capacity.

"The bigger issue is if (the developer) can really execute on this," said Dormitzer. "There are a lot of issues."

In its approval letter, Mass Housing requests the Zoning Board permit process address some of the neighborhood and town concerns including drainage, septic system, visual impact of the parking area on abutters and developer experience.

"With this approval, I hope to revisit the Housing Partnership to see if we can work together. I still want to work with the town."
— Will Charles, developer

Given their vocal opposition to the project, the neighbors are surprised and concerned with the state's approval.



"Having heard from neighbors that the State has approved the application for a seven-unit development at 25 Ripley Road, it is very surprising and continues to be of great concern to us," said Kathy O'Malley of 56 Sohier Street.

The proposal to build affordable housing units at 25 Ripley Road has a history. In early 2007, the Housing Partnership had plans to turn the single-family house into several affordable units. When the Partnership was met with significant neighborhood opposition, they abandoned the project in favor of pursuing other projects.

Before applying to the state, the project could have proceeded in one of two ways. If the Board of Selectmen had endorsed the project, the development would have become a Local Initiative Program, or LIP, which is often called "friendly 40-B." In a LIP, the town and developer work together to bring forward the project to the state. Since Charles did not garner the support of the Board of Selectmen, he proceeded to apply to the state on his own under Chapter 40-B.

Now with approval from the state Department of Community Housing & Development (DHCD) to ensuring the project met state regulations and guidelines, it will undergo a zoning board comprehensive permit process.

When reached this week, the Housing Partnership co-chairman Clark Brewer had no specific comment on the latest development at 25 Ripley Road. The Housing Partnership was scheduled to meet on Thursday evening after the Mariner went to press where they were likely to discuss the project.

Site owner and developer Will Charles, pictured here in this October 2007 file photo, was encouraged by the findings of the Mass Housing Finance Agency and plans to file for a comprehensive permit application with the Zoning Board of Appeals in the near future.

Saint Stephen's accepting book donations

Saint Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave. is accepting donations of slightly worn hardcover and paperback books, books on tape, DVDs, and CDs for its annual book sale, part of the ecumenical Village Fair that will be held this year on Dec. 6 on Cohasset's scenic Common.

Donations can be brought to the church in bags or boxes and placed inside the parish hall door marked "Church Offices". Use the "reserved parking" spot to unload your books during church office hours Monday through Friday 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Books are sorted at St. Stephen's Church in Walton Rodgers Hall every Tuesday from 9 to 11 a.m. Donations will be accepted through Nov. 25. Old textbooks, romance novels, damaged, musty or moldy books or books with notes and/or highlighting cannot be accepted. For information, call D'Anne Avotins at 781-923-1104

The monies raised from the Book Sale will be used to send underprivileged children and their families to the Barbara C. Harris Camp in Greenfield, N.H. For more information about this facility, visit www.bchcenter.org.

Hair Imports raises money for new cancer center at South Shore Hospital

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On Sunday, Dec. 7, hair stylists, manicurists and other beauty specialists at Hair Imports will donate their time and skill to benefit a cause close to their heart.

Hair Imports, located in the Shaw's Plaza, will donate 100 percent of the proceeds from the services rendered on that day to South Shore Hospital's Journey of Hope campaign to build a new cutting edge cancer center on the South Shore. The currently under construction 85,000 square foot building on Route 18 in Weymouth is being developed in partnership with three respected leaders in healthcare: Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, Brigham and Women's Hospital, and South Shore Hospital.

"It's bad enough that people are sick, but then they have to drive into Boston to get the best care, dealing with traffic and parking along the way. It's a good thing they are doing to get the treatment people need closer," said Hair Imports owner Joe Molino.

"I don't know many people where cancer has not touched their lives," said Molino. His mother died of breast cancer and he has had countless clients who have struggled with the disease.

Cohasset resident Grace Adams has her hair colored by Hair Imports owner Joe Molino after taking part in the cut-a-thon to raise money for the construction of South Shore's Hospital's Dana Farber wing devoted to cancer patients. All proceeds raised from the cut-a-thon will be donated to the cause. Adams is a pharmacist at Cohasset's Stop and Shop Pharmacy.

Four-year-old Devin McConnaughey of Cohasset gets the finishing touches after taking part in Cohasset's Hair Imports Cut-a-thon Wednesday afternoon. Cutting her was hair stylist Courtney Hackbartch. The cut-a-thon was held to help raise funds for South Shore Hospital's Journey of Hope campaign to build a new cutting edge cancer center on the South Shore.

Many of the appointments for the day, which include all of Hair Imports offered services (cuts, colors, manicures, pedicures, waxing), filled up quickly. But, there are still some appointments available during the 9a.m. to 4p.m. time frame.

"I'd like to see the day fully booked and have a happy and successful fundraiser to support something good going on at South Shore Hospital," said Molino, who has owned and operated Hair Imports in Cohasset for over 30 years.

Although they had aimed to have the fundraiser during October because it is breast cancer awareness month, it didn't happen in time. Molino wasn't too disappointed.

"Cancer doesn't know what month it is," said Molino.

The South Shore Hospital cancer center is scheduled to accept its first patients in the fall of 2009. The $72 million facility will offer multidisciplinary care, including diagnostic imaging and screening, radiation oncology, infusion therapy and clinical trial programs.

Designed with the input of patients, families, and physicians, in addition to the latest in cancer treatment, there will be laboratories, pharmacy, dietary, psychosocial and pastoral care, a boutique, and an educational resource center.

According to the South Shore Hospital's website, the Cancer Center will further enhance South Shore Hospital's already comprehensive cancer program, which features advanced surgical treatments, clinical trials, outpatient care, visiting nurse, and hospice services. When the Center is completed in the fall of 2009, residents of 35 communities will benefit from cutting-edge multidisciplinary care all in one facility.

Hair Imports has garnered support from various sectors in the community, local businesses posted posters of the event, his clientele made appointments and even spread the word to friends and family, and his employees are giving of their time.

"Times are tough, but people are supporting what we are doing. If someone needs a haircut, if they come on December 7 they know their money is going to a good cause," said Molino.

For more information or to make an appointment, call 781-383-6673 or 781-383-9626, or visit www.hairimports.com.

A Fairy Tale?
Once upon a time there was a family wishing to dine on good food, for a reasonable fare. They first tried MacBurger, but found it cold and unsatisfying. Then they tried the Two O's. After long lines, noise and crowds, they were left wanting something more ...something unique, and something that wouldn't empty the coffers! Alas, hope was lost until, a well-traveled wiseman (and conessouir of great food & fun) pointed them in the direction of a road well worn. It lead to the Pub at 'Cafe Eleganza' where they found flavor, value, variety, fun, pony rides, & teddy bears. (ok, we were kidding about the pony rides, & teddy bears)...but, they did enjoy a fabulous meal, at a great price and they did have fun!

HAPPY T-DAY

Hey Cohasset! I am still in shock that next week is Thanksgiving but, it is here. I want to wish everyone a great week with family and friends and a fun-filled weekend before Turkey Day and then, the days following with all the activities around. Here we go with the news for week.

BC HIGH

I would like to let you all know from a very proud set of parents that Alec Hurd, a freshman at BC High, made First Honors his first term. Chuck and Karen have every right to let us know this super piece of news.

WREATHS

Well, as we head into this wonderful holiday season, here is a piece of news about a Cohasset PSO sponsored fundraiser to benefit the Cohasset METCO Scholarship Fund. They have fresh 12 in. double-sided Balsam Wreaths for sale at $10 per wreath. Pick up for these will be on Saturday, Dec. 6th from 10 am-3 pm during the Cohasset Village Fair inside the Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave.. To place an order or ask any questions, please contact Aleisa Gittens-Carle at 781-383-1563.

ON STAGE

Hey everyone, here is a great reminder not to miss Godspell which is being presented on Friday and Saturday the 21st and 22nd at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 2:00 p.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall Auditorium by the Cohasset Dramatic Club. Tickets are available at Buttonwood Books in Cohasset or Paperscapes in Cohasset Village for $15 each. You can also make ticket reservations by calling 617-697-2115. After seeing the show last weekend, all I can say is "BE THERE!" It truly is a fantastic show.

SPRINGFIELD

Christopher McKenna has earned a Bachelor of Science degree in business management from Springfield College, Mass. for studies completed in August 2008.

Congratulations to you Christopher and best of luck in all that you do in your future.

PLAYCARE

Many parents around town asked if I could let you all know that Linda Bolster, owner of New Beginnings Playcare has moved to 23 Stockbridge St. Fenced in yard, flexible hours, morning and afternoon openings available. 2-5 year olds. Please call 781-923-1423 or e-mail me at lindab6148@yahoo.com.

PRE-PROM DVDS

DVD's of the 2008 CHS Pre Prom Reception from May 30th are still available to purchase for $20 each and make great holiday gifts! To order a copy please call Shaun Galvin at 781-424-2197 or email your request to shaun_galvin@yahoo.com The request can also be mailed with a check for $20 per DVD to Shaun Galvin, P.O.Box 526 Hingham, MA 02043.

5-YEAR REUNION

Just a reminder that The five-year reunion for the CHS class of 2003 will be held next Wednesday, Nov. 26th from 7-11pm at the George Mealy American Legion Post (98 Summer St.) Make your parents happy by coming home for Thanksgiving. Then catch up with old friends and share your new exciting experiences. Appetizers and drinks will be served.

Donations to the Bryan Bilton Memorial Scholarship Fund will also be accepted. Questions? Contact Curt (curt.kahn@gmail.com) or Ross (rlieblappen@gmail.com).

OH BOY!

Congratulations to Dennis "Skip" Reardon, long-time mail carrier here in Cohasset, and his wife Kathy who gave birth to a son on Nov. 7th. Owen Christian weighed in 8 pounds 2 ounces. The new baby joins sibling triplets Sean, Noah, and Victoria who turned two on Nov. 2nd and big brother Nicholas at their busy home in Plymouth. Be sure to congratulate Dennis when he comes back to work next week.

BATES COLLEGE

Allison Earon of Cohasset is a volunteer for Bates College Emergency Medical Services. Founded in the spring of 1996, Bates EMS is an all-volunteer, non-transporting emergency medical service licensed with the state of Maine.

Bates EMS members include student volunteers who are licensed emergency medical technicians or first responders, including two responders at the EMT-intermediate level, as well as several wilderness EMTs. Bates EMS responds to an average of 120 to 140 calls per academic year, and has treated patients with conditions ranging from general malaise to multi-systems trauma to full cardiac/respiratory arrest.

Allison, a senior neuroscience major, is the daughter of William Earon, of 29 Gammons Road, and Mary Sheppard, of Cohasset. She spent her junior winter semester in Seville, Spain, through the Council on International Educational Exchange. She is a 2004 graduate of Cohasset High School.

Derek Grudinskas of Cohasset (former player/manager - Palmer Team) has been inducted into The Boston Park League Baseball Hall of Fame.

HALL OF FAME

Derek Grudinskas of Cohasset (former player/manager - Palmer Team) was inducted into The Boston Park League Baseball Hall of Fame at the League's 27th Annual Alumni Reunion & Hall of Fame Dinner on Friday, Nov. 14 at Lantana's in Randolph. America's oldest amateur baseball league, The Boston Park League has showcased many skilled baseball players from the New England region throughout the years, from ex-professionals to local high school and college players, including current Boston Red Sox pitcher Manny Delcarmen.

The Boston Park League was founded in 1929 by Bob Cusick, program director for the Boston Parks and Recreation Department. Cusick's vision was to support and manage a quality amateur baseball league for the city of Boston and to have most of the city's areas represented. Charlestown, East Boston, South Boston, Hyde Park, Brighton, West Roxbury, Roslindale, Jamaica Plain, Roxbury, Mattapan, South End, and Dorchester all had teams during the league's history. The Boston Park League saw its most productive years in the 1950's and 1960's as crowds of 6,000 fans or more would attend playoff games. Today, the Boston Park League has five fields throughout Boston that include Dick Casey Town Field in Dorchester, Bill Stewart Diamond at Fallon Field in Roslindale, Cassidy Playground in Cleveland Circle, Brighton, East Boston Stadium near Logan Airport, and Kelly Field in Hyde Park.

RAFFLE

Here is some news from the Cohasset Consignment Shop about a raffle they are holding to help support the Cohasset Food Pantry. They have a white winter Burberry Jacket (value $650) currently being raffled.

Tickets are 3 for $5 or if you spend $50 or more you get 3 free tickets. The shop is now open on Sundays from 12 to 4 p.m.. Head on in and purchase those tickets for a chance at a great prize and to help support the Food Pantry.

KIDS NIGHT OUT

A morning meeting is held at the Byimana School. Cohasset resident Michelle Cayer is looking for sponsors to pay for students to go to this school. The cost is $200 a year.

The students the Byimana School of Science in Rwanda listen intently to the headmaster. The school has students in seventh through twelfth grade.

Resident hopes to help Rwandan students

Scholarship fund event is Nov. 30

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For $200, you could go out to a really nice dinner or a pair of UGG boots.

But, Cohasset resident Michelle Cayer has another idea. For $200, you could send a child in Rwanda to school for an entire year.

"For $200, you can really affect the outcome of a person's life," said Cayer.

Cayer and a group of like-minded citizens from the Boston area have gotten together to form the Byimana Sponsorship Fund. Together, they are hoping to raise enough money to send 300 students to school for the year.

To help reach their goal, Cayer and the group are putting on a fundraiser Sunday, Nov. 30 from 2 to 4p.m. at the Lightkeeper's Residence.

Cayer's connection to Rwanda began when she read the book "Left to Tell: Discovering God Amidst the Rwandan Holocaust" by Immaculle Ilibagiza. In 1994, Rwandan native Ilibagiza was 22-years-old and home from college to spend Easter with her devout Catholic family, when the death of Rwanda's Hutu president sparked a three-month slaughter of nearly one million ethnic Tutsis in the country. She survived by hiding in a Hutu pastor's tiny bathroom with seven other starving women for 91 cramped, terrifying days.

It struck Cayer that while she was starting a family, enjoying success in her career, halfway around the world there was a genocide happening and she had no knowledge of it.

"When I read that book, I wanted to do something," said Cayer.

Serendipitously, it was the book and its author that brought Cayer together with her fellow coordinators.

She read a press release about the Second Congregation Church was going to be hosting Immaculle Ilibagiza herself and invited several friends from out of town who then forwarded the e-mail to others they thought would be interested. It turned out she had read the press release all wrong. When she arrived on the day, instead of finding droves of people at the church to hear Immaculle's incredible story firsthand, she found a book group discussing "Left to Tell." The press release had been about a book group discussion, not a lecture from Immaculle herself.

Several others showed up expecting to hear Immaculle and although disappointed, they got to talking about Rwanda and each of their individual desires to help the country and its people.

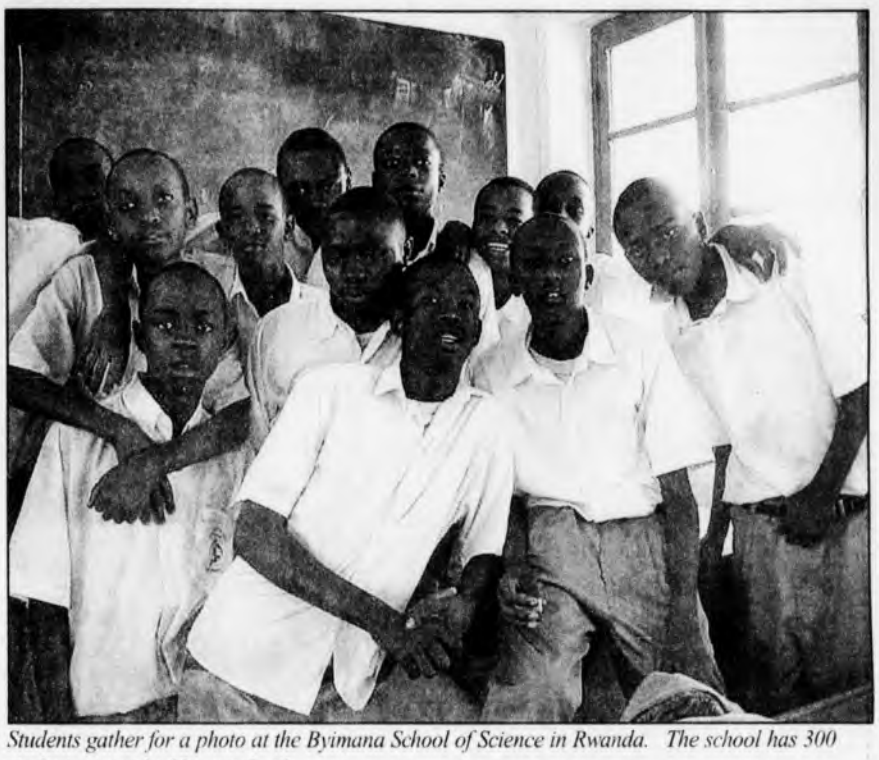
In a few short months, they began to make strides on the Byimana School of Science Scholarship Fund.

The Byimana School of Science is a public secondary school administered by the Central-East African Province of the Marist Brothers. The Rwandan government pays the teachers' salaries and provides a $20 stipend per year for each boarding student. Tuition, room and board for the 10-month school year total $150 per student. This level is fixed by the government to make education available to all. In addition, the students are required to provide their own transportation, uniform, copy books and supplies at a cost of approximately $50. While this cost may seem a modest sum, in Rwanda the average wage is less than $2 per day and many families cannot afford this expense.

The Byimana School has 300 students who are in need of financial aid. The school has 830 students total ranging from grades 7 to 12.

Cayer hopes to find enough sponsors for each of the Rwandan children who need financial help to attend the Byimana School.

The ultimate goal is to build a coalition of local people who will establish a relationship with the child they sponsor.



"I want them to form a bond and there to be a connection between Cohasset and Rwanda," said Cayer. She also hopes to build relationship locally by bringing together fellow sponsors on an annual basis.

Cayer has gotten her son's third-grade class and the Second Congregational Church youth group involved in the fundraising. The youth group is making homemade pies to be sold on Sundays following church services. They are also making pencil cases, complete with personal messages to the child who will receive them.

For more information about sponsoring a Rwandan child or about the Nov. 30 fundraiser, contact Michelle Cayer at michelle.cayer@bt.com. Donations can be sent to Michelle Cayer, 55 Sohier St., Cohasset, MA 02025.

If you go...

When: Sunday, Nov. 30, 2 to 4p.m.
Where: Lightkeeper's Residence.
Why: Support students in Rwanda.
Cost: $25, at the door.

Students gather for a photo at the Byimana School of Science in Rwanda. The school has 300 students in need of financial aid.

Schooner Snow Maiden had a Cohasset Crew

In late November 1955 the 70-foot long wooden two-masted schooner "Snow Maiden", owned by Frederick P. White, of Cohasset Harbor's boatyard, left our harbor bound for Plymouth where repairs to its hull were scheduled to be made.

Originally planned to sail to the Bahamas, "Snow Maiden" had damaged its hull a few days earlier while at Government Island, Cohasset. Aboard was a crew that included owner and skipper White, Everett Wheelwright, David Fulton, Hugh Ware and radioman John Martini, all of Cohasset, and author Rene Stackpole of Mystic CT. Stackpole was planning to write a history of the "Snow Maiden".

After nightfall, off the coast near Duxbury and close to the entrance channel to Plymouth Harbor, "Snow Maiden" struck Brown's Bank. The schooner grounded on a falling tide, and soon was stuck fast in the sand. A distress call went out from its radio and the Coast Guard's Scituate Harbor utility boat responded. It became apparent that the schooner could not be pulled from the sand bank, and its crew was taken off as the vessel began to break up. A strong wind and falling snow added to the difficulty of the crew's rescue. Some members were taken off by boat, and the last two men aboard, owner Fred White and David Fulton, eventually made their way ashore using the schooner's longboat.

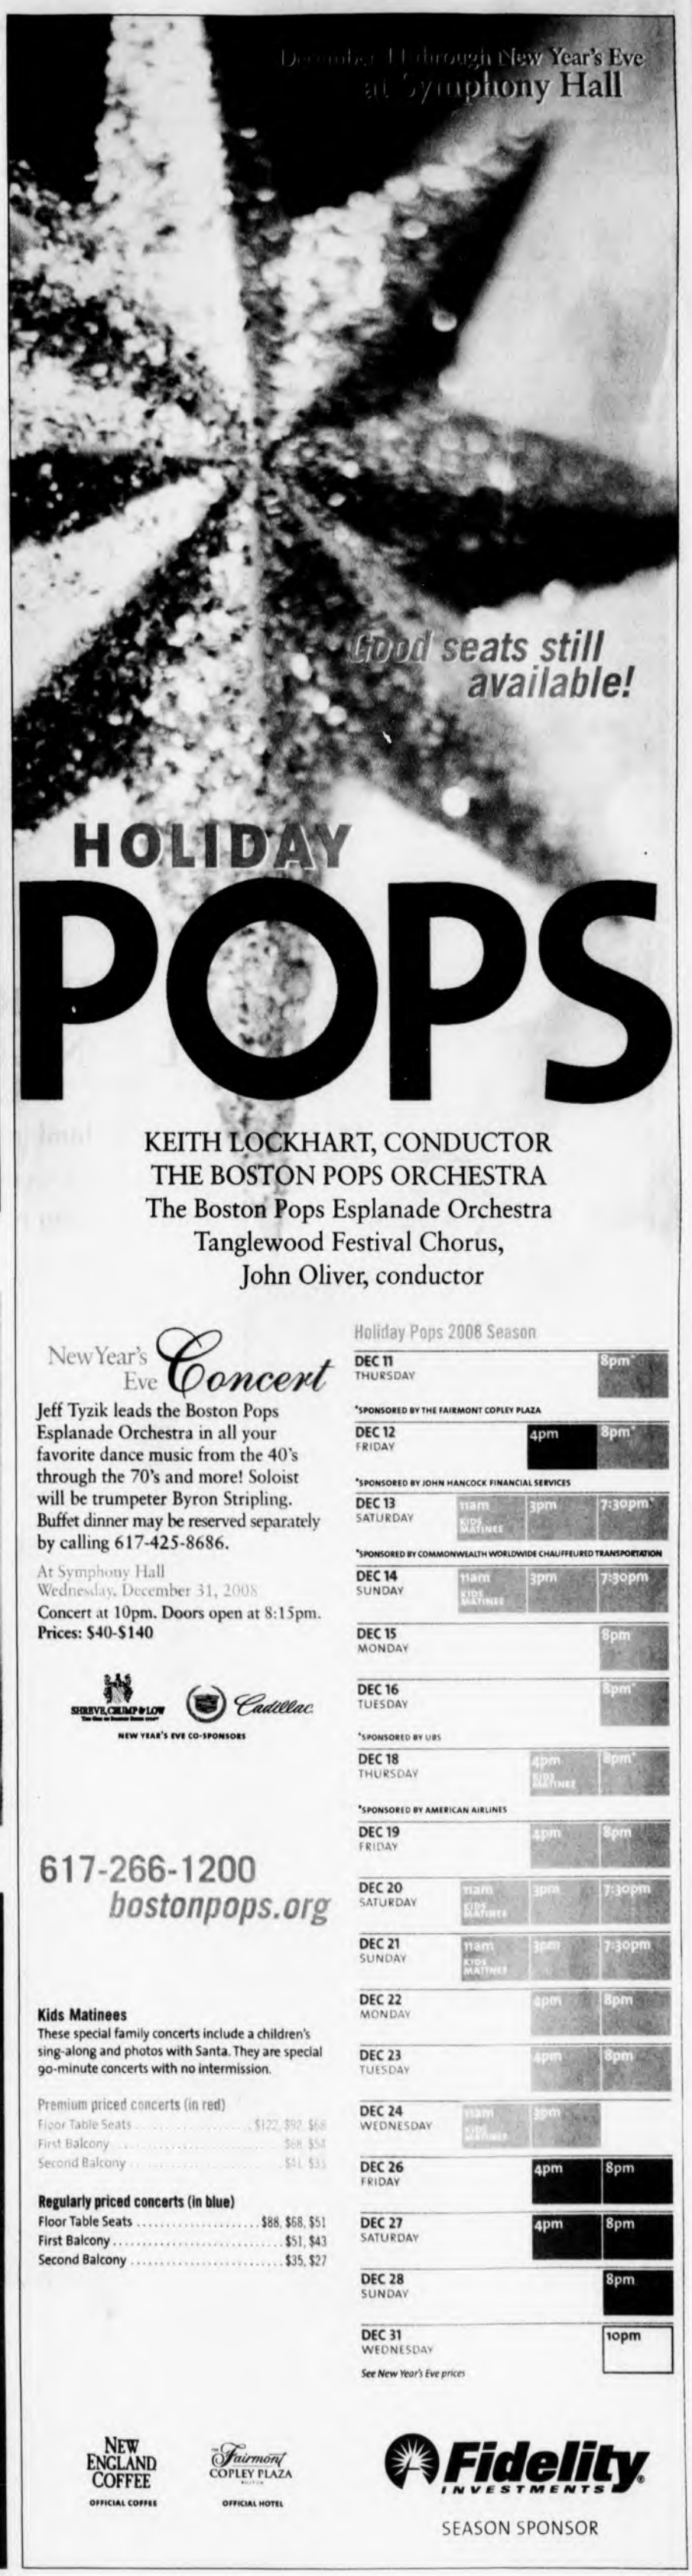
The village "elves" are busy tying bows and assembling the signature starfish holiday wreaths that will adorn the windows and accompany the white lights.

That most wonderful time of the year is fast approaching. Mark Saturday, Dec. 13 from 4-7 p.m. on your calendar for the annual Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll. The village merchants and businesses along with the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce are working together to once again orchestrate a wonderful holiday celebration.



From the annual Metco program fundraiser, 72 wreaths have been purchased. The village "elves" are busy tying bows and assembling the signature starfish holiday wreaths that will adorn the windows and accompany the white lights.

A carillon concert, carolers, music ensembles, and a DJ will fill the air with festive music. Compliments of Brendan St. John, the hayride will take guests for a quick spin to admire the village dressed in its holiday best. There will be a myriad of activities for children to enjoy, such as face painting, the balloon man, letters to Santa, cookie decoration, and so much more. Holiday characters will stroll the streets, and even Santa will drop in for a visit! Enjoy the many refreshments and treats offered at open houses throughout the village.

And, while enjoying the evening, know that you will be helping to support two organizations that will make a difference for those in need this season. Many businesses have graciously donated raffle prizes to take a chance on, with proceeds to benefit The Cohasset Food Pantry. As well, donations for the both the Food Pantry and Toys for Tots will be accepted in the village center that evening. This event ist he perfect opportunity for your family to help those less fortunate.

Celebrate the spirit of season, and join us in the Village for another magical Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll!

For information or questions, please call Karen Kirkendall at 781-383-9922, or Darilynn Evans at 781-383-1002.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

Outraged

We can only hope that some good comes out of the defacing of the new mural in Ship Cove Park in the village.

Last week, we featured students in Nina Berkowitz's Art Major class who were putting the finishing touches on the mural that features the Minot Light Replica.

Sometime overnight Thursday (Nov. 13) to Friday (Nov. 14) – before the Mariner came out — an individual or individuals did their dirty work with black spray paint.

On the surface, it may look like "kids" from Hull destroyed the mural because of the Hull message in the graffiti.

But, both police and the student artists are not ready to point the blame over the border.

Detectives have their sources and we are reasonably sure that police will find out who did this – whether they attend either Hull or Cohasset high school.

We do not understand what goes on in the mind of someone bent of destruction for no apparent reason.

We hope whoever it is gets the help that he, she or they need.

In the interim, however, we hope the young artists can take heart that the entire community is outraged about this vandalism. When viewing it ourselves this week, we saw several people walking by who were visibly upset.

Vandals and potential vandals should be aware that "tagging" – which means spray painting graffiti over something – is a felony, punishable by jail time. Vandals could also lose their driver's licenses for a year.

This type of criminal activity is unwelcome anywhere. The good news for us is that it occurs rarely enough here so we react to it. Sadly, in many communities "tagging" is commonplace.

Ms. Berkowitz said she and the students are disappointed.

"They worked so hard on this project," she said. "They're not even getting a grade for it, they were doing it out of their own desire to improve the community.

"It changes the way they feel about doing something like this in the future."

We believe the students' faith in good deeds will be restored through community support and punishment for the perpetrator(s).

Are You OK?

Police responded to a house on Woodland Drive last week after the sheriff's office "Are You OK?" program called after not being able to reach the resident. Cohasset police checked on the resident and reported that he was home and was fine.

However, the incident reminded us that there may be some elderly residents who do not know about the program.

Sheriff Bellotti's "Are You OK?" program is designed to allow elderly folks to feel confident and safe while maintaining their independence by living in their own homes. Sheriff's officers place a daily phone call to program participants to check on their well-being.

The calls are made every day between 6 a.m. and noon at a time requested by the participant. All calls are monitored by the Sheriff's "Are You OK?" officers. If the participant fails to answer the phone, or if the officers detect that something is amiss during the call, emergency help can be sent to the home immediately.

If the person plans on being away, a simple phone call to the Sheriff's Are You O.K.? officer will discontinue the calls and reactivate them when the person comes back.

For more information, please call Sheriff Bellotti's Are You O.K.? officer toll free at 781-751-3504. For more information, visit: www.norfolksheriff.com.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vandals are a disgrace

TO THE EDITOR:

Having read about the new mural at the village pocket park, I walked downtown to view it on Saturday. It was absolutely beautiful! Congratulations to Nina Berkowitz and her art major students. But I could not believe my eyes when I saw the graffiti spray painted on it by vandals.

How could anyone be so resentful of the creative talent at our high school that they would seek to destroy it? I hope the damage can be repaired and the perpetrators found. They are a disgrace to their families and community. In contrast, the young artists who painted the mural deserve our sincere admiration and gratitude for their beautiful contribution to our town.

Need to see effect on landscape

TO THE EDITOR:

The urge to achieve energy independence and climate change is powerful and it will yield its fair share of unintended consequences along the way. The care that Cohasset is exercising in reviewing its options is wise.

Wind turbines are a viable option and may be cost effective but will incur a cost to the landscape and the environment.

In order to come to grips with this reality, I use this hoary aphorism — a picture is worth a thousand words and suggest that a, to scale, depiction be prepared from several new points (Sandy Beach, 3A, etc.) so we can see what it is going to look like after installation.

Astronaut honored at Town Meeting

Cohasset native Captain Steve Bowen was honored Monday night with a proclamation from Town Meeting. Bowen is currently aboard the space shuttle Endeavor. The star student and athlete in the Cohasset High class of 1982 is aboard a 16-day mission which included three space walks to repair the International Space Station.

"We hail his accomplishments and bravery…and wish him a safe journey home," said Board of Selectmen chairman Ted Carr as he read the proclamation.

Town Meeting gave the proclamation a hearty (and unanimous) vote of approval.

Trench boxes help ensure safety

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Little Harbor Project – From time to time we write about some of the specialized equipment that is used during the construction of "below the ground" projects like the Little Harbor Project. This week, while we were in the center of Town at the intersection of Highland Avenue and Beach Street, we happened to see just such a piece of equipment. Let us explain. When a contractor such as LMH does excavation of narrow trenches, such as those for our new sewer lines, there is always the risk that the walls of the trench will collapse. If this were to happen, not only would the surrounding land and structures be compromised as the result of a trench cave-in, but personnel working in the trench could be seriously hurt or even lose their life.

Consequently, contractors will often use a device called a "trench box" to assure that these nasty consequences are prevented from occurring. So what is a trench box? Reduced to its simplest form, if you can imagine two large parallel rectangular steel plates each about 8 feet high by 20 feet wide standing upright, separated by supports that keep the two plates a fixed distance apart, that's a trench box. Usually the supports are adjustable so the trench box can be adjusted to the width necessary for each specific trench. As the trench is dug, the trench box is lowered into the trench to support the walls of the trench and keep them from collapsing. Now, workers can work safely in the bottom of the trench protected by the steel walls of the trench box.

As a matter of general information, a trench is defined as an excavation in the ground that is narrow in relation to its length. In general, the excavation is narrower than its depth. According to OSHA standards any trench deeper than 5 feet requires the use of a trench box or some alternate trench shoring method. Trench boxes or shoring is also required for other trench configurations that could be subject to collapse based on unstable soil conditions.

The accompanying photo shows two trench boxes being used on Beach Street near Highland Avenue to keep the trenches safe for the construction workers.

More Construction Trivia – This week we encountered another specialized piece of equipment on Gammons Road. For those of you who have never been on Gammons Road, it is one of the many very narrow private lanes that we seem to have sprinkled all over Town. The sewer main line had just been run down the road and the trench had been backfilled. The construction workers were in the process of compacting the backfill material so that it can be suitable for cars to use until the road can be paved.

Since the road was very narrow, and the trench was very narrow, a regular sized roller could not be used to compress the backfill material.

Reclaim machine on Atlantic Avenue this week.

Instead, a much smaller walk-behind trench roller was in use. Actually, because of its remote control, the operator often walks beside the unit rather than behind it. This roller also vibrates to compact the trench backfill material much better than rolling alone would accomplish. It's not uncommon to see these small rollers weigh as much as 3000 pounds. Because of the vibration, their compaction can be the equivalent of a 15,000-pound roller.

If you are interested, a bit of searching on the web found that you can be the proud owner of one of these rollers for $35,221, just marked down to $27, 095. This is for the model with 34-inch wide rollers. If you only need the 24-inch model you can save a 'couple of bucks. Such a deal! Get your order in now, just in time for Christmas.

Road Reclamation – Sometimes, especially on the smaller roads, rather than just dig a trench in the road for the new utilities, is less expensive in the long run to reclaim the road before trenching begins. So what is reclamation? When a road is reclaimed, in our specific instance, it is a two-step process. In the first step, a giant machine with nasty teeth mounted on a rotating drum is used to literally grind and pulverize the old asphalt surface and mix it with a small amount of under-the-road material. Then a road grader does a "rough grade" by smoothing the surface so that it can be driven on. Typically, the surface is then rolled smooth and compacted. Then any utility pipes are laid in trenches excavated through the reclaimed road surface. Note that reclaiming makes the digging very easy since the old road hard surface is gone.

After the utility work is done, the road surface will be fine graded as the second step and then given its base asphalt coat. The fine grading operation establishes the final grades and position of the road so that when it is base coat paved it will drain properly and be a good surface. Some time after the base coated road has had a chance to settle, the final "top" coat of asphalt will be applied.

This past week we had a chance to watch some reclamation work that was being done on some of the small roads off of Atlantic Avenue. The machine that does the reclaiming work is a veritable giant. From the photo you can get an idea of its size. Underneath is a rotating toothed drum

The photo shows a close-up of the carbide tipped teeth that actually do the work. As you can imagine when the reclaimer is doing its chewing it is a very noisy operation indeed. But the speed at which it works is truly amazing. In one case, we watched it reclaim about 300 feet of road in about 15 minutes.

Next Week – Next week we will be operating short-handed in the office and will not be able to prepare an article for the Thanksgiving week issue Mariner. But, we'll be back…

Music hath charms

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

If you're like me you're constantly bombarded with catalogues offering to send you such necessities of life as Feemster's original vegetable slicer for only $7 or a pewter hummingbird wind chime for a mere $13. The trick is to resist writing that check even though you're aware your life is not complete without a $14 long-handled loofah.

I have to admit my resistance collapsed the other day when I was offered an Ames Brothers CD for only $14.

The Ames brothers, Joe, Gene, Vic and Ed, have a particular significance to me because they provided the background music (on vinyl records, not CDs) in the summer of 1950 when I worked the skeeball concession at Nantasket Beach.

All day long, it was "You, You, You." and "The Naughty Lady of Shady Lane," and "Can Anyone Explain?" until we who worked there could sing right along with them. I still remember the words to "Rag Mop" after nearly 60 years.

It may surprise some to learn that Ed Ames, who played an Indian in the TV series "Daniel Boone," and threw tomahawks on the Johnny Carson Show, got his start singing with a popular quartet. But I digress …

I have to admit my resistance collapsed the other day when I was offered an Ames Brothers CD for only $14.

I like music. In fact, I played the clarinet myself until I and everyone within earshot discovered that I had absolutely no ear for music whatsoever.

You might say I got into the music game by the back door. I stuttered as a kid and my father, who fancied himself an amateur physician, diagnosed my problem as irregular breathing, which could be solved by learning to play a wind instrument.

So he bought me a clarinet and signed me up for lessons with Mr. Hoyt. Once a week, with my clarinet case tucked under my arm, I would walk about a mile to play my scales for Mr. Hoyt. One day, my father discovered religious tracts in the case with my clarinet. Mr. Hoyt was a Jehovah's Witness. My next teacher was Miss Norris.

I played in both the band and the orchestra led by Arthur Hauck at Braintree High. My struggle with eighth and sixteenth notes in a piece called "Italians in Algeria" was epic. In fact, Mr. Hauck mentioned it when I next saw him. He was leading the band at the USO in Morehead City, N.C.

I played in a dance band, too, although I'm reluctant to call it that. A fellow named Bob from Weymouth organized it and the personnel included Holly Black on the C-melody sax, Artie Laneau on drums and, for a brief time, Charlie Bean on trumpet.

We played some out of the way places that others would not touch. I remember playing at a party thrown by the Bulldog Club, so-called because all the members owned bulldogs, on the second floor of a storefront in Holbrook. Our best gig was the Christmas party at Burdette College. I say "best" meaning our stipend more than paid for our expenses.

We broke up shortly after that. We told everybody it was because of the war. Actually, it was because we weren't very good. I traded the clarinet in for a typewriter. No one complained.

HEALTH NOTES

Safe cooking tips for Thanksgiving

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Thanksgiving is a good time to provide reminders about safe cooking procedures. The Board of Health has the responsibility to inspect food preparation in restaurants in Town, and as a consequence, enforce food preparation rules. This Fall, a board member attended cooking school, and had the opportunity to see how really good chefs ensure the safe preparation of foods in restaurants. It's a reassuring experience. First off, as one would expect, good chefs have developed a system of routinely ensuring absolute cleanliness and food safety in restaurants. It has to do with restaurant cooking procedures – and not giving patrons the opportunity to sue.

First off, foods, both vegetable and meats, are meticulously washed in special washing areas designed into the kitchen. Cooking personnel are taught about food safety and proper washing. Bottles of hand sanitizer are always readily available in the kitchen as are clean towels and aprons. Good kitchens are as clean as good hospitals.

Generally, all foods served to patrons are cooked hours before being served. A meal of poultry, duck or turkey for instance, is prepared long before it is served to patrons, generally in the morning, then refrigerated to temperatures below that for bacteria growth: 42 degrees Fahrenheit. Ten minutes before it is served, it's warmed, generally seared, and served at table.

Similarly, vegetables are started; blanched by dipping in boiling water until they turn bright green hours before being served. Immediately after turning green, the vegetables are placed in containers of ice, thereby locking in and preserving the brilliant green color as well as the freshness. Finally, often hours later, they are brought to temperature and served.

Bacteria present on raw poultry can contaminate hands, utensils, and work surfaces as you prepare the turkey.

The basic restaurant rule for storage time is that no food be left within the bacteria growth temperature zone: between 42 and 165 F for more than three hours. Otherwise, it's discarded.

Turkey Basics: Safely Thaw, Prepare, Stuff, and Cook:

When preparing a turkey, be aware of the four main safety issues: thawing, preparing, stuffing, and cooking to adequate temperature.

Safe Thawing

Thawing turkeys are best kept at a safe temperature below 40 — the temperature range where food-borne bacteria multiply rapidly. While frozen, a turkey is safe indefinitely, but as soon as it begins to thaw, bacteria that may have been present before freezing can begin to grow again if it is in the "danger zone." Three safe ways to thaw food: in the refrigerator, in cold water and in a microwave oven.

Safe Preparation

Bacteria present on raw poultry can contaminate hands, utensils, and work surfaces as you prepare the turkey. If not cleaned thoroughly before working with other foods, bacteria from the raw poultry can be transferred. After working with raw poultry, always wash your hands, utensils, and work surfaces before they touch other foods.

Safe Stuffing

For optimal safety and uniform doneness, cook the stuffing outside the turkey in a casserole dish. However, if you place stuffing inside the turkey, do so just before cooking, and use a food thermometer. Make sure the center of the stuffing reaches a safe minimum internal temperature of 165 F. Bacteria can survive in stuffing that has not reached 165 F, possibly resulting in food-borne illness.

Safe Cooking

Set the oven temperature no lower than 325 F and be sure the turkey is completely thawed. Place turkey breast-side up on a flat wire rack in a shallow roasting pan 2 to 2-1/2 inches deep. Check the internal temperature at the center of the stuffing and meaty portion of the breast, thigh, and wing joint using a food thermometer. Cooking times will vary. The food thermometer must reach the safe minimum internal temperature of 165 F. Let the bird stand 20 minutes before removing all stuffing from the cavity and carving the meat.

Have a safe Thanksgiving dinner that everyone will enjoy.

Cohasset Mariner 'drop box'

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the left after you enter the front door.

The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

Easy, breezy Town Meeting

13 articles tackled in less than two hours

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Monday night's Special Town Meeting was an anomaly for Cohasset. In less than two hours, the Town Meeting approved 13 articles, the majority of which passed unanimously without discussion and without questions from the citizenry.

With speed and efficiency, Town Meeting approved budget amendments, capital purchases, community preservation funding, and conservation restrictions in the first 30 minutes.

Special Town Meeting was brought to order shortly after 7:15p.m., after 100 registered voters checked in with the Town Clerk. A total of 278 voters checked in during the course of the night. The meeting dissolved shortly after 9p.m.

Despite being one of the shortest Town Meetings in recent memory, significant items and funding articles were passed. Allocations of $270,000 (to reinforce a retaining wall on Jerusalem Road) and $450,000 (to repair and upgrade the Jacob's Meadow culvert) passed with a few questions from the floor and with unanimous votes. The turf field, which authorized the town to borrow $500,000, passed with only a few nays heard from the floor of Town Meeting (see related story).

Part of the reason Special Town Meeting was a breeze was a few of what could have been controversial articles were removed from the warrant or changed after the warrant went to print. The Board of Selectmen pushed off bringing forth any articles on Treat's Pond flooding/restoration issue. The Planning Board did not have enough time to properly review the Housing Partnership Committee's revised inclusionary bylaw proposal so that was put off. And the Water Commission removed one of their requests for an easement release after neighbors opposed.

Town Hall

The turf field article aside, back-to-back articles sparked the most discussion. First, there was a non-binding resolution on the old portion of Town Hall restoration, then a $10,000 request for the extension of the town's alternative energy consultants.

The non-binding resolution did not commit the town to any funding, but provided a sense of Town Meeting and their support of the restoration project. The resolution authorized and encouraged the Board of Selectmen to accept any grants, gifts, or tax credits for the project.

Town Hall Restoration and Rehabilitation Committee chairman David Farrag provided an overview of the project.

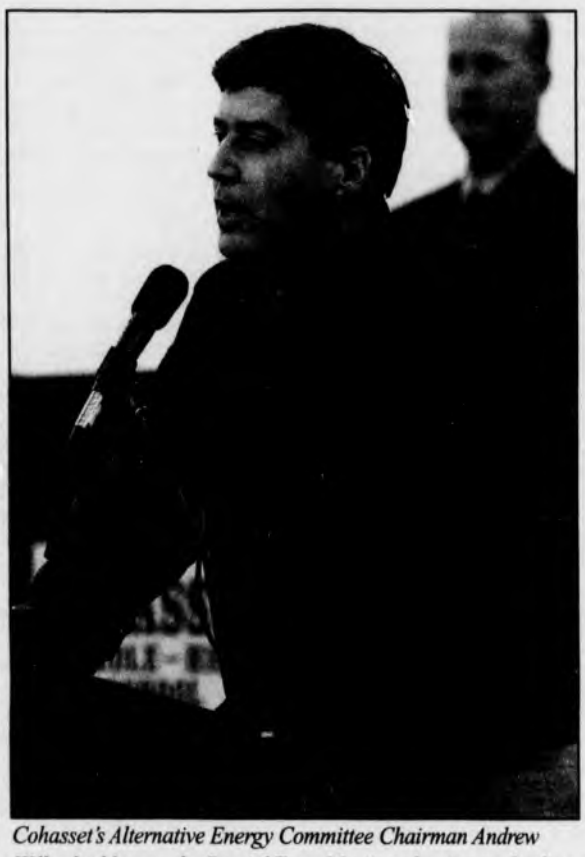
Cohasset's Werner Diekmann, member of Cohasset's Town Hall Restoration Committee, hands out reading material to residents before entering the Special Town Meeting on Monday at the high school.

"Over time Town Hall has suffered from deferred maintenance," said Farrag and the last time there was a significant renovation to the old portion of the building was in 1928. Then, consulting architect and Cohasset resident Jim Sandell went into some detail about the issues and solutions for the restoration.

"We want to restore the historical integrity of the building," said Sandell. Bringing the building up to code, repairing leaks, increasing handicap access and installing a sprinkler system were all part of a proposed restoration.

Wayne Sawchuk of 432 Beechwood St. asked what the ultimate cost would be to complete the proposed restoration.

"It will be in the $6 million range to fix the inside (of the building)," said Farrag.



But, with no town money required at this time, support for the Town Hall restoration project was unanimous.

Energy

When Alternative Energy Committee chairman Andrew Willard said the first allocation for $20,000 a year and a half ago had yielded nearly the same amount in grants. The town received a $17,000 to install sun pipes at Deer Hill School and vending misers on vending machines in all town buildings.

"We're at a zero sum game with the consultants," said Willard. The additional $10,000 would enable the consultants to work on specific bids and grant writing that could ultimately save the town money, said Willard.

The majority of the Advisory Committee agreed, "the consultants completed a number of tasks that saved the town money…the sooner and more fully we can identify energy conservation methods, the more money we can save on budget," said Advisory Committee member Chartis Tebbetts.

Cohasset's Alternative Energy Committee Chairman Andrew Willard addresses the Special Town Meeting about more funding.

Jeff Patterson of 10 Sanctuary Pond spoke in support of the allocation and requested the consultant's expertise be utilized not just for new initiatives, but to evaluate ongoing projects, such as the proposed Graham Waste wind turbine currently before the Planning Board.

Richard Perkinson of 274 King Street agreed — an expert consultant could lay out the facts and dispel confusion on the wind turbines.

Before more could comment on the wind aspect of alternative energy, Town Moderator Dan Evans put a stop to it, "we don't want to turn this into a referendum on wind turbines."

Although no one spoke out against the article and allocation, the motion was adopted by a majority vote (not unanimously).

Applause broke out from floor of Town Meeting on several occasions, as if to prove there was some life in the room. First, there was applause following Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr's reading of a proclamation for astronaut and Cohasset native Steve Bowen. Then, clapping rang out following the presentation on the Town Hall restoration. And after the approval of the turf field, applause filled the room.

dent George McGoldrick.

The passage of the article authorizes the town to borrow up to $500,000 to design, permit and construct the field, but conditions that bond with having $550,000 in private funds available to be raised by the Cohasset Sports Partnership. McGoldrick said the Partnership already has $250,000 committed to the project.

The total cost to design, permit and build the synthetic turf field is estimated to be $1,050,000. The Cohasset Sports Partnership has their work cut out for them as they work toward their $550,000 fundraising goal.

"It's a great time to be asking people for money," quipped McGoldrick, obviously referring to the troubled economy and the financial effect it is having on families across the country. However, McGoldrick was upbeat about the fundraising and the generosity of the town to fund the asset. McGoldrick laid out an aggressive schedule that would make the field ready for play by September 2009. The fundraising will be done over the next few months and he expects to put the project out to bid by March 2009, with the 90-day construction period taking place over the summer months.

There was little controversy or debate on the Town Meeting floor regarding the turf field, but several questions were asked.

What seemed to seal the deal for town officials as well as Town Meeting voters were the financials. The town's contribution will largely come from an annual $40,000 savings in maintenance costs, which currently comes out of the town's operational budget. Boosters clubs will contribute $6,000 annually to the town for the 15-year life of the town's bond for the field, McGoldrick said.

The downside, as Advisory Committee Chairman Sam Wakeman pointed out, is the various departmental budgets (Department of Public Works, Water Department) will have to reduce their budgets accordingly.

"They'll have to contribute those expenditures for the life of the project," said Wakeman.

Yet, Capital Budget Committee chairman Steve Gaumer saw the benefit of having increased utilization on "an extraordinarily underused asset…and we're doing so at a cost that frankly does not increase what we're spending now."

The annual payments for the bond will average about $46,000 with a high of $50,000, said town Finance Director Mike Buckley. Buckley also noted the project comes at a good time financially because the town is nearing its final payments on the re-construction of the current Alumni Field.

Several audience members, including field hockey coach Beth Marsden-Gilman and Recreation Commission member Dan Martin, spoke in favor of the project.

Girls soccer coach James Gilman noted how much more pleasurable it was to play away games on turf fields. "I can really focus on the game and not worry about potholes or rescheduling due to weather."

No one spoke in opposition of the turf field project.

When Town Moderator Dan Evans announced the turf field motion has passed, the audience erupted in applause. A total of 278 registered voters came out to yield their collective voting power.

Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr holds a special proclamation that honored Captain Stephen G. Bowen, a Cohasset Native, who is currently on the Endeavor helping to renovate the International Space Station with larger living quarters. Bowen left November 14th from the Kennedy Space Center. The Town of Cohasset applauded Bowen's accomplishments and wished him a safe return.

Cohasset Recreation Department Supervisor Mike Barra, left, Howie Altholtz, center, and Recreation Director Ted Carroll display a guitar on loan from Crossroads of Hanover on Sunday before the start of one of the jams at the Garage. All types of music instruments are available so participants do not have to ha ve their own instrument. Program coordinator Altholtz is a musician and music business lawyer who has big plans for the program, such as a song writing clinic, special music guests such as producers, managers, booking agents and music students.

business connections to bring in special guests, including producers, managers, booking agents and Berklee College of Music students. Down the line, he might even get some famous guest artists from the area to stop by to talk to the kids, maybe even jam with them for a little while.

In preparation for the start of Sunday jams, Altholtz made a phone call to a Hanover music store, Crossroads, to see if they would be willing to provide equipment. Owner Bob Doolittle agreed to lend several pieces of equipment to the program. Guitar amps, a full set of drums and all the accessories are available for the kids.

"The intent was not to have any kids who don't have equipment to feel awkward about coming," said Altholtz, emphasizing he wants Sunday Jams to be a welcoming environment. "With really good quality equipment, it levels the playing field."

"I envision everyone learning from each other."
— Howie Altholtz

Kids are still welcome and encouraged to bring their own musical instrument. Guitar players will have to bring their own, but "they can walk in, plug in and play," says Altholtz.

Kids don't even have to play and instrument — all they have to bring is their voice. A microphone is ready and waiting for the next Mariah Carey.

Before Sunday Jams began earlier this month, Altholtz looked into the acoustical attributes of the Rec Center "garage" to ensure the space was appropriate for sound.

"It's not a bad space acoustically, (but) we wanted to have the best location to play and get creative,"' said Altholtz.

He had Cohasset-based Image Acoustics owner Jack Butler look at the space. Several slight changes were made to make the space acoustically better for the jam sessions.

Carroll is looking to make the program a success.

"We just want it to be a cool place for kids to come play music," says Carroll adding with a laugh, "they can play as loud as they like here."

For information, email Recreation Director Ted Carroll at tcarroll@townofcohasset.org or call 781.383.4109. A single session cost $8 and an "all access" five-week pass is $30.

Two students receive Superintendent's Award

Two members of the Class of 2009 received the Superintendent's Award at Wednesday night's School Committee meeting. David "August" Oddleifson and Jessica Fitts were chosen for their outstanding academic achievement, leadership and service.

"Sometimes we get too bogged down with business and we don't take time to recognize what's really important — the students," said Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh.

While the Superintendent's Award typically goes to a single student, Walsh said circumstance called for a bend in the rules.

"I always say, if it's too close to call, then it is too close to call," Walsh said, which led her to recognize the two students for the Superintendent's Award.

David "August" Oddleifson and Jessica Fitts were chosen for their outstanding academic achievement, leadership and service.

Cohasset High School principal Joel Antolini gave a long list of academic awards and community and school involvement for both students.

Antolini said he got to know the students on a more personal level when he joined them on a recent backpacking trip.

"They are as respectful, polite and wholesome as they are talented," said Antolini.

Walsh also thanked the parents for raising

Cohasset race director launches triathlon series

Three sprint distance races in metro Boston will be united in 2009 under the banner Commonwealth Triathlon Series, spearheaded by Cohasset Triathlon race director Bill Burnet. The races include the Cohasset Triathlon, June 28,;the Marlborough Triathlon, July 26; and the Gloucester Triathlon, Aug. 9.

In two years, the Cohasset Triathlon has become a premier short course race at the national level. The 2009 Cohasset Triathlon has been chosen the Northeast qualifier for the Team USA 16 through 19 age group for Sprint Distance World Championships in Australia, and the Special Qualifier Race for the 2009 Age Group Nationals in Tuscaloosa, Ala., in August. The top five people per age group will qualify to race in Tuscaloosa.

The Marlborough Triathlon was founded by Olympian Jarrod Shoemaker and his coach Tim Crowley. Athletes will be treated to a 5-mile bike loop course that will provide plenty of views for spectators along the race route.

"What will set these three races apart from the rest is that they are being created and organized by topnotch athletes, some of the best in the sport who understand all the necessary components that go into a truly incredible race."
— Bill Burnett, Cohasset Triathlon

The Gloucester Triathlon, founded by pro triathlete Janda Ricci-Munn, will provide athletes with a course designed to showcase Gloucester's maritime history and beauty.

"What will set these three races apart from the rest is that they are being created and organized by topnotch athletes, some of the best in the sport who understand all the necessary components that go into a truly incredible race," said Burnett.

Registration for the series opens at 9 a.m. Monday, Dec. 1. Racers will have the option to sign up for one, two or all three races. Discounted registration fees will apply for all racers who sign up for two or more races. Visit the Web site at www.cohassettri.com for more information.

Holly Hill Farm wreath making

Holly Hill Farm will hold a holiday wreath-making workshop, which will take place in the farm's greenhouse from 2-3:30 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 6. Participants will make their own wreaths from materials provided by the farm.

Those interested in more information should call education director Jon Belber at 781-383-6565 or via email to jbelberhollyhill@hotmail.com.

Cost: $15 per person; $10 for members of Friends of Holly Hill Farm.

Parking is available. Friends of Holly Hill Farm Inc., the not-for-profit organization that uses and makes available the resources of Holly Hill Farm for educational programs, sponsors the above activities.

Workshop on reading

Come learn how you can make a difference for all the young children in your life at 7:30 p.m., on Dec. 2 at the Osgood School.

The free workshop, which is sponsored by the PSO, is especially designed for parents and teachers of infants, toddlers, preschoolers and kindergarteners. Grandparents, family/day care providers are also invited to attend. The workshop is friendly, informative, and fun!

There will be:

↑ a discussion of the latest discoveries about how the young brain gets ready to learn how to read.

↑ two short videos that show how parents can help their children build strong foundations for reading and writing before they reach kindergarten.

↑ a demonstration of an on-line early literacy screening tool for use with children in their pre-kindergarten years.

The workshop is led by Jean Ciborowski Fahey, Ph.D.- Education Director of the Reading Partnership and Literacy Consultant to the Massachusetts Family Literacy Consortium, Massachusetts Department of Education and graduate school professor at Lesley University. For more information call 781-340-4331 or email: Jean_Fahey@sshosp.org

Jingle Bell Walk is Nov. 28

The South Shore Community Center invites families and friends to our Fourteenth Annual Jingle Bell Walk, which will be held on Friday, Nov. 28. Come to beautiful Cohasset Harbor at 2 p.m. and watch as Santa, Mrs. Claus and their many elf assistants arrive by fishing boat.

Santa and his elves will distribute jingle bells and then will board a horse-drawn wagon for the 'parade' to the South Shore Community Center. Everyone is invited to follow Santa and Friends to the Community Center for hot cocoa, punch and cookies. Enjoy the community sing-along of traditional holiday favorites sung by Mrs. Claus, Santa, Frosty, Rudolph and the merry Elves.

There will be photos with Santa, open bowling, face painting, a turkey trot and hayrides on the Common.

The Rusty Skippers Band will entertain at the end of the day and the lighting of the Christmas tree will take place on the Common at dusk. This is a wonderful community event that is sure to put everyone into the holiday spirit.

In the event of rain, Santa will arrive at the SSCC gym at 2 p.m.

T-Day football, powderpuff games coming

LIFE AT CHS

LAUREN MACK

Both games are sure to be crowd-pleasers, so be sure to catch both!

Hello everyone! First I'd like to congratulate all of the girls on the varsity soccer team (and also the JV girls that were pulled up to help) on their awesome season and far-advancement into the state tournament! Sadly, their season ended this past Tuesday when they lost in double-overtime against Newburyport.

Other upcoming sports events include the annual Thanksgiving football game against our long-standing rival, Hull, and girls Powderpuff game on Wednesday, where the senior girls play (and win) against the junior girls in a match of epic proportions. Both games are sure to be crowd-pleasers, so be sure to catch both!

Another event that has been the buzz around CHS lately has been the production of West Side Story, which is happening on Dec. 5th, 6th, and 7th is looking to be a great show so be sure to purchase tickets at lunch time or at Buttonwoods Books.

This week's Quote of the Week comes from an English teacher who lives "under the sea". His name is Mr. Bill Fish, and he can be found swimming around the English hallways or in his room, better known as "the Aquarium". When asked about his plans for the half day, which was this past Wednesday, he replied: "Subs: because they're not just found in the ocean. And because I'm very hungry." And with that I leave you all to a wonderful weekend! Ciao!

SUNDAY VS. NORWELL

Lady Skippers capture first-ever Sectional title

Beat archrival Norwell, 4-1

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

So this is what the Red Sox felt like in October of 2004 after finally vanquishing the New York Yankees.

At long last, the Cohasset girls' soccer team finally got the edge in a meaningful game on their Norwell counterparts, stunning the Lady Clippers with a 4-1 victory in Sunday afternoon's Div. 3 South Sectional finals (Nov. 16).

"We set the tone right from the kickoff," said veteran Cohasset head coach Deb Beal. "The girls these last three weeks have just been bringing their A games to every game and practice.

With the help of a heavy wind at their backs, the Lady Skippers scored two goals before the game was six minutes old and punched home the game's third score in the 21st minute.

"It was just amazing," continued Beal, who claimed her first sectional title with this win in her 12 years of coaching the Skippers. "We knew all about them and they know just who we are. These things go in cycles, and today it was just our turn."

The Skippers have waited quite some time for the "their turn," Beal in particular. Beal-coached CHS squads had not beaten a Norwell team in over 20 games until they pulled out a 1-0 decision in regular season play two months ago. The Clippers had the final laugh, however, as they won the go-round number two to sew up the South Shore League title.

That 20-plus game winless streak included a 1-0 loss to the Lady Clippers in this same South Sectional Finals game last November.

"It's just so rewarding to see these girls experience this after all of their hard work," said Beal. "Especially for these (seven) seniors, most of whom have been with me on varsity since freshman year."

Lehr and tri-Captains Maggie McGoldrick, Sarah Coggins and Torey Hart are fourth-year varsity players. Keeper Johanna Brophy was up in her junior year, and Krsitin Monaco and Brittany Dunn weren't far behind.

The Skippers won the pre-game coin flip and opted to start with the wind at their backs. That decision paid quick dividends.

"I was real glad to win that flip," said Beal. "Our game plan was just to attack, attack, attack, to hit the ball hard and in the air anytime we got a look 30-feet and in."

Senior star Sammi Lehr had an opportunity to follow that advice when the Skippers were awarded a free kick just 46 seconds in from just above the top right hand corner of the goal area. Lehr's blast curled around the inside of the three-Clipper wall and a few feet inside the near post. Clippers keeper Brooke Alman, who had been guarding the far post, was powerless to do anything about it.

Senior captain Torey Hart doubled the Skippers pleasure less than five minutes later, as she turned the corner on a break-in from the right wing and boomed a blast over Alman that nestled into the twine by the far post.

"That was a great shot that got a little help from the wind," noted Beal.

The Lady Skippers weren't done with their long distance assaults, however.

At 20:38, junior Christine Coner took a short diagonal pass from Hart 20 yards out from the left post, took two touches to settle the ball down to her right foot, and let fly with a blast that got over Alman's finger tips and punched out twine top far corner.

"We were fortunate that (Norwell) lost that coin flip, and that we got the wind at our backs," noted Beal. "But we took good advantage of that. It's always harder to recover from a deficit than it is to protect a lead."

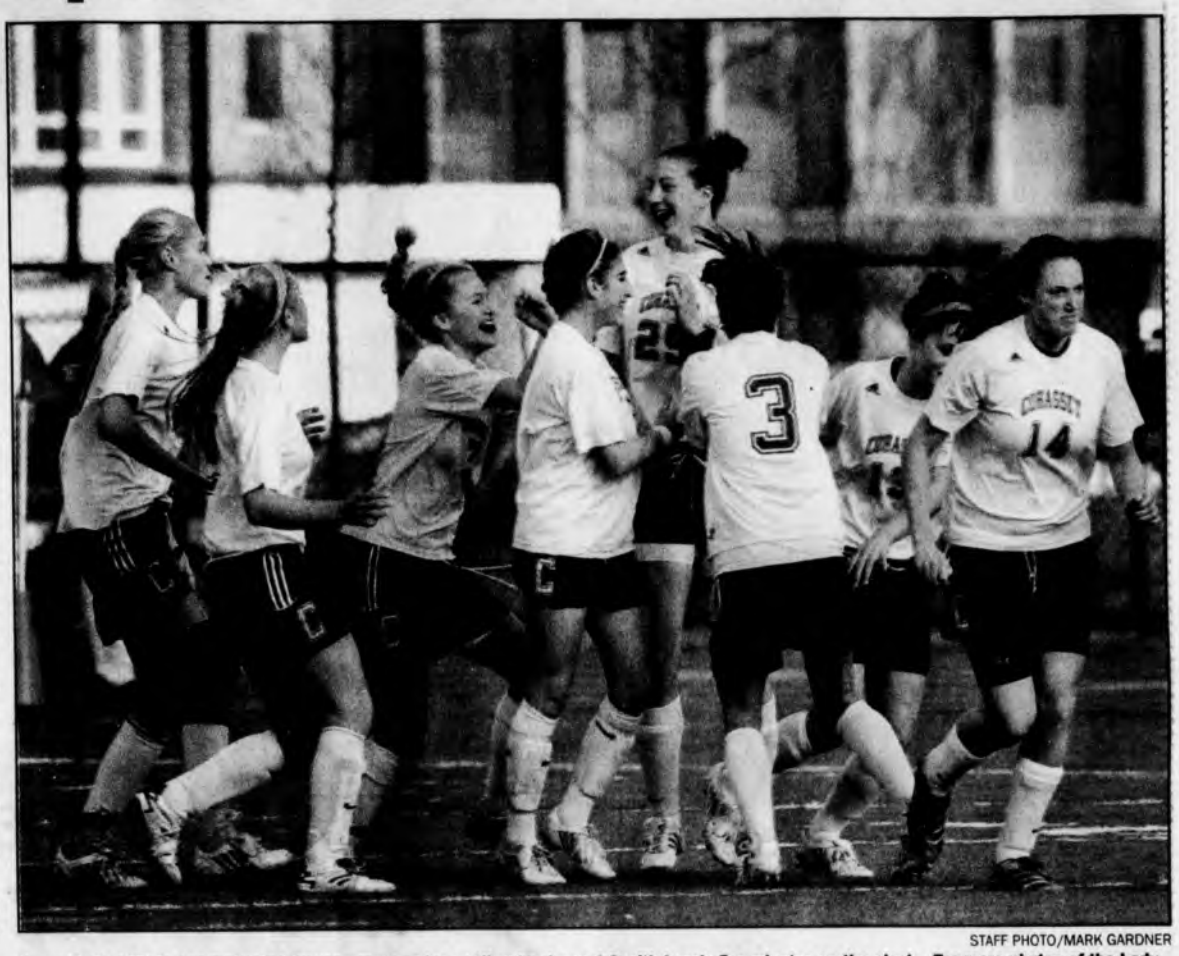
Had Norwell (16-5-1) won the toss, Coach Bruce Emerson confided that he was actually leaning toward giving Cohasset the wind for the first half anyway.

"I figured that it might take (Cohasset) a while to get it going, and then we'd have the wind for the second half," said the Clippers longtime coach. "Obviously, it didn't work out that way. I thought Cohasset did a very good job of coming out aggressively from the start and playing the ball in the air."

Norwell came out with the wind at their backs in the second half, and made several deep pushes. However, the Skippers defense — led by the twin-tower Lehr sisters, Sammi and Tori, junior Meredith Kelly and senior captain Maggie McGoldrick — held its ground and let few balls through. Those that did squirt through were smothered with extreme aggression by senior keeper Johanna Brophy.

"That's JoJo's game," said Beal of her feisty 5-foot-2 keeper who dove full speed onto several balls just as they were leaving Skippers' feet. "It's the only way she knows how to play. She is absolutely fearless."

Norwell sophomore forward Krista Prouty finally put the Clippers on the board with 8:44 to play, finishing off a nifty crossover move to her left foot with a blast from 18 yards straight out over the leaping Brophy.



Any thoughts of a dramatic Clippers' comeback, though, were snuffed out four minutes later when McGoldrick stunned everyone with a low blast into the wind from 30 yards out that skipped past Alman and just inside the left post.

As much as the loss hurt for the Clippers, longtime coach Bruce Emerson did see a silver lining.

"If it wasn't going to be us, I'm glad it could be Cohasset," said Emerson. "This couldn't have happened for a nicer person than Deb Beal, and I also feel very good for those all those seniors I've been watching these last few years."

Following the game, Beal said "everything now is a bonus."

We didn't build this season around getting back to this point," she said. "We built this season around becoming better soccer players and better teammates and doing things the way they should be done. And we've done that across the board, on and off the field. The girls have worked so hard. This has been a nice, nice journey to watch."

TUESDAY VS. NEWBURYPORT

Cohasset girls drop heartbreaker in double OT

Team, game one for history books

By Jim Willis
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

They deserved better, but what a show we got.

After 99 minutes and 38 seconds of grueling, scoreless soccer in freezing temperatures, the Cohasset girls' soccer team's fantastic run came to an end last night at the Manning Bowl in Lynn. Newburyport, the defending state champions playing in the state semifinals for the third year in a row, moved into the state final game with a breakaway goal from the right side by Hannah McCormick with 22 seconds left in the second overtime. The 1-0 loss followed the Skippers' first South Sectional Championship in school history on Sunday, and for most of the game, it appeared the Cohasset girls' most successful season in school history might continue on through one more weekend.

The first half was scoreless, with few chances for either side to tally the game's first goal. Cohasset goaltender Johanna Brophy and defenders Sammi Lehr, Tori Lehr and Meredith Kelly dominated the entire game from Cohasset's defensive third, allowing Newburyport to bring the ball into their end often, but giving up very few real scoring opportunities. Junior midfielder Christine Coner had the best opportunity of the first half, as her shot from the left side was stopped by the Newburyport goaltender on a falling, fingertip save.

"The first 10 minutes we were a little timid," said head coach Deb Beal. "We weren't stepping quickly enough defensively – but a timeout settled us down and we played much tighter after that. Sammi, Tori and Meredith were outstanding."

As the second half began, Cohasset took control of the play. Strikers Torey Hart,

Skipper offensive line holds Norwell

Leads Cohasset to victory

They are not flashy. They don't generate headlines. Often they are described as being in the trenches. In football terminology, they don't even rate as having "skill positions." They are the unsung heroes, the quiet boys in blue, they are the offensive and defensive linemen for the Cohasset High School Varsity Football team and boy, what a night they had for the Skippers as Cohasset hosted winless Norwell in a South Shore League match-up.

"The offensive line played phenomenally," said Coach Pete Afanasiw. "They dominated Norwell at the point of attack on each and every play. Every rushing play gained positive yardage".

Classic example, in the opening drive, on the fourth play from scrimmage, junior running back Dana Valentine (157 yards, 16 carries, 1 TD), follows his lead blocker senior Alec Livingstone through a

The Thanksgiving Day game against Hull is on Alumni Field at CHS, kick off is 10am.

Cohasset coach Peter Afanasiw says both teams are 6-4 and it should be a very competitive and exciting game.

"Both teams are very balanced with strong running and passing attacks," he said. "And this is a very heated and spirited rivalry, and the team that makes the fewest mistakes usually ends up enjoying their turkey dinner quite a bit more."

Sensational season for JV Field Hockey

By Susan Franklin
CORRESPONDENT

When you look back over the last few years, it is apparent that Cohasset field hockey has a bright future. Returning to the field in 2009 are a significant number of players who have a years of varsity experience, some with a quarterfinal playoff birth under their belts. In addition to resident talent, the varsity squad will be joined by players from this year's undefeated JV squad, whose 2008 season was nothing short of spectacular.

According to coach Laura Giuliano (herself a standout in the sport at Cohasset High School, Franklin High School and Dartmouth College), posting a season record of 14–0–1 "was a full team effort from beginning to end". The season began with a 5-0 win against Scituate, but the next game would prove difficult for the young team. Facing a formidable East Bridgewater opponent, Cohasset ultimately won this hard fought battle 3-2. The win was big but more important for the team, "the game seemed to set their resolve to play their hardest for the rest of the season", said Giuliano.

The team continued their winning ways against a strong Norwell squad, a talented Notre Dame team and Harwich, who for years has been a South Shore League field hockey dynasty. The weather was not the only thing that was perfect when the team opened up their September home stand against Nantucket. In fact, before heading off the mainland in mid-October to face Nantucket for a second time, Cohasset had amassed a perfect 9-0-0 record.

A second meeting against Nantucket tested Cohasset's meld, and despite dominating the game, and shooting relentlessly on the goal, the contest ended in a 1-1 tie. Facing opponents for a second time in the season, the team added four more wins, bringing their record to 13-0-1 going into the season finale.

The finale could not have been more challenging as undefeated Cohasset hosted a powerful, undefeated Hingham team with a 12-0-2 record. With an undefeated season on the line, this contest was a nail biter from the opening pass. The teams appeared equally matched and at the end of the second half the game was tied 1–1. In the second half Cohasset took the reigns, dominating ball control and setting the pace the game. However, Hingham's talented players posed a serious threat every time they made a break for the Cohasset goal. A Hingham timeout gave Cohasset a chance to regroup and Guiliano and her squad committed to a strategy they had practiced of not allowing the ball to pass the 50-yard line. The forwards got fired up and each player gave it their all when they took the field. Cohasset pulled ahead 2–1 and was able to hang on for the win.

"Each of these girls should be commended and Beth Gilman and Mike Condon should be recognized for the impact their youth program is having on Cohasset field hockey", says Giuliano. If Giuliano had to attribute the success of the season to a single factor, she would have to say that the strength and versatility of the midfield was instrumental. The speed, agility, persistence and endurance of the midfield players allowed Cohasset to push the ball up field offensively and get back to protect defensively. The midfielders had the unique ability to "see" the field. They were able to identify spaces to hit or move into, and see where their opponents were on the field. This collective skill allowed Cohasset to control the game, continuously feeding the ball inside on offense and fiercely keeping opponents from penetrating in to the Cohasset zone. Of the 53 total goals scored during the season, 27 of them were either scored or assisted by midfielders (12 goals, 15 assists).

Ten individuals led Cohasset in scoring. Forward Olivia Murphy had 23 goals and 10 assists, including hat tricks against Scituate, Mashpee and Norwell. Forward Caitlin DeAngelis posted 8 goals, 7 assists and a hat trick against Harwich. Hard-hitting midfielder Kayla Orner finished the season with 5 goals and 2 assists. Charlotte O'Callaghan, Sydney Waters, Eliza Kinnealey, Sage Stebbins, Angela Cipolla and Greta Shwachman scored 3 goals a piece. Forward Danielle Frederick and midfielder Amber Silvia gave outstanding performances all season.

Kayla Orner and Sage Stebbins running with the ball.

The tenacious defense was comprised of a formidable and cohesive group of talented players who delivered 8 shutouts in 15 games, with goalie Whitney Jaffee allowing only 8 goals all season. The group had strength in each position and was anchored by sweepers Bridey Ayers and Sarah Mavilia. Taylor Kennedy, Christi Fitzgerald, Ellie Tedeschi, Abbey Ayers, Sarah Antonuccio and Carly Schwantner gave outstanding performances all season and played together so consistently that substitutions were made without sacrificing yards or goals to the opponent.

There is no doubt that success breeds success and this team enjoyed a great deal of it. In the words of one of this century's best female athletes, Mia Hamm, "if you don't love what you do, you won't do it with much conviction or passion." It was obvious to coaches and fans alike every time the Cohasset squad took the field that the team enjoyed the pure joy of playing. Giuliano expressed that in addition to "their collective and individual field hockey talent and tremendous potential, we should all be proud of the character and maturity these young women portrayed on and off the field." This group of young women personified teamwork. They supported one another in practice and in games, and they played with heart all season long for themselves and their coach, for Cohasset and each other.

hole in the left side of the offensive line that was created by senior tight end Nick Savage, senior Co-Captain Andersen Lynner and his brother junior Will Lynner. The result was a 41-yard TD run by Valentine and the Skippers were quickly on the board. The PAT failed, but the Skippers were on top 6-0.

Junior, Brendan Doonan, kicked the ball deep, to the Clipper 5-yard line where the return was stomped on by junior Graham Stevenson. Norwell quickly went 3 and out. Cohasset got the ball back. Mixing it up a bit, quarterback Jeff Cavanaro (7/17 passing, 134 yards, 2 TDs) connected with senior Derek Schwantner (4 catches, 64 yards) and then went back to the ground attack.. It was brothers, senior Matt Wasel and sophomore Eric Wasel who created a hole for Valentine. Another pass or two and it was Eric Wasel who opened up a huge hole for Livingstone to make his way 24 yards into the end zone for another Cohasset score.

Doonan kicked the ball deep to the Clipper 10 yard line where they returned it to the 35. The Cohasset front 3, senior Mike Froio, senior Andersen Lynner and senior Nick Simonds slowed the Norwell ground attack allowing the linebacking crew to step in and make big plays. The Clipper drive was cut short by a Doonan (1 reception, 30 yds, 1 TD) interception on the Skipper 25-yard line.

The next Cohasset drive took up a lot of time on the clock, carrying over into the second quarter. Focused offensive execution brought the Skippers deep into Norwell territory, but a holding penalty negated another Livingstone trip into the end zone and a highly questionable no catch call forced Cohasset into a field goal attempt which missed.

Norwell got the ball back, but their offensive drive was textbook for defensive positioning. Norwell was quickly 3 and out, with key tackles by sophomore Jake Kissick (7 solo tackles, 4 assists) and junior Andy Mckenna.

Coach Afanasiw said,"The defense dominated the line of scrimmage and held Norwell to 7 first downs all game".

The only player who touches the ball as much as the QB is the center. Junior, Dan Sullivan, not only is charged with getting the ball to the QB but also has blocking assignments (and it's not always the guy in front of him). Sully was key in Cohasset's next drive helping make holes for the run game and protecting against the blitz. Cohasset got into the end zone again as Cavanaro connected with junior Dean Driscoll (2 receptions, 40 yards, 1 TD) on the 7th play of the drive.

Defensively Cohasset dominated. Norwell was again stymied. The long ball all game long was prevented by the defensive back crew of Doonan (5 tackles, 2 deflections), sophomore Robert Jones, junior John Maher and Schwantner.

Norwell punted again.

Cohasset ended this drive with Cavanaro hitting Doonan from 30 yards out. Norwell got the ball back as time was running out in the first half. Simonds came up big with a sack of the QB in the backfield that diminished any hopes of the Clippers getting on the board before they headed into the locker room at halftime.

To start the second half, the Clippers received the ball and the Cohasset D shut them down. The Cohasset O took over and tried for the end zone again, only to be forced into a punting situation, the first all game.

Sophomores Jack Carrier, Sam Leahy, Thomas Flibotte and junior Jeff Charles rotated in and got some valuable reps for Cohasset. The Norwell offense was still unable to get any momentum going. DJ Weiss got his first sack of the season. Norwell's lone score came late in the 4th quarter. Final score Cohasset 25, Norwell 8.

"We played a very complete game," said Coach Afanasiw. :In each of the three aspects of the game we controlled the tempo and field position. Our special teams units played exceptionally well.

"Doonan's kicking and the coverage units consistently pinned Norwell inside their 15-yard line, giving the defense the much sought after 'long field' to play with. Likewise Doonan did a great job returning kicks and giving the offense the equally sought after 'short field', and as a result we only started one drive inside our 30-yard line," he said.

"As a team we did not commit a turnover. If we couple that with hard running and efficient passing, the result is usually another big win for the team and Friday night that is exactly what we got.

"Hopefully we can continue our good play through Thanksgiving as we prepare for Hull. Both teams are 6-4 and it should be a hard fought game. A win in their final football game for Cohasset would be extra special for all our Seniors; co-captains Andersen Lynner and Derek Schwantner, Matt Wasel, Nick Savage, Alec Livingstone, Mike Froio and Nick Simonds".

Cohasset JV football: near perfect at 9 -1

Final game tonight against Hull

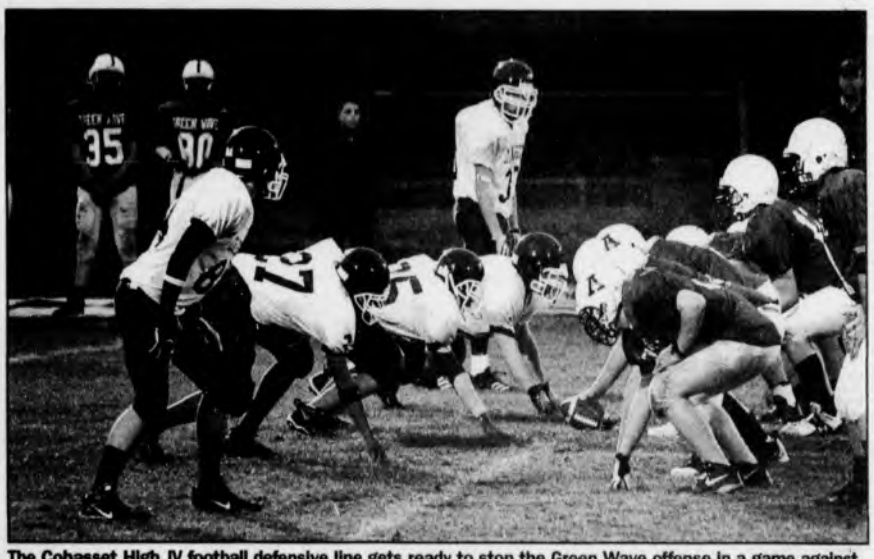
The Cohasset High School JV football team is having a season to remember. Under the direction of Coach Brian Pattison and Coach Frank Antin, the JV squad has outscored, outrun and outplayed nearly all of their opponents.

"What has helped us this year is strength in numbers" said Coach Pattison. "In past years we have had to play kids on offense and defense as well as special teams. This year we have the luxury of playing more kids (and getting them more experience) while also getting kids some rest time during the game. That was a big reason we were able to beat Scituate because we were fresh in the fourth quarter."

The first six games against Quincy, Archbishop Williams, Scituate, Cardinal Spellman and Carver were shutouts, with Cohasset's JV team not allowing any points to be scored.

The offense, led by freshman quarterback Mitch McNary, has outscored their opponents game after game. The offensive line, which consists of the strength and muscle of Ben Curley, Chris Brash, Geoff Swain, Tony Sestito and Vinny Calorio has opened many holes for the talented running backs. Running backs Kyle Livingstone, Sean McKenna, Kyrel Juandoo and Dean McNary have shown both speed and agility while carrying the ball down the field. Quarterback McNary also has many choices of skilled tight ends and receivers such as Robbie Mahoney, John Collins and Sean Naughton.

"Coach Antin has really mixed up the defensive schemes and the kids really executed them well," said Coach Pattison. "They had a 6-0 start without giving up a point."



The defensive line includes the energy and power of Eric Bartucca, Billy Mack, Pablo Sherman, Colin Tarpey, Kimani Hale-Sadm, Chris Murphy, Christian Quebec and Robert Wiess, along with the force of Sean McKenna, Robbie Mahoney, Kyrel Juandoo at linebacker. The instinctive defensive backs consist of Derek Froio and Jamie Faber at corner and Kyle Livingstone at safety.

Many on the JV team have been playing together since 3rd grade with the SCICOH youth football program. You can also find several of them still playing pick-up football games at St. Anthony's rectory.

The last game of the season is this Friday night at 6pm (Nov. 21st) under the lights at Hull High School.

"When you look back at what we were as a team on day one to what we have accomplished as a team....it's amazing. The kids have really worked hard and showed up to practice every day with a positive attitude," said Coach Pattison. "Each practice the kids got better and better and now they can see all their hard work pay off with a successful season."

That season ends this Friday night in Hull, so let's show our Cohasset pride and cheer on this near perfect JV football team.

Senior and team captain Torey Hart goes after the ball during the South sectional semi-final round against Bourne.

FRIDAY VS. BOURNE

Girls shut out Bourne in D3 South Sectional Semi-Final

By Susan Franklin
CORRESPONDENT

With a 15-3-3 record, Cohasset entered the semi-final round of the MIAA South Division 3 tournament having scored 12 goals while allowing only 1 in post-season play. They faced Bourne who posted a 14-3-1 record and got to the semi-final match shutting out their two post-season opponents while tallying 9 goals. Both teams were on a roll and based on the numbers, were well matched. No doubt coming out on top would require a well executed game strategy and Cohasset was up to the task.

The Skippers offense attacked immediately. Two minutes into the half they had already made two shots on goal, one rolling along the goal line and the other sailing over the crossbar. Cohasset set the tone for the game early and that tone was speed. Bourne seemed unprepared to defend the foot speed and ball control of Cohasset players Torey Hart, Mackenzie Hart, Caroline Fein and Kaci Kucinski. Blazing up the sidelines and sending passes in front of the net, Cohasset generated numerous scoring opportunities. Midfielders Maggie McGoldrick and Sarah Coggins teamed with Tori Lehr and Sammi Lehr to form a seemingly impenetrable defense. In fact Bourne could not muster an attack on Cohasset's goal until 16 minutes into the first half of play.

Then with less than 8 minutes remaining in the first half, Cohasset earned a corner kick. Senior forward Torey Hart sent the ball high across the net face where it was controlled by sophomore Kaci Kucinski who quick kicked it past an impressive Bourne goalkeeper. Minutes later, with a 1-0 lead, Cohasset's Torey Hart drilled a penalty kick past the Bourne goalie giving Cohasset a 2-0 lead.

In the second half Cohasset's offense was still in attack mode. "Our girls are fit and strong", said Cohasset coach Deb Beal. "We can run with the best of them and Bourne was not going to outwork us in the second half". Two minutes into the second half a shot by Kucinski was deflected by the goalie. Coggins returned the rebound but it was saved by the Bourne goalie who, as she had all game, sent it downfield over 50-yards on a drop kick. Minutes later Christine Coner found Fein who fed Kucinski, but again her shot was saved by the goalie.

Bourne came out much more aggressive in the second half and generated many legitimate attacks on the Cohasset goal. A ball headed at midfield by Bourne broke through the defensive line forcing Cohasset goalie Johanna Brophy to come up high out of the net to stop the attack. Minutes later Brophy jumped up and slapped down an unbelievably long shot on goal, and Sammi Lehr was able to sweep the loose ball out of bounds.

In the final 18 minutes of play, Cohasset would get off six more shots on goal, but none found net. "This game was just another example of the girls going out onto the field with more confidence than the opposition" said coach Deb Beal.

Final score, Cohasset 2, Bourne 0.

The Cohasset squad played with poise, tenacity and power. Comprised of 7 seniors, 10 juniors and 6 sophomores, they moved on in the tournament and on Sunday defeated Norwell in the Division 3 South finals 4-1.

Caroline Fein and Kaci Kucinski made of number of runs through the middle, only to be stopped repeatedly by Newburyport's packed in defensive formation time and time again. The Cohasset defensive backfield played both the defensive role of squashing any Newburyport offensive run, as well as starting up the Lady Skippers' offense. Said Beal, "Kaci, Torey and Caroline all worked tirelessly to attack. Their defense was tough and they closed down many of our opportunities."

"The teamwork and confidence displayed during the last few weeks of the season were remarkable."
— Deb Beal, girls soccer coach

The best opportunity of the half for either team came when junior midfielder Samantha Crough, playing for senior captain and all-star Sarah Coggins who had left in the first half with a knee injury, hit a left foot strike from 25 yards out that sailed just wide of the net. "Losing Sarah in the first half was so difficult," said Beal. "She distributes the ball so well and creates offensive opportunities. Sharing the sideline with her was not easy – she is such a valuable member of this team, and she wasn't physically able to compete. But Sam and Maggie (senior captain midfielder McGoldrick) controlled the midfield, supporting the offense and creating opportunities to score."

As the half closed and through the beginning of the first overtime, Cohasset seemed to have the momentum, as their back line and outside midfielders continuously fed their strikers with long balls up the side and through the middle. "Outside mids Christine (Coner) and MacKenzie (Hart) ran the sidelines all night long, working to create attacks and support defensively," said Beal.

With just over three minutes to go in the first overtime, Newburyport broke through the Cohasset defense for the first time since the opening half, but a high shot from outside bounced off of the upper right post. From that point on, the game went back to being the up and down game of the first 10 minutes, with each team deflecting offensive runs and counter attacking. Senior All-stars Torey Hart and Maggie McGoldrick both had close calls, with a Hart header just missing the goal off of a cross from sophomore Fein just into the second extra frame. As the final minute of the second sudden death overtime ticked down, it appeared that the game would be decided by penalty kicks. Then, with just over 20 seconds to go, the ball squirted out of a crowded right side of the field in Cohasset's defensive third across the top of the penalty area. McCormick broke in alone from an outside right position, putting a shot in the upper right corner just over the outstretched fingers of Brophy for the game's only goal.

Certainly it was a tough ending for the most successful season in the history of the program. In five postseason games this year, the team scored 18 goals and gave up 3. Brophy recorded 2 shutouts with a .60 goals against average during the postseason run, despite missing all but 8 games of the season due to injuries. Said a teary but proud head coach after the game, "The teamwork and confidence displayed during the last few weeks of the season were remarkable. This team has always had a special bond, their chemistry is such an asset. It was such a tough evening – the girls played so hard and left all they had on the field. I never felt as though we were outplayed or outmatched."

There is a Laser way to treat severe gum disease without cutting or stitches

Introducing

Laser Periodontal Therapy™

Finally, there's good news for those of you who suffer from gum disease (gingivitis and periodontitis). We now offer an exciting laser based technique for treatment of periodontal disease called Laser Periodontal Therapy™. Through the use of the Millennium Dental Technologies, Inc. PerioLase® Laser, designed especially for Laser Periodontal Therapy™, we can treat your moderate to severe gum disease and you can quickly return to your normal routine!

There's no incision (scalpel) and no stitches (sutures). Discomfort is greatly reduced, often there is not any pain at all. You heal naturally with full retention of your gums. Local area dentist Dr. Michael Thomas is fully trained and licensed to perform Laser Periodontal Therapy™, an FDA cleared and patented laser gum therapy that greatly reduces the pain and recovery time associated with traditional gum surgery. Dr. Thomas is the only dentist in the South Shore area using the PerioLase MVP-7, the first ever digital dental laser with FDA approval for use in the treatment of gum disease. If you suffer from tender, red, swollen, bleeding gums, or have been told you need periodontal surgery to treat gum disease, call us today for an appointment to evaluate your condition and see what a difference the laser treatment can make for you.

Active Aruba

GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

ARUBA — I came to Aruba to chill out. I hadn't planned on my beach break including a TomCar, the same kind of vehicle the Israeli army uses to patrol its borders. But it turns out there's more to do on this Dutch island than relax in the sun.

Of course the island does boast seriously soft white beaches and clear aqua seas. Those are Aruba's calling cards along with its Southern Caribbean location and its status as a gambling locale. Only 15 miles off the coast of South America, Aruba's position keeps temperatures around 82 year-round.

Aruba is only 19.6 miles long and six miles across at its widest point. What comes as a surprise to some resort-goers is that, in addition to about seven miles of beach on its southwest shores, there's a windward coast that's rugged and wild and much of the interior of the island is desert with cacti and rock formations.

After some time bronzing on a private island owned by the Renaissance Aruba Beach Resort, my Type A side took over and I was itching for adventure. So when my friend asked if I wanted to trek over some sand dunes in a TomCar, I didn't hesitate.

We booked a 2 1/2-hour North Coast tour with Rancho Notorious (www.ranchonotorious.com/tomcar.shtml; $129 for a single driver, $49 for a child when accompanied by an adult).

The TomCar looks like a giant Tonka toy with two seats, a roof but no doors, a windshield (that makes it street legal), a high ground clearance and three gears: drive, neutral and reverse. With bright yellow suspension coils, fat tires and lights sticking out like bug eyes, the vehicle proved to be a serious off-roader that could run through sand and climb over rocks.

Palm Beach is among Aruba's popular white sand stretches.

Exploring Aruba by TomCar adds adventure to your beach break.

We were each given a pair of goggles and driving rugs and hit the road. No need for driving instructions - these rigs only go about 15 mph.

Our tour started on the north side of Aruba, minutes from Arikok National Park. The park encompasses 20 percent of the island, a significant chunk of the interior and a long stretch of the northern windward coast. If you like to hike, there are 21 miles of marked trails.

In our TomCars we climbed rutted roads to a rise where we could view the entire island and up the coast to see the remains of a 25-foot high natural coral bridge, a well-known tourist spot, which recently toppled into the sea. From there we drove past cacti the size of people to caves where we viewed ancient Arawak drawings. The Arawaks were the first people to inhabit Aruba over 2,000 years ago; their wildlife paintings are scattered on rock walls around the island. A history buff could spend a day caving to petroglyphs.

You can't beat Baby Beach, our last stop and a delightful cove with milky turquoise waters and a soft white sandy stretch.

The place was postcard perfect and since Baby Beach is also a snorkeling spot, I returned the next day for an afternoon cruise on a custom-built, 53-foot Catamaran operated by Red Sail Sports (877-733-7245; www.redsailsports.com; $44 adults, $26 kids 11 and under). There were about 30 of us onboard and the high point of the sail was a snorkel trip to see the sunken German freighter Antilla. Brightly colored fish were hanging around the bones of the ship, but cloudy skies and murky water prevented me from getting too close.

I dragged my 15-year-old daughter on a five-mile bike ride with Aruba Active Vacations (www.aruba-active-vacations.com-/mountainbiking; full-day rentals $25). We sweated our way up a steep hill to the famed California lighthouse, named after a ship called the California, known for having received distress signals from the Titanic. The California's radio operator was off-duty and asleep at the time of the disaster, and did not respond to the Titanic's call for help. Perhaps this small piece of bad karma sealed the California's fate - the ship sunk off the coast of Aruba a few years after the Titanic went down. Today, the California is a popular dive site.

I don't dive, but I wanted more of undersea Aruba. On popular and touristy De Palm Island (www.depalm.com; $83.55 for adults, half-price for kids, including food and drink) you can both snorkel and "snuba," a sort of scuba for novices. The snuba is $55 extra (half-price for kids) but I decided to give it a go, donning a king-sized helmet, open at the bottom, but attached to an air line so you can breathe easily. A group of us walked on the sandy bottom holding on to a rope to keep us grounded. The guides rounded up fish for us to pet, feed and photograph. Easy and awesome.

But Aruba's like that, too - activities galore; choices for days. Easy and awesome vacationing.

Get ready to put the law into practice

Massachusetts School of Law in Andover offers students practical experience and a lower cost

By Charlie Breitrose
DAILY NEWS STAFF

The folks at the Massachusetts School of Law in Andover do things a little differently than other law schools.

And, after 20 years, the school has a proven track record of success, said Associate Dean Michael Coyne.

The school doesn't require students to take the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) to apply. It also tries to keep students' expenses down to make the law school accessible to as many people as possible.

MSL's courses do not revolve so much around books and lectures, Coyne said, but rather on practicing real-world situations.

"The entire law school is developed more like (a) medical school model, rather than law," Coyne said. "No one want to go to a doctor who hasn't touched a body until they get to you, and you're the first one. That is what happens at a lot of law schools."

Virtually all of the professors, even those who teach full time, still work in the world of law, Coyne said, so they can show students what it's like to practice law.

"(Students) go to court with the professor and see what it's like, even try to assist clients," Coyne said. "Many courses are focused on simulated experience; they prepare cases from beginning to end. It gets them to a comfortable level speaking and thinking on their feet."

The simulation has translated to success for MSL students in mock trial competitions with other law schools, Coyne said. The school's team won the Northeast competition last year and finished third place in a national competition.

MSL attracts people looking to boost their careers or change fields.

"We tend to cater to working professionals, and we have a very diverse student body – both in terms of age and the background from which they come into the school," Coyne said.

Life experience counts a lot, Coyne said, when MSL officials look at applicants.

"We think it is valuable to have some additional background beyond school, if you are ultimately going to handle people's problems and handle the maze of the court system," Coyne said.

As a result, MSL's students tend to be older than those at most other law schools, Coyne said. The school has a day program and an evening program. The average age of those taking classes during the day is 31 years old, Coyne said, and students going at night are around 35 or 36, on average.

"What you have is a lot of working professionals, people who delay entry into law school because life got in the way," Coyne said. "They are looking to return to school and are looking for different opportunities."

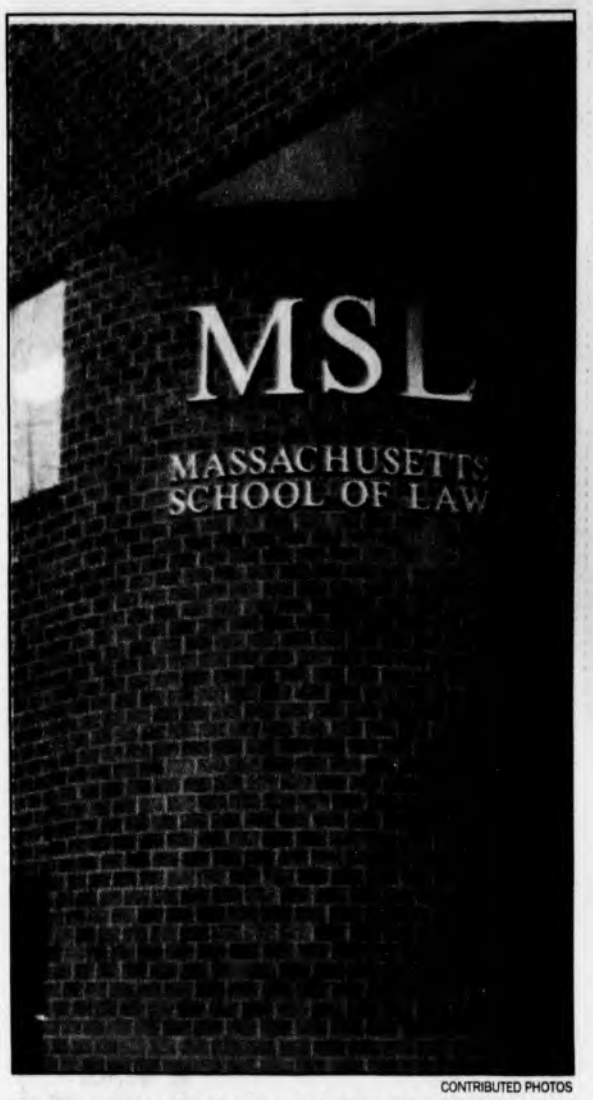
Most graduates find work at small law firms or go into public service jobs, such as working as a prosecutor in the district attorney's office. Others find work in the courthouse or in legal services working with those who cannot afford an attorney.

They are able to do this, Coyne said, because the school keeps tuition low.

"Our tuition is $14,500 (a year), and the average in New England is probably around $33,000," Coyne said.

That, in part, enables MSL to attract a racially diverse student body, Coyne said.

"Over 20 percent of students would be classified as minority," Coyne said. "What that means is the graduates are much more like the society they represent."



Instead of the LSAT, MSL asks prospective students to answer an essay question where they present both the pros and cons of an issue.

"That's what they will be doing in classes," Coyne said. "We think it is a better indicator of whether they will be successful."

The school generally draws students from within an hour's driving distance from its Andover campus, but with entry into law schools becoming more difficult, Coyne said the school now gets students relocating from as far as Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The Massachusetts School of Law enrolls students in the fall and spring, Coyne said. For more information about the school or applying, go to the school's Web site, www.mslaw.edu, or call the law school 978-681-0800 and ask for Admissions.

Charlie Breitrose can be reached at 508-626-3964 or cbreitro@cnc.com.

Tough economy steers adult learners toward college

By Montanette Murphy
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

College officials in upstate New York say they have seen or expect to see a spike in the number of people returning to school because of tough economic times.

In an economic slump, two- and four-year colleges, private business colleges and specialized schools or programs see a boost in enrollment, said Neil Murphy, president of the State University of New York College of Environmental Science and Forestry in Syracuse, N.Y.

"Whenever you have an uptick in unemployment, you generally find that some of those unemployed go back to refine their skills," Murphy said.

Some people return to school to finish degrees, obtain advanced degrees or to study a discipline that is in an advancing business sector, he said.

Tracy Roberts, 38, of Holland Patent, N.Y., said she returned to school at the Utica School of Commerce because she was in search of better wages.

"I just needed a better wage to support me and my children, and these days, you just can't get it without a degree," said Roberts, who has two teenage daughters.

"And even though I have years of experience working in an office environment, you just can't get the competitive wage not having the degree."

Roberts is working on an insurance associate certificate and a two-year degree as an administrative specialist.

Murphy said that jobs with the highest demand for workers are in the insurance and health care sectors, as well as in high-tech manufacturing, nanotech, robotics or in professions that develop ways to increase manufacturing efficiency.

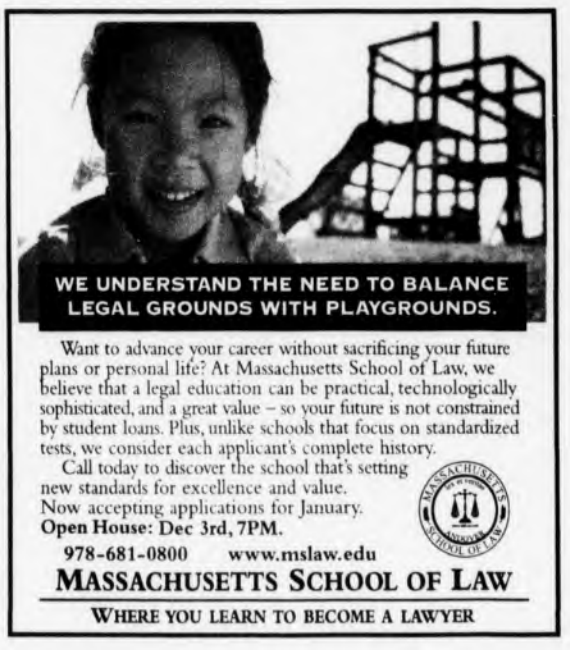
Some people take courses without moving toward obtaining a degree and instead choose to take classes that teach technical writing, refine speaking skills or provide computer training, Murphy said.

Herkimer County Community College expects a larger number of other learners within the nontraditional category, said Rebecca Ruffing, interim director of public relations for the college.

"A lot of that population are taking the classes online and they include veterans, which is also on the increase," Ruffing said.

"I can't point to data that can tell me why each of those students chose to come here, but the admissions office, based on conversations with those students, believes that those students are coming in because of the tough economic times."

Richard Haubert, assistant director of communications for Mohawk Valley Community College, said today's market has forced individuals to add to what they already know.



Patrick Quinn, vice president for enrollment management at Utica College, said officials are preparing for an influx of students because of the economy.

Between 15 percent to 20 percent of the students at UC are adult learners, or students who have returned to school to improve or change their careers, Quinn said. That percentage does not include those students pursuing graduate degrees, he said.

Leslie Crosley, director of admissions at Utica School of Commerce, said between 60 percent and 65 percent of the school's total enrollment is made up of nontraditional students.

"We have a large number of students who come in as nontraditional students," Crosley said. "Some are working and want to increase their skills. Others tried college and then stepped out for a while and are now returning."

Montanette Murphy is a reporter with the Observer-Dispatch in Utica, N.Y.

Want to advance your career without sacrificing your future plans or personal life? At Massachusetts School of Law, we believe that a legal education can be practical, technologically sophisticated, and a great value – so your future is not constrained by student loans. Thanksgiving ecumenical service Nov. 26

The annual Thanksgiving Ecumenical Worship Service will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 26th at 8 pm at the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset. The service will be lead by many of the leaders of Cohasset's churches. The public is encouraged to join together in this inspiring service of prayer and thanksgiving.Community members interested in singing in the ecumenical choir lead by SCC Musical Director, Joel Buford should meet in the sanctuary choir loft promptly at 6:30 pm.

Word is getting out that Cohasset C.A.R.E.S.

The CARES in Cohasset C.A.R.E.S. stands for caring and responding economically and spiritually.

A new community group formed to respond to the economic crisis, Cohasset C.A.R.E.S spent last week distributing its new information card around town. The group hopes the card will do two things; first, let people know where they can get help if they need it for anything from fuel assistance to spiritual support, and second, also let people know that if they do need help, they are not alone.

The CARES in Cohasset C.A.R.E.S. stands for caring and responding economically and spiritually. The group is made of spiritual leaders from the town and representatives from numerous organizations like the Social Service League, elder services, the food pantry, Wellspring, town officials and others.

The blue and white information cards created by C.A.R.E.S. were recently sent to town residents with the Social Service League's community mailing. C.A.R.E.S. members also began distributing them through around town including places like the library, town hall, the town nurse's office, veterinarian offices, the food pantry, police station, and schools.

On the front cover of the card is a list of all the churches and spiritual centers in Cohasset and surrounding towns. C.A.R.E.S. hopes that it will remind residents that their local clergy are available for pastoral care and spiritual direction and that places of worship often offer a sense of community that is comforting during challenging times. The backside of the card lets residents know where to turn for help with fuel costs, food, prescription medicine, substance abuse and other needs.

Over the next month, C.A.R.E.S. will be looking at planning a town-wide community meal for some time in January and the possibility of new informational groups or seminars on topics related to the economy like job transitions.

Residents, who have not received a copy of the C.A.R.E.S. info card and would like one, are encouraged to call or stop in one of the town churches.

SSCC raffling off playhouses

South Shore Community Center is raffling off two cottage playhouses, perfect for fostering hours of out-door imaginary play and fulfilling a child's dream. The raffle will run for five weeks only; the drawing date is set for Dec. 20 and free delivery will be provided in time for Christmas to Cohasset and adjacent towns.

The cottages are made from the highest quality materials and are valued at almost $5,000 each. The yellow and white painted New England style cottages are on display on the side lawn of the Community Center. Each measures 8 feet wide by 12 feet long, and includes a 4 foot by 8 foot porch. They have three aluminum windows, one child's door, one adult's door and a loft over the porch.

Raffle tickets are $20 each. Further the odds by purchasing three for $50 or seven for $100. Tickets can be purchased at the Community Center during office hours, at the nursery school during school hours, at the Jing'e Bell Walk on Nov. 28, or by calling the Community Center at 781-383-0088.

Wreath sales to benefit METCO Scholarship Fund

Cohasset PSO will sponsor a wreath sale to benefit the Cohasset METCO Scholarship Fund. Fresh 12-inch double-sided balsam wreaths will be for sale for $10 each. Pick up will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 6, at the Cohasset Village Fair, inside Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave. Checks should be made payable to Cohasset PSO-METCO, and order forms returned to Judyat Osgood, Joni at Deer Hill and Aleisa at MS/HS. For information, call Aleisa Gittens-Carle at 781-383-1563.

Upcoming community events:

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Breakfast will take place Monday, Jan. 19. Breakfast will be served from 9 to 10 a.m., and the program from 10 to 11 a.m. Guest speaker will be Julian Houston, author of "New Boy," a Cohasset Reads Together Book Choice in January/February, along with "Slave No More" by David Blight.

The event will take place at First Parish Unitarian Universalist/Parish House, 23 North Main St., Cohasset. Cost is $5 per person or $15 per family.

Cohasset Reads Together, an evening with David Blight, author, "Slave No More," will take place at 7 p.m., on Feb. 12, at Cohasset High School.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
NOV. 17, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although your energy level is high, be careful not to commit to too many projects at this time. You'll do better focusing on just a few tasks rather than spreading yourself too thin.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your heart might be leading you in one direction, but pay attention to your keen Bovine intellect. I'm cautioning you to think things through before making any commitments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your "serious" Twin has been dominant in your life for quite a while. It's time now to let that "wilder" half take you out for some good times — perhaps with someone very special.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Career aspects are high for Moon Children who make a good impression. Show people not only what you can already do, but also how you can be more valuable to them in the future.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Things start to brighten for the Lion's immediate financial future. But be careful to resist the urge to splurge. You need to tuck something away to help you through another tight period.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Having to do too many tasks in too short a time could lower your mood to just above the grumbling level. But if you handle things one at a time, you'll get through it all soon enough.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your usually carefully made holiday plans could be subject to change later this month. Use this week to prepare for that possibility by starting a Plan B just in case you need it.

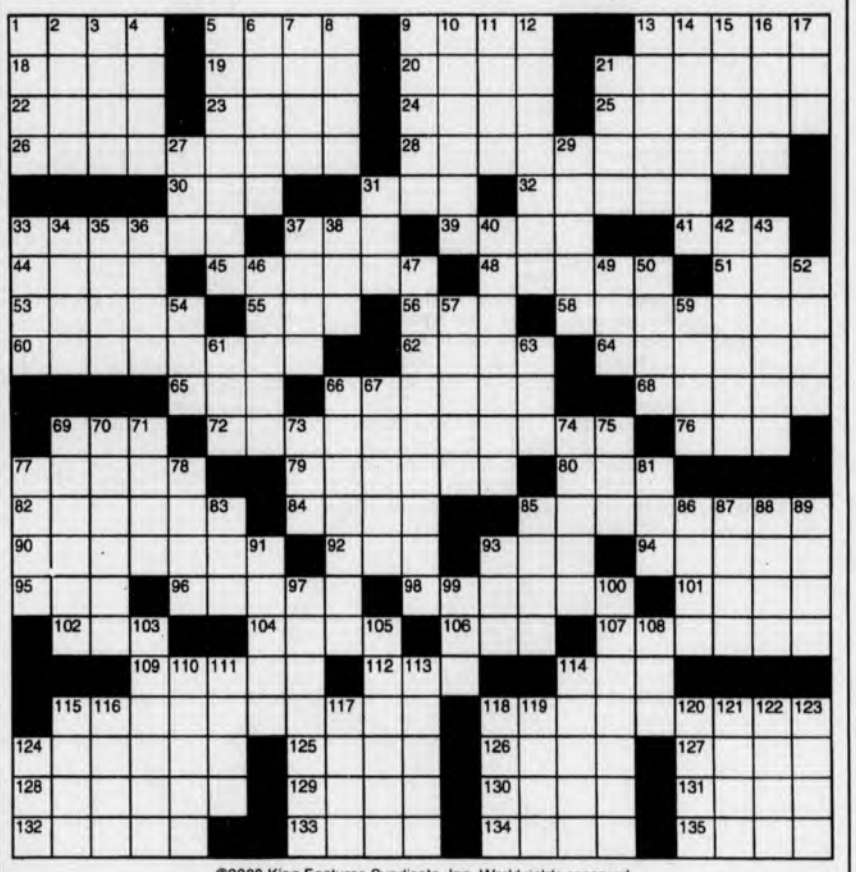
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be careful about joining a colleague's plan to solve a workplace problem. Investigate it thoroughly. Otherwise, you could find yourself in a predicament with other associates.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Slow down that high-paced whirl you've been on. Spending quiet time alone or with people you care for can be both physically and spiritually restorative.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Make suggestions, not demands. You'll be more successful in getting people to follow your lead if you exercise quiet patience instead of strong persuasion to get your ideas across.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You still need more facts before you can make an informed career choice. One note of caution: Be careful about whom you ask for that information; otherwise, you could be misled.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Changing situations through the end of the week could lead to some challenging opportunities for those perspicacious Pisceans who know how to make them work to their advantage.



(c) 2008 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of being both daring and cautious, traits that could make you a research scientist or maybe even a rocket-ship designer.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

The Company Theatre celebrates 30th anniversary

The Broadway classic, "The Music Man" will be performed during the 2009 season at The Company Theatre.

The award-winning Company Theatre celebrates its 30th anniversary by announcing a 2009 season featuring the Broadway sensations "The Music Man" and The Fantasticks. Tickets go on sale Saturday, Nov. 22, at a special Open House to take place from 10 a.m. .to 2 p.m.

Opening the 2009 season will be The Fantasticks, Feb. 18-22, the longest running musical in the world. This comedic and poignant tale of first love will capture your heart with such beloved hit songs as "Try To Remember," "Much More" and Soon It's Gonna Rain." Tickets are $32. The smash Broadway hit "Godspell" March. 20 through April 11 will be a groundbreaking new production with a musical score that's a mix of folk, rock, pop and gospel, including "Day By Day" and "All Good Gifts." Tickets are $30-$32.

The Company Theatre is very excited to bring to its stage the Broadway blockbuster "The Music Man" July 24 through Aug. 16. This high spirited, musical romp is a Broadway classic with its score of rousing marches and beautiful ballads, such as "Ya Got Trouble" and "Seventy-Six Trombones." Tickets are $30-$32.

For the fall season, The Company Theatre will present the comedy-thriller "Deathtrap" Oct. 9 through Oct. 25. Plot twists abound and so does the suspense as a writer of thrillers discovers the way to unlock his writer's block is through murder! Tickets are priced at $22-$24. The 2009 season will wrap up with South Shore favorite, A Christmas Carol Nov. 27 through Dec. 20. Don't miss this Dickens' classic as Scrooge is visited by a trio of ghosts who try to show him the error of his ways. Tickets are $29-$31.

Tickets for the 2009 season go on sale at the box-office only on Saturday, Nov. 22, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Open House will feature discounts on 2009 Theatre Club memberships, tours of the theatre, refreshments, and a raffle to win a great prize. South Shore Conservatory's Contemporary Music Month concludes the first portion of its 2008-2009 Conservatory Concert Series with a special 'Living Composers Concert' on Sunday Nov. 23, at 4 p.m. at the Ellison Center for the Arts, 64 St. George St., Duxbury.
The concert will also feature a song cycle composed by conservatory faculty member Vartan Aghababian. The cycle, based upon the Edna St. Vincent Millay poetry collection Second April, will be performed by Lorna Jane Norris, the Conservatory's Vocal Department Chair. Mr Aghababian tells the story of having wanted to compose for Ms. Norris's voice for years. "I wanted to compose for Lorna's voice and personality. Her grace, wit and warmth impress me as much today as they did when we first met years ago." He added "the cycle you'll hear on the 23rd, provides a glimpse into the personal life and the psychological make-up of one of America's leading 20th century poets."
This ambitious musical event will further include works composed by Richard Rodney Bennet, a British composer renowned for his film scores and his jazz performances, and Leo Brouwer, a Cuban composer who includes among his work a large number of solo guitar pieces, several guitar concertos and over forty film scores.
Performers at the concert will include Donald Zook – Flute, Regina Yung – Piano, Stephen Deitz – Piano, John Kramer – Piano, Lorna Jane Norris – Voice and George Little - Guitar
There will be a wine and cheese reception where you can meet the composers and the performers immediately following the concert.
Tickets are $20 for adults and $12 for children. Tickets may be purchased online at www.sscmusic.org. For information, contact Amy Schomp at 781-749-7565 ext. 19, or at a.schomp@sscmusic.org.

Tough budget ahead

School Comm. discusses challenges

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Tough.

That's the word that kept coming up during the School Committee's recent impromptu discussion on the upcoming fiscal year budget.

"It's going to be a tough year, a tough budget year…we're going to have a lot of tough choices to make. We really have to work as a committee over the next four or five months," said School Committee Chairman Rick Flynn.

Following news from state Rep. Garrett Bradley that state local aid will be decreased 10 percent, the School Committee knew the challenges that lay ahead.

"We're looking at some tough, tough decisions," said School Committee member Adrienne MacCarthy.

The school department is in the midst of drafting an initial budget for the committee. Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh recently finished meeting with each school principal to go over each budget line.

Whirling on 'Wheel of Fortune'

Show will air Wed. Dec. 3

We've all been there.

Sitting in front of the television, calling out the answer for the contestant on the game show. In the comfort of the living room, the puzzles seem easy and, not to mention, it is always your turn.

But, what was it like to be in front of the cameras and lights and actually play the game for actually money and prizes?

Cohasset resident Dan O'Riordan has watched "Wheel of Fortune" for more than 25 years. Until recently, he has been one of those couch contestants, but in October he got the chance to appear as a contestant on "Wheel of Fortune." The show featuring him will air next Wednesday, Dec. 3 on UPN-TV38 at 7p.m.

"I grew up watching the show, I watched it with my dad, I've been watching it for years," said O'Riordan. He logged on to wheeloffortune.com and filled out a contestant application. A few weeks later, he got an e-mail inviting him to audition for the show in New York City. At the audition, he has to complete a series of written tests, puzzles and practice playing the game. Out of roughly 100 people who auditioned, he was one of the 20 who were accepted.

A few weeks later he was invited to come to Los Angeles, California to appear as a contestant on Wheel of Fortune. Although contestants are required to pay their own way to

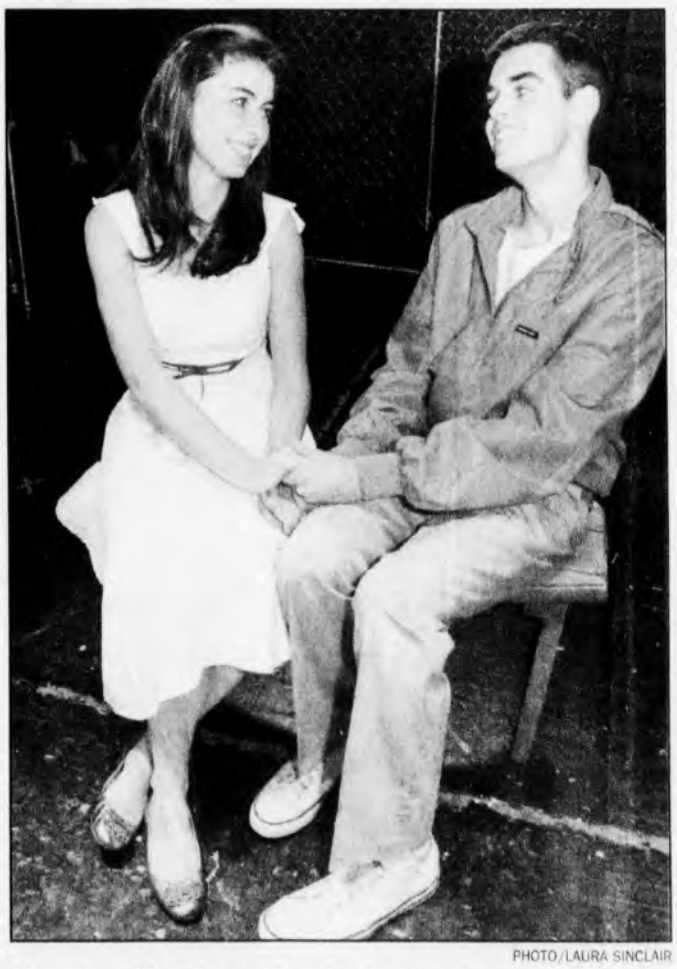
The West Side comes to Cohasset

High school performs famed musical

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM



When the students at the high school heard "West Side Story" was in the running to be produced as this year's high school musical, they got excited. Knowing student excitement and interest is half the battle, the show's producers made the decision to put "West Side Story" on the Cohasset High School stage.

Flash forward a few months and the production is now in its final rehearsals, set to debut next Friday, Dec. 5. The famed musical is a 1950's version of William Shakespeare's timeless love story of Romeo and Juliet.

Students in grades nine through 12 have come together to make the story of two rival gangs – the American Jets and the Puerto Rican Sharks – and the love story of two star-crossed lovers, Tony and Maria, come alive on stage. The students have a mix of backgrounds — some have never sung before an audience before, others are seasoned performers and others fall right in the middle.

"The cast in general has been very cooperative and that was evident right from the start. We got off to the best start ever, the enthusiasm, cooperation, it was very encouraging," says Bryan Marks, show producer and music director (and high school chorus teacher). While the teenagers progressively busy fall schedules

Where do you turn?

By Maureen Walsh
CORRESPONDENT

This is the first in a series of articles highlighting the work of Interfaith Social Services, this year's beneficiary of your donations to the Gifts of Hope campaign.

You're short of food. You're out of fuel. You can't make the rent.

You're losing your job, your home, your ability to cope.

You've got nothing to put under the Christmas tree.

Where do you turn?

Every year, thousands of South Shore residents turn to Interfaith Social Services for a quick response to a crisis situation and for ongoing help with financial, emotional and family issues.

"We are a full social service agency that serves the whole person through material assistance and the emotional support counseling offers," said ISS executive director Laura Stracco. "We 'feed the hungry and nourish the soul.'"

Founded in Quincy in 1947, the private, nonprofit agency now known as Interfaith Social Services provides aid without regard to age, race, nationality or religion to the people of 10 communities: Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Quincy,

Bradley opens district office

State Rep. Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham, has opened a new district office at the Sons of Italy Hall, 88 Chief Justice Cushing Highway in Hingham.

The office will be staffed most Fridays, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., with the exception of the third Friday each month when the office will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Precinct 3 residents in Hingham, Hull, Cohasset and Scituate are welcome to visit or call the district office at 781-749-3331. An appointment is not necessary.

"I'm pleased to be able to provide a local office that should be more easily accessible to my constituents," said Bradley. "I hope interested residents needing assistance with any issues or problems avail themselves of the services provided by my staff at the new district office."

Additionally, residents are reminded that they may call Bradley's State House office at 617-722-2460 Monday through Friday.

Food pantry items

The Cohasset Food Pantry is need of the following items:

Cereal, spaghetti sauce, mayonnaise, mustard, ketchup, tuna, peanut butter, jelly, canned vegetables, canned fruit, juice, sugar, paper towels, kleenex, bar soap, dish detergent, laundry detergent, shampoo, and canned hash.

Anyone wishing to make a food donation can drop it off at 9 Black Horse Lane on the front porch. The Food Pantry thanks you in advance for your continued generosity.

Water dept. earns national award

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) honored Cohasset with one of the 34 "PISCES" Awards given for "innovative and sustainable water quality financing."

PISCES refers to a Performance and Innovation in the State Revolving Fund (SRF) and Creating Environmental Success. The project had previously received most of its funding from Massachusetts SRF loans, which are awarded and administered by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (MassDEP) and the Massachusetts Treasurer's office.

"It is important to recognize and reward innovation and fiscal responsibility, especially during these difficult economic times," said Massachusetts Treasurer Tim Cahill.

He said this project should help inspire other communities trying to develop creative solutions to problems, in order to better serve the needs of residents.

Cohasset first obtained a loan of $479,500 from the SRF in 2004 in addition to lining up another grant of $255,000 from the federal Clean Water Act 319 program. Cohasset envisioned a plan to construct approximately 40 rainfall gardens (called bio-retention cells) and one water quality inlet (with oil/water separator) to treat suburban stormwater runoff prior to entering the town's stormwater collection system.

The purpose of this project, which is substantially complete, is to prevent and control the actual and potential sources of contamination within the watershed of Lily Pond and Aaron River Reservoir, which serve as the sole drinking water supply for the town and its 7,200 residents.

The need arose due to the impacts stormwater runoff and envisioned that the rain gardens constructed in town rights-of-way would have under-drains tying them into nearby catch basins, thus preventing pollutants and waterborne diseases from entering the water supply and thereby lowering the costs associated with filtration and disinfection requirements.

"It is important to recognize and reward innovation and fiscal responsibility, especially during these difficult economic times."
— Tim Cahill, Massachusetts Treasurer

The end result of this project is to substantially reduce trash and litter and lower suspended solids in the runoff while also removing a substantial portion of phosphorous, nitrogen, metals, oils, grease and volatile organics in the runoff. In addition to treating the problem, the town knew that they needed a plan to address the source as well, so low-impact development practices to reduce contamination in runoff are being implemented.

The EPA Award is not the first for the Cohasset project, which has also received a 2006 Smart Growth Award from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Cohasset was chosen by EPA specifically because it served as a model of creative solutions and each is replicable in other communities. With national recognition, Cohasset can now serve as an example for others to follow.

MassDEP is responsible for ensuring clean air and water, safe management and recycling of solid and hazardous wastes, timely cleanup of hazardous waste sites and spills, and the preservation of wetlands and coastal resources.

POLICE/FIRE LOG

Man headed to court for trash dumping

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Police spotted the pickup heading toward on South Main Street. As it turned out the plates on the pickup belonged to another vehicle. The truck was also unregistered and uninsured.

A 62-year-old Scituate man is facing charges of illegal dumping after police located his pickup truck following a tip from a witness.

Police said a witness came into headquarters last Monday (Nov. 17) at about 10:48 a.m. to report that a small red pickup truck had dumped five bags of trash into the dumpster at Harborview Apartment complex.

Police spotted the pickup heading toward Scituate on South Main Street. As it turned out the plates on the pickup belonged to another vehicle. The truck was also unregistered and uninsured.

The man is being summonsed to court for illegal dumping of trash, attaching plates, and operating an unregistered and uninsured motor vehicle.

Fur coats, rug taken

Police are investigating the apparent theft of three fur coats/jackets and a needlepoint rug from the Cohasset Consignment Shop in Tedeschi Plaza.

The items were discovered to be missing during inventory. Police were called to the scene on Sunday (Nov. 23) at about 1:30 p.m.

The coats are valued at $1500, $500 and $400 and the run is valued at $275.

Cohasset detectives are investigating.

Keys locked in car

A man who called police to come and help him get his keys out of a locked car hung up after being advised that a tow company should be called. The incident occurred last Monday (Nov. 17) at about 5:37 a.m.

Chief James Hussey explained that with today's electric locks and airbags police do not try to open locked car doors unless there is an emergency, such as a young child locked inside.

He said the chances of damaging the vehicle and opening up the town to liability are a concern.

He said in years past, an officer might have used a device dubbed a "slim jim" that could be used to slip inside a window and pull up a lock.

Police do not have the expertise or the equipment to get into today's locked cars, he said. Therefore, callers are referred to a tow company for help.

Irate customer

Customer service at Shaw's called police after a man, who was trying to get cash by returning three cans of soup, became irate and made verbal threats.

Chief Hussey said the man, who came into the store twice on Monday (Nov. 17) around 8:50 a.m., started yelling and screaming after he was told he could only get a store credit for the soup because he did not have a receipt.

He left the store but the clerk and manager at Shaw's were not sure of his direction of travel but did describe the car.

Hingham police ended up stopping the vehicle but releasing the man after he passed field sobriety tests.

At this time, neither the store manager nor customer service clerk said they wanted to seek charges for the verbal threats.

Car crashes

• A 2009 Audi, driven by a Norwell woman, was in traffic heading southbound near the light at Stop & Shop when an unknown vehicle in the left-hand turn lane pulled into the travel lane. The Audi then swerved to the right and was hit from behind by a 1994 Chevrolet, operated by a Cohasset man. There were no apparent injuries. Neither car was towed. No one was cited. The unknown car that caused the mishap has not been located. The accident occurred at 12:43 p.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 18), police said.

• Police said a 1995 Ford headed northbound on Route 3A that was driven by a Cohasset man pulled back into traffic after it apparently called off making a right-hand turn onto lower King Street at about 9:03 p.m. on Friday (Nov. 21). A 2001 Chevrolet, driven by a Pembroke man, was in the travel lane and was also headed north. The Ford swerved suddenly and made contact with the Chevrolet. The Cohasset man was cited for failure to use care when changing lanes. He was also transported to the hospital. Both cars were towed, police said.

Leaf blower, saws

Police are investigating the apparent theft of three chainsaws and one leaf blower, with a total value in excess of $2,000, from a local landscaping company. A witness was able to provide police with a description of the vehicle and a partial plate. Police alerted area towns.

"Following an investigation, we hope to be able to identify the perpetrators and retrieve the stolen items," Chief Hussey said.

The incident was reported at 10:20 a.m. on Friday (Nov. 21).

Smoking truck

After receiving a complaint about a truck that was spewing out a lot of smoke and learning that it was an "ongoing problem," police gave the operator a verbal warning to get the exhaust fixed or be subject to a civil fine.

The complaint came in last Wednesday (Nov. 19) at 12:12 p.m. The truck was parked in a parking lot at Chief Justice Cushing Highway and Beechwood Street.

Not impaired

Based on their observations and investigation, police said the operator of a white car that had pulled into Tedeschi Plaza was not impaired although he admitted to having had a drink. A caller had notified police about an intoxicated man operating a white motor vehicle that had just pulled into the parking lot at about 9:15 p.m. on Saturday (Nov. 22).

Although the man, who is a Scituate resident, was not intoxicated – he volunteered not to drive and police had the car towed.

Forged signature

Police said the mother of a woman who allegedly forged her stepfather's name as a cosigner to three different loans reported the incidents to police. The stepfather (the reporting woman's husband) has told police he was not the cosigner. Police gave the couple an ID theft packet. Detectives are investigating the incidents. The matter was reported last Wednesday (Nov. 19).

Winter parking

Winter parking regulations are in effect Nov. 15 through April 1.

No overnight on-street parking between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. is allowed during winter parking regulations.

Violators are subject to a fine of $25.

No good news from state level

Rep. Bradley talks to School Committee

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Fiscal 2010 is going to be a difficult budget year.

That was the message, simple and honest, from state Rep. Garrett Bradley to the School Committee last week. Bradley, who represents the Third Plymouth District that includes Cohasset, came to table to talk budget and what help the town/schools should expect from the state next year.

The news was dismal.

In Fiscal 2010, the state is anticipating an eight to 10 percent reduction in funding across the board.

"I'm telling my towns to plan on a 10 percent reduction," said Bradley. "Drastic measures will have to be taken next year."

Bradley and other legislators will push to get a consensus on local aid numbers as early in the state budget process as possible to ensure municipalities can properly prepare their budgets in the spring.

Fiscal 2010 will start on July 1, 2009. The School Department is currently in the process of drafting a budget for the school committee.

Bradley said the ramifications of the state budget cuts are not going to be easy.

"It's going to be painful. There are real people behind these cuts," said Bradley.

"I'm telling my towns to plan on a 10 percent reduction. Drastic measures will have to be taken next year."

— State Rep. Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham

Bradley tried to assuage the school committee's fears that cuts would be made to affect the current year's budget. He explained currently Governor Deval Patrick could only make emergency cuts into areas under executive control. In order to make cuts in other areas of the budget, like the school's special education reimbursement, often called circuit breaker, funding or chapter 70 funds, a special session of the legislature would have to be called.

Bradley was hopeful no major cuts would be made to the school's budget during the current fiscal year.

"If we are doing anything this year, you'll know as soon as I know," said Bradley.

School Committee vice chairman Alfred Slanetz asked about the likelihood of having the circuit breaker funding cut. Bradley said it was not a budget item that would be cut in this fiscal year because the governor does not have control over it.

"I know it is a volatile area in every school budget," said Bradley.

The state special education reimbursement fund, or "circuit breaker," is a revolving account established by the state legislators for use on special education costs. The account is outside of the operational budget exclusively for monies reimbursed by the state for special education costs. The circuit breaker can be used to pay (or pre-pay) out- of-district tuition or costs associated with special education in-district.

This past fiscal year, the entire circuit breaker amount was offset in the operational budget, so Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh said there is no cushion of funding to fall back on.

The School Committee and Bradley also briefly discussed teacher health care and pensions.

School Committee Chairman Rick Flynn stressed to Bradley the need to make cuts at the state level before the town's budget was set in stone at spring Town Meeting.

"We don't want cuts made after the fact," said Flynn.

Bradley said the best way to keep track of the budget developments at the state level was to check www.mass.gov and to call Bradley or State Senator Bob Hedlund with any questions.

"We want to be honest, it's not going to be an easy year. We are in unprecedented times and it's going to hurt but we'll get through it because that's what we do," said Bradley.

Schools great up for tough budget season

The conversation was partly borne out of some school committee members' congratulations to the Cohasset Sports Partnership for receiving town approval for the synthetic turf field at the high school. Walsh recognized the tough road the partnership has in front of them to raise the $550,000 to proceed with the field. The public-private partnership involves $500,000 of town funds and $550,000 of private funding.

School Committee vice chairman Alfred Slanetz made clear the school's role in the project.

"We appreciate anything the town does that's good for the kids. But, this is not a school project. We have our own budget priorities more central than (a field) in the classroom and school buses. These are more fundamental to our mission," said Slanetz.

Walsh said the school's initial bottom line number would be presented at the next School Committee meeting.

"We're holding on to the important pieces, like class size, that once you lose you can't get back," said Walsh.

Slanetz asked about the philosophy behind the budget building.

"Is our modus operandi to keep what we have? Keep the good staff intact, the specialists we've been able to add intact, that's at the heart of what we do," said Slanetz. Walsh agreed, but cautioned that a 6 to 7 percent budget increase is needed just to maintain contract obligations and fixed costs.

Items like textbooks, with the exception of new social studies texts at Deer Hill, would wait another year.

This year, for the first time, the school budget will separate out the transportation items to make it clear to citizens how much is being spent on bus maintenance, fuel and special education transportation.

"It's a tough time for everybody. We have to work together to keep the good things we have," said Slanetz.

Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

From the ISS offices at 105 Adams Street in Quincy, one full-time and four part-time staff members work with more than 200 volunteers to provide food, clothing, financial assistance and counseling to individuals and families in need.

As a private agency, the ISS can be more flexible than others that have strict eligibility guidelines and waiting periods.

"We don't have the red tape that people run into sometimes in emergency situations," said Stracco. "After we check the facts, we can move very quickly. We also work with other agencies to help people through a temporary crisis."

In recent months, Stracco said, the ISS is getting calls for help from more lower-middle-income families and dual-income families that are now living on one paycheck. And the number of elderly clients is constantly increasing.

"Last year we provided 260 families with a Thanksgiving dinner. This year it's over 450," she said. "We used to give out food to 25 to 30 families a day from our Pantry Shelf. We just hit a one-day high of serving 49 families in two hours. We'll be in the same situation all winter."

Interfaith Social Services funds most of its programs through donations from individuals, faith-based groups, charitable foundations, community organizations and businesses.

Fundraising events include the Holiday Spectacular to benefit the Feed the Hungry Campaign, Thursday, Dec. 4. Tickets are $65 for an evening of dinner, live orchestra, dancing and silent auction, beginning at 6 p.m. at Lombardo's in Randolph.

ISS programs also include Career Closet, to provide workplace attire to women reentering the workforce; the Fresh Start and HomeSafe financial assistance programs to help manage heat, utilities, rent and medical expenses; and New Directions Counseling, which serves people from all economic backgrounds on a sliding fee scale.

"Our mission is to serve the community by strengthening family life and offering assistance to anyone in need," said Stracco. "We never turn anyone away without at least trying to give suggestions for the next step. If you have a need, we're going to do our best to serve you."

For more information on Interfaith Social Services, including the range of services provided and volunteer opportunities, visit the Web site at www.interfaithsocialservices.org or call 617-773-6203.

Give the Gift of Hope

The season of giving is upon us. For 16 years, Community Newspaper Company's Gifts of Hope program has helped connect you to those in need in your own community. Each year, a local charity is selected to be the beneficiary of the Gifts of Hope donation campaign. And each year, your generous donations have helped feed the hungry, shelter the homeless and bring joy to the faces of young children across Massachusetts.

How can you help this year? Please join your local Community Newspaper in supporting Interfaith Social Services in its efforts to help those in need this holiday season. A donation of any size goes a long way.

Make your tax-deductible check or money order payable to Interfaith Social Services. Mail to: Gift of Hope Program; c/o Anne Rodwell; Community Newspaper Company; 165 Enterprise Drive; Marshfield, MA 02050.

In addition to your "Gifts of Hope" donation, you can drop off food and unwrapped children's gifts for the Interfaith Social Services Pantry Shelf and Adopt-a-Family programs at the ISS offices weekdays, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., or call 617-773-6203, ext. 19 for alternate arrangements.

Please check toys for safety before donating. Food items must be nonperishable. No expired dates, damaged or open containers will be accepted. To donate fresh, refrigerated or frozen foods, call 617-773-620, ext. 19.

Ripley Road story clarification

An article that ran in last week's Mariner on the proposed 25 Ripley Road affordable housing development incorrectly characterized MassHousing as "a state agency." MassHousing (The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency) is an independent, quasi-public agency created in 1966 and charged with providing financing for affordable housing in Massachusetts.

The Agency raises capital by selling bonds and lends the proceeds to low- and moderate-income homebuyers and homeowners, and to developers who build or preserve affordable and/or mixed-income rental housing. MassHousing does not use taxpayer dollars to sustain its operations, although it administers some publicly funded programs on behalf of the Commonwealth.

California and their own lodging, O'Riordan knew this was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

When O'Riordan arrived on the day of filming just outside LA in Culver City, he found out the show tapes six shows in one day. The 18 contestants were sequestered in a room given rules of the game and other legalese. They were allowed to rehearse a bit, calling out letters and spinning the wheel. The producers divided the group into groups of three and then they picked the show they would be taping. O'Riordan was on show three. Vanna White, the famed letter turner of the show, came in to say hello.

"We knew we would be filming 22 minutes worth of TV time, they gave us make up, it was really pretty cool," said O'Riordan.

Meeting both longtime game show host Pat Sajak and Vanna White was a thrill for him, "both were very nice and made us feel comfortable. They told us to have fun and not be nervous."

When it came time for O'Riordan's show, he admits he was nervous. The studio was much smaller than it looks on TV.

"The wheel is smaller than it looks on TV, but it is heavy," said O'Riordan.

Being in front of the lights and cameras trying to remember all the tips the staff had been given them was "pretty nerveracking," he said.

"It's definitely harder to play in person," said O'Riordan. "When you're playing at home it's always your turn. You might know the answer, but if it's not your turn then you are out of luck…you're concentrating so much on the audience, the camera and you have to move fast to keep the game moving."

"I grew up watching the show, I watched it with my dad, I've been watching it for years."
— Dan O'Riordan, contestant

O'Riordan is hosting a viewing party with his family and friends on Wednesday night.

Wheel of Fortune, continues to go unrivaled as the #1 show in syndication for 25 seasons. With over 45 million viewers a week, in over 200 markets, the show attracts a larger audience than most primetime shows.

This week's show, Holiday Shopping, features gift tags on the wheel that range from a Blackberry Pearl flip phone package to gift certificates for on-line shopping.

Because of game show rules, O'Riordan can't discuss the results of the show until the show airs.

"I'll just say I had a lot of fun," said O'Riordan. "It was really great time, a great day. I'd encourage anyone who is a fan of the show to log on and apply (to be a contestant), it was a great experience."

COURTESY PHOTO

Dan O'Riordan, shown here being congratulated by host Pat Sajak, says he logged on to wheeloffortune.com and filled out a contestant application. A few weeks later, he got an e-mail inviting him to audition for the show in New York City.

Wind Turbine hearing is Dec. 1

The Planning Board's continued public hearing on the proposed wind turbines at Graham Waste originally scheduled for Monday Oct. 27 will be held Monday, Dec. 1 at 7 p.m. at Town Hall.

CCI Energy is proposing installing two turbines on the Graham Waste site off of Route 3A behind Hingham Lumber. The project calls for two 1.65-megawatt turbines each approximately 141-meters, or 462-feet, from ground to the top of the blade.

Luncheons for veterans planned

Lt. Ralph Talbot Disabled Americans Chapter 65 is coordinating luncheons for veterans. Many veterans become increasingly isolated in their homes, apartments or other living accommodations; particularly as they become older or are not ambulatory. Luncheons have been scheduled for the third Wednesday of each month, beginning at noon, at the Hearth 'n Kettle, 151 Main St., Weymouth, easily accessible off Exit 18, Route 3, or off Route 53, at the Main Street intersection. The next luncheon will take place Dec. 17. Cost is $16 for the meal. Reservations and prepayment are not necessary.

Chapter 65 assists disabled veterans in Abington, Cohasset, Hanover, Hanson, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Pembroke, Scituate and Weymouth. However, all veterans are welcome - they do not have to be a member of any veterans organization and they can come from any South Shore community. For information, call coordinators Paul Salvas at 781-337-0533 or Joe McElroy at 781-383-0505.

Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll is Dec. 13

Mark your calendar for the Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll on Saturday, Dec. 13th from 4-7 p.m. This year is going to be better than ever! There are new and exciting additions to the program, including; a parade to start things off, live music and a DJ. Visit one of the new shops as well as your old favorites while enjoying refreshments and treats. Kids will have a wonderful time with merchants offering everything from face painting to hayrides to cookie decorating. And, speaking of Old St. Nick, don't be surprised if he stops by for a visit!

This event will benefit the Cohasset Food Pantry and Toys for Tots. Donations for both organizations will be accepted at the event. Thank you to the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce and the Cohasset Economic Development Committee who help sponsor the Stroll.

Celebrate the spirit of season, and join us for another magical Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll!

For information or questions, please call Karen Kirkendall at 781-383-9922, or Darilynn Evans at 781-383-1002.

HOLIDAY SEASON

As you are reading this week's column, I hope that you are all filled to the brim with turkey and all the fixings and enjoyed a day with family and friends being thankful for all that we have. This weekend will be filled with so many events as we soar into the month of December and get ready for all the celebrations and holidays that are celebrated during the month. Send in any news, events or photos you may have of the events that are happening as well as any special wishes you would like to send to any of your favorite people.

I would also love to have any of you who would like to send in any funny stories that have happened during these holidays, things that a special child in your life may have said or be thinking or a special photo you may have. It is definitely going to be a fun-filled and meaningful holiday season. We all have to make sure to stop and enjoy all of those little things that happen as well. Happy December to all!

ANNIVERSARY

Family and friends alike would like to send a super special message out to a wonderful couple! Giant congratulations are being sent to Ed and Eileen Pratt who are celebrating their 62nd wedding anniversary on Nov. 30th. Enjoy this very special day!

BATES COLLEGE

Allison Earon of Cohasset is a volunteer for Bates College Emergency Medical Services.

Founded in the spring of 1996, Bates EMS is an all-volunteer, non-transporting emergency medical service licensed with the state of Maine. Bates EMS members include student volunteers who are licensed emergency medical technicians or first responders, including two responders at the EMT-intermediate level, as well as several wilderness EMTs. Bates EMS responds to an average of 120 to 140 calls per academic year, and has treated patients with conditions ranging from general malaise to multi-systems trauma to full cardiac/respiratory arrest.

Allison, a senior neuroscience major, is the daughter of William Earon, 29 Gammons Road, and Mary Sheppard, Cohasset. She spent her junior winter semester in Seville, Spain, through the Council on International Educational Exchange. She is a 2004 graduate of Cohasset High School.

LIBRARY FUN

The Paul Pratt Memorial Library is hosting a Holiday Decorating Demonstration where you can learn how to create beautiful, easy-to-craft holiday decorations from members of the Community Garden Club of Cohasset on Wednesday, Dec. 10th at 10:30am at the library. This is a free event. All are welcome!

Another event is a Meet the Author with Jennifer Haigh, award winning author of Mrs. Kimble and Baker Towers who will talk about her new book. The book is called, "The Condition" and the event will be held on Sunday, Dec. 14 at 3 pm at the library. Don't miss this exciting opportunity! Copies of Ms. Haigh's books will be available for purchase at the event from Buttonwood Books. This also is a free event where all are welcome.

BOUTIQUE

The Mistletoe Boutique is here again this year to benefit the Our World Children's Global Discovery Museum and is being held on Sunday, Dec. 14th from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. at the Cohasset Golf Club. Vendors with a huge variety of gifts ranging from jewelry, belt buckles, pocketbooks, clothing, kitchen knives, photos with frames and many more items and gifts for children, men and women alike will be available for all to enjoy. A children's room will also be open for some holiday happenings for the kiddos to take part in while the grown-ups shop. A Holiday Raffle will happen throughout the day and fun will be had by all who attend.

PRE-PROM DVDS

Here is an idea for a gift for that special child or family. DVD's of the 2008 CHS Pre Prom Reception from May 30th are still available to purchase for $20.00 each and make great holiday gifts! To order a copy please call Shaun Galvin at 781-424-2197 or email your request to shaun_galvin@yahoo.com The request can also be mailed with a check for $20 per DVD to Shaun Galvin P.O. Box 526 Hingham, MA 02043.

METCO WREATHS

Here is a piece of news about a Cohasset PSO sponsored fundraiser to benefit the Cohasset METCO Scholarship Fund. They have fresh 12-inch double sided Balsam Wreaths for sale at $10 per wreath. Pick up for these will be on Saturday, Dec. 6th from 10 am-3 pm during the Cohasset Village Fair inside the Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave. To place an order or ask any questions, please contact Aleisa Gittens-Carle at 781-383-1563. This is a nice way to get some decorations for the season and support a great fund.

That is all for this week. Send in all your news, photos and event news no later than Tuesdays by 5:00 pm.

Caroling on the Common is Dec. 13

Hey there, Merry-Makers! Once again, First Parish is sponsoring a holiday treat for young and old: the well-loved Cohasset tradition—— Caroling on the Common— on Saturday, Dec. 13.

Everyone is welcome! This is a community event for young and old, especially those with school-age children. Bring some friends. Exceptional singing voices are NOT required; carols will be familiar and simple—there will be songbooks for everyone. Because it gets dark quickly, you are asked to bring flashlights.

Participants will gather at the Parish House at 23 North Main St., between 3:45-4 p.m. for cookies and cider. The group will then leave to start the singing near the duck pond. At approximately 4:45 p.m., everyone will return to the Parish House for hot cocoa, cider and cookies (cookie donations will be much appreciated.)

Participants will gather at the Parish House at 23 North Main St., between 3:45-4 p.m. for cookies and cider.

Please bring a pair of socks (or two or three), which will be donated to Boston Health Care for the Homeless. Socks should be white cotton; both men's and women's sizes are needed.

Come join your friends for an old-fashioned holiday get-together, and pass the word. The more the merrier!

Cohasset resident shows international students America

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

When Todd Ramsay volunteered to teach English to international students 13 years ago, he had no idea where that simple gift of time would take him.

After a few classes a student asked him to take him to see life outside the city of Boston. The next weekend, a few more students wanted to come and before Ramsay knew it he was renting a van and then filling up buses to take international students studying in New England around the country.

"There seemed to be a real need for international students to travel, so five years ago we started a non-profit," said Ramsay. The non-profit, Above and Beyond Ministries, Inc., has taken thousands of international students across the country, to Florida, to Boston, to Washington D.C. and into American homes.

This Thanksgiving, 80 international students from the University of Buffalo are experiencing the Thanksgiving holiday in New England homes through the organization.

"Our vision is to develop trips to bring international students together, to meet their need for travel and in doing so create cultural exchange not just between each other but for Americans, too. It's about sharing faith and history and our country," said Ramsay.

The international students Ramsay brings together come from around globe. They are the brightest students from their respective countries. The way he thinks of it is if an American was studying abroad, they wouldn't just want to see their campus or the city they live in, they would want to get out and see the country and get to know its people. Through the trips, he hopes to put America's best foot forward.

Ramsay says the trips expose the students to a broader American experience — not just isolated to academia or to what they see coming out of Hollywood.

"They see people farming, they see people have values and love their families," said Ramsay.

Many of the students are Fulbright scholars who are chosen from their country to study in the US because of their academic merit and leadership potential. Ramsay knows the students will go back to their country to become leaders and hopes through the Above and Beyond travel experience they return with a positive outlook on America.

"I want them to have a broader outlook on American as they become leaders in business and politics…We have the opportunity to open our homes and reach out to make their time here special, it makes us global citizens."

Right now, the Above and Beyond non-profit is facing challenges. He has two buses that he uses for travel, but the primary bus is 30 years old and is on the verge of breaking down. He does at least three "Go West" trips every summer, which is a 10-day trek that covers 6,000 miles and major sites of the west — Chicago, Yellowstone National Park, Grand Titons, Grand Canyon and Mount Rushmore.

"The bus has had a great run, it's done incredible things, but it's breaking down," said Ramsay.

Todd Ramsay (right) is the founder and president of Above and Beyond Ministries. Each summer, he heads out west with a bus full of international students to see Mount Rushmore, Yellowstone National Park, the Grand Canyon and other sights.

He's picked out a new sleeper bus, but needs to raise significant funds to afford it. The cost is $300,000.

"Internationals deserve our best," said Ramsay, who would welcome additional volunteers as well as donations.

With so many different nationalities and beliefs on one bus, one might think there might be an occasional heated argument, but Ramsay attests there is a general and pervasive sense of respect and interest in understanding.

One of Ramsay's favorite activities is the "talent show" where each student shares a talent from their home country.

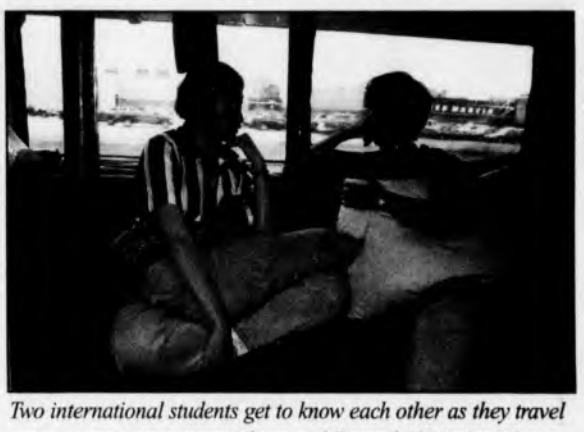
"Being in close quarters allows the student to build close relationships and share their opinions," said Ramsay.

The Above and Beyond Ministries is somewhat of a reflection of what Ramsay does for his day job. Ramsay owns Above and Beyond chimney service company, specializing in restoring antique fireplaces and chimneys.

"When you're in old houses in New England built in the 1600s, 1700s, you realize that was the way they heated their homes. It brought warmth and light into their lives. Many relationships were formed in front of the fireplace," said Ramsay. His philosophy is to bring people together in front of the fireplace in each home he works in, and by extension, each trip he charters does the same thing — gets people together and creates relationships.

Ramsay says the bonds people make on the trips is evidenced clearly when the group has to say goodbye.

"No one wants to leave, they're hugging and crying. In that moment I see the vision and success of the program. Despite these people's differences, they have formed a special bond through travel," Ramsay said.



Through his involvement with international students, Ramsay has gained a global perspective, traveled the world and even met his wife.

"Here I am a chimney guy in Cohasset. All it takes is a guy to volunteer his time and doors open," said Ramsay.

To find out more about Above and Beyond Ministries, call Todd Ramsay at 781-383-0415, visit www.abtrips.org or e-mail toddramsay@mac.com.

Travel on a bus affords the international students to develop close bonds on the trip, Above and Beyond Ministries founder Todd Ramsay says.

Two international students get to know each other as they travel cross-country on a recent Above and Beyond Ministries trip.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

Hope for the holidays

The holiday season is here and once again, we turn to our readers to help those in need.

Most social service agencies on the South Shore will tell you that they're girding for a tough season. They are already seeing a measurable increase in the number of people in need. Couple that with a decline in donations and they have a real problem on their hands.

It seems like we've been saying this more and more in recent years, but it's been another tough year. Even though gas prices are coming down, unemployment is still up in Massachusetts, as are house foreclosures. The cost of so many things — particularly food — has gone up.

With all eyes on the national economy and the struggling bank and auto industries, Wall Street's troubles have certainly trickled down to Main Street. Many are no longer feeling just a pinch, they're feeling a punch.

This is where our Gifts of Hope program kicks in. One of the organizations we're looking to assist with this year's holiday campaign is Interfaith Social Services (ISS). Located in Quincy, Interfaith Social Services serves the towns of Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Holbrook, Randolph, Hull, Milton, and Quincy.

Over the years, many programs have been developed to meet the needs of varying populations.

One of the largest current programs, the Pantry Shelf, was started in 1975 to provide food to people in need. ISS has also done what it can to meet clients' needs such as the need for food, clothing, and financial assistance through services such as the Pantry Shelf, the Career Closet, the Bureau Drawer, and the Faith in Action program.

Asking for help in these difficult times is not easy, but some are still better off than others, and our readers' generosity always amazes us, not only during the holidays but year-round.

Thanks to that generosity, Community Newspaper Company's Gifts of Hope program has generated between $5,000 and $8,000 annually in donations to local charities and organizations.

Our readers have a long history of helping their neighbors through the Gifts of Hope campaign.

The first years of the program focused on the issue of homelessness on the South Shore. Organizations such as Father Bill's Place, South Shore Friends and Carolina Hill in Marshfield benefited from your gifts of hope.

In 2003, CNC's Gifts of Hope campaign shifted efforts to assist the South Shore Women's Center, an organization dedicated to helping victims of domestic violence.

In 2004, the campaign's support turned its attention to local military support groups as the war in Iraq and Afghanistan escalated, supporting organizations such as the Pembroke Military Support Group, Care Packs of Weymouth, and the Quincy-based operations of the National Guard's Family Readiness Groups.

In 2005 and 2006, we partnered with Project Bread and many of the local food pantries to address the issue of hunger.

Last year, we focused on many local organizations working within the communities to provide assistance to needy families.

Every group we have worked with over the years has shared stories of how challenging life can be for some of our neighbors, family, and friends. They often face daunting tasks, particularly during this time of year, to assist everyone who needs help. Often they worry it just won't get done.

Then our readers seem to dig even deeper into their hearts and wallets to show that nothing is impossible when the community cares and comes together.

Happy holidays, and thank you in advance for whatever contribution you can make this year to this worthy organization.

For more on the Gifts of Hope campaign and how to make a donation, see the story in this week's paper.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Making a difference

TO THE EDITOR:

A heartfelt thank you to all who participated in this year's Make-a-Difference-Day, both at the schools in October and this past weekend in the community-wide clean-up effort to assist Elder Affairs. Families and students, ranging from pre-school to high school, braved the cold weather to assist a total of 21 residents in the raking, bagging and disposal of leaf and lawn clean-up.

We have received positive feedback from both residents and participants on the cheerful attitudes and exceptional job performed by all. We appreciate the commitment and sense of community pride and service so often exhibited by Cohasset's citizens and wish all a very joyful holiday season.

HEALTH NOTES

Diabetes problem is nationwide

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO MARINER

November was American Diabetes Month, recognition of a chronic national health problem and a persistent epidemic. In 2007, nearly 24 million persons in the United States had diabetes and at least 57 million adults were at risk for developing it. Most don't know that they have the disease.

We in affluent well-educated Cohasset, can be expected to have a lower incidence of diabetes because we exercise, pay attention to what we eat and how much. Nevertheless, about 300,000 individuals in Massachusetts have the disease and it's necessary to be aware of the symptoms.

Symptoms: Diabetes develops from two causes: a diminished production of insulin (in type 1) or resistance to its effects in type 2 (gestational). Gestational diabetes generally has few symptoms and is most commonly diagnosed by screening during pregnancy, affecting 3-10 percent of pregnancies. No specific cause has been identified, but it is believed that the hormones produced during pregnancy increase a woman's resistance to insulin, resulting in impaired glucose tolerance. Both types lead to hyperglycemia (high blood glucose levels), which largely cause the acute signs of diabetes: excessive urine production, resulting compensatory thirst and increased fluid intake, blurred vision, unexplained weight loss, lethargy and changes in energy metabolism.

Effects: Diabetes is a costly disease associated with serious complications and premature death. It is a major cause of heart disease and stroke and a leading cause of leg and foot amputations unrelated to injury, kidney failure and new blindness in adults.

Prediabetes: Those at risk of developing diabetes are said to have a condition called prediabetes in which individuals have blood glucose levels higher than normal but not high enough to be classified as diabetes. Progression to diabetes among those with prediabetes is not inevitable. Recent studies have shown that people at high risk for type 2 diabetes can prevent or delay the onset of the disease by losing 5 to 7 percent of their body weight. You can do it by eating healthier and getting 30 minutes of physical activity 5 days a week.

Blood glucose levels are controlled by a complex interaction of multiple chemicals and hormones in the body, including the hormone insulin made in the beta cells of the pancreas. Diabetes mellitus refers to the group of diseases that lead to high blood glucose levels due to defects in either insulin secretion or insulin action.

Prevention: Weight loss and physical activity can prevent or delay development of some diabetes among adults at high risk. Healthful eating helps keep your blood glucose, also called blood sugar, in your target range. Physical activity and, if needed, diabetes medicines also help. The diabetes target range is the blood glucose level suggested by diabetes experts for good health. You can help prevent health problems by keeping your blood glucose levels on target.

Insulin: Many people with diabetes take insulin to control their blood sugar (glucose). Insulin cannot be taken by mouth because it would be destroyed by digestion. Instead, most people who need insulin take insulin shots. Other ways to take insulin include insulin pens, insulin jet injectors and insulin pumps. Someday people with diabetes may no longer need needles or shots to take insulin.

Sharps Disposal: Researchers are testing news ways to get insulin into the bloodstream, but in the interim, disposal of needles (called sharps) is a continuing problem. A major fear by waste disposal personnel everywhere including those at the Recycle Transfer Station in Cohasset is getting stuck by a discarded hypodermic needle. To forestall this problem, the Board of Health has a sharps disposal container at the Board of Health office in Town Hall. If you use sharps of any kind, please use our disposal facility.

In the meantime, during the holidays, eat smart and stay healthy.

Steve Bobo is a long-time member of the Cohasset Board of Health.

Unanswered questions about turbine project

...we have attempted through email, letters to the editor, and handouts at town meetings to identify the questions and problems and create a serious dialogue on the issues before it is too late.

COMMENTARY

COHASSET WIND ADVISORY COMMITTEE

In recent weeks, the Cohasset Wind Advisory Committee, a group of concerned town residents, has been reviewing various aspects of the Graham Waste/Cohasset Heights Turbine project. This review has included studying expert information, meeting with the Alternative Energy Committee, reviewing the latest submission by the developer, and conducting numerous meetings with town residents. Based on this work, it has become clear that there are a number of unanswered questions and problems with the Graham Waste/Cohasset Heights project. Further, we have learned that many town residents are not aware of the actual facts of the project or the serious problems the project would create for the town. As a result, we have attempted through email, letters to the editor, and handouts at town meetings to identify the questions and problems and create a serious dialogue on the issues before it is too late.

The list below is a summary of much of the information that has been distributed and we would urge all concerned residents to review and consider these carefully. We understand there may be good faith differences of opinion or debates about the points made, and we welcome any questions. However, we have been very disappointed to hear that, even before the public hearing process is concluded, a Planning Board member sent an email to the press dismissing these valid concerns and questions as fabrications and nonsense. Name calling and attacks do nothing to further the debate, and these tactics are especially disturbing because they suggest that at least one member of the Planning Board has already prejudged the issues even before the public hearing is complete.

Rather than prejudge the issues or attack anyone who dares question the project, we would ask the Planning Board (and all town residents) to fairly consider the concerns raised below and ask the serious, tough questions of the developer who plans to make substantial money by changing the character of our town forever.

Top Myths and Misconceptions about the Graham Waste/Cohasset Heights Wind Project

• The old landfill site places the wind turbines safely out of the way. No, the Cohasset wind bylaw does not follow any of the global standards requiring minimum setbacks of 1 kilometer to 1-1/2 miles. The proposed turbines will be sited too close to hundreds of residences, Avalon and Sunrise Assisted Living, several businesses including Hingham Lumber and the businesses on Crocker Lane, and the Osgood and Deer Hill Schools.

• Cohasset will benefit: No, there is no negotiated energy savings benefiting Cohasset. Contrast this arrangement with Hull, where the town receives 100 percent of the benefit of its turbines. The developers (James Sweeney of CCI, Paul Barry of Cohasset and Gordon Dean of Cohasset) will be under no obligation to share any benefits with Cohasset.

• Your electric bill will go down: No, a private developer will reap all the financial benefits of selling power to the grid. There is no mechanism leading to a lower electric bill for you.

• This won't cost Cohasset anything: No, there will likely be lost tax revenue due to depreciated property values of the nearby residents.

• These wind turbines are the same size as Hull's: No, at 462 feet tall, the proposed Cohasset turbines will be 165 percent of the height of the larger Hull II turbine. This is the height of a 38-story office tower. These massive structures will stand on a 150-foot hill visible from Route 3A. They will be the largest turbines in New England.

• These are silent giants: No, they are noisy. A 2006 siting and fatal flaw wind turbine analysis was prepared for the Town of Cohasset by the Renewable Energy Research Laboratory. Among other things, the study recommended a noise abatement-related minimum residential set-back of three times blade-tip height. This proposal fails even that minimum. This project will impact nearby residents (Fairoaks, King Street, Whitney Woods Lane, Rose Hill, Forest Ave., Cedar Street, North Main Street, Avalon and Sunrise) as well as students at Deer Hill and Osgood. Please visit YouTube, search combinations of wind, turbine, noise, and flicker and judge for yourself.

• If you build one, you might as well build two: No, Hull rejected placing a second turbine near Hull I due to the concentrated impact on residents. There is even talk of adding a third turbine at the same locus as the two proposed turbines

• Other towns in Massachusetts want turbines like these, so why shouldn't we? No, similar projects using the same turbines, led by the same developer, have been rejected in both Orleans and Mattapoisett due to concerns over noise, safety, and health impacts.

Please come to the next Planning Board hearing on Monday, Dec. 1 at 7:15 p.m at the town hall to learn more about how this project will affect the town and feel free to email CohassetWindAC@gmail.com with any comments or questions.

Wind project positive for Cohasset

COMMENTARY

ALTERNATIVE ENERGY COMMITTEE

Recently there has been a flurry of questions posed to the Alternative Energy Committee regarding the financial benefits that a long-term energy contract with CCI Energy, the developer proposing the Cohasset Heights Wind Project, will bring to the town.

The permitting and construction at Cohasset Heights offers guaranteed property tax savings. Some have dismissed this amount as negligible and have asked why it is that the residential rate payers in Hull benefit directly from their two turbines. The answer is simply that state and federal laws prohibit CCI from selling energy directly to the residents of Cohasset.

With the recent passage of the Green Communities Act, CCI has been able to structure its project whereby it can sell electricity directly to the Town of Cohasset which in turn will favor its taxpayers by reducing and stabilizing the Town's budget. Cohasset's cost for purchased power increased over 90 percent this year; the town purchases over 4 million kWhs of electricity at a cost of over $750,000 (well over one-half the projected output from the Cohasset Heights Wind Project). The Town of Cohasset, Town Management and CCI have publicly expressed a willingness and desire to negotiate a long-term energy purchase program if the project is permitted and constructed. At this time, the town leadership does not feel it is prudent to enter into contractual obligations for projects that are not permitted.

Some have expressed a concern that CCI will take their permit and then refuse to negotiate with Cohasset; this will not happen for a very simple reason. If CCI does not sell electricity to Cohasset, CCI must sell that electricity to National Grid at the wholesale rate. The Town of Cohasset is currently paying a much higher retail rate as well as charges for transmission, transition, and distribution. CCI, under the Green Communities Act, can offset these charges. It is in both CCI's and Cohasset's best interest to agree on an amount below our current rates and above wholesale. Both parties in such a contract will benefit.

We believe that the permitting and construction of the Cohasset Heights project will be a positive step for our town. It helps secure our electrical rates from constant price spikes, provides additional tax revenue and allows the time needed to make long-term bonding decisions necessary for the procurement of a town-owned turbine. We urge all town residents interested in this and future projects to attend the Dec, 1st Planning Board meeting to learn more about the details of the CCI proposal.

The Awful Truth

DRIVING WHILE TYPING

JOHN LENGYEL

It's been a tough couple of days here, because I had to have The Talk with my youngest daughter about Santa. It was really sad, but she's been asking so many questions lately that I couldn't continue to put it off.

"Emily," I said, "Santa doesn't come down the chimney for another month."

"A month?" she said.

"A good month, yeah."

She stared ahead blankly, trying to process the information.

"I'm sorry," I said.

"But WROR has been playing 'Santa Claus Comes Tonight' for four weeks now."

"It's a wonderful fantasy, honey. We all enjoy it. But the fact is, it's November."

She sat down.

"I'm afraid it's just part of becoming a grown-up," I said. "You have to be able to read a calendar."

"But you put up our Christmas tree."

"That's last year's tree, actually. I keep meaning to take it down. I should do that right away."

"I thought you said old Christmas trees are a major fire hazard."

"Only the ones with needles."

She looked at the floor.

"We've watched Home Alone twice this week," she said.

"I know. It's hard."

"What about the Christmas goose?"

"What goose?" I said.

"The one you're brining in the bath tub."

"Oh, that's our Thanksgiving turkey, Emily. And eating a goose on Christmas would be weird. Instead we sup on the tender loins of a pig, remember?"

"If it's so far away then why do they fib about it being Christmas time?"

I sat and put my arm around her.

"It's the economy, honey. They need to tickle it. It's complicated. The best way I can say it is that after years of consolidation in the banking industry the reigns of the global financial system are now in the hands of a few very large, powerful companies, and as always, with great power comes great hubris. The banks gambled with our money and lost, touching off a vicious cycle of consumer fear and lower spending, which dried up investments. When money stops flowing businesses can't grow, people can't borrow to buy homes or go to college, industries hemorrhage jobs, and deflation sets in. Then, the coyotes come."

"Can't they prop up failing banks for now and inject huge amounts of capital to break the cycle?"

"I know it might look that simple to an eight-year-old, but I think we'd better let the President handle it, okay?"

"President Bush?"

"Oh God no! Never mind. The point is, it may seem a little early for you and your sisters to be baking gingerbread houses, but with the foreclosure rate so high it's probably a smart move."

John Lengyel lives in Cohasset. He is very thankful to have a job this year, though truth be told he would still prefer a career in mountain biking.

A bunch of Pilgrim Fathers, and some Pilgrim Mothers and Indians, too, were sitting around the campfire one evening in late November wondering what to do to occupy their minds now that the crops were in.

"An idle mind is the devil's workshop," Elder Brewster kept reminding them and members of the little band of settlers were inclined to agree with him, although those who smoked the funny cigarettes would have liked to see the theory tested.

"I know," said Isaac Allerton. "Let's have lunch."

"Or breakfast," said John Alden. "Priscilla's a good cook. She wouldn't mind staying up all night cooking bacon and eggs."

Allerton dug his elbow into John Alden's ribs. It was widely known that one of their number, their captain, Myles Standish, had a thing for Priscilla and didn't cotton to such personal references to her.

"Ugh," said the Indian sachem Massasoit, whose vocabulary was limited since he had flunked English as a Second Language.

"What'd he say?" asked Governor Bradford.

"Him say he can't go to breakfast. He have to go to annual football game between Wampanoag High and Pequot Prep," said Squanto, the tribesman who couldn't understand why Indians had to learn English since they were here first but he learned it anyway in hopes that someday he would be eligible to open a gambling casino in Middleboro.

"Ugh," said Massasoit.

"What'd he say now?"

"Him say his son Wamsutta have good game, he get football scholarship to BC."

"Ugh." growled Massasoit's second son, Metacomet, who was known by everyone except the settlers to be training terrorists over the border in the tribal lands around Montaup.

"He says white man good to Indian," lied Squanto.

"I guess that rules out breakfast and lunch," said Governor Bradford. "How about dinner?"

"Good idea. That'll give Priscilla all morning to do the cooking," said John Alden.

"We can expect a lot of guests," said Elder Brewster. "Now that Hedlund, the chief of that tribe up Hingham way, failed to stop Greenbush, we can expect a lot of visitors from up north."

"I think we should base the meal around turkeys," said Governor Bradford. "We'll need a lot of them."

"Priscilla's good at roasting turkeys," said John Alden.

"And stuffing."

"Priscilla's stuffing is out of this world."

"And cranberry sauce,"

"Priscilla's cranberry sauce is to die for."

"Why don't you speak for yourself, John," said Priscilla.

"Dinner it is," said Governor Bradford. "But what shall we call our dinner?"

"Ugh," said Massasoit.

"He says Indian call football game Thanksgiving Day game," said Squanto.

"Good idea," said Elder Brewster. "We can call it Thanksgiving Day dinner. If it catches on, maybe we can do it every year."

"Yes, and Priscilla can . . . "

"Oh, shut up, John," said Priscilla.

Cohasset Mariner 'drop box'

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the left after you enter the front door.

The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

Warmth for the season

Fourth graders collect blankets for needy

Fifty-four kids who live in Topmost, Kentucky will be a little bit warmer this winter, thanks to a group of Cohasset 10-year-old boys.

Taggart Eymer and Zander Schubert, fourth graders at Deer Hill School, hosted a joint birthday party this past weekend and asked each of their guests to bring a blanket instead of a gift. In total, they collected 54 blankets that were packed into nine boxes and shipped to Kentucky earlier this week.

The blanket project was part of the effort started by Taggart mother's aunt and uncle, Anke and Frits Geurtsen, who have volunteered for the Appalachia Service Project for 13 years. In past years, the Geurtsens have collected books and stuffed animals to send to Beaver Creek Elementary School in Topmost, Kentucky, but this year the librarian asked for blankets. The need was a tall order, the librarian wanted to give a blanket to each of the 335 students in grades kindergarten through eight.

Last year, Taggart and Zander donated 54 gifts from their birthday party to Toys for Tots. They delivered the new, unwrapped toys — all nine bagfuls of them - to the Armed Forces recruiting office in Quincy.

This year, they decided to collect blankets to help the kids in Kentucky. The boys helped pack the boxes of blankets and included a note and picture in box number one.

The boys were born just months apart: Taggart in July and Xander in November. The boys decided last year to have a joint birthday party and continued the tradition this year.

About 40 boys showed up at the party, which was a massive flag football game at Milliken Field.

"They loved doing it, I think we started a tradition," said Selene Eymer, Taggart's mom. "The best part is I think they all learned something."

So far, between the Geurtsens and the party over 225 blankets have been collected, but they still need about 100 more.

If anyone would like to donate a blanket, the Eymers would welcome the contribution at their home, 31 Bow Street.

The boys at Taggart's and Alexander's joint birthday get down to business with a game of flag football.

Taggart Eymer reacts to one of the plays. Taggart and his close friend Alexander Schubert collected blankets for children of Topmost, Kentucky instead of birthday gifts.

Taggart Eymer, left, standing next to his best friend Alexander Schubert, are surrounded by a few close friends during half time of their birthday flag football game held Sunday afternoon at Milliken Field.

Students in grades nine through 12, shown here during a recent rehearsal, have come together to make the story of two rival gangs – the American Jets and the Puerto Rican Sharks – and the love story of two star-crossed lovers, Tony and Maria, come alive on stage.

made complete rehearsals a big challenge, Marks is certain the cast will come together to put on an outstanding show.

The high school puts on an "all school" musical once every two years.

When Marks and director and choreographer (and high school band teacher) Stephanie Moriarty decided on producing "West Side Story," they knew they were in for a challenge musically speaking.

"The musical score is probably about as difficult as they come. It's really demanding," said Marks. Leonard Bernstein wrote the score. "This group is certainly capable of pulling it off."

Fans of both the Broadway production and the movie will recognize the captivating songs from "Tonight" to "Maria" to "I feel pretty."

Ian Porter, a junior who plays the male lead of Tony, attests the music is a challenge, even for someone who has been singing nearly his whole life.

"There were a lot of lines to learn, but mostly the music and learning the lyrics was difficult. The music is tough," said Ian, who is playing the lead in his first stage production. "It's a great accomplishment."

Junior Jenny Magruder plays Maria, Tony's love interest.

"She's really innocent and she falls in love so fast," says Jenny of her character. On some level, she can relate to Maria because they are the same age.

Tony, who belongs to the Jets gang, but has been trying to distance himself from them, falls in love with Maria, the sister of the leader of the rival Puerto Rican gang at a neighborhood dance.

Both Jenny and Ian name "Tonight" as their favorite song to perform.

Senior August Oddleifson, who plays Riff, the leader of the Jets, is in his first stage production since he was in fourth grade.

"I thought it would be fun and the play sounded good…I didn't know how to sing, so they taught me how to sing," says August. "There are a lot of good people in the show, it's a fun group to be with."

The effort to get "West Side Story" on stage has taken a lot of community support. Members of the Cohasset Dramatic Club helped to build and paint the sets. The PSO underwrote the cost of new curtains and lights for the auditorium. The new lighting system will be in place for opening night of "West Side Story." The student-run backstage, sound and lighting crew are essential to the success of the show.

"They have done fantastic work. They are very good at what they do, willing and eager. They have proven themselves worthy of the challenge," said Marks.

To the extent possible, Marks has tried to produce a family friendly show. Set in Manhattan's West Side/Hell's Kitchen in the mid-1950s, the musical explores the rivalry between two teenage gangs.

"We have taken care to produce a show that we believe to be family friendly. But the story line does indeed deal with gang fighting and death. However, in the end, it also points toward hope and reconciliation," said Marks. He hopes families will come to enjoy the music and love story of the play.

"The show is going to have great dancing, great acting and unbelievable singing," says Ian.

CHS tackles challenging musical

By Kathryn Hillman
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

"West Side Story" is the gripping drama of the romance of two teenagers caught in the midst of a gang war in the back alleys of New York during the 1950s. With music by Leonard Bernstein, lyrics by Stephen Sondheim, and story by William Shakespeare, it is widely regarded as the foremost American musical. This challenging project has been undertaken by the Cohasset High School Music Department, with Stephanie Moriarty as the director and choreographer and Bryan Marks as the music director and producer.

Mr. Marks has been doing musicals at Cohasset since he arrived in 1977. In the early 1980s, the school did a musical every year. After a few years, they started doing them only every other year.

While thinking of a play to do last spring, some of the students suggested "West Side Story." With support from the administration, Mr. Marks and Ms. Moriarty agreed to take up the challenge. Ms. Moriarty, who has had 16 years of dance experience, has taken on both the direction and the choreography for the play. She said that she was partial to the big dance numbers. Mr. Marks is acting as music director. When asked what one of his favorite numbers was, he said that he had grown to like "A Boy Like That," a duet sung by Maria and Anita. He said that it "really got to the heart of what the show is about." He says that West Side is one of his favorite plays, along with "Pirates of Penzance" by Gilbert and Sullivan and "Carousel" by Rogers and Hammerstien.

Auditions were held at the end of September, and rehearsals started at the beginning of October. The production will be just a little over two months from auditions to opening night. Mr. Marks says that it is coming along well. At times the production team "felt a little behind," but have caught up nicely. "Can we get another rehearsal?" he joked, half seriously. Mr. Marks says that the sets are "a pretty down- n'-dirty back alley of New York". They are using concrete sets, instead of just representing an area with lights. As for the music, they have a professional pit of 13 members. The musical score is "a bear" Mr. Marks said, and it's really "pushing me to the test." "I want to thank Mr. Biagini [the instrumental music instructor at the Deer Hill and a fine French horn player] for his help assembling this group."

They had certain "road blocks" but Mr. Marks stressed how everybody "from the administration right on down started asking how they could help".

As the play has come together, the cast and administration worked through a series of challenges. "Every show has its unique challenges; it's unique obstacles". They had certain "road blocks" but Mr. Marks stressed how everybody "from the administration right on down started asking how they could help". The PSO helped to obtain new stage curtains. In the time crunch, everybody stepped up and the actors have been working very hard. Ms. Moriarty commented on this too, saying, "It is an extremely difficult show, however the cast has risen to the challenge. They have taken great pride and ownership of the material and therefore the final production will be outstanding." They trimmed some of the extra dances that were very long, such as the middle section of "Cool" but there is still a lot of dance. They also cleaned up some of the lyrics. Mr. Marks said, "I want to make it, as much as possible, a family show" even with consideration for the material, which includes on-stage violence. However, on the whole, Mr. Marks sees the play coming along well. "What I do this for the most is that I know that many decades from now…these students…will be raising their own families, they will have their own memories, and be able to encourage their own children to be involved with musicals." He also said that, "Performing is a real wonderful gift to give people."

The cast has been working very hard for the last two months. The leads: Riff is played by August Oddleifson, Tony is played by Ian Porter, Bernardo is played by Andrew Bell, Maria is played by Jenny Magruder, and Anita is played by Ellie Baumgarten. The rest of the cast is made up of enthusiastic Cohasset High School students.

Ms. Moriarty summed it up best: "It is not to be missed! The students and I would love to see the seats filled each night, as the show promises not to disappoint. We have worked hard and think that this year's production will make its mark on the CHS stage. As a final thought, I would love to thank the students who make this an incredible experience for everyone involved."

The performances will be Friday, Dec. 5, at 7:30pm; Saturday, Dec. 6, at 7:30pm; and Sunday, Dec. 7, at 2:30pm.

Powderpuff, T-Day games terrific!

LIFE AT CHS

LAUREN MACK

Happy Thanksgiving, everyone! I hope you all enjoyed a great holiday filled with turkey, football, and mashed potatoes. I know I certainly appreciated the break from the normal routine. The football game this year, as usual, was packed; filled with past, present, and future students while the varsity boys came out to play. Powderpuff this year was also a huge success. Despite the bitter cold and the fact that some of the girls really don't know how to play football very well, the game was still a good matchup and a fun time. It is my hope that these traditions at CHS continue for years to come.

You may have seen posters around town promoting this years' CHS production of "West Side Story". I don't know if you've heard, but this play just might be the greatest in the history of CHS drama, so I personally recommend that you reserve your tickets ahead of time and get there early to save some seats because it's sure to be a sellout. Some of the talented students starring this year include: Ian Porter as Tony, Jenny Magruder as Maria, Ellie Baumgarten as Anita, August Oddleifson as Riff, Andrew Bell as Bernardo, and many, many more. The play opens the first week of December and will go on Friday at 7:30pm, Saturday at 7:30pm, and Sunday at 2:30pm, tickets are $10 at the door or can be purchased at Buttonwoods Books and/or CHS for the same price.

This week's quote of the week comes from a teacher in the foreign language department. Towering over most students (especially since his room is located in the freshman hallway), Mr. Jeff Kotter is known for his blonde hair and fluency in the French language. However, in addition to teaching French classes and aiding in the foreign exchange program, Mr. Kotter is also the proctor for the International Club and Student Council. Because he is involved in so many student extracurriculars, it is no surprise that he has adopted some of the teenage lingo; when asked how he handles all of his commitments, he replied: "I get down with the gnar gnar and the pow pow. I'm cool like that." I have no translation for this sentence, I apologize. And with that, I bid you all farewell until next week! Ciao!

Race director and Cohasset resident, Bill Burnett, far right (with radio) watches racers in the third wave take off during this year's Cohasset Triathlon. In 2009, seasoned triathletes and first-timers alike will have the opportunity to race in three races in the greater Boston area — all under the direction, or co-direction, of Burnett.

Cohasset Tri branches out

Registration begins Dec. 1, 9 a.m.

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In just two years, Bill has built an amazing race and I immediately saw the potential of a partnership in metro west Boston.
— Jarrod Shoemaker, Olympian

In 2007, the inaugural year for the Cohasset Triathlon, it took five months to reach capacity.

In 2008, it took six weeks to sell out and 250 people were left on the waiting list.

For the 2009 event, Race Director Bill Burnett is predicting race registration will fill up in two days time.

Those interested in racing should be by their computer on Monday, Dec. 1. Online registration opens at 9a.m.

This coming year, seasoned triathletes and first-timers alike will have the opportunity to race in three races in the greater Boston area — all under the direction, or co-direction, of Burnett. The Commonwealth Triathlon Series will include the Cohasset Triathlon (June 28), Marlborough Triathlon (July 26) and Gloucester Triathlon (Aug. 9).

After the Cohasset Triathlon, Burnett was approached by two well-known triathletes who were interested in starting up their own triathlon, near their hometowns. Jarrod Shoemaker, who competed in the Beijing Olympics in August, along with his coach Tim Crowley, and Janda Ricci-Munn, who finished third overall at the 2008 Cohasset Tri, wanted to use Burnett's expertise to re-create the Cohasset feel in other parts of Massachusetts.

Ricci-Munn, a Gloucester resident, envisioned a seaside race for the historic fishing village turned city.

"I want Gloucester to experience the thrill and buzz that the Cohasset Triathlon has generated for its town," said Ricci-Munn in an e-mail.

Jarrod Shoemaker returned from the Beijing Olympics with a renewed passion and drive for the sport of triathlon. Burnett said he wanted to find a way to give back to the sport and get more youth involved. Although Shoemaker has raced in countless triathlons, his participation at Cohasset stood out in his mind.

"Cohasset was one of the most energized short course events I have ever been to. In just two years, Bill has built an amazing race and I immediately saw the potential of a partnership in metro west Boston. With Bill's enthusiasm and experience, I am confident that he will help us build an equally terrific race in Marlborough," said Shoemaker, in an e-mail.

So far, in both new triathlon towns Burnett said the permitting has been a breeze, but there is still a lot of planning and logistics ahead. All three triathlons will be about the same length with some slight variations — a one-third mile swim, a 12-17 mile bike, and a 3.2-mile run. Marlborough's water leg will be in a lake, while Cohasset and Gloucester will be an ocean swim. Both the Gloucester and Marlborough triathlons will be slightly bigger in numbers than Cohasset.

"It's a series driven by some of the most well known triathletes in the country. It was a no brainer to say yes," said Burnett.

Burnett will take the model he created in Cohasset to the two other towns.

"They are going to be triathlons of the highest quality and they're going to raise money for a special cause," said Burnett. Involving the community in the event is also one of Burnett's priorities.

The Marlborough Triathlon will raise money for Children's Hospital and the Gloucester Triathlon's proceeds will benefit the Pine Street Inn, a homeless shelter in Boston. (The Cohasset Triathlon is a partner with the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation and portion of the proceeds go to the non-profit.)

If competitors sign up for two or three of the races in the series, there is a discount ($80 for one race, $150 for two races, and $210 for three races). There will be overall series winners (in a variety of categories) for those athletes who compete in all three events.

By the numbers, the Cohasset Triathlon is currently the largest tri in New England. About 700 finished the race last year, while most triathlons in the area draw 400 to 500 competitors. Cohasset registration for the 2009 race will stay the same: 800 individual athletes and 30 relay teams.

The Cohasset Triathlon was also the single biggest volunteer driven fundraiser for the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation (JDRF) in the country last year. In 2008, the triathlon raised over $280,000 for the cause.

In just two short years, the triathlon has earned a place on the national level. Last year, Olympic triathlete Jarrod Shoemaker won the triathlon. This year, the Cohasset Triathlon has been chosen by USA Triathlon (USAT) has been picked as the Northeast qualifier for the Team USA (16-19 age group) for Sprint Distance World Championships in Australia. In addition, the Cohasset Triathlon has been also been selected as the Special Qualifier Race for the 2009 Age Group Nationals in Tuscaloosa, Alabama in August 2009. The top five people per age group will qualify to race in Tuscaloosa.

These two qualifiers will make for stiffer and faster competition. But, first-time triathletes and beginners should not be deterred from the competition.

"I don't want people to see that and decide not to race. I love that Cohasset residents have embraced the sport. One of my primary goals when I started this race was to bring beginners into the sport," said Burnett.

Despite the growth of Burnett's involvement with triathlons, Cohasset shouldn't be concerned about their event, said Burnett.

"I'm not going to lose focus on what we do here, Cohasset will always be closest to my heart," said Burnett. "Without the incredible support of Cohasset and my team I would never have had a chance to build my passion of promoting an active lifestyle through triathlons. Everything has come together way beyond my expectations."

Coach Beal says it all

Cohasset girls' soccer coach sums up historic season

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

It took Deb Beal nearly a week to get her voice back.

Following last Wednesday's heartbreaking 1-0 loss to Newburyport in the Eastern Mass championship game, the Cohasset girls' soccer coach understandably needed some time to collect her thoughts and emotions. Compounding the difficulty of a loss in the waning seconds of overtime is the reality of losing seven seniors — Kristin Monaco, Brittany Dunn, Johanna Brophy, Sammi Lehr and captains Maggie McGoldrick, Sarah Coggins and Torey Hart — most of whom have been focal points in the program, on and off the field, for several seasons.

Now that Beal has her voice back, and is able to look with a broader view on the Lady Skippers historic run, the only question now seems to be if she'll ever tire of talking about it.

Below are Deb's unfiltered thoughts.

Wrote Beal on Monday:

"I am actually at the point where I can look at the season and form complete sentences about it. What a ride we had.

"When we concluded our breakout season last fall with a loss to Norwell in the sectional title game, I was naturally disappointed, but knowing that I had 22 of 24 roster kids coming back I couldn't help but wonder what would next fall be like.

"I spent those off months and most of the summer hoping the kids would remember the feeling in Weymouth last year and be ready to jump right back into it.

"They came back in August more than ready. They were in great shape and that makes a huge difference in preparing your team for a long season. They were eager to get going and gave everything they had. We began the season with my assistant coach (Christine Taggart) having to deal with some family issues and I was fortunate that I teach in the middle school so I already knew the entire incoming freshman class.

"Getting to know names sometimes is the hardest thing. The first four days of practice, I relied very heavily on my seniors to help run stations and work with groups. They were so great with the younger kids.

"When Christine returned on Wednesday she was impressed with their fitness and the strides we had made already. I cannot take any of the credit for having an outstanding season without sharing it with her. Her knowledge of the game and the skills is such an asset to our program; we would not have made it as far without her dedication and commitment to us. I cannot thank her enough for the things she does everyday to help us build a stronger more skilled team. She is a pleasure to work with and I enjoy the time spent with her.

"Defensively, we were the toughest team ever. You cannot say enough about Sammi Lehr and (junior) Meredith Kelly, the two best. They are tough and strong. (Junior) Samantha Crough helped out in the back as did (Junior) Tori Lehr in the end.

"The season had some twists to it that had some kids jumping around to different spots and Crough was always the one to move and make an impact wherever she was put. She played most of the season on defense but in the last game with Newburyport she stepped in for Sarah Coggins and played central mid. If anyone was going to score that night, I thought it was going to be her. She did such a nice job. When you take a regular out of the game and sub in someone who isn't used to that spot there can be some concern, but she stepped up unbelievably and did an outstanding job.

The Lady Skippers celebrate a goal at the South Sectional championship versus Norwell. The team went on to win the game 4-1. It has been a historic season for the Cohasset Girls Soccer team.

"Looking back at the 91 days we spent together, I loved every second of it. These kids are amazing."
— Coach Deb Beal, girls soccer

"Tori (Lehr) was another one who responded to every situation asked of her. She played stopper most of the season and with a little bit of a line up adjustment she moved to outside back where she put forth an all star performance. She, Sammi and Meredith played so tough in the last games; they deserve a lot of the credit for our success. Many onlookers wanted to know who #18 (Tori) was and commented on what a great player she was. Thankfully, she'll be back next fall with a big role.

"The midfield was awesome all season long. Maggie McGoldrick and Sarah Coggins did most of the work in the middle, taking relief from Kristin Monaco.

"Maggie and Sarah were truly the core of the team, holding their ground in the midfield and creating opportunities for our offense. Both found the net more than a few times and both put the success of the team in front of their success. They have both committed to Div I schools (Holy Cross and UVM respectively) and I look forward to following them through the next few years.

"Kristin (Monaco) worked very hard this season and proved to be an asset in the middle. Kristin has been around for four years and the number of positions she was able to help with was a credit to her commitment to the program.

"The outside midfielders, (juniors) Christine Coner and Mackenzie Hart, deserve a lot of credit for our success.

"(Juniors) Megan Richardson and Dominique Rioux were valuable subs. Both will return for lots of playing time next fall. Megan works and knows the game better than anyone. I look forward to working closely with her next season to keep the team focused and playing well.

"The forwards really broke out early this season and continued with their attack all season. During the last few weeks we went with the 3-4-3 line-up, which created more offensive opportunities. Torey Hart, (sophomore) Caroline Fein and (sophomore) Kaci Kucinski did most of the leg work, combining for nine of our 18 tournament goals."

(Kucinski led the Clippers in scoring for the season, with 13 goals, edging Hart (12) and Fein (8). It's certainly nice knowing that two-thirds of that high-powered attack is back for another two seasons).

Torey has also committed, to my alma mater URI, so she can expect to see me around the fields. "Sophomore Danielle Sookiasian proved to be one to watch as she navigates her way through high school. She is a tough kid that does her job. She has a nose for the goal and, as she gains more confidence, defensive lines will need to watch her.

"Junior Alex Foley gained some valuable experience and is ready to contribute with a bigger role next fall.

"Senior Brittany Dunn contributed with some solid minutes all over the field. In her high school career, Brit played all of the positions on the field. Not too many kids can say that. She would step in wherever needed and work hard.

"Sophomores Carli Haggerty and Lindsey Davis learned this season from the best and will have much larger roles on this team next fall. Losing Sammi in the sweeper position will open up some competition for her role and also for the outside back spots. There are many options and all of them will be tested next preseason.

"Junior Melissa Campedelli (two assists) gained some serious confidence this fall.

"Sophomore Rachel Fredey, Olivia Yerardi and Rhianna Fitts had great seasons also. The three of them played both JV and Varsity. They got serious playing time on the JV end and had some opportunities to contribute in the varsity games. Rachel contributed with a goal against Harwich and Olivia had an assist in her tournament appearance vs. Bishop Connolly.

"The story which continues to draw attention is the Johanna Brophy and junior Charlotte Malone combination. Jojo had her injuries and appeared in 10

Seventh-grade hoopsters take Barnstable Tournament by storm

Cohasset's seventh grade travel basketball team opened the season by winning the Barnstable Invitational Pre-Season Tournament.

The 2008-2009 edition of the Cohasset boys' seventh-grade travel basketball squad opened its new season in grand style last weekend, as the Boys in Blue swept through the Barnstable Invitational Pre-Season Tournament with an undefeated 3-0 record.

In its season opener, Cohasset was matched with tourney host Barnstable. Right from the opening tip, the Cohasset hoopsters came to play... and how they played. Cohasset's man-to-man defense was terrific and forced several turnovers that ignited the Blue's fast break. Dakota Achin ran the floor hard and tallied four early points on the break to get the Blue out ahead. Mark Rattenbury and Joe Buckley controlled the paint with Buckley scoring six in the first half and Rattenbury chipping in with four. Brendan O'Connell directed the attack from the point and nailed three straight jumpers from downtown to thwart a Barnstable rally and keep the Blue ahead. The half ended on a beautiful fast break passing clinic between Mark McKenna and Jack Conte, the ball not hitting the floor and Conte laying in the bucket to give Cohasset a 29-20 lead at half.

Cohasset came out firing on all cylinders to start the second half and a 12-2 run put the game away. Doug Fitzgerald's deft ball handling oiled the Big Blue attack, while Rocco Laugelle picked the pocket of the Barnstable guards to ignite the Big Blue break. Mark Brown patrolled the paint, swatting several shots into the rafters, to the delight of the Cohasset faithful. Those that made it to the rim or board were grabbed by Liam Burke, who carved out his role as the Big Blue's inside enforcer. Chris Haggerty and Henry Brown played Mssrs. Inside and Outside, as both played both guard and forward, and manned up with big and small. In the end, Cohasset walked off with a 51-27 win, and the respect of the Barnstable crowd.

Sunday found Cohasset squaring off against the other undefeated team in the tournament, the big and tall orange and black from Middleboro.

Game two found the Cohasset Blue taking on Martha games, posting three shutouts and allowing only eight goals total. Charlotte appeared in 14 games, notching eight shutouts and surrendering just seven goals.

"The two combined for 11 shutouts in 24 games and only 15 goals against. The numbers are just as remarkable as the two of them.

"For Charlotte, the opportunity that was given to her was so valuable. She took every minute of it and made it a learning experience. She knows what to expect coming in to next year as the starting keeper and she has all off-season to prepare for it. Mentally, that will be a huge advantage for her and for us. She was like a sponge around Jojo and I think that Jo prepared her and helped her with some technical stuff that will improve upon her already outstanding performance this season.

"Carly Oddleifson, Katie Brennan and Michaela Brophy all spent the postseason with the varsity and learned the system. They provided us with support and gained experience by just being part of it. All three saw minutes against Bishop Connolly. They are freshman and look at what they were a part of. They now know what it feels like to get there and that feeling can be very contagious.

"As a team, we really played outstanding. I know a lot of people expected us to return to the places we went last year but we never took anything for granted. We had some lulls in the season where we questioned just what it was we were doing and what we needed to do to improve our subpar performances.

"The regular season is challenging because every game is so different. Some are really competitive and some aren't. We scheduled some seriously competitive non-league matches to close out the season and those were the games that really meshed us into one unit and got us playing great soccer.

"When we opened the tournament we were truly one group striving toward the same goal. The road to the sectional finals was a ton of fun".

Skippers 4, East Bridgewater 1

"When we learned we were going to face East Bridgewater, the team responsible for two of our three regular season losses, again and at home in the quarterfinals there was no hesitation at all. I was so impressed with our efforts that evening on our way to a 4-1 win.

"Could you imagine how devastating it would have been to lose to a team three times in one season and end our season that way? From the opening whistle, we dominated every aspect of the game. The senior leadership and the teamwork was what got the job done.

Skippers 2, Bourne 0

"Facing Bourne in the semis was the turning point that assured me that this team was here to win it this year. We didn't know much about Bourne but we again came out of the gate at full speed and didn't look back."

Skippers 4, Norwell1

"Learning we were playing Norwell was a different feeling this year. I was confident and the girls were more than ready. Our game plan hadn't change; it was attack, score first and play smart.

"We got much better at letting the ball do the work on the turf field and positioned ourselves quicker and more efficiently creating so many more opportunities. When Sammi Lehr scored 1:46 in and Torey Hart followed less than two minutes later, we had set the bar really high and Norwell had their work cut out for them.

"Christine Coner putting in the third goal before the half sealed it. We knew they'd come out fighting in the second half, but our defense was just too smart and tough. They deserve the credit for that afternoon.

"Maggie (McGoldrick) scoring less than four minutes after their one goal really finished it. That was a perfect example of Maggie's senior leadership all season long."

Newburyport 1, Skippers 0

(In last Wednesday's Div. 3 Eastern Mass championship game in Lynn, after 80 scoreless minutes of regulation, and 14:38 of overtime play, the Skippers surrendered the game's only goal with 22 seconds to go).

"Going in to face Newburyport was the same game plan with the same confidence. The weather was frigid, but the wind had thankfully died down a bit.

This game was so well played. It is still unbelievable to me that we lost the way we did.

"Our defense was outstanding in containing Newburyport's big threats. It was a battle in every aspect. The kids gave everything they had and with all my heart I wish we could have held on for just 22 more seconds. Never did it cross my mind we would give up a goal.

"I had my penalty kickers lined up in my head and I was so confident in our PK ability. Just goes to show, never take your eyes off the road!

"You know I have been around soccer for a long time and never in all my years did a win feel so good and loss so awful all in less than 60 hours.

"When you watch kids set goals and achieve them it makes you proud to be a coach and an educator, which is why I do it year after year.

"Looking back at the 91 days we spent together, I loved every second of it. These kids are amazing. All the things they balance and the success they have on and off the field is so nice to be a part of. I am so fortunate to have made it that far, being one of the 12 girls teams left playing in the state, and I am so proud of these kids."

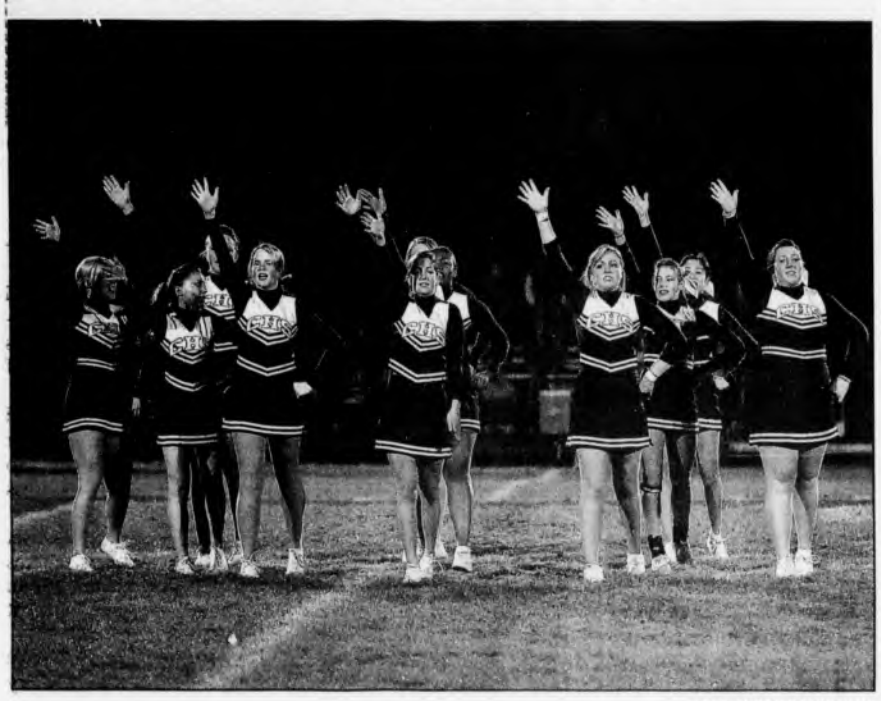
Cheerleaders continue to improve routines



The Cohasset High cheerleaders competed against six other teams in the South Shore League at Abington High School on Sunday (Nov 9).

Since the squad had already competed once this season at the Braintree Invitational on Oct. 26th, the team members goal was to do their personal best and improve their scores.

"To do this we increased the difficulty of our routine with more advanced stunts and tumbling," Coach Liz Pelletier said. "In addition, we worked hard to synchronize and clean up our routine.

"Although we did not place in the top three teams, we improved our score by 9 points, which is a huge improvement in competitive cheerleading.

"We learned a lot from the judges and the other teams and we are now preparing for basketball season," Pelletier said. "We will be competing again in the winter."

Senior football players and cheerleaders honored

Before the varsity football match-up with Norwell on Friday, Nov. 14, the Cohasset Gridiron Club and Cohasset High School honored the senior student athletes from football and cheerleading.

The night was dreary and overcast, but for eight sets of parents it was a night to remember. The Gridiron Club started a new tradition of honoring the mothers and the fathers. Historically, only the Moms have been honored on Senior Night in football.

The Moms looked great wearing their son's lettermen jackets adorned with corsages and the dads looked proud. For some parents, it was their first Senior Night, and for others it was their last, but for all of them it was a special moment, celebrating their son's achievements on the gridiron.

Senior cheerleading captain Anna Roberts and her parents led the traditional march from the end zone to the 50-yard line.

Although it is always the game itself that is discussed and reported, the cheerleaders are an invaluable asset to the Cohasset High School athletic program and an integral part of the football community at CHS.

FROM HOOPSTERS, PAGE 17

Vineyard's Purple. As in game one defense set the tone, as the Cohasset D forced several turnovers and the Big Blue fast break was relentless. Rattenbury was all over the court, blocking and altering shots. Buckley, Burke and Mark Brown helped Rattenbury control the inside, and their tough rebounding and quick outlets ignited Cohasset's fast break. Chris Haggerty and Henry Brown both nailed threes and guards Fitzgerald and O'Connell broke the Vineyard press and were perfect from the charity stripe. Laugelle and Conte were demons on defense, and McKenna and Achin relentless in driving to the hole. In the end, it was another outstanding team effort and another win with Cohasset prevailing, 38-30.

Sunday found Cohasset squaring off against the other undefeated team in the tournament, the big and tall orange and black from Middleboro. Cohasset's big men were up to the challenge. With Mark Brown out, Buckley was relentless, and with help from Rattenbury, Burke and Achin, Cohasset's front line battled Middleboro's big and tall front line all day, and won the war. The Cohasset defense was again terrific, as Laugelle, O'Connell, Fitzgerald and Haggerty clamped down on the Middleboro guards. The resulting turnovers ignited the fast break, and Achin, Henry Brown, Conte and McKenna forced the action on the offensive end. Middleboro, however, was tough, and this one went down to the last five minutes as a nail biter. Laugelle's defense was a difference maker in the last five minutes, and some great dishes by Haggerty and Fitzgerald, and big hoops by O'Connell, Buckley, and Rattenbury kept Middleboro at bay. The final buzzer sounded after a Cohasset 8-0 run in the last five minutes, and the Big Blue on top by a 28-18 count, and undefeated for the weekend.

The Big Blue machine now takes its game on the road to Marshfield for the Marshfield Thanksgiving Tournament, as the team prepares for its Patriot league opener against Weymouth on Saturday, Dec. 6.

HAPPENINGS

Wreath sales to benefit METCO

Cohasset PSO will sponsor a wreath sale to benefit the Cohasset METCO Scholarship Fund. Fresh 12-inch double-sided balsam wreaths will be for sale for $10 each. Pick up will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 6, at the Cohasset Village Fair, inside Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave. Checks should be made payable to Cohasset PSO-METCO, and order forms returned to Judyat Osgood, Joni at Deer Hill and Aleisa at MS/HS. For information, call Aleisa Gittens-Carle at 781-383-1563.

Upcoming community events:

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Breakfast will take place Monday, Jan. 19. Breakfast will be served from 9 to 10 a.m., and the program from 10 to 11 a.m. Guest speaker will be Julian Houston, author of "New Boy," a Cohasset Reads Together Book Choice in January/February, along with "Slave No More" by David Blight. The event will take place at First Parish Unitarian Universalist/Parish House, 23 North Main St., Cohasset. Cost is $5 per person or $15 per family.

Cohasset Reads Together, an evening with David Blight, author, "Slave No More," will take place at 7 p.m., on Feb. 12, at Cohasset High School.

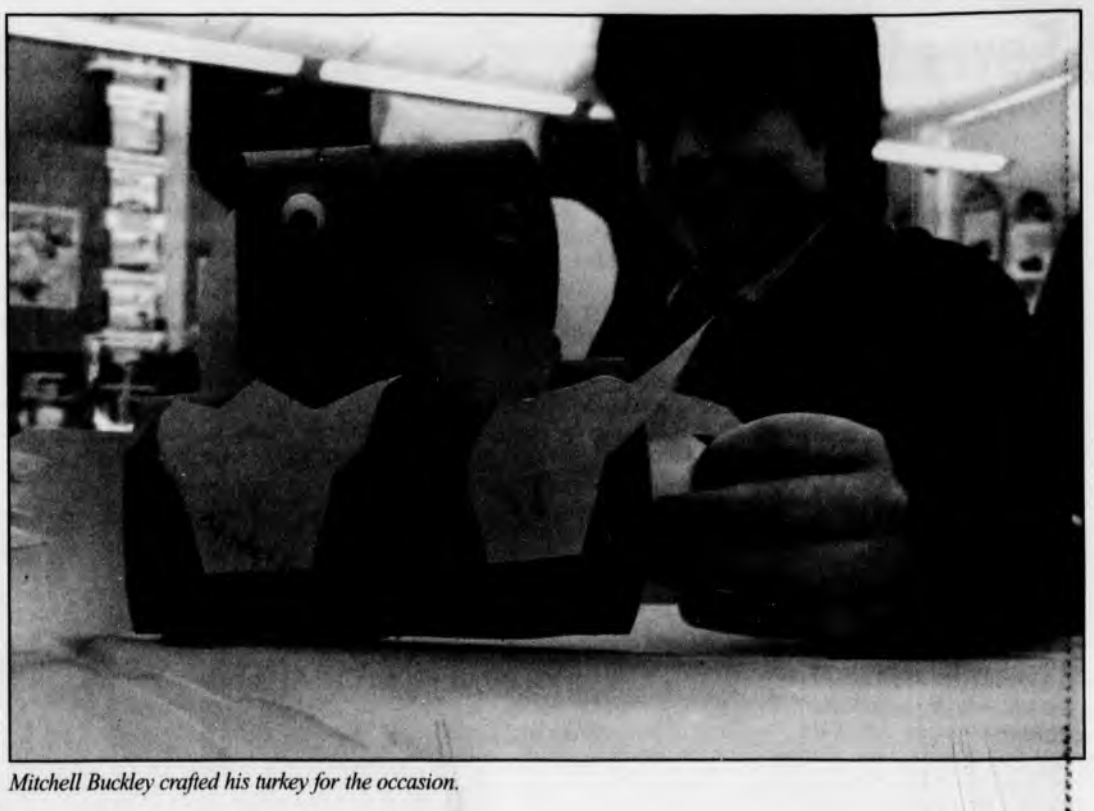
SSCC raffling off playhouses

South Shore Community Center is raffling off two cottage playhouses, perfect for fostering hours of out-door imaginary play and fulfilling a child's dream. The raffle will run for five weeks only; the drawing date is set for Dec. 20 and free delivery will be provided in time for Christmas to Cohasset and adjacent towns.

The cottages are made from the highest quality materials and are valued at almost $5,000 each. The yellow and white painted New England style cottages are on display on the side lawn of the Community Center. Each measures 8 feet wide by 12 feet long, and includes a 4 foot by 8 foot porch. They have three aluminum windows, one child's door, one adult's door and a loft over the porch.

Raffle tickets are $20 each. Further the odds by purchasing three for $50 or seven for $100. Tickets can be purchased at the Community Center during office hours, at the nursery school during school hours, at the Jingle Bell Walk on Nov. 28, or by calling the Community Center at 781-383-0088.

Holiday concert



Come hear the strains of classical carols and works by Mendelssohn, Grieg, Thompson and Conrad Susa, and then join in a sing-along of holiday songs. The Choral Arts Society, now celebrating its 50th year, will present its "Star of Wonder" Holiday Concert at 4:30 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 7, at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 465 First Parish Road, Scituate.

Led by director Danica A. Buckley, the choral group comprises singers from Scituate, Marshfield, Cohasset and throughout the South Shore. Tickets are $15 or $12 for seniors and students and are available at Buttonwood Books in Cohasset, The Center Bookstore in Scituate or at the door.

Pineapples, tans and girl-time on Maui

Felicity Long

Wailea Beach on Maui is a gorgeous stretch, day and night.

Don't leave Hawaii without tasting the pineapple.

Maui — My daughter and I have a love affair with Hawaii. So it was to Maui we headed for a weeklong trip that was part mother-daughter bonding, part almost Sweet 16.

This trip was my sixth to Hawaii with Chloe in five years. When people ask us why we travel so far when the Caribbean and Florida are so much closer, we find ourselves waxing poetic.

For one thing, on Maui, Chloe's favorite island, you'll find some of the best water sports and on-land activities - from horseback riding near Haleakala Crater to scuba diving at Molokini Crater. And because you are still in the U.S., you will find the guides and operators well regulated, easy to communicate with and available for online pre-booking.

We also love the ultra-friendliness of the people — the "aloha spirit" everyone talks about is real.

Visitors are typically greeted at their hotel with a lei and a cool drink, locals are forthcoming about giving directions, and taxi drivers get enthusiastic about sharing their favorite surfing haunts with perfect strangers.

And while Hawaii's reputation for cuisine has in the past taken a beating, nowadays Spam is no longer the staple of local cooking - though you can get an order at McDonald's here. Fresh fish, like macadamia nut-encrusted mahi mahi, salads made with locally produced goat cheeses and the glorious Maui Gold pineapple make eating here a pleasure.

Of course, one of the most important highlights of Maui is the beaches — over the years we have sampled most of them. Wailea Beach on Maui's south coast often finds itself on Top 10 lists, and it's easy to see why. The water is calm, especially in the morning before the trade winds kick in, and the sand is ultra fine. Here you can surf, kayak or spend a morning like we did on our most recent visit on a guided canoe excursion to snorkel among the famous honu or Hawaiian green turtles.

In fact, Wailea Beach is so choice that some of the island's top resorts are nestled there, from the Four Seasons Maui and the Grand Wailea Resort to the ultra-lavish private residences at Wailea Beach Villas, where we quickly made ourselves at home. Villas here feature stainless steel kitchens — you can hire a private chef to prepare your dinner — and large lanais overlooking the Pacific. In-room massages are among the amenities available.

In keeping with advice from the locals, we hit the beach and the pools in the morning, then, during the windier afternoons, we scooted across the street to The Shops at Wailea, where you'll find every shop that a teenage girl wants and most parents can't afford. Tiffany and Co., Coach and Fendi sit side by side with more mainstream shops like Roxie, Quicksilver and White House Black Market. Paris Hilton evidently shops in Wailea frequently, since we saw her picture smirking with owners of various shops, including our favorite, the charming but expensive Enchantress Boutique.

With a backward, longing glance at Swarovski crystal-studded designer jeans, Chloe and I consoled ourselves by buying silly souvenirs at the ABC store, including the inevitable bags of chocolate-covered macadamia nuts — which in our case were devoured before we even got home.

A decidedly more luxurious treat, dinner for two at the poolside Four Seasons DUO, where the menu includes their version of surf and turf — Kobe beef and Maine lobster — followed by a parting treat of brightly colored cotton candy.

Despite the serious charms of Wailea, after a couple of days we decamped to the west coast of Maui to check out the 23,000-acre Kapalua Resort, owned by Maui Land and Pineapple Co.

Picture part pineapple plantation, part world-class beach and part luxury golf courses and you get an idea of the layout. We stayed at the Ritz-Carlton, Kapalua, where in the name of mother/daughter bonding we indulged in the resort's new grotto-like spa in a hot stone Lomilomi massage (me) and a French manicure (Chloe).

We then set out to destroy Chloe's perfect nails at the Kapalua Adventures Mountain Outpost and Adventure Center, which offers zipline (traveling a line in a harness) thrills on eight dual-tracks, a ropes challenge course, a climbing tower and — for those not easily prone to nausea — a giant swing.

One of our favorite activities in Kapalua is the two-hour Maui Gold Pineapple Tour, which takes visitors into fields overlooking the ocean, where the fruit is both planted and picked by hand.

Guides show you how the fruit is grown, then yank up a few pineapples, hack at them with a machete and serve up delicious slices still warm from the sun. You even get to pick your own pineapple — an excellent treat to bring home along with your tan.

The Cub Scouts from Pack 38 hold up items that they donated for care packages to be sent to area servicemen and women serving overseas. Back row, Boy Scout Alex Kent; Quentin Hill, 9; Henry Dormitzer, 10; George Bryan, 9; David Hillman, 9; Zack Herman, 10; Matthew Doyle, 10; and Max Nakashima, 9. Front row Ryan Conforti, 9, and Patrick Slater, 9.

Cub Scouts remember the troops

On Thursday, Nov. 20, Cub Scouts from Webelos I Dens 4,5, and 6 met at the American Legion Hall with items they had donated for care packages for Cohasset servicemen and women who are stationed in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The boys, who are all in fourth grade, have been working toward their Citizen Badge, which includes participating in a service project. Den 5 Leader, Susan Rattenbury, contacted Tom Wigmore and Anne Marie Goff at the American Legion Hall, who kindly supplied the boys with lists of items that the soldiers need, such as snack food, soap and deodorant, and instant drink mix. The lists were divided among the Cub Scouts, who each brought their contribution to the American Legion Hall last week.

Tom Wigmore and Anne Marie Goff thanked the boys and explained that boxes will be assembled from the donated supplies and sent to soldiers from Cohasset who are stationed in Iraq and Afghanistan. Mrs. Goff coordinates the sending of care packages every other month. Depending on where soldiers are stationed, delivery of these care packages can take up to a few weeks to arrive; the boys were pleased to hear that the care packages they helped to assemble will reach our soldiers before Christmas.

Obituary

Eleanor Thistlethwaite

Music teacher

Eleanor (Anafantis) Thistlethwaite, of Cohasset, formerly of Winchester and Arlington, died Nov. 16, 2008, after a battle with cancer.

The daughter of the late Christie and Pauline "Despoula" (Primpas) Anafantis, Mrs. Thistlethwaite was a graduate of Boston University and a music teacher in the Winchester school district for almost 30 years. She was a founding member of the Panagia Greek Orthodox Church of Cohasset, and loved the church dearly.

Mrs. Thistlethwaite had great friends at the Cohasset Senior Center, and appreciated all of the compassionate people with whom she came in contact with at the Hellenic Nursing Home and Rehabilitation Center in Canton.

Wife of 41 years of the late Harold W. Thistlethwaite, she leaves her sister, Pauline Chambers; and many nieces, nephews, relatives and friends throughout United States.

She was the sister of the late Dorothy Thompson and the aunt of the late Karen Chambers.

At the request of the family funeral services and burial will be private. A memorial service will be held at a date to be announced. Arrangements by Faggas Funeral Home, Watertown.

Memorial donations may be made to Hellenic Nursing Home and Rehabilitation Center, 601 Sherman St., Canton, MA 02021 or Panagia Greek Orthodox Church of Cohasset, 819 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset, MA 02025.

To sign the online guest book, visit www.Faggas.com.

C.A.R.E.S. wants to help

You know,

You're not the only one in Cohasset...

C.A.R.E.S. stands for caring and responding economically and spiritually. The group is made of spiritual leaders from the town and representatives from numerous organizations like the Social Service League, elder services, the food pantry, Wellspring, town officials and others.Many of us are struggling, but are afraid to reach out. Maybe even you. Cohasset CARES wants to help. Below is an abbreviated list of resources to contact, with the assurance of confidentiality, for help with everything from your fuel bill or prescription drugs to pastoral care and spiritual guidance. SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
NOV. 24, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A project benefits from your organizational skills that get it up and running. Your success leaves a highly favorable impression. Don't be surprised if you get some positive feedback soon.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Spend time on practical matters through the end of the week. Then begin shifting your focus to more-artistic pursuits. Resist being overly self-critical. Just allow yourself to feel free to create.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Restarting those creative projects you had set aside for a while will help provide a much-needed soothing balance to your hectic life. Besides, it will be like meeting old friends again.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change in plans could make it tough to keep a commitment. But stay with it. You'll get an A-plus for making the effort to do what's right and not taking the easy way out by running off.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Lion's enthusiasm for a workplace policy review is admirable. But be sure you know who is really behind the resistance to change before pointing your finger at the wrong person.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You can expect to have to do a lot of work through midweek. Devote the rest of the week to checking your holiday plans in case some need to be adjusted to accommodate changes.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Try to avoid signing on the dotted line in the early part of the week. You need time to study issues that weren't fully explored. Later in the week might be more favorable for decision-making.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A new development could snarl travel schedules or other holiday-linked projects. Some flexibility might be called for to deal with the problems before they get too far out of hand.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Relatives seek your advice on a matter you'd rather not be involved in. If so, use that sage Sagittarian tact to decline the "offer," so that no one's feelings are needlessly hurt.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A shift in planning direction might help you speed up your progress toward achieving that long-planned goal. Trusted colleagues are ready to offer some valuable support.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An unexpected demand for settlement of an old loan could create some pre-holiday anxiety. But you might not really owe it. Check your records thoroughly before remitting payment.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It's a good time to get into the social swim and enjoy some well-earned fun and games with those closest to you before you have to resume more serious activities next week.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Celebrate the season at the QDT musical holiday party

Holiday show now in its 21st year

By R. Scott Reedy

George Stevens has proven his staying power time and time again in the 28 years since he co-founded Darling Productions with Molly Hochkeppel, and began producing dinner theater on the South Shore. The Braintree-based company, presenting under the Quincy Dinner Theater banner, has seen competitors come and go. It also survived being displaced from its longtime location at Quincy's Masonic Temple to go on to flourish in its current home at the Sons of Italy in Braintree. So when the economy started its recent free fall, about the same time Stevens was immersed in planning for the upcoming "Musical Holiday Party 21," the show business veteran didn't miss a beat - musical or otherwise.

"It was as early as this summer that I started to anticipate that this might be an off year for the economy. With that in mind, I headed straight to New York to recruit top-quality talent for this year's holiday show. Before I got back to Braintree, I had hired Anna Haas, a performer who has toured nationally in "A Chorus Line," as our choreographer and also one of our dancers; Petros Sakelliou, a Manhattan-based musician who agreed to lead our band for the third straight year; and Wayne Miller, a doo wop singer who has been featured on PBS-TV specials. Wayne will be performing a medley from the Stevie Wonder Christmas album that is just amazing. We're also delighted to welcome back baritone Jim Grassia from Weymouth who has been featured in 12 consecutive holiday shows with us."

Stevens, who has worked with a host of local and national performers over the years, says he could not be more pleased with this year's 12-member cast and four-piece band.

Stevens didn't have to go all the way to New York City, however, when it came time to develop the book for this 2008 outing. "My sons, Nick and Geoffrey Stevens, have written a funny, warm, and wonderful script for this year's show. The first act takes place at an airport during the holidays and act two is set at a going-away party for a local performer who has been hired to join the Broadway company of 'Jersey Boys.'"

Stevens, who has worked with a host of local and national performers over the years, says he could not be more pleased with this year's 12-member cast and four-piece band. "The quality and talent of our entire company is just superb. They'll be performing classic all-time holiday favorites as well as the hits of people like Britney Spears, Tina Turner, Michael Jackson, Lionel Richie and Barbra Streisand redone with special Christmas lyrics. It is really going to be an amazing show."

Darling Productions' Quincy Dinner Theater will present "Musical Holiday Party 21," Dec. 6 and 7, 11-14, 18-21, at the Sons of Italy, 161 King Hill Road, Braintree. Darling Productions will also present a separate matinee of its "Solid Gold Christmas Show," Sunday, Dec. 7, at the Canoe Club, 2 South St., West Bridgewater. For tickets, visit the Quincy Dinner Theater office at 654 Washington St. call 781-843-5862 or go online at quincydinnertheater.com

Marxist professor Max (Jack Wills) and his former pupil Jan (Manoel Feliciano) debate political views in the Huntington Theatre Company's production of Tom Stoppard's "Rock 'n Roll," playing through Dec. 7 at the Huntington's mainstage, the B.U. Theatre.

Music drives the revolution in 'Rock 'n Roll'

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

In "Rock 'n Roll," now at Boston's Huntington Theatre after sold-out runs in London and on Broadway, playwright Tom Stoppard sets out to show the impact of rock and roll music on the rise of democracy in Eastern Bloc Czechoslovakia between 1968 in Prague and the Velvet Revolution 20 years later. Set at Cambridge University and in Prague, the drama compares the beliefs of a young Czech PhD student and rock music devotee, who is outraged by the repressive regime in his homeland, with those of his Marxist-leaning British professor who has an unwavering belief in the Soviet ideal.

An Academy and Tony Award-winning writer, Stoppard — best-known for plays like "Rosencrantz & Guildenstern are Dead," "Travesties," and "The Coast of Utopia," and screenplays including "Shakespeare in Love" — was born Tomas Straussler in Czechoslovakia in 1937 and fled to Singapore with other Jews on March15, 1939, the day the Nazis invaded Czechoslovakia. In 1941, the family was evacuated to India to escape the Japanese invasion of Singapore. His father was captured and died in a Japanese prison camp. His mother later married Kenneth Stoppard, a British army major, who gave her children his surname and moved the family with him to England after World War II.

In "Rock 'n Roll," Stoppard weaves history, literature, politics and philosophy together with some very personal details.

"Tom is a Czech Jew, so one of the things that makes this play so moving is that it is Tom's own story. The entire piece is a very personal exploration," explained Carey Perloff, artistic director at San Franciso's American Conservatory Theatre (ACT), who is at the helm of this collaboration between her theater and the Huntington. "Tom is very grateful to England for saving him. The question is, of course, what would have happened to him had he gone back?"

The author explores that very question through the character of Jan, an expatriate Czech studying in England who decides he will return home to Prague after he hears of the 1968 Soviet invasion, taking with him only his stack of rock and roll records, and, at least temporarily, leaving behind his girlfriend, Esme. Stoppard sets his story to a soundtrack of the Rolling Stones, the Velvet Underground, Pink Floyd, and the influential Czech band The Plastic People of the Universe, with the powerful music standing for the force of new ideas in bringing the country back from its long repression.

"Music puts the audience into a very emotional zone and is key to what is really a love story," says Perloff, who has directed 10 other Stoppard plays, including several American premieres. "Western music was a beacon of freedom and, at times, the only real color in a very gray world. Jan lost so much when his life as an intellectual was taken away from him. You don't have to remember the history to be moved by his story."

The Huntington Theatre Company, in association with the American Conservatory Theatre, will present Tom Stoppard's "Rock 'n Roll" through Dec. 13, at the Boston University Theatre, 264 Huntington Avenue, Boston. For tickets, visit the box office, call 617-266-0800 or go online at huntingtontheatre.org.

Local cable-TV studio in focus

Town Hall eyed as prime location

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

"With Comcast closing their studio, we must create the capability to originate our own public access programming."
— Selectman Paul Carlson

Lights, camera, action!

While folks have had to trek to the Comcast studio off Route 53 in Norwell to produce programming such as the popular "Our Town" talk show, in the future, a television studio may only be as far as Town Hall.

The town is in the midst of negotiating a new contract with Comcast that provides "local access" programming on channels 10 and 22 as part of its service. Local access includes programs such as "Our Town," which is produced by volunteers.

Selectmen are the licensing authority for cable franchise licenses. The current, exclusive 10-year contract with Comcast expires in February.

However, Comcast plans to close its Norwell studio in July 2009 – leaving the town without public access programming. Live broadcast capabilities would remain, said Pat Martin of the Cable Advisory Committee. Currently selectmen and school committee meet-

Lily Pond ice skating

Aeration system to be on hiatus

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

If the winter weather ever sticks around long enough to thoroughly freeze Lily Pond, there will be skating and other ice activities there this winter.

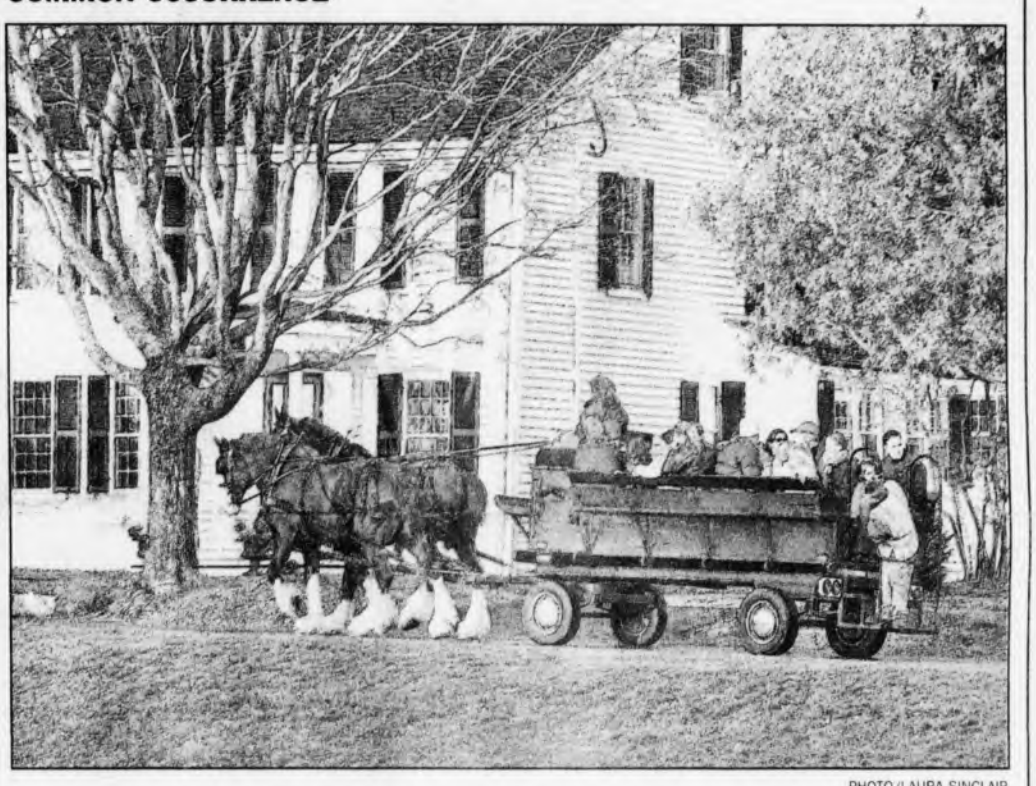
With the installation of an aeration system at the bottom of Lily Pond early last winter, the pond was closed from its typical winter activities. Now, that the system has been in operation for a full year, the Water Commission has voted unanimously to shut it down for the winter.

Following the news last winter some residents were upset about the loss of Lily Pond as it was a part of their winter pastimes and traditions. But, the Water Commission said last year it may not be an annual prohibition and that in future years the aeration could be turned off during the winter season. They are now making good on that prediction.

"We will be starting the aeration again in the spring," said Glenn Pratt, chairman of the Water Commission.

The in-pond aeration system consists of five aeration disks installed in the deeper sections of Lily Pond. The system is part of the Water Department's multi-pronged effort to reduce the amount of manganese, a naturally occurring metal. The units create a steady stream of tiny bubbles that rise to the surface of the water.

The manganese has always been in the water but, in the last few years, the issue has intensified after the water treatment process was altered to address another problem. In 2005, the Water Department changed their treatment process to comply with new federal requirements to reduce the levels of a potential carcinogen Total Trihalomethanes (TTHM) in the drinking water.



To reduce the levels of TTHMs, the Water Department stopped pre-chlorinating the raw water as it entered as it entered the treatment plant and only adds chlorine as one of the last steps in the treatment process. However, the pre-chlorination step was used to remove iron and manganese and the levels of manganese in the treated water have risen.

The aeration system was one of the first steps to combat the manganese problem: the introduction of oxygen to the pond helps prevent the manganese and iron from being dissolved in the raw water. The result is less manganese in the raw water entering the plant and less discolored water going out of the plant.

Planning Board tackles turbine issues

Crowd packs Monday's wind hearing

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In a packed Town Hall auditorium, the continued public hearing on the proposed twin wind turbine project off Route 3A began to give residents a better picture of the breadth and impact of the project. The nearly three-hour meeting was a mix of technical information, questions and answers and airing of resident concerns.

The 100-plus audience was well informed and it was clear through many of the comments made residents had done their research on turbines. Dozens spoke on myriad concerns from noise to shadow flicker to the impact on property values.

It was clear that Monday night's hearing would be the second session of what could turn out to be many public hearing sessions on the proposed Graham Waste wind turbine project. The wind turbine project public hearing opened nearly three months ago on Sept. 8. Subsequent public hearing dates were postponed at the request of the applicant in order to collect more data.

'Values in town stay stable'

Selectmen keep uniform tax rate for fiscal 2009

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

"While a split rate would provide minimum relief to residential, it would put a huge burden on commercial."
— Mary Quill, Deputy Assessor

Commercial property owners in Cohasset do not have to worry about the town splitting the tax rate anytime soon.

That is because about 93 percent of Cohasset's tax base is classified as residential.

Generally a split rate should not be considered unless the combined valuation of commercial, industrial and personal property equals 25 percent of the total valuation of the town, Deputy Assessor Mary E. Quill said. The town's property is valued at nearly $2.455 billion with residential making up nearly $2.3 billion of that number. Only 6.9 percent of the town's total valuation is commercial, industrial and personal property, leaving more than 93 percent of the tax burden on residential properties. (Personal property includes business inventory such as furniture and fixtures; utility company poles and wires and the contents of a second home).

Selectmen agreed with the recommendation of the Board of Assessors and voted Monday to stick with the uniform tax rate. The tax rate for fiscal 2009 is anticipated to be $10.78 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. The tax rate still needs to be certified by the state Department of Revenue.

A split rate means there would be a higher tax rate for commercial properties. A split tax rate often discourages businesses from locating to a community, said Quill.

"While a split rate would provide minimum relief to residential, it would put a huge burden on commercial," Quill said in a phone interview.

While the bulk of the tax burden falls on residential properties, shifting the tax rate even a few cents would add up to thousands of dollars more for the town's commercial taxpayers.

Quill explained that splitting the tax rate so residential taxpayers pay $10.38 (rather than $10.78) would translate into savings of $300 annually on a house valued at $750,000. However for a business valued at three-quarters of a million dollars – the tax rate would jump more than $5 to $16.17. That business would pay $4,042 more with the split rate ($10.38/$16.17).

The tax rate for fiscal 2008 was $10.60. With the 18-cent increase in tax rate to $10.78, coupled with an average increased property valuation, residents should see an average increase of about 3.8 percent.

In the past year, the average valuation of residential property (including single family homes, condominiums and multi-family homes), increased from $773,000 to $784,000. In the same vein, the average tax bill will increase from $8,162 to $8452 or a $290 increase.

The average valued single family home is assessed at $867,000, a jump from last year's assessed value of $848,000. For the average valued single family home the tax bill will be $9346 up from $8988 – an increase of about $358 or $29 a month.

Current assessed property values are based on calendar 2007 sales, Quill said.

"Values were stable," she said, adding that the values in some neighborhoods went down and some went up.

The new tax rate will be reflected in the third quarter tax bills.

Tax bills vary depending on a property's assessed value. By taking the assessed value of the property and dividing it by $1,000 and then multiplying it by the tax rate, a homeowner can compute his property taxes.

Elsa Miller of the Board of Assessors praised the Assessors Office for going after the town's new growth, which is estimated at $445,000. Under Prop. 2-1/2, "new growth" allows a community to increase its levy limit annually by an amount based on the increased value of new construction. New growth is calculated by multiplying the increase in the assessed valuation of qualifying property by the prior year's tax rate.

Prop. 2-1/2 is the state law that caps the amount a municipality can raise its tax levy in any given year.

Single-family home taxes at a glance

- Six years ago, in fiscal 2003, the average home was assessed at $521,000; with a tax rate of $11.99; the homeowner paid about $6,248 in property taxes.
- In fiscal 2007, the average home was assessed at $825,000; tax rate was $10.44; taxes were $8,662.
- In fiscal 2008, the average home was assessed at $848,000; tax rate was $10.60; taxes were $8,988.
- In fiscal 2009, the average home was assessed at $867,000; tax rate expected to be $10.78; taxes expected to be $9,346.

'Stolen goods' return under investigation

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Police are building evidence to determine what charges could be filed following reports of individuals returning items to CVS without a receipt. Police think the items being returned may have been stolen.

On Saturday (Nov. 29) police received two reports about a person in the CVS trying to return possible stolen goods. It is routine to ask for a person's driver's license in these cases, police said.

In the first incident, a man attempted to return bottles of vitamins worth $15 each and was given a store credit. In the second incident, the same subject returned with a woman who tried to return makeup without a receipt. The manager refused the return.

The store provided police with the subjects' driver's license information. Police have been in contact with Scituate, which also had a similar incident at the CVS on Front Street. The Scituate store provided a plate number of the subjects' vehicle, police said.

Chief James Hussey said at this point, police are putting a case together to determine what charges the subjects may be facing. It appears they were trying to return items that had not been paid for originally, he said.

Car break-ins

Hull arrested two teens in an unrelated incident who may have been responsible for a rash of car break-ins overnight Sunday (Nov. 23) to Monday (Nov. 24) in the Linden Drive-Rustic Drive area. Police received six calls on Monday (Nov. 24) from residents reporting their cars had been broken into and rifled through overnight.

Police said the cars were not damaged and had been left unlocked. When Hull stopped the teens, they were in possession of two cell phones and a Blackberry stolen from Cohasset cars, police said.

The break-ins are being investigated and Cohasset police could be seeking charges against the two male teens.

Minors with beer

Two Scituate minors, ages 20 and 19, are facing the charge of being minors transporting alcohol following a traffic stop for speeding on Saturday (Nov. 29) at about 6:47 p.m. An officer clocked a red Ford pickup traveling 45 in a 30 mph zone on King Street near Schofield Road. The officer stopped the truck and observed two 30 packs of beer and one 20 pack of beer. The officer asked the men for their licenses which revealed they were under 21. The operator is also being cited for speeding.

OUI arrest

A 50-year-old Scituate woman is facing the charge of operating under the influence of alcohol following a traffic stop on Saturday (Nov. 29) at about 8:20 p.m. Police said a 9-1-1 caller reported an erratic driver in an Audi on Pond Street near the high school. The officer saw the Audi heading east toward Spring Street and observed it cross over the centerline near Bancroft Road. The officer stopped the car and could smell alcohol from the driver. The officer had to assist her in finding her license. Based on further investigation she was charged with OUI, negligent operation and marked lanes violation.

Stormwater bylaw in action

First applications before ConComm this week

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

After years of debate, development and drafts, the stormwater management bylaw at last came into play for two new development projects this week.

On Thursday night after the Mariner went to press the Conservation Commission heard two applications for stormwater permits — 20 Parkingway and 26 Deep Run. The two applications are the first to seek a stormwater permit from the town.

The stormwater management bylaw was approved at the spring Annual Town Meeting and has an accompanying set of rules and regulations to govern the process.

The regulations establish minimum requirements and procedures to control the adverse effects of increased stormwater runoff, decreased groundwater recharge, and non-point source pollution associated with new development and redevelopment. While the bylaw and regulations can't do anything about existing stormwater problems, the aim is to prevent further exacerbation of the issue.

The project on 20 Parkingway is a new one-story medical building to be built in the Village behind the gas station. At 26 Deep Run, a large home construction is being proposed. The Planning Board, contingent on the applicants getting all other necessary approvals from town boards, has approved both projects.

David Farrag, chairman of the Conservation Commission, is looking forward to going through the process with these two applications.

"We want to get a few in and then see what can be tweaked to make the process more seamless," said Farrag. Getting the public and applicants to understand what the stormwater management bylaw does, how it works and why it is important is a challenge as people just aren't used to the bylaw and its regulations yet.

After the first few applications, the board will revisit the process to determine what went well and what could go better. While very few have had issues with the stormwater performance standards, it is the fees associated with the process that may need to be revisited.

"We don't want to make it so it is burdensome," said Farrag.

Farrag likens the stormwater system to nearly all the other town permitting processes. The applicant/developer must submit information and then the town has the responsibility to ensure the information is correct and is ultimately what gets built. "It's a trust but verify system," said Farrag.

Smaller projects, such as sheds, will not be affected by the stormwater bylaw. Once projects increase the impervious surface of a property by 500 square feet or more, consideration for stormwater runoff must be taken. When projects alter more than 5,000 square feet, a resident or developer needs to obtain a stormwater permit, which is a public hearing process.

It is the hope of the Conservation Commission that projects will seek the commission and stormwater agent's advice early in the planning stages so they can encourage the use of low impact development techniques. Low-impact development techniques include raingardens, minimizing impervious surfaces, treating stormwater in numerous small, decentralized structures and utilizing natural topography for drainage ways and storage areas.

What's happening with the stormwater committee?

As of this point in time, there is no official stormwater committee. It can be best described as being in flux. Since the committee largely completed their initial ad-hoc charge of developing a stormwater bylaw, it has been a question as to whether the town government needs the committee.

Sarah Charron, a member of the Stormwater Committee, has been working on a new charge for the committee for a number of months. Before the Board of Selectmen Monday night she proposed the stormwater committee be charged with items that other boards don't have the time or resources to do: perform public education and outreach, be the go-to place for the public for stormwater issues, and assist in grant writing.

There is some disagreement over how to populate the stormwater committee if it was to be re-instated. Charron proposed having five citizens-at-large members with various liaisons from other boards (Board of Health, Conservation Commission, Water Commission, Sewer Commission, Planning Board and School Committee) to ensure proper communication. Charron believed members of the other boards should not be the primary members because they are stretched thin already with their own board's duties.

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer, who was not at the meeting but sent an e-mail with his thoughts on the matter, said he would like to see the board populated with a member of the Conservation Commission, the Department of Public Works and Emergency Management Committee, as well as two members at large.

No decision was made on the Stormwater Committee. The Selectmen requested Charron work to mesh the two lines of thought and come back before the board.

Stormwater Management in brief

• Stormwater negatively impacts the health of Cohasset's water bodies. Stormwater is rainwater and snowmelt that runs off lawns and streets and picks up bacteria, fertilizers, pesticides, oil and grease and other pollutants on the way to our brooks, rivers ponds, meadows, harbors and beaches. In Cohasset Cove and harbor there is bacteria, nutrients and other contaminants. After a one-inch rainfall, the harbor is automatically closed for swimming. In James Brook there are nutrients, bacteria, total suspended solids and low dissolved oxygen.

• The bylaw ensures future development incorporates stormwater controls. The bylaw does not prevent future development, but rather ensures stormwater controls are designed for each project to prevent additional stormwater flooding and pollution leaving each site.

• There is a two-tiered approval process managed by the Conservation Commission and the town's stormwater agent (Norfolk Ram Group). Projects increasing net impervious area by 500 square feet will require an "administrative approval" by the stormwater agent. Projects altering more than 5,000 square feet will require a more extensive "stormwater permit" from the Conservation Commission. Application and review fees will cover the cost of the stormwater agent.

• Permitting thresholds were developed scientifically. The size of projects proposed to trigger review under the bylaw was developed based on hydrologic calculations evaluating changes in volume and peak flow of stormwater runoff. This evaluation was conducted by the Stormwater Management Committee consulting engineer, Norfolk Ram Group, hired by Cohasset to assist in the development of the stormwater management bylaw. The engineering consultant evaluated the impact of increasing the impervious surface area for typical lot sizes, building footprints and driveway footprints using typical Cohasset soil conditions.

Martin, who was accompanied by CAC members Mike Zotos and James Morrison, explained the cost of the systems the committee believes are needed would be about $100,000. She said Comcast has offered to impose a surcharge of up to 3.85 percent on Cohasset customers' bills as well as providing an initial loan of $20,000 "to get up and going," she said. According to Comcast, the surcharge would produce about $100,000 annually, Martin said.

The revenues would go into a Public Access Corporation governed by a board of directors appointed by selectmen. The town accountant would keep financial records with all funds under the control of selectmen and the Town Manager. The money can only be used to provide public access television to the residents of Cohasset and cannot be used by the town for anything else, Martin said.

The surcharge would be reduced if the balance held by the PAC exceeds the town's needs, Martin said.

She explained the first $100,000 would be targeted for equipment within Town Hall to allow continued channel 10 programming, training on how to use that equipment and upgrades to the current meeting room systems to allow meetings to be recorded and played back for additional viewing opportunities.

Additional monies that will follow could be used to upgrade equipment for the high school channel 22 and/or to take advantage of new TV technology that might include broadcasting high school sporting events or live streaming on the web, Martin explained.

The Cable Advisory Committee suggested that a studio might be located at Town Hall.

The CAC explained that the selectmen and school committee meetings can continue to be covered live using existing equipment — although that equipment would also need to be upgraded at some point — but other local programming would "go dark" until the studio is up and running.

The committee hopes to have a temporary studio in place by next fall. The equipment would be portable, the committee explained.

Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr urged the committee to compile a "wish list" during negotiations and think about asking Comcast for it. He pointed out that Comcast has had a monopoly. "All should be on the table," he said.

Town Manager Bill Griffin told the CAC to circle back to selectmen on the studio location issue. Having the studio at Town Hall may raise access issues and compete for space with other activities.

"We need to have the opportunity to discuss it," Griffin said.

Martin said the CAC's "dream would be to create a studio in the old wing of Town Hall that could be shared with the Cohasset Dramatic Club."

David Farrag, chairman of the Town Hall Restoration Committee, said the Town Hall Restoration Committee has had preliminary discussions with the Cable Advisory Committee.

"A town hall renovation would include having the auditorium 'cable ready' for public meetings and/or events that could be broadcasted over cable," Farrag said in an email interview.

Farrag said the public hearing on the wind turbines this week is a good example of the need for cable access. The hearing filled the auditorium.

"Unfortunately, nobody could see the meeting (on TV) because the auditorium has no capability for cable at this time," he said.

Farrag said with a town hall renovation, it has been requested that a screen have the capability for PowerPoint presentations as well for public meetings and or events.

The Cable Advisory Committee noted that the future of local accessing programming could be a bright one. The committee envisions sports and community events being televised.

The next step for the CAC is to sit down with Comcast to start negotiating the new 10 year contract, Martin said..

About the cable bill surcharge

Current Comcast bills have an item for "Franchise Related Cost" of $1.04 for "cost associated with local access programming, facilities, equipment or other related license requirements." This is a flat fee for all subscribers and fee pays for the Comcast studio in Norwell, which is used by five local towns, including Cohasset. Comcast has notified the towns that it will close the studio as of June 30, 2009. All towns have expiring contracts during the first eight months of 2009.

Therefore, in order to continue public access programming, Cohasset needs to create its own facility.

Selectman Paul Carlson, who sits on the Cable Advisory Committee, explained Comcast has made an offer to charge a new Franchise Related Cost (FRC) of 3.85 percent of each subscriber's cable bill for the first two years. In subsequent years the FRC will drop to 3 percent. This does not apply to a subscriber's non-cable fees for Internet, phone, etc. Standard cable costs $54.35 monthly so the new FRC will be $2.09 or $25.08 per year. People with more expensive packages will pay more. After the first two years, the cost will be $1.63 monthly or $19.57 per year.

Comcast has also offered $20,000 lump sum to be paid by the subscribers over the first year. Carlson said the CAC has not obtained any details on how this will work.

He explained assuming it will be a flat fee for all subscribers, it would amount to approximately $8 per subscriber for the year or 67 cents on each subscriber's monthly bill.

Carlson said the revenue from these fees would go into a new Public Access Corporation to be set up by Selectmen and, basically be under their control. The money can only be expended on public access related expenditures including capital and operating costs.

"With Comcast closing their studio, we must create the capability to originate our own public access programming," Carlson said. "Under the plan we are developing, we will be able to maintain the existing programming and add new capabilities for the benefit of Cohasset cable subscribers."

MV collision

A Cohasset woman in a 2003 Ford was backing out of her driveway on Jerusalem Road at about 11 a.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 25) when she struck the driver's side quarter panel of a 2006 BMW being operated by a Scituate woman. The Scituate woman had pulled over to answer her cell phone. Police said the Cohasset woman said she did not see the BMW. Neither car had to be towed and no one was cited, police said.

Lesson

A concerned mother apparently trying to teach her 12-year-old daughter a lesson brought her daughter to the police station last week after she stole an iPod from her mother. Police spoke to the daughter with the mother present. Police said this would be handled as a family matter.

Littering

Police followed up on a report from a caller about a vehicle full of teens tossing bottles out of the car window last week. The caller provided a plate number; police went to the home and spoke to those involved. They had to return to the area and pick up the items.

Larceny

Police are investigating the apparent theft of $150 in cash, two credit cards and a camera from an employee's handbag at a local shop off Route 3A. The victim reported the theft after leaving work and discovering the missing cash and items. The door to the back room where she kept her handbag while at the shop was not secured so it is not clear if another employee stole the items or a customer, police said. The incident remains under investigation.

Warrant

An Eastham man was arrested last Thursday (Nov. 27) on an outstanding warrant while Cohasset police were responding to a local residence at the request of Hingham police who were investigating an alleged assault in their town.

During the course of the investigation, it was determined that the Eastham man was wanted on the warrant, police said.

Egged

A car parked at the Cohasset Train Station was egged last Thursday (Nov. 27). The vehicle was parked at the lot all day. The car owner wanted the incident logged. Police said it appears to be an isolated incident.

Keyed

A mother, who lives on Jerusalem Road, called police after discovering that her daughter's 1994 red Honda had been keyed on all four sides last week. The family does not know who might have done the vandalism, police said. They believed it occurred while the car was parked in the driveway.

Vandalism

A concerned neighbor, who was watching her neighbor's house on Parker Avenue, called police to report some vandalism last week. Police said a cover to one of the cars was ripped and the plastic on the jeep was cracked. The incidents appear to have been isolated and are under investigation.

Ilene Colwill welcomes new granddaughter

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

HELLO, DECEMBER

Hello Cohasset and a happy welcome to the month of December. With all the holidays this month, special fairs and events going on, we should all be in very happy spirits that is for sure. If you have anything you would like to share with our town, please send it on in to me here at aroundtowncohasset@yahoo.com and I will make sure to share it in the column. Photos, fun stories about events and information as well is welcome at any time.

NEW ARRIVAL

I will kick off this week's column with a bit of news about a new little girl in our world. Congratulations to out to Jodi (Colwill) and James Park as they announce the birth of their daughter, Olivia Grace Parks. Olivia arrived in our world on Sept. 9, 2008 and weighed in at 9 pounds, 2 ounces and was 22 inches long. Jodi, James and Miss Olivia live in Atlanta and are absolutely in love with their little princess. I know that this special little lady will be loved, cuddled and adored by all, and that Olivia's grandma, Ilene Colwill is in her glory! Thank Heavens For Little Girls.

GIFT IDEAS

Here are a few bits of news that may give some of you some ideas for a gift or two.

DVD's of the 2008 CHS Pre Prom Reception from May 30th are still available to purchase for $20 each and make great holiday gifts! To order a copy please call Shaun Galvin at 781-424-2197 or email your request to shaun_galvin@yahoo.com The request can also be mailed with a check for $20.00 per DVD to Shaun Galvin P.O. Box 526 Hingham, MA 02043.

Here is another holiday gift idea that will come in handy for many. Show your Paul Pratt Pride and purchase a book bag from the Friends of the Library. These green, durable canvas tote bags have the library logo in white on the front and are roomy enough for your books, videos and magazines. There's even a pocket for your library card. Pick one up for $15 at the library and fill it with gently used books, videos, audiobooks, and paperbacks from the book sale rack. Book sale items are priced $1 and under. Makes a great gift for mom and dad!

Here are some events that are happening this month at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. From now through Dec 31,

BUSINESS NOTES

Town counsel named 'Super Lawyer'

COURTESY PHOTO

Cohasset Town Counsel Paul DeRensis has been named as one of 2008's Massachusetts Super Lawyers.

Cohasset Town Counsel Paul DeRensis was named in November 2008 as one of 2008's Massachusetts Super Lawyers along with three other members of his firm, Deutsch Williams Brooks DeRensis & Holland, P.C. The list of 2008 Massachusetts Super Lawyers is assembled by Law & Politics in conjunction with Boston Magazine based on surveys of more than 31,000 lawyers across the region aimed at selecting as Super Lawyers the top 5 percent of New England attorneys in more than 60 practice areas and reflects both peer recognition and professional achievement verified through careful selection process to determine New England's best.

His practice is concentrated in the area of municipal law, and he was one of only 12 lawyers recognized as a Super Lawyer in the municipal law area throughout the six New England states. This is the fourth time that Mr. DeRensis has been recognized as a municipal "super lawyer."

This is the fourth time that Mr. DeRensis has been recognized as a municipal "super lawyer."

DeRensis is a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School, and is admitted to practice in New York and Massachusetts and in various federal courts including the United States Supreme Court. He serves as Town Counsel to a number of Massachusetts's municipalities. Mr. DeRensis has served as Cohasset's Town Counsel for 12 years.

All New England Super Lawyers will be listed in November's issue of Boston Magazine.

Now open: new Cohasset women's boutique

The new women's boutique, Pink Tulip Clothes & Accessories, showcases up-and-coming designers who focus on classic designs with a modern twist, and one-of-a-kind accessories from local artisans.

Pink Tulip Clothes & Accessories channels Audrey Hepburn and Jackie O with its choice of detailed holiday wear. Chanel-inspired suits, traditional coats with distinctive accents, and jewelry and accessories provide the perfect blend of classic and modern to any wardrobe.

Pink Tulip Clothes & Accessories streamlines and enhances the shopping experience by arranging the clothing according to women's activities and shopping goals. So, clothes are organized and displayed for "going out", "working out" and "out and about".

Located at the new Depot Court building in Cohasset Village, the store is punctuated with informative in-store signage with style tips and merchandise descriptions, upbeat music and pink-colored walls.

Owner and Internet entrepreneur Christine Nagle has re-channeled her sales and marketing experience to her first love – fashion – to launch the new endeavor. "My goal is for every woman who walks in the store to look around, give a deep and meaningful sigh, and say, 'Now, this is going to be fun."

Pink Tulip Clothes & Accessories is open 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday, noon to 5 p.m., on Sunday, and by appointment. For more information, call 781-210-9584.

Volunteers, Karen Kirkendall, Nancy Sandell, Susan Jaffee, Lisa Hewitt Dick, Lisa Lynch and Betts Murray (seated) are making wreaths for village shops and businesses in preparation for the Holiday Stroll, Dec. 13.

Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll is Dec. 13

Mark your calendar for the Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll on Saturday, Dec. 13th from 4-7 p.m. This year is going to be better than ever! There are new and exciting additions to the program, including; a parade to start things off, live music and a DJ. Visit one of the new shops as well as your old favorites while enjoying refreshments and treats. Kids will have a wonderful time with merchants offering everything from face painting to hayrides to cookie decorating. And, speaking of Old St. Nick, don't be surprised if he stops by for a visit!

This event will benefit the Cohasset Food Pantry and Toys for Tots. Donations for both organizations will be accepted at the event. Thank you to the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce and the Cohasset Economic Development Committee who help sponsor the Stroll.

Celebrate the spirit of season, and join us for another magical Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll!

For information or questions, please call Karen Kirkendall at 781-383-9922, or Darilynn Evans at 781-383-1002.

Please join the Society members, guests and friends for this time of fellowship, good cheer and convivial conversation.

Mural restored

Citizen comes forth to repair student mural

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

With the holiday season upon us, good will and cheer abounds. This was no more apparent this past Thanksgiving weekend when a Cohasset man put in time, skill and a little bit of elbow grease to restore the vandalized mural in the village.

Jack Nash, a lifelong Cohasset resident, heard from a friend on Thanksgiving Day how a mural 26 high school kids painted was vandalized. On Friday morning while stopping in at French Memories he checked out the mural. A carpenter and painter by trade, Nash thought he might be able to remove the black spray paint off.

"In the painting business, the one thing you know how to do is remove your mistakes," Nash said in a phone interview.

A few hours later, he returned to the village with a can of lacquer thinner, a stiff brush and a ladder and set out with the intention to test a couple of discreet spots. He rubbed the lacquer thinner into the brick, then patted it off with a cotton rag. The spray paint came off, but not the paint underneath.

"It came off so nicely, I just kept going," he said. "As a painter and an artist it would have upset me to have something I painted destroyed so I felt compelled to fix it."

He spent the next few hours in the pouring rain removing the graffiti from the mural.

There was a moment of fear as he began that passersby would think he was adding more graffiti to the mural, but it quickly faded as one person came to snap his picture and others to thank him.

Before Nash showed up to remove the graffiti on Friday morning, Arts Booster president Elaine Breslow had called around to ask local professionals for their advice. She was met with generosity. Local painter Bob Gledhill offered to bring a tarp and borrow heat lamps so the students could work in the cold weather. Cohasset-based mason Brendan St. John offered to look into products to aid in removing the black paint.

She was appreciative of all the community support.

Then, while in the village Friday morning she ran into Nash who had gone ahead and started the restoration.

The Cohasset High Art Major class, under the director of art teacher Nina Berkowitz, worked on the mural project for over a month. The class worked cooperatively during various class times to complete the mural. The day after they had pronounced the mural substantially complete (only a few touch-ups remained), the mural was vandalized.

Sometime over night on Thursday, Nov. 13, an individual or a group vandalized the mural the class had nearly completed in the village pocket park between Tedeschi's and French Memories. The black spray paint affected nearly every part of the mural.

The painted mural was of a view of the Cohasset Harbor from Government Island, with the iconic Minot Light replica in the foreground.

Though both disappointed and dismayed someone would do that to the mural, the students resolved to restore the mural to its original luster, but faced challenges of class time and colder weather.

"When I told the kids, they were so happy and grateful," said Berkowitz. "It was a really nice moment for them to know that their hard work was appreciated and acknowledged by people in the community, and restored a little bit of faith that they lost when it was vandalized."

The students will do some additional touch-ups on the mural to restore it to its proper vibrancy.

What you need to know about safe ice

By Ted Carroll,
Recreation Director
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

With the winter season upon us, residents of all ages look for outdoor areas for ice skating. When we start getting consistently cold weather Elm's Meadow, located at Cushing Road and Spring Street, will be prepared by the DPW for skating, and lights, until 9:30 p.m., are also on for night skating. Elm's Meadow offers a regulated, shallow area for safe skating.

However, as with any outdoor skating area, the ice should be tested before venturing on it. There are specific ways to test ice safety, which do not include throwing debris such as rocks, sticks, etc. on the ice making it hazardous for everyone.

Rather, test the ice by the edge of a skating area by carefully stepping out 6- to 8-inches, proceeding carefully to about 2 feet out from the edge only if the ice appears to be safe under your weight. Chip the ice with a tool or stick until you can ascertain a rough idea as to the thickness of the ice. You should always have another person with you when doing this.

Many outdoor skating areas do not have the same thickness of ice universally over the area. Always be on guard for soft spots or thin ice that manifest from underground springs, drain pipes, etc. This is especially true at Elm's Meadow by the Spring Street/Cushing Road corner of the area due to drains off the hillside.

General safe ice standards

Ice safe for:	0-30 degrees	30-40 degrees	40-50 degrees
Single skaters:	1 3/34 inches	2 3/34 inches	6 inches
Couples:	2 3/34 inches	3 3/34 inches	8 inches
Crowds:	3 3/34 inches	4 3/34 inches	12 inches

Stay off salt water ice completely!

These figures are for clear, fresh water ice only; for snow ice, add 2 inches; for waterlogged ice, add 3 inches; if skates cut it, go home! Saltwater in mild climates is always treacherous - keep away from it. Also, thickness in the 40-50 degree column are safe depths for short periods of time only.

Lily Pond will be open for skating this winter of the effect the aeration has done for the pond over the last year is impossible to ascertain because its influence cannot be isolated from other efforts, Water Commissioner Nathaniel Palmer said there does appear to have been a positive effect on manganese removal due to the aeration system.

"There are many other benefits to the pond in water quality and overall ecosystem," said Palmer, adding the greatest impact on manganese removal comes from optimized plant operations.

"The team at the plant has done an extraordinary job at manganese removal, which is measurable in testing and visible in the distribution system," said Palmer in an e-mail.

"We will be starting the aeration again in the spring."
— Glenn Pratt, Water Commission

Now that the system is beyond the initial start-up phase and in operation for over a year, the Water Commission is able to shut it down for a limited period of time. The fact that winter is a time of low manganese in the pond water also led the commission to turn off the aeration for the winter, said Pratt.

"We have continued to make improvements to the treatment processes in the plant in conjunction with the aeration system," said Pratt.

Although the aeration system is shut off this winter, it does not mean the ice will be safe for skating. Because of fluctuating weather last year, there were very few days, if any, where ice activities on Lily Pond would have been possible.

"This year we are hoping the combination of colder weather and having the system shutoff will allow for safe winter skating," said Palmer.

Caroling on the Common is Dec. 13

Participants will gather at the Parish House at 23 North Main St., between 3:45-4 p.m. for cookies and cider.

Hey there, Merry-Makers! Once again, First Parish is sponsoring a holiday treat for young and old: the well-loved Cohasset tradition---- Caroling on the Common--- on Saturday, Dec. 13.

Everyone is welcome! This is a community event for young and old, especially those with school-age children. Bring some friends. Exceptional singing voices are NOT required; carols will be familiar and simple—there will be songbooks for everyone. Because it gets dark quickly, you are asked to bring flashlights.

Participants will gather at the Parish House at 23 North Main St., between 3:45-4 p.m. for cookies and cider. The group will then leave to start the singing near the duck pond. At approximately 4:45 p.m., everyone will return to the Parish House for hot cocoa, cider and cookies (cookie donations will be much appreciated.)

Please bring a pair of socks (or two or three), which will be donated to Boston Health Care for the Homeless. Socks should be white cotton; both men's and women's sizes are needed.

Come join your friends for an old-fashioned holiday get-together, and pass the word. The more the merrier!

was, the night, tonight

when a care-free, baby boomer couple wished to enjoy a casual night out with their equally cool friends. But, where to go? The down-under chain? No...too typical, too expensive. The local sports bar? No...too crowded, too crazy! They wanted good food, hip decor, relaxing, come as you are & stay awhile!

The choice was clear!

Tony Carbone and Lilly Sestito will be singing three songs with the Rusty Skippers at the Village Fair this weekend.

Village Fair rings in the holidays

A decades-old holiday tradition continues as the Village Fair is celebrated on Cohasset Common from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 6. Featured will be an abundance of affordable holiday options – food, crafts, books, a visit from Santa at no charge, and music with a goodwill offering for Wellspring, the social service agency based in Hull that serves the South Shore.

Participants will be Second Congregational Church, First Parish Unitarian Universalist and St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. Head to the parish hall of each congregation to find food, gently priced books and crafts. At noon, gather at the Meeting House of First Parish Unitarian Universalist, where the Rusty Skippers, formed several years ago by the late Rev. Ed Atkinson of First Parish, will play holiday tunes and invite the audience to join in on a number of familiar carols. A free-will offering will be made during the concert with the proceeds benefiting Cohasset Food Pantry.

Weather permitting, Santa will be on the Common throughout the day to hear children's wish lists and share a photo. In the event of bad weather, Santa will be inside the parish hall at the Congregational Church.

Second Congregational Church will have its traditional Christmas arts and crafts bazaar, The Chowder Bar, bake tables, Cabot cheese, a Surf and Turf raffle, a silent auction and the Children's Corner.

First Parish Unitarian Universalist will host its annual ReUUsable Sale of pre-owned treasures in Trueblood Hall. Gently used house wares, linens, furniture, children's clothing, toys, jewelry, books, sporting goods and decorative items for the holidays will be offered. While browsing through the treasure trove, enjoy a breakfast/brunch on a stick – a kabob-like pancake and sausage concoction that is new this year – along with coffee, tea or juice. All proceeds benefit the many ministries of the congregation, with the exception of the crafts from Appalachia for sale in the Atkinson Room of the Parish House. Proceeds from these crafts will benefit the Appalachian Service Project that allows many of the community's young people and adults to travel in the summer to Appalachia for a week of service learning.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church (on the hill) will again host its annual book sale offering hundreds of gently used books covering all topics ranging from gardening, theology, history, poetry, fiction and children's literature. Along with the books, St. Stephen's will have a bake sale, craft sale, its annual country kitchen for those looking for a quick hot meal and several items available for auction. New this year in the craft sale, are beaded bracelets handmade by parishioners. All proceeds generated by the fair at St. Stephen's will be donated through the church's outreach work to various social service agencies that help those in need.

Also new at St. Stephen's this year is a booth set up by St. Stephen's Youth Group for selling bags made by women from Burma as part of their ongoing project to raise $10,000 for the building of two preschools in Burma. These colorful bags were purchased by St. Stephen's directly from the Burmese women.

St. Stephen's traditional Secret Santa Room for children will be in the bottom floor of the church hall. This annual event sponsored by the Appalachia Service Project, lets children go shopping for Christmas gifts for their families. Gifts are wrapped by ASP volunteers so that the children have a special gift to give family members on Christmas morning.

Unwelcome neighbors take flight

Strait's Pond midge population down

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

No neighborhood wants to be described as "inhospitable."

But when is comes to pesky midges, those who live around Straits Pond, whether on the Hull or Cohasset side, willingly accept the portrayal.

"For the first time in living memory there was not a significant midge outbreak all season."

— Lawry Reid, Straits Pond Watershed Association

Lawry Reid, president of the Straits Pond Watershed Association, explained that midges have affected the quality of life around Straits Pond for well over 100 years and perhaps longer. He read an excerpt from an 1848 newspaper report to selectmen Monday detailing the problem. SPWA members Merle Graham and Dick Avery of Cohasset were also present.

Reid said after numerous scientific studies and efforts that did not result in a significant impact, the Straits Pond neighbors decided to focus on the causes of the midge problem based on the hypothesis that regular and significant tidal exchange would improve the pond environment.

He said back in 2003, the SPWA brought together the scientists and stakeholders in five forums. At the fifth meeting, residents decide to go after the cause of the pond's problems rather than treat the symptoms.

In a handout, the SPWA explained that if there is regular and significant tidal exchange, things start to change for four reasons:

- Increased salinity keeps midges from reproducing.
- Flushing of nutrients and organic material makes water less stagnant.
- Snails and worms colonize and metabolize organic material by ingesting the mucky material and excreting sandy sediments – resulting in fewer odors.
- Snails and worms also form the bottom of the food chain for fish and birds.

Following a major midge outbreak in 2007, the Hull conservation agent, with the approval of the Cohasset conservation agent, tested the hypothesis by keeping the tide gates open as much as possible. The tide gates have been operating this way ever since, Reid said.

"For the first time in living memory there was not a significant midge outbreak all season," Reid said about 2008. "For us on the pond, that is about as major as you can get."

He also explained the SPWA sediment sampling showed snails and worms have been moving in. Residents have also reported seeing osprey fishing in the pond.

The SPWA says the pace of improvements should pick up when new, larger tide gates are installed as part of the West Corner Culvert project.

Reid said the SPWA thanks the three towns that share the West Corner Culvert project for their support. "The West Corner project would not be anywhere without the support of the three towns," he said.

However, additional projects such as rain gardens to address storm-water pollution and nutrient overload from entering the pond are also needed.

Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr suggested that lessons learned at Straits Pond in regards to tidal flushing might be useful in other areas of town where tidal flow has been an issue.

However, Reid pointed out that the natural ledge in Straits Pond near the Greek Church keeps 70 percent of the pond surface remaining no matter who much water is let out of the pond through the tide gates.

"We cannot lose all the water at low tide," he said. Reid said the tidal flushing has been a huge political struggle in Hull.

About the midges

SPWA member Dick Avery of Cohasset describes the midges as "swarming gnats only larger and don't seem to bite."

" When I would run around Straits Pond in the spring and summer the main danger was to swallow them on air intakes and get them in my eyes," he said in an email. "... The floating bird boxes you see in the pond are an attempt to attract tree swallows, which dine on midges. The midges also seem to be a bell weather on pond health."

Here are local midge facts:

- There are 5000 recorded species of midges with about 2,500 species of Chiromonidae found in North America.. Most are non-biting and live in water. Some have adapted to a low oxygen environment.
- Of the 40-50 species which may be inhabiting Straits Pond only a small percentage (4-5 percent) are filter-feeders. The filter feeders are the species that form swarms (in the adult stage) and are a nuisance. The species inhabiting the Pond is a species of Chiromomids, a non-biting aquatic midge.
- The midges have a 4-stage life cycle: egg to larvae to pupae to adult. They inhabit the pond during their larval and pupae stages, primarily existing in the shallow edges of the Pond. The first generation historically emerge from the Pond as adult midges in late April.
- During the 1992 Straits Pond study attempts were being made to positively identify the species of Chironomid midge found in Straits Pond. Past studies have identified the species as C. Decorus (1953 Mass. Dept. of Public Health Study) or C.Riparius (IEP 1980 Study). During the 1992 Study specimens of midge larvae were sent to the Museum of Natural History in Washington DC and reply from there was pending. Communication with Dr.Ashad Ali of the Univ. of Florida and Dr. Joel Margolit of Harvard University tentatively indicate the species may be C. chironomus.
- The 1994 Straits Pond Study refers to the "...species of midge fly known as Chiromonous Riparius" so it appears that final identification of the specific species was made.
- 1994 Straits Pond Study: After 3 years of data collection determined that there are 3 generations of midges during the spring through fall seasons. The first generation is when the over-wintering larvae mature and leave the pond in mid-April as adult flies. Absence of larvae were recorded from mid-April through May. The second generation was recorded by larvae peaks in June followed by a decline in the early part of July. The third generation is recorded by larvae population peaks in August and declines in September when the larvae have matured and emerge from the pond as adult flies.

Waterfowl park possible

Lawry Reid, president of the Straits Pond Watershed Association, told selectmen Monday that as a way of saying thanks to the residents of Cohasset and Hull for their support, the SPWA is in the early stages of considering development of as a Waterfowl Park at Straits Pond on town-owned land that would be accessible to the community.

Reid explained that 90 different types of birds have been spotted at the pond during spring and fall bird walks.

"This is an extraordinary area," Reid said.

Selectman Karen Quigley expressed her support for the waterfowl park and offered her assistance to bring that to fruition.

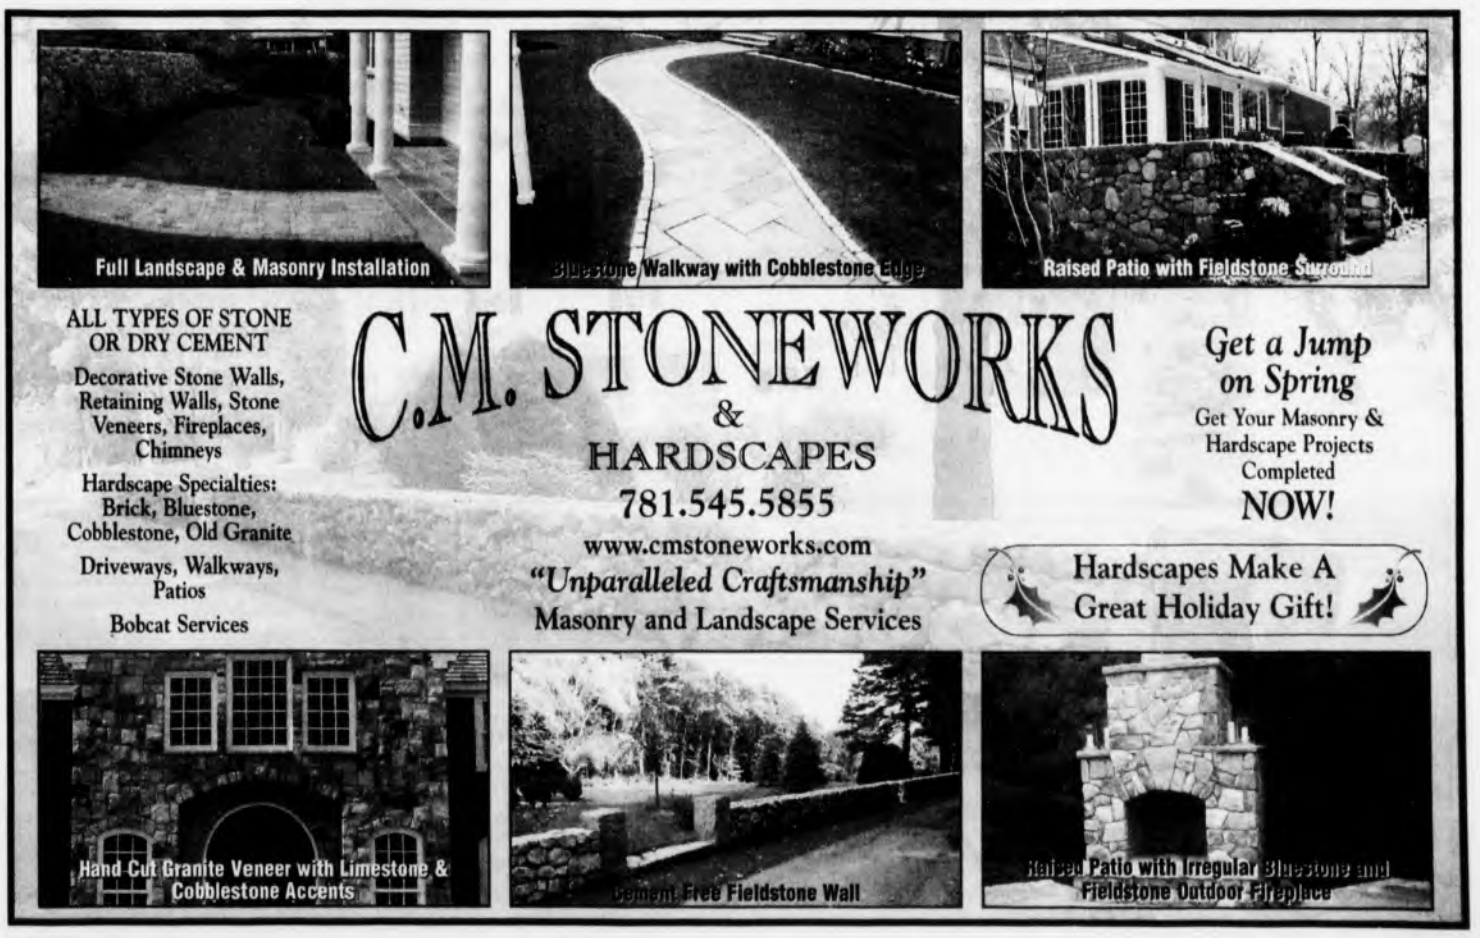
West Corner Culvert project update

Cohasset, Hingham and Hull joined forces about five years ago to replace and expand the deteriorating West Corner culvert and tide gates that have caused major problems for Straits Pond over the years. The culvert, which not only serves as the only source of in and out-flow for the waters of Straits Pond, supports one of the two major roads in Hull and carries telephone and cable wires, as well as water and gas for Hull, and sewer lines for parts of Cohasset and Hingham. The structure is of major importance to the three towns as well as the ecological environment and is in dire need of an overhaul.

The pond, which is located between the southeast portion of Hull and the northeast portion of Cohasset, and is flanked by Atlantic Avenue in Hull and Jerusalem Road in Cohasset, has been in need of major improvements for years. Stagnant waters have provided a perfect breeding ground for algae and midges, which have been distracting from the natural beauty of the setting as well as causing problems for neighbors.

Because of its unique location, ownership of the culvert is 50 percent Hull, and 25 percent each Cohasset and Hingham. In light of the situation, members of the Straits Pond Watershed Association (SPWA) led the charge before the three towns, asking they chip in to help fund the $2.69 million restoration project, which is being largely paid for with federal and state funds. Of the total amount of the project, Cohasset and Hingham have contributed about 2 percent and Hull 4 percent.

Mass Highway opened the bids for the project on Nov. 25th. There were 7 bidders and 2 of the seven submitted bids below the estimate, Hull Town Manager Phil Lemnios said.



"This is good news for the project," he said. "Mass Highway is in the process of verifying bidders calculations and responses (standard practice).

"Mass Highway will identify the lowest bidder that had a complete submission and begin to put the award document together as well as contracts. After the contracts are awarded there will be a notice to proceed, a pre-construction meeting (late winter-early spring). We can expect the project to begin late Spring," he said.

Taste of Greece at Village Fair

The Ladies Philoptochos Society of the Panagia Greek Orthodox Church will once again participate in the Cohasset Village Fair, and will be set up across from the pond in the South Shore Community Center Village. The fair will take place 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 6.

Decorated fresh wreaths will be displayed for sale outside along the walkway leading to the sights, sounds and scents of traditional Greek culture inside the Senior Room. The sounds of live and recorded music will fill the air as hot coffee is served and spanakopita, baklava, koulourakia and many other specialty foods are sold. Hand knit and crocheted goods, as well as hand crafted jewelry and Grandma's Attic items will provide ample opportunity to purchase gifts. A 50/50 raffle will also be featured, and all proceeds from the sales and raffle will fund Philoptochos charities.

Holiday traditions

"Small town Cohasset." In December 2008, we can still say that phrase despite residential and commercial growth ranging from the TOD and Avalon complex to commuter rail.

Cohasset, with its proximity to Route 3A, commuter boats and commuter rail, acres of parkland, fine schools, beautiful homes, historic neighborhoods, waterfront vistas and excellent town services — is a very desirable place to live and work.

We can't blame the developers, who eagerly eye the town's vacant parcels for their building projects. Who wouldn't want to live here?

But the challenges before our town officials — and indeed all of us who love this town — in the years ahead is to focus on how to continue to manage the growth so Cohasset's "small-town" appeal remains in tact.

We have serious concerns that include school overcrowding, traffic impacts, and what will happen to local property taxes so Cohasset maintains some level of economic diversity.

As we officially enter the "holiday season" with the Village Fair this weekend and the Holiday Stroll next weekend, we are grateful for all the town officials — both paid staffers and volunteer boards — who burn the midnight oil dealing with these problems. We wish them courage, wisdom, patience — and a crystal ball!

Here at the Mariner, we promise to keep our readers abreast of the issues. But we also hope many of you — from the "Old Guard" to newcomers — will continue to get involved by sharing your talent to help the town deal with new development.

But throughout the day this Saturday and next, it's time to put our worries aside and enjoy one of the traditions that makes Cohasset special: the traditional Village Fair and relatively new, Holiday Stroll. The annual celebrations are right out of a Norman Rockwell painting and we wouldn't miss them for the world.

Enjoy!

Bradley opens district office on Fridays

State Rep. Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham, has opened a new district office at the Sons of Italy Hall, 88 Chief Justice Cushing Highway in Hingham.

The office will be staffed most Fridays, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., with the exception of the third Friday each month when the office will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Precinct 3 residents in Hingham, Hull, Cohasset and Scituate are welcome to visit or call the district office at 781-749-3331. An appointment is not necessary.

"I'm pleased to be able to provide a local office that should be more easily accessible to my constituents," said Bradley. "I hope interested residents needing assistance with any issues or problems avail themselves of the services provided by my staff at the new district office."

Additionally, residents are reminded that they may call Bradley's State House office at 617-722-2460 Monday through Friday.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Outpouring of community support

TO THE EDITOR:

Thanksgiving. What better time than in this climate of economic uncertainty, humanitarian crisis, and ill will both abroad and sadly even here more locally, to take the opportunity to recognize some of the more outstanding gestures we have recently experienced and, quite simply, to just give Thanks.

The Cohasset Arts Boosters (on behalf of the CHS Art Major class) has received an outpouring of support. From residents who expressed their heart break at the recently vandalized mural, to the folks at Tedeschi's who went so far as to install a brighter bulb in the pocket park so that the mural could be enjoyed by everyone — even in the evenings. Sure, to many, the countless hours of planning and preparation by the students, CHS Arts Department Chair Nina Berkowitz, the administration, Mr. Ed Mulvey, and Pilgrim Bank felt almost wasted.

But all was not lost: the students emphatically wanted to repair the mural and out of a most disappointing event there arose a most uplifting spirit of community. Because the frosty weather created a potentially narrow window of painting time, Bob Gledhill offered, at no cost, to raise a tarp and borrow heat lamps, if necessary. Brendan St. John offered, at no cost, to look into obtaining products to try to remove the black paint. And Jack Nash, who, when having a cup of coffee Friday morning, saw the damage, ran home to get a few supplies and spent the day after Thanksgiving methodically removing the black paint — all during the POURING RAIN! This too, at no cost.

The leftovers may be long finished but we wanted you to know that there is still much to be thankful for in this special place we all call home. It is these gestures that reconfirm how much our students' contribution has meant to the town and how important adult role models continue to be in their lives.

Once again, thank you for giving the Arts a Boost!

Sincerely, Cohasset MHS Arts Boosters:

Wind proposal, a capalistic venture

TO THE EDITOR:

I find the recent discussions on the Cohasset Wind Turbine request disturbing to say the least. This project is being sold as an environmental endeavor with the perception being there will be benefits to the people of Cohasset. This endeavor, in fact, is really a capitalistic endeavor that is taking advantage of the current environmental trend of alternative energy sources.

Don't get me wrong. I believe that we all need to contribute to the environmental cause; however this project, in this location, is not the one. Constructing even one, much less two or three wind turbines the size of Two International Place in Boston, on Cohasset's old landfill behind Hingham Lumber is irresponsible and unconscionable. I am appalled that the town's energy committee is even taking any consideration to a request that benefits a few and disadvantages the Cohasset community as a whole.

Within a mile of the proposed site are many residents' homes and businesses, the elderly at Sunrise Assisted Living as well as where our youngest residents attend preschool through fifth grade at Deer Hill and Osgood or attend childcare at Brown Bear across the street. Although CCI Energy may be taking a financial risk, they are expecting a huge financial windfall in their bank accounts. Whereas in contrast, the residents in Cohasset, especially those within the mile radius, are also being forced to take a huge risk, but with no return on investment. In fact, many will take a negative return on investment in their homes, health and their education.

I urge the residents of Cohasset to stand up for their rights and the rights of those who are too young to stand up for themselves. Demand that the town request that these developers find a more appropriate place for their capitalistic venture that adheres to international standards.

Special month for the seniors

TO THE EDITOR:

November was a very special month for the seniors of Cohasset.

On Nov. 7and 8, the Friends of Cohasset Elder Affairs sponsored a fundraiser, the delightful Cabaret under the direction of Blanche Clark. On Nov. 20, Darilyn Evans brought CEA a check for $2,297.10, and $500 in Stop & Shop gift cards from the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, and the Economic Development Committee from the proceeds of the first Cohasset Day. These good people gave a similar gift to the Cohasset Food Pantry and a check to the Cohasset Educational Foundation. On Nov. 22 and 23, nearly 100 volunteers went to 18 senior's homes to rake leaves (200 bags full), put down storm windows and other chores. Make a Difference Days are sponsored by the Cohasset PSO, and this year the co-chairs were Patty Cunningham and Vanessa Simone.

The excitement continued on Tuesday, Nov. 25, when the Peter Roy family, Joe and Janet Campbell, the staff of Atlantica and volunteers hosted an outstanding Thanksgiving Feast for over 150 seniors. During the delicious meal all were treated to music from the High School Jazz Quintet, under the direction of Stephanie Moriarty, and after the meal some of cast of "West Side Story," under the direction of Bryan Marks, delighted everyone with their songs. In turn, the seniors donated nine boxes of non-perishable items for the Cohasset Food Pantry.

On Wednesday Nov. 26, the co-owners of Café Zuppa sent us an abundant amount of their Tomato Basil Soup. It was so good the seniors asked for seconds. At the end of that day, Thanksgiving Eve, a wonderful man, very dedicated to the seniors presented us with a check for $1,000.

I am overwhelmed by the generosity of the people from the Town of Cohasset. It is a small town filled with people with big hearts.

Linda Elworthy
Director of Cohasset Elder Affairs

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Little Harbor Project – The Little Harbor Project marches on. Before Thanksgiving we reclaimed several of our small private lanes in preparation for laying the new sewer main lines. On one of the small lanes we encountered an unexpected problem. Usually, when a road is reclaimed all of the old asphalt is ground finely and is mixed with the fine material usually found under a roadway. However, in this one case, the material under the road was not fine but coarse, rather large gravel. When this material was put back and regraded it didn't pack down well due to the large size of the stones. This was especially troublesome on a rather steep hill that became difficult to navigate. Now, several loads of dense grade material (a mixture of mixed very small sized stone) the surface could be compacted. Problem solved, the surface compacted reasonably well and is much more drivable.

This past Wednesday, we visited one of the active construction sites on the project. One of the contractor's larger excavators, working in a constricted area, managed to have one of their hydraulic systems fail. (Most of these large graders operate with hydraulic systems, totally.) One of the enclosed photos shows the work truck crew trying to repair the failed component.

So, you may ask, "What does this machine do when it is working?" Well, we took another photo of the work that the machine accomplished. In essence it makes "little" rocks out of very big rocks (read as "ledge").

One last bit of Town trivia. We have used the Town's new emergency notification system to selectively let people when construction in their area might cause them access problems. In several instances, residents have told us that they didn't get a call. There may be a good reason if you regularly use a cell phone, a web-based phone, have recently switched your phone service, or have an unlisted number. In these instances, if you wish to be included, you will need to go to the Town's web site (www.townofcohasset.org) and click on the icon in the lower left of your screen. Just follow the directions to include your phone, fax or email in the emergency notification system.

Greenbush Trivia – We had a chance on Wednesday, Dec. 3rd to stop at the Greenbush commuter parking lot and take an inventory of cars to get a rough idea of ridership changes.

Interestingly, the car count is back to about where it was in November of last year. You don't think that doubling the parking rates from $2 to $4 per day had anything to do with it?

While we're talking about Greenbush, you may have noticed the construction taking place on Route 3A beside the station. This is the new mixed-use residential/retail project that is being developed under the Town's new Transportation Oriented Development Zoning By-Law. The "TOD" is to encourage the construction of residential and retail in areas with good access to public transportation.

TOD on Route 3A under way.

"Little" rocks.

In addition to being adjacent to the station, this site will have direct access to and from the MBTA parking lot. So, to go to or from the station a driver will not need to venture onto Route 3A. Also, if you choose to use the services of any of the businesses at the TOD site, you will be able to exit onto Route 3A via a new traffic light to be installed at the station entrance. Installing this light was originally an MBTA obligation. However, as a quid pro quo for letting the TOD access the station directly, the TOD folks will assume the responsibility of installing the traffic signal. By the way, the light will be a demand light. Thus, if there are no cars exiting onto Route 3A from the station, the Route 3A traffic will not be stopped.

Trading 'hair' cards

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

When I was young and ice covered most of the earth, trading cards came one to a packet, along with a single slice of pink bubble gum, and featured one of the baseball stars of the day, now largely forgotten, like Luke Appling or Charlie Gehringer or Joe Medwick.

We collected them, of course, because that's what the bubble gum people wanted us to do, and we traded them, too, but we also scaled them against the wall like horseshoes with the winner taking all, which is why so many of them that survive today have worn corners.

I was reminded the other day of how much trading cards have changed...

In other words, trading cards had so little value that they were often thrown away when next year's series came out or when ma invaded your privacy to show you how to clean your room.

Now they're more of an investment than a collection and you can buy the whole season's series, sans the bubble gum, at one fell swoop, and the cards no longer feature just sports figures but politicians and anyone or anything else that rouses the interest of collectors and investors.

I was reminded the other day of how much trading cards have changed when I learned that Topps and Upper Deck, the leading producers, now are inserting strands of hair into random packs of cards. And not just anyone's hair. Think George Washington or Napoleon.

"The hair cards feature some extremely unique personalities like Napoleon Bonaparte, Mary Lincoln, George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Geronimo, Alexander Hamilton and more," said Jason Masherah, Upper Deck's senior sports brand manager.

If this catches on we may have a run of bald presidents and first ladies.

The source of the hair is John Reznikoff, who lives in Connecticut and describes himself as a "hair collector," perhaps the only one in the world since the Indians. His source is unknown. Would Napoleon and Geronimo have the same barber?

"Every year, card companies are trying to one-up the competition because our collectors demand creativity and getting them closer to the game than ever before," said Terry Melia, Upper Deck's public relations manager.

Melia's company struck gold earlier this year when it came out with vice presidential trading cards, to join the presidential trading cards, just in time to catch the Sarah Palin boom.

Sarah is depicted wearing a tiara; driving a dog sled led by two angry-looking bull terriers; rounding third base on the White House lawn while catching a salmon with the rear end of what appears to be a moose in the background. Liberal media bias, maybe?

Joe Biden is treated more kindly. He is shown as Walter Johnson, the old Washington Senators pitcher, who is looking for the biggest win of his career.

"We've taken some liberties with both the VP candidates," said Kerri Stockholm, Upper Deck's director of sports marketing, "but we believe collectors will see the cards as entertaining as well as informative."

And you can skip the bubble gum.

HEALTH NOTES

Turf field needs firm guarantees

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Recently, the Town voted to buy a new field made of artificial turf, precipitating a veiled rush of controversy for the Town. The issue: need to support a constituency of students and athletes with what many citizens see as an expensive luxury. The Board of Health is unanimous in opposing the measure. For us, perhaps we voiced the wrong reasons. In the face of a budget cut reducing the money spent on training and education of our staff, we have indicated opposition, presumably, because of cost. As a Board, ethically determined to provide the best health services available despite financial difficulties, we should have ignored the financial argument and just forged ahead. However, there is another argument, largely ignored, which is important from a health standpoint.

Unfortunately, the smallest particles in our environment are likely, over time, to cause people the most serious problems. A good portion of the resources expended by the medical profession and its associated fields is used for the detection and determination of the effects of microparticles — solids, liquids and gaseous, in our environment. Accordingly, the Mass Health and Human Services Department has a toxicology program that provides towns like Cohasset toxicological assessments of environmental data. Examples of the results are the MADEP's legal office closing New Bedford Harbor to fishing after conducting the nations largest prevalence study of human exposure to PCBs, a toxic product used in making electrical equipment. Indoor air quality assessments are routinely conducted in public schools, courthouses, town halls, libraries and other public buildings or buildings that the public may enter. Artificial turf is not yet on Massachusetts' legislative horizon.

Progress always seems to be accompanied by the creation of byproducts that may harm us in the long run.

Progress always seems to be accompanied by the creation of byproducts that may harm us in the long run. The list is endless: petroleum derivatives; pharmaceuticals and personal care products have received considerable attention because traces are found in most wastewater treatment outflows. Although, their harmful effects are unknown, they are designed to make subtle changes in cell functions such as suppressing perspiration and disturbing normal sleep habits, etc. For this reason, they are suspected by some to have other unknown effects on our systems. And finally, metals: mercury, lead and other heavy metals, but one of the most pervasive widespread and damaging is lead. Recently reported to be in some children's toys, etc., about half of Cohasset's buildings contain dangerous amounts of lead – from paint used in the 19th century. And only recently have methods of removal taken into consideration lead's harmful effects on one's nervous system. A good fraction of the cost of renovation of the Town hall is going to be spent in dealing with old lead paint.

The entire health-care system depends upon data which is at best difficult to collect and analyze. And so we contract some ailment, hurt or discomfort, pain or spasm and we're quick to ascribe it to something we ate or the weather or such. But more than likely it comes from something we've ingested from our environment. New treatments, diagnostic tools such as MRI and CAT (short for Magnetic Resonance Imaging and Computer Aided Tomography) scans are often highly successful but never perfect in diagnosing a problem.

And so, we have an environment, changing; threatening and unknown; public systems for dealing with them slow to bring much relief. Dealing with the different agencies which are themselves slow to keep up with the latest threats to our health.

Now we bring to the Town artificial turf. Acclaimed as having the ability to reduce playing field maintenance costs while increasing their availability for youth sports which may bring the Town more income.

The Board has no quarrel with these laudable goals. But if the Town decides to go ahead we do feel that any proposal for the contract for an artificial surface should take into account drainage (and its stormwater aspects) as well as listing all constituents used in its manufacture and citing a guaranteed service life and replacement cost.

LIBRARY CORNER

Book bags are a great gift idea

The following events will take place at Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 35 Ripley Road. For more information, call 781-383-1348.

Holiday Gift Idea – Show Paul Pratt Pride and purchase a book bag from the Friends of the Library. These green, durable canvas tote bags have the library logo in white on the front and are roomy enough for books, videos and magazines. There's even a pocket for a library card.

Pick one up for $15 at the library and fill it with gently used books, videos, audio books, and paperbacks from the book sale rack. Book sale items are priced $1 and under. Makes a great gift for mom and dad.

Paul Pratt Memorial Library is at 35 Ripley Road Cohasset. For information, call 781-383-1348.

Art Exhibit – South Shore Art Center will present an exhibition of paintings by Marshfield artist Mary Callahan at the library through Dec. 31. A free reception will take place from 4 to 6 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 7.

Movie Matinee – Enjoy a free showing of the film "A Christmas Story" starring Darren McGavin, Melinda Dillon and Peter Billingsley at 11 a.m., on Friday, Dec. 5. Admission is free. Free refreshments will be provided by the Friends of the Library.

Holiday Decorating Demonstration – Learn how to create easy-to-craft holiday decorations from members of the Community Garden Club of Cohasset at 10:30 a.m., on Wednesday, Dec. 10. All are welcome to this free event.

Meet the Author – Jennifer Haigh, award-winning author of "Mrs. Kimble" and "Baker Towers" will talk about her new book, "The Condition," at 3 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 14, at the library. Copies of Haigh's books will be available for purchase at the event from Buttonwood Books. All are welcome to this free event.

Independent Film Night – The library will show the independent film "Days and Clouds" at 6 p.m., on Thursday, Dec. 18. Free admission and refreshments courtesy of the Friends of the Library.

Cohasset Mariner 'drop box'

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the left after you enter the front door.

The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

Residents fill the Cohasset Town Hall Auditorium for the Planning Board hearing on the proposed wind turbine project.

John Bryant offers comments regarding the discussion about floating large helium balloons so that the public could see the scale of height for the proposed turbines.

Planning Board tackles height, shadow flicker and lighting very seriously. Believe me, we are very serious and we are very thorough and we are nowhere near done," said Planning Board chairman Moore toward the end of the meeting. He added he was heartened by the turnout and public input. "Everything said tonight will be taken into consideration and we have a tough decision to make."

Moore set out the agenda early on in order to limit discussion to certain topics: height, wildlife, lighting, and shadow flicker. Moore promised from the outset that residents wanting to be heard or with questions would get ample time to do so.

"There are other concerns, very real concerns but we can't do everything in one night," said Moore. The next public hearing scheduled for Monday, Dec. 15 at 7:15p.m. is set to include discussion on the noise impacts of the project.

The project application, put forth by a private developer, CCI-Energy, is proposing the installation of two 1.65-megawatt sized wind turbines sited on the Graham Waste Services site off Route 3A. Jim Sweeney, president of CCI-Energy, made a brief presentation to re-introduce the project before the discussion on the technical aspects began.

"We want to make sure we are very thorough in everything we do. We want this project to be a win-win or we don't want to do it at all," said Sweeney.

The application is a landmark project as it is the first for the town and the first application under the Wind Energy Conversion Facility bylaw passed at the 2008 Annual Town Meeting.

One of the primary concerns in the first public hearing was the applicant's oversight of the to-be-built 200-unit Avalon complex. Sweeney said one of the major changes was the siting of one of the turbines. The turbine sited closest to the Avalon property has been relocated approximately 900 feet from its original location to lessen the impact on the future development. The new turbine site is supposed to decrease the sound and shadow flicker impacts on the apartment complex, said Sweeney.

Two manufacturers — Canadian-based AAER and Danish company Vestas — make the 1.65-megawatt turbine models that generally have the same specs (same height and size).

"We have two turbines in mind so one doesn't think they have the corner on the market," Sweeney said.

Planning Board members Charles Samuelson and Stuart Ivimey confer during Monday's hearing.

Height

Envisioning a 460-foot structure along Route 3A is not an easy task. The town's consulting engineer John Modzelewski was concerned the public and the planning board would not have a clear picture of the size of the turbines. Although the developer created several photo simulations of the turbines from several points in town, including nearby residences, Modzelewski was skeptical of the computer-generated simulations.

"I want to get a better handle on the scale of the turbines and how they will affect the viewscape around town," said Modzelewski.

The hub, or nacelle, where the blades originate will soar 100-meters, or 328-feet above the ground and the blades will extend 41-meters off of that hub making the tip of the structure 462-feet above ground.

To offer residents and the Planning Board an as true to life simulation of the turbine's scale, balloons will be placed at the height of the turbines beginning Friday, Dec. 12 and continue through the weekend during daylight hours.

Some residents asked if the noise and light associated with the turbine could be simulated at the same time, both the Planning Board and the developer agreed there were too many challenges with those type of simulations. Other residents wanted a balloon the exact size of the turbine's hub. Still others asked if a three-dimensional scale model to show the size of the turbines in comparison to other buildings and landscape would be helpful to envision the size of the turbines.

"This may be good, it's not perfect, but at least we'll be able to see the height," said Moore decisively. (See sidebar for more information on the balloon simulation.)

Wildlife and avian impact

With the turbines sited next to a capped landfill, which is already considered a disturbed habitat, and its proximity to Route 3A, Modzelewski did not think there was reason to be concerned for the four-legged and walking wildlife. He did have some concerns with the avian impacts, but his concerns were assuaged by through an interview with Hull Municipal Light, who reported they have had little problems with bird deaths.

"The wildlife issue is one that I think the test has been met," said Modzelewski. "I'd like to put this issue to bed, or have the public enlighten me."

The applicant also received necessary approval from the US Wildlife and Fisheries, which certifies there are no endangered or threatened species in the area.

A resident pointed out the proposed turbine location is between three conservation lands — Turkey Hill, Whitney-Thayer Woods and Wompatuck State Park — and across the street from a bird sanctuary, all havens for birds and bats.

Planning Board member Clark Brewer asked if for some reason a problem with birds developed with the turbine, what could be done to address the problem?

Jim Sweeney, president of CCI-Energy, the project developer, said if he believed there would be an issue, they probably wouldn't install the turbines.

Another resident called on the board to give more thought to the avian issues, especially in light of the bird sanctuary across the street.

The issue was tabled.

Lighting

A single red LED light will flash from the hub of the turbine primarily to alert planes of the towering structure. The light will flash upward, but can be seen from the surrounding area.

Jim Sweeney, developer and president of CCI-Energy, said he is requesting the most up to date lighting technology for the turbines.

Avalon vice president of development Scott Dale asked if additional screens would be put up to lesson the lighting impact on both the Avalon apartments and other surrounding buildings.

Sweeney indicated the light will have some screening to block the light from shining on nearby residences.

"The latest lighting has the minimum affect on the neighborhood," said Sweeney.

Planning Board member Stuart Ivimey said he has looked at the light on top of the Hull II turbine and did not the harsh blinking. He would rather a more gradual blinking.

Besides the two lights on the nacelles the project will add no other lighting to the area. The few above ground utility poles will not have lighting on them.

Modzelewski asked the applicant to submit an up-to-date site plan showing the proposed location of the poles and whether they will be below or above ground.

Shadow flicker

Opening up the discussion by saying the date is "still a work in progress," the town's consulting engineer John Modzelewski opened the door to many questions from the Planning Board and the audience.

Shadow flicker is a strobing effect produced when the sun passes behind the blades of the turbine — and it could potentially affect the daily lives of residents and business within 1000-meters of the turbines during certain times of the year.

The applicant has submitted two reports from separate consulting firms on shadow flicker. Both used a computer program to determine how many hours there will be of shadow flicker each year. Modzelewski said there were some questions about how the two firms got their results and whether they were conservative enough.

There are several unknowns in the process, clouds and wind direction, being the two major variables.

"The methodology still has to be reviewed by my consultant," said Modzelewski. "I think we should look at the worst case scenario until convinced otherwise."

Planning Board member Stuart Ivimey wondering what, if any, different there would be in the shadow flicker effect if the turbines were 80-meters high. "How much of the shadow effect disappears?"

The consulting firm, Emergent Energy, agreed to run a model for an 80-meter tower to compare to their results for the 100-meter tower.

Part of the problem the Planning Board faces, as noted by member Charles Samuelson, is there is no empirical measurement criteria in the wind energy bylaw. "There no measurable standard for flicker."

The bylaw only dictates there are "no significant shadowing or flicker impacts…this effect [should not] have significant adverse impact on adjacent uses through siting."

The only industry standard for shadow flicker comes from a ruling in Germany where they determined more than 30 hours per year would be adverse, said Jesse Gossett of Emergent Energy.

Alternative Energy Committee chairman Andrew Willard asked for a clarification on whether the hours of shadow flicker was a hard shadow or a flickering effect. The consultant said another model would have to be run to figure that out.

Representatives from Sunrise Assisted Living and the currently under construction Old Colony Square (next to the MBTA station) said the flicker effect could affect the daily lives of their residents. Geoffrey Wolf, Senior Vice President of Connell Real Estate & Development Co., whose affiliate Connell Cohasset Greenbush LLC is building now Old Colony Square, said it was important to give the data context.

"Twenty hours a year doesn't mean anything, but 30 minutes a day for three and a half months a year does," said Wolf.

Sunrise Assisted Living was concerned about the health effects a flicker from the turbine may have on their already fragile elderly residents.

Once the additional studies and data requested are submitted to the Planning Board, they will revisit the issue.

Wind Glossary

- Shadow Flicker: The on-and-off flickering effect of a shadow caused when the sun passes behind the rotor of a wind turbine.
- Nacelle: The hub of the turbine where the three blades originate.
- Wind Energy Conversion Facility Bylaw: Passed unanimously at the 2008 Annual Town Meeting, this zoning bylaw was drafted by the Alternative Energy Committee and sponsored by the Planning Board. Establishes town-wide zoning regulations for commercial size wind turbines. This project is the first application under the bylaw.

Turbines at a glance

Height

To hub (nacelle): 100-meters, 328-feet

To tip of blade: 141-meters, 465-feet

Location

Graham Waste property, off Route 3A, behind Cohasset Family Medical Center

The turbines will be located on either side of the capped landfill.

Developer

CCI-Energy based in New Bedford/Plymouth.

Graham Waste is leasing the land to the turbine developers.

Size

Two identical 1.65-megawatt sized wind turbines.

The turbines could come from one of two manufacturers: Canadian-based AAER or Danish company Vestas.

Turbine life

Estimated to be 20 years.

Balloons will show height

Just how high in the sky the proposed twin wind turbines will be is difficult to visualize. The hub, or nacelle, where the blades originate will soar 100-meters, or 328-feet above the ground and the blades will extend 41-meters off of that hub making the tip of the structure 462-feet above ground.

Although the Hull Wind II, located on the Weir River, provides a point of reference, the two proposed Cohasset turbines are approximately 65 percent larger in height (60-meters to the hub at Hull II vs. 100-meters to the hub proposed in Cohasset).

To help the Planning Board and the residents of Cohasset get a better (and more concrete) mental picture of the height of the two wind turbines, the Planning Board requested the developer to create a height simulation with weather balloons.

Beginning Friday, Dec. 12 from 8:30a.m. to sundown (approximately 4p.m.) and continuing through the weekend, the town of Cohasset will get a true-to-life visualization at how high the turbines will be.

A total of four balloons will be flown, two for each turbine. A balloon will be placed at the height of the turbine hub and a second balloon at the tip of the blade. The balloons will be bright colors as to be easily visible in the immediate area. Jim Sweeney, the developer, said he would request the largest balloons available.

The Planning Board wanted to leave the balloons up for the greatest amount of time to ensure all who wanted to see it would have an ample opportunity. If there is inclement weather on Friday, Saturday or Sunday, the balloons will be floated on Monday, Dec. 15 as well.

A town-wide call using the emergency notification system will go out to all Cohasset homes sometime on Thursday.

"It's a really good idea to get the scale of the thing," said John Modzelewski, the town's consulting engineer. "This, to me, speaks more to the aesthetic issues more than…the engineering requirements."

Wellspring opens office in Cohasset

Tuesdays, 10a.m. to noon at Town Hall

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

With news of the economy seeming to get more dismal everyday, it is nice to know there are people out there to help.

That's why a cross section of community leaders from religious leaders to human service providers meet weekly to identify the needs of local families and individuals and figure out the best ways each organization can help. Cohasset C.A.R.E.S., which stands for "caring and responding economically and spiritually," has already helped families in Cohasset by raising awareness of resources.

This week one of the member organizations of Cohasset C.A.R.E.S., Wellspring Multi-Service Center, has opened an office in Cohasset. Each Tuesday in December, from 10a.m. to noon, a community outreach specialist will be available in the basement meeting room of the Town Hall.

The hope for the new outlet in Cohasset is to raise awareness of Wellspring's services and make it easier for Cohasset residents in need to find out more about Wellspring's services, said Vinny Harte, Wellspring's executive director.

Wellspring Multi-Service Center is based in Hull, but serves other South Shore communities, including Cohasset. Its mission is to provide support and skills to people facing challenges to their financial, physical, or emotional well being in order to help them achieve independence and self-sufficiency.

The consultations will be confidential and held privately. It takes about 15 or 20 minutes to fill out an intake form and have the consultation with the Wellspring representative. If necessary, the community outreach specialist can help fill out applications for food stamps and fuel assistance.

"It's the first part of the process and to have that done in Cohasset makes it easier on those in need," said Harte.

Part of Wellspring's mission is to not just help with an individual or family's immediate problem. Its goal is to reach beyond providing emergency services to help people become more independent and productive members of the community.

"It's about creating a plan…we don't give handouts," explains Harte. After the initial consultation, the Wellspring representative will get back in touch to create a service plan that best suits the individual/family to help them on the road to independence.

Rev. Margot Critchfield of St. Stephen's and one of the founding members of Cohasset CARES knows having a Wellspring presence in Cohasset will be a good thing.

> "The need is great, there is the oil situation, the economic situation, it's making it more difficult for everyone."
> — Vinny Harte, Wellspring

"It is such a gift to have Wellspring as a place to channel our efforts through, they have the experience (to help those in need)," said Critchfield.

Since the organization got its start in October, they have been moving quickly to make an impact in the community. An information card containing local resources went out to all homes in Cohasset in November and was distributed in key locations, like churches and town hall.

"There has certainly been an up tick in calls since the cards went out," said Critchfield. "It's become evident a lot of needs in Cohasset are bubbling to the surface now."

Critchfield hopes the neutral location of the Wellspring office in town hall will give people the security they need to seek help.

"As long as everyone afraid of what other people may thing they are not helping themselves and they are not helping each other," said Critchfield. "We want people to know they are not alone and they are not the only one."

While Wellspring can offer needed practical help to the challenges residents may be facing, Critchfield also stresses the importance of getting involved in a local faith community.

"I think people underestimate how important spiritual support is…a dose of God is a profound comfort and a source of strength," said Critchfield, adding being a part of a spiritual community can also help those going through tough times.

In the coming weeks, the Cohasset CARES organization will be working on ways they can connect people either through discussion groups, lectures or a community dinner.

On its first day earlier this week, the Wellspring representative answered a couple of questions, but did not take any intake forms. Harte hopes over the next few weeks word will get out that Wellspring is in town.

"Everyone that comes to use our services has a different story and each story has to have its own plan," said Harte.

Harte said there is an attitude outside of Cohasset where people don't think there is a need to help people here because it is widely recognized as being an affluent community. Harte is quick to dispel that line of thinking.

"The need is great, there is the oil situation, the economic situation, it's making it more difficult for everyone," said Harte.

The Cohasset C.A.R.E.S group plans to take a tour of the Wellspring Multi-Service Center in Hull next week and he speaks highly of what the group has done so far.

"It's a group of us trying to figure out how to respond to the economic crisis. It's not just the stock market, it's people's heating bills and how to pay for groceries," said Harte.

As a non-profit organization, Wellspring is looking at ways and methods to expand their services either geographically or by breadth. One of the options could be setting up satellite offices in various towns.

"We're actively looking at it. We want to raise our visibility and raise awareness of our services," said Harte.

Over the next few weeks, Wellspring will gauge the need of the Cohasset community and then re-evaluate their presence in Cohasset after the New Year. Depending on response they will keep the weekly session, or move to bi-weekly or monthly sessions.

Cohasset CARES welcomes anyone who would like to get involved or find out more information. The group meets Thursdays at 3:30p.m. at St. Stephen's.

Jingle Bell Walk support appreciated

To the Editor:

The South Shore Community Center in Cohasset would like to express our sincere thanks to the many merchants, contributors and volunteers who helped make our annual Jingle Bell Walk a great success! As you might remember, the day of the Jingle Bell Walk 2008 it was raining, and 30 minutes before Santa and Mrs. Claus were to arrive, the sun came out and the crowd appeared at the Harbor. All of our volunteers were ready to go with jingle bells, hot cocoa and cookies waiting.

Mrs. Claus and Santa, along with Frosty, Rudolph and the Merry Elves, led a community sing-along of traditional holiday songs. Photos with Santa, bowling and face painting followed. Hayrides, the Turkey Trot and the Luminaries were a bit hit for everyone who attended.

Patron sponsors: Hingham Institute for Savings, Pilgrim Co-Operative Bank, Goodwin Graphics, Lemon Lime, Country House Furniture & Antiques, Aveni Cleaners and W.B. Mason.

Thanks go to the following Patron Sponsors, Sponsors, Friends of the Center and Santa's Helpers: Hingham Institute for Savings, Cohasset Collision, Pilgrim Co-Operative Bank, Goodwin Graphics, Lemon Lime, Country House Furniture & Antiques, Aveni Cleaners, W.B. Holiday concert

Come hear the strains of classical carols and works by Mendelssohn, Grieg, Thompson and Conrad Susa, and then join in a sing-along of holiday songs. The Choral Arts Society, now celebrating its 50th year, will present its "Star of Wonder" Holiday Concert at 4:30 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 7, at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 465 First Parish Road, Scituate.

Led by director Danica A. Buckley, the choral group comprises singers from Cohasset and throughout the South Shore. Tickets are $15 or $12 for seniors and students and are available at Buttonwood Books, The Center Bookstore in Scituate or at the door.

Buttonwood Book Angel Program

Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza is sponsoring its annual Book Angel Program to benefit local children. The goal of the program is to promote literacy and give the gift of reading to a local child. The book angel selects an angel from the tree in the store and buys a book for the child described on the angel. Buttonwood will give a 15 percent discount on the book and deliver the book to the appropriate agency.

Program recipients include Wellspring in Hull, Friends of the Homeless in Weymouth and the Blue Hills Healthy Families, serving the South Shore. Call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665 for more information.

There is a Laser way to treat severe gum disease without cutting or stitches

Introducing
Laser Periodontal Therapy™

Finally, there's good news for those of you who suffer from gum disease (gingivitis and periodontitis). We now offer an exciting laser based technique for treatment of periodontal disease called Laser Periodontal Therapy™. Through the use of the Millennium Dental Technologies, Inc. PerioLase® Laser, designed especially for Laser Periodontal Therapy™, we can treat your moderate to severe gum disease and you can quickly return to your normal routine!

There's no incision (scalpel) and no stitches (sutures). Discomfort is greatly reduced, often there is not any pain at all. You heal naturally with full retention of your gums. Local area dentist Dr. Michael Thomas is fully trained and licensed to perform Laser Periodontal Therapy™, an FDA cleared and patented laser gum therapy that greatly reduces the pain and recovery time associated with traditional gum surgery. Dr. Thomas is the only dentist in the South Shore area using the PerioLase MVP-7, the first ever digital dental laser with FDA approval for use in the treatment of gum disease. If you suffer from tender, red, swollen, bleeding gums, or have been told you need periodontal surgery to treat gum disease, call us today for an appointment to evaluate your condition and see what a difference the laser treatment can make for you.

Cohasset seniors wreck havoc on Hull

37-15 rout on Thanksgiving

It was the traditional Thanksgiving Day match up, Hull versus Cohasset, the Pirates versus the Skippers. This year, the day was sun soaked, the temperatures moderate and the crowds plentiful and in good spirits. For seven Cohasset High School Seniors, it was the last time they would put on their pads and helmets for the hometown team. It could have been just another game, but for these seven young men, it was a moment, their moment to literally leave their mark on Alumni Field. With fire in their eyes Co-Captains Derek Schwantner and Andersen Lynner, along with Nick Simonds, Nick Savage, Mike Froio, Matt Wasel and Alec Livingstone led their team to not only victory, but a resounding 37-15 thumping of Hull.

But, the game didn't start out so well. Hull, always fired up to take on the Skippers, took the opening kickoff 80-plus yards into the end zone to get on the board.

"We put forth our best TEAM effort of the year on Thursday. Every single aspect of the game was within our control."

— Coach Pete Afanasiw

"This game didn't start out the way we wanted it to with an 85-yard kickoff return for a touchdown, but the team never wavered in their emotion and enthusiasm," said Coach Pete Afanasiw. "We put forth our best TEAM effort of the year on Thursday. Every single aspect of the game was within our control.

"Offensively, everyone was in sync and we physically beat up Hull in the trenches. Our line did a great job and skill positions executed at high speed," he said. "Defensively we applied relentless pressure on their QB and he took some very big hits, even when he didn't have the ball. We knew they were going to rely on him a lot and we planned to get a lick on him whenever we could."

Hull, hoping to build on the momentum of the kickoff return, opted for an on-side kick, which Coach Phil Mahoney's special teams anticipated. Sophomore Savon Meyers alertly fell on the ball, giving Cohasset not only possession, but terrific field position.

The Skipper offense began a methodical and disciplined march down the field from their own 49-yard line. Junior running back Dana Valentine (17 carries for 125 yards, 1 TD) and Senior Alec Livingstone carried the ball, pounding away at the Hull defense, driving Cohasset into the red zone. QB Jeff Cavanaro (2 carries for 17 yards, 1 TD, 2 pt conversion and 2 passing tds, 6/17 passing) hit junior Dean Driscoll in the end

Peewee Sharks are Superbowl champs again

On Sunday, Nov. 9th, the SciCoh sixth-grade Peewee Sharks won the Old Colony Youth Football League Superbowl for the second year in a row.

Led by Head Coach Frank Gaziano, the Sharks played a very tough Plymouth team to a 6-0 victory. The game was held in Plymouth with the Sharks facing the only team that handed them a defeat this season.

To get to the Superbowl, the Sharks had to defeat another tough Bridgewater team in the semifinals on Nov. 2nd. SciCoh played to a 0-0 tie in regulation time, but the Sharks were victorious in overtime, finishing with a 6-0 win.

Joining Coach Gaziano in a very successful 7-1-1 season were coaches Scott Bearce, Mike Coscia, Joe Downing, John O'Brien and Paul Schwartz.

Lady Crusaders capture National Championship

Coggins, McGoldrick on MPS U17 team

Eighteen of the top soccer players on the South Shore, Cape Cod and Rhode Island, spent the last four years in intense technical and tactical instruction, playing matches against the foremost competition available in America and Canada, with the single goal to win the prestigious United Soccer League Super Y National Championship. That's exactly what the MPS U17 Lady Crusaders accomplished this past weekend in Tampa, Florida. The USL Super Y League was formed over a decade ago consisting of 10 regions across the United States and Canada. Each region plays 12 matches during the regular season sending the team with the best record to compete for the National Championship each November.

On the heels of a grueling high school season and playoff schedule, the Lady Crusaders entered the tournament hoping to recapture the team chemistry that served them well in the regular season. If Coach Gallagher was concerned, these concerns were quickly dismissed as the team dominated their first opponent, an undefeated Northern Virginia Majestic team, beating them 4 -1. The offense, led by Devin Petta, (Whitman Hanson), and Andrea Nogueira, (New Bedford), scored early and often. Midfielders Sarah Coggins, (Cohasset) and Monique Lamotte controlled the center of the field keeping play in the attacking zone. The defense, anchored by center backs, Lyndsay Pallotta, (Hanover), and Maggie McGoldrick, (Cohasset) and fullback Kristin Tholen, (Pembroke), frustrated the opposing strikers holding them to a lone tally.

The Lady Crusaders second opponent, the Plantation Eagles, the winner of the Southeast division from the host state of Florida, were stunned by the offensive onslaught charging from the wings. Wide mids Maggie MacDonald, (Whitman Hanson), and Ally Coppenrath, (Marshfield), attacked the Eagle defense with timely runs to corner and brilliant crosses to goal. Pressure kept coming at a rapid pace from the outside mid posizone, but the call was incomplete. If Coach A had a red flag in his pocket, he would have thrown it. The drive was stopped as Hull intercepted a pass on their own 1-yard line.

Hull gained a few yards on their first play from scrimmage, but it was called back on a holding penalty. With nowhere to go, the Hull QB was sacked in the end zone by senior Mike Froio (5 tackles) and senior Matt Wasel (4 tackles, 2 sacks). Cohasset was on the board with a safety and was going to get the ball back. A solid kick return by junior Brendan Doonan to the Hull 45 yard line gave the Skippers great field position. But it looked as if it was going to be 3 and out for the Skippers until Cavanaro dropped back in the pocket and found senior Derek Schwantner (3 catches, TD and 2 pt conversion) wide open and alone for a catch and run into the end zone. This play marked Schwantner's first Varsity touchdown after returning from a severe preseason injury. The PAT was no good. Cohasset was on top 8-7.

The second quarter started with Hull in possession of the ball. Hull worked hard at trying to break the Cohasset defense, but the D-line was very punishing to the Hull backfield. Key physical tackles by Froio, junior Jake Kissick (12 tackles), senior Matt Wasel, senior Nick Simonds, senior Nick Lieberman and senior Andersen Lynner (6 tackles, 1 sack) made every yard gained painful for the Hull running backs. A 14-play drive ended when Hull couldn't convert on 4th and 3. Team defense for Cohasset was the name of the game.

With time running out in the second quarter, Cohasset wanted to get the ball in the end zone. Valentine ran the ball to pick up yards, but it was time to get aerial. An incredible catch by Doonan got the Skippers into Hull territory. Attempts to get the ball in the endzone to Schwantner and Doonan were deftly defended. As time was running down, Cavanaro dropped back, scrambled right, saw no one open right and looked across the field to a wide open Johnny Maher who caught the ball, juked right past a defender, juked right again past another defender and got into the endzone for 6 points. Cohasset faked the PAT attempt, and Cavanaro dashed into the endzone for 2.

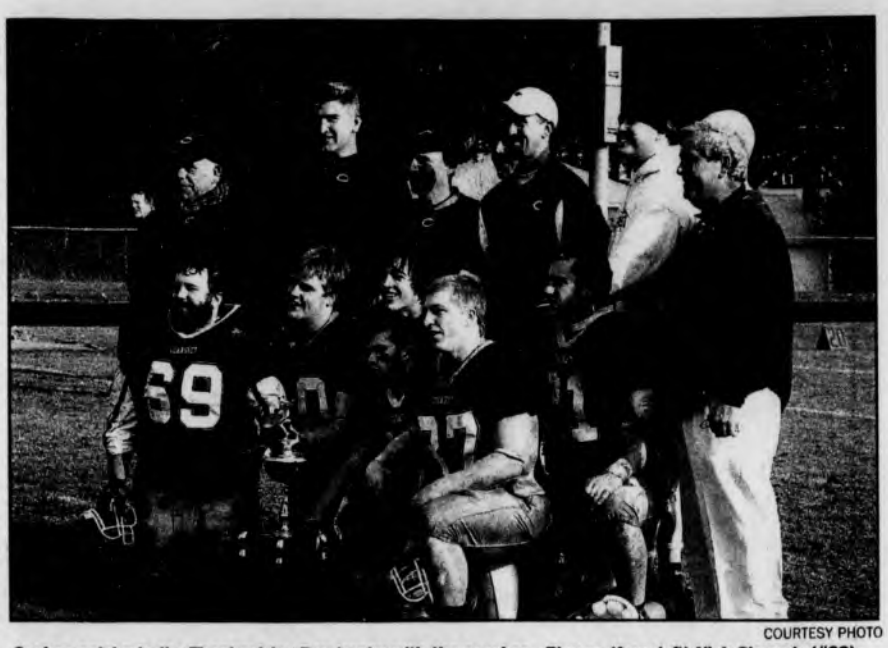
Heading into the locker room, it was Cohasset 16, Hull 7.

Second half

Cohasset received the ball to start the second half, but it was 3 and out for the Skippers.

Hull started their drive on their own 25-yard line. On the first play of the drive Kissick came barreling in on the sweep and dropped the Hull running back in the backfield for a loss. Not to be daunted by a setback, Hull began to move the ball on the ground, finally getting into Cohasset territory after 6 plays.. On the 7th play, the ball was stripped loose by Andersen Lynner from the Hull QB and Livingstone saw the ball on the ground, scooped it up and ran it to the 16-yard line, giving his team outstanding field position.

A pass completion to Schwantner by Cavanaro was made possible by great blocking from Matt Wasel and Will Lynner. Then it was Cavanaro, on a great play action fake, scampered into the endzone for 6 points. Setting up for the 2-point conversion, it was Schwantner who danced into the end zone behind terrific blocks from junior Dan Sullivan and sophomore. Eric Wasel.



Hull got the ball back and on the second play, they heaved the ball downfield into the wide open arms of Doonan (7 tackles, INT for TD) who returned the intercepted ball 60 yards into the end zone. The PAT failed.

Hull started yet another offensive drive, slowly gaining yardage. Great tackles in this series were made by Matt Wasel, Maher, and Froio.. But it was 2nd and a long 18 and the Hull QB dropped back in the pocket and let loose a bullet that Andy McKenna (7 tackles, INT) picked off midfield. Cohasset had the ball back just minutes into the 4th quarter. Taking over on their own 47-yard line, Valentine got the ball and broke open behind superior blocking from Matt Wasel and Andersen Lynner and went 53 yards into the end zone for another Cohasset score.

Hull's last drive of the game was not pretty. Marred by penalties, the Pirates, who made it to the Cohasset 5 yard line were pushed back to the 30 and had to slug it out again. Sophomores Sam Leahy and Alex Kinnealley sacked the Hull QB for a huge loss. Junior Nick Lieberman made great tackles at the line of scrimmage.. Hull managed to get into the endzone for a final touchdown of the season. Sophomore Thomas Flibotte and Jack Carrier protected the secondary well.

"I am so very proud of the entire team and especially for the seven seniors who are able to walk off of Alumni Filed undefeated at home (5-0) knowing that they played their best football when it mattered most," said Coach Afanasiw. "In my opinion, that is the true measuring stick of a good team. Success in football can be measured a number of different ways, but knowing that your team improved not only as the season progressed, but also as the competition increased is comforting because it means you prepared well, executed well and can walk away with no regrets.

"Prior to the game I told the kids that one play was not going to win the game and neither was one series of plays," he said. "I also told them that they would in time forget the big plays, they'd forget even the score, but what they would never forget was the feeling they would have walking off the field, up the hill through the gauntlet of family and friends, and that they needed to make sure they walk off the field with no 'I should have, I could have, I would have..' The 2008 Cohasset Football team played together and emptied their proverbial tank on Thanksgiving Day and will always be remembered as winners."

Seventh-grade hoop team continues to roll

Stands 5-1 in preseason!

Cohasset's seventh-grade basketball team, following its 3-0 start at the season opening Barnstable Tournament, traveled to Marshfield this past weekend for the Marshfield Thanksgiving Tournament. Holiday commitments left the team short of two of its key guards, Doug "the Professor" Fitzgerald and Mark "M&M" McKenna. Down to 10 in number, the Boys in Blue drew a tough opening match with a big and talented squad from Norwell.

Jack "Magnet" Conte set the town early for Cohasset, as his relentless defense and hustle caused several Norwell turnovers. Mark Rattenbury, Henry "Chopper" Brown, Liam "LB" Burke and Joe "Buck" Buckley controlled the boards for the Boys in Blue, and at half, Cohasset lead by a 16-12 count. The second half saw the Cohasset squad pick up the pace, and the team's fast break offense got into high gear. Chris "Hoops" Haggerty and Brendan "the General" O'Connell did a splendid job of directing the Cohasset attack, each dropping in 5 second half points while distributing the ball to their teammates on the break. Rocco "the Glove" Laugelle played an all around exceptional game, leading the Cohasset Blue with 16 points, including a sterling 8 of 9 from the charity stripe. At the final buzzer, Cohasset had scored 26 second half points, and prevailed by a 42-27 score.

Friday afternoon's late game found a 4-0 Cohasset squad matched against a rival from the Patriot League, last season's 15-1 co-regular season champ, Whitman. Whitman was big, and strong, and physical. Cohasset, on the other hand, reported for game duty a depleted squad...."Chopper" Brown was called away for family leftover turkey obligations, "General" O'Connell was forced to sit out the majority of the game with a bum knee, and Mark Rattenbury the second half with a turned ankle. Thus did the mighty Skippers find themselves in a 12-point hole with under 5 minutes to play.

The Boys in Blue played superb defense, and eventually ground out a tough and well earned 42-39 win against the talented hosts.

But this squad has shown its mettle in theses early games, and this one was no different. Dakota "D-Train" Achin morphed into a later day instant offense Vinnie "Microwave" Johnson, and rallied his squad in the final minutes, canning jumpers from everywhere....."Hoops" Haggerty likewise rose to the challenge, and with Cohasset down to one healthy guard, stepped into a ball-handling role and distributed the ball against the Whitman pressure, while draining a key jumper with barely a minute to go. Cohasset's press wore down the Whitman crew, and the Boys in Blue completed a stunning rally before a standing room only crowd to tie Whitman at the final horn. On to Overtime! Overtime was a back and forth affair, but the talented Whitman squad prevailed in the end by a 39-37 count. Cohasset suffered its first set back of the year, but played like Champions to the end.

With ice, and the mystical healing powers of youth, Saturday dawned with Rattenbury and "General" O'Connell back on the court. "Chopper" Brown returned as well, fortified with leftover turkey and stuffing. "Chopper" and his mates would need the extra fortification, as the hometown Marshfield Rams were ready for battle. This was splendid game, as both teams battled on each possession to the very end. Marshfield's big men were BIG, and talented, but Cohasset's front line rose to the challenge. Back and forth this one went, with the teams never separated by more than a few buckets. Liam "LB" Burke, clad in new high-tops, made like Paul Silas inside, muscling rebounds away from the Ram frontline, with ample help from "Buck" and Rattenbury. O'Connell, Conte and Laugelle did a terrific job in breaking the Marshfield press, pushing the ball hard up the court, and hitting their wingmen, "Hoops" Haggerty, "D-Train" Achin and "Chooper" Brown as they relentlessly pushed the ball at the Rams defense. Each game, however, Cohasset seems to have a new hero, and this time it was Mark "the Eraser" Brown. Time and time again, the Rams looked to score inside, but were thwarted by the athletic Brown, who rose up to swat away the Rams' shots. Brown was an offense force as well, leading the team with 8 points (along with Rattenbury) and continued his hot one hand foul shooting, scoring key points from the charity stripe in crunch time. The Boys in Blue played superb defense, and eventually ground out a tough and well earned 42-39 win against the talented hosts. Again, every single player contributed, as all but one scored in this game.

Cohasset now stands at 5-1, and opens its regular season at home this Sunday against last year's regular season co-champs, Weymouth (they of last year's 15-1 record)....Go Blue!

tion as Chrissy Fancy, (Orleans) and Jenna Goodwin, (Weymouth), worked both ends of the field in transition. Final score; 3-1.

If the first two games were offensive wins, the third game against Rage FC from PA belonged to the defense. Claire Thompson, (Greenwich, R.I.) full back out due to an ACL injury, watched full backs Jackie Squatrito, (Pembroke), and Julie Foster, (Dennisport), raise their game to new levels, denying the Rage any opportunity, while defensive midfielder Chris DiBiase, (Westford), aggressively challenged every offensive assault. Keeper Casey Edward's, (Marshfield), instincts were flawless and her efforts earned her a 2- 0 shutout and the team a #1 seed into the final four.

The sidelines were packed with College Coaches to watch the now highly touted MPS Lady Crusaders take on the lightening quick, highly skilled Odyssey, winner of the Northern California Region. Fans of both teams mingled cautiously with whispers and warnings not to take either team lightly. The opening whistle initiated an unparalleled effort by the Lady Crusaders. Offensively, two quick strikes by Devin Petta off passes from Andrea Nogueira and Sarah Coggins and a third goal by Mo Lamotte, gave the Lady Crusaders a comfortable halftime lead. In the second half, the defense stood strong thwarting all attempts to score, resulting in Casey Edward's second shutout of the tournament.

The championship game would be a match with a much larger, more familiar opponent, the Fury from Ottawa.

The championship game would be a match with a much larger, more familiar opponent, the Fury from Ottawa. In the National Final, two rivals from the New England Region, who split their two games during the regular season, faced each other to determine the #1 USL Super Y U17 team in the Nation. Both familiar with each other's strengths and abilities, this game would prove to be a test of wills, guts and determination. Under threatening Florida skies, the lady Crusaders jumped to a swift start with an early goal from Devin Petta. Quick to respond, the Fury dug in their heels and used their superior size to impose their will upon the smaller Crusaders. The Lady Crusaders refused to yield any ground as the contest turned aggressive and physical. Holding steady against the onslaught, MPS faced a further unexpected challenge. In swept a Florida squall accompanied by wind gusts blowing directly down field at the backs of the attacking Fury. Play shifted to the Crusader goal box and Ottawa, with its outsized front line, played the ball to the air and tied the game on a header to top corner. As quickly as the rains came, they left, with the game knotted at one apiece. With moments left in the first half, Lyndsay Pallotta, in an all out effort to clear a dangerous ball, went down with a game ending leg injury. As the crowd stood silently, Maggie McGoldrick stepped into the sweeper position and took up right where Pallotta left off.

The second half resumed with even more ferocity and determination. Play seesawed back and forth. Both teams neither surrendered ground nor could mount a serious shot on goal. With fifteen minutes left in regulation, Mo Lamotte, cycled though the midfield to the top of the eighteen and unleashed a rocket that caromed off the crossbar into the back of the net. Up 2 -1, Coach Gallagher immediately switched formation to a more defensive posture allowing the Lady Crusaders to crowd the center of the field and repel all Fury attacks. With time ticking away, injured goalie Megan Penn (South Dennis) directed the action from the bench with outstretched crutches as her reinvigorated teammates dominated the remaining minutes of play. At the final whistle, the MPS U17 players, coaches and fans hugged, hopped and hobbled their way to the Champion's Platform, as USL Super Y League U17 North American Champions

The Rusty Skippers perform in Holiday Pops concert

The Rusty Skippers, Cohasset's own community concert band, will be performing their annual Holiday Pops Concert at First Parish Church, Cohasset on Saturday, Dec. 6 at noon. The Skippers will be playing a variety of holiday pieces including Leroy Anderson's "Christmas Festival," Victor Herbert's "March of the Toys," "Jingle Bell Rock," and many other familiar tunes and carols. The concert will also feature vocalists Lily Sestito and Tony Carbone. The concert is free and appropriate for all ages. A freewill cash offering for the Cohasset Food Pantry will be taken.

The Rusty Skippers were formed in 1995 as part of the Cohasset Harborfest at the enthusiastic suggestion of the late Rev. Ed Atkinson of First Parish in Cohasset. The Rusty Skippers play under the direction of Steve Biagini, the instrumental music teacher at Deer Hill School. After the December concert schedule is completed, the band will reconvene in March to prepare selections for appearances including the South Shore Festival of the Arts, American Cancer Society Relay for Life, Cohasset Memorial Day Parade and various concert series. The Rusty Skippers Band has openings in some instrumental sections. If you are interested in joining or booking the band, contact Steve Biagini c/o Deer Hill School, 781-383-6115 ext. 155 or sbiagini@cohassetk12.org .

Maria, played by junior Jenny Magruder, tells her friends, played by Tara Goodwin, Logan Pratt and Lauren Mack, about her impending wedding with Tony as they performed a few numbers from West Side Story to senior citizens at a Thanksgiving luncheon at Atlantica on Tuesday (Nov. 25).

'West Side Story' opens tonight!

LIFE AT CHS

LAUREN MACK

Hello everyone! Hopefully everyone had a great Thanksgiving break, filled with family, friends, and lots of food. However, after the mini-vacation was over, there didn't seem to be any delay in getting back to the normal hustle and bustle of the school week. And it was especially hectic because winter sports began this week. Good luck to all of our winter teams out there! I hope all of your seasons go well. This past Wednesday, the AP English classes took a field trip to Boston to see the Shakespearean play "The Merchant of Venice".

In other news: Tonight, tonight, it all begins tonight! Because tonight is the opening night for "West Side Story", and as I mentioned last week, the musical is undoubtedly going to go down in history as the greatest production to ever hit the CHS stage, SO GO SEE IT! You will not be disappointed!

My quote this week comes from the woman behind the scenes of the musical. She is the band teacher formerly known as Ms. Hoskin; now referred to as Mrs. Moriarty, she works hard everyday to ensure that only the purest of music echoes from her room into the halls of CHS. However, especially since it was production week, she has been a little tense. When asked why, she replied: "I can't sleep. It's awful, I've been waking up lately at 3 am plagued by 'I Feel Pretty' and 'Gee, Officer Krupke' ringing in my head over and over again. I can't escape it!"

And with that, I leave you all to a great weekend! And good luck, cast!! Also, if you haven't caught on to my goodbyes yet, I'll fill you in. I switch the language in which I bid my farewells each month. This month just so happens to be Danish, so Farvel!

Extra credit!

Nobody gives apples anymore… so give Extra Credit instead!

Take time this holiday season to honor our local educators by participating in the CEF Teacher Appreciation Program, Extra Credit. You can make a tax-deductible donation to the CEF in a teacher's name, and you will both thank that educator for a job well done and help fund CEF grant programs that foster innovation and excellence in teaching throughout the entire Cohasset public school system. Checks should be made payable to: The Cohasset Education Foundation and mailed to: The Cohasset Education Foundation, P.O Box 309, Cohasset, MA 02025 or visit cohasseteducation.org.

Workshop on reading

Come learn how you can make a difference for all the young children in your life at 7:30 p.m., on Dec. 2 at the Osgood School.

The free workshop, which is sponsored by the PSO, is especially designed for parents and teachers of infants, toddlers, preschoolers and kindergarteners. Grandparents, family/day care providers are also invited to attend. The workshop is friendly, informative, and fun!

There will be:

- a discussion of the latest discoveries about how the young brain gets ready to learn how to read.
- two short videos that show how parents can help their children build strong foundations for reading and writing before they reach kindergarten.
- a demonstration of an on-line early literacy screening tool for use with children in their pre-kindergarten years.

The workshop is led by Jean Ciborowski Fahey, Ph.D.- Education Director of the Reading Partnership and Literacy Consultant to the Massachusetts Family Literacy Consortium, Massachusetts Department of Education and graduate school professor at Lesley University. For more information call 781-340-4331 or email: Jean_Fahey@sshosp.org.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
DEC. 1, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Keep your feelings to yourself as you work through an awkward circumstance. Complaining is useless, and also unwise since your words could come back to haunt you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A sudden flash of Bovine practicality shows you how you might be able to turn your artistic pursuits into a profitable venture. A spouse or partner offers some sage advice.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be prepared with several "Plan Bs" that you might have to use as backups just in case you encounter some troublesome complications with your carefully constructed schedule.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might think you'll never have a free moment again with the demands of the workplace piling on. Cheer up. The pressure eases as holiday time nears. An old friend brings good news.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Leonine pride might make it difficult to offer an apology to a coworker you unintentionally offended. But a quick and sincere "I'm sorry" could prevent problems down the line.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to tackle those backed-up chores that have kept you from moving into other and potentially more worthwhile projects. A personal matter needs your attention.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You usually have no problem rushing to the defense of someone you perceive as being treated unjustly. But perceptions could be deceiving this week. Check the facts before you act.

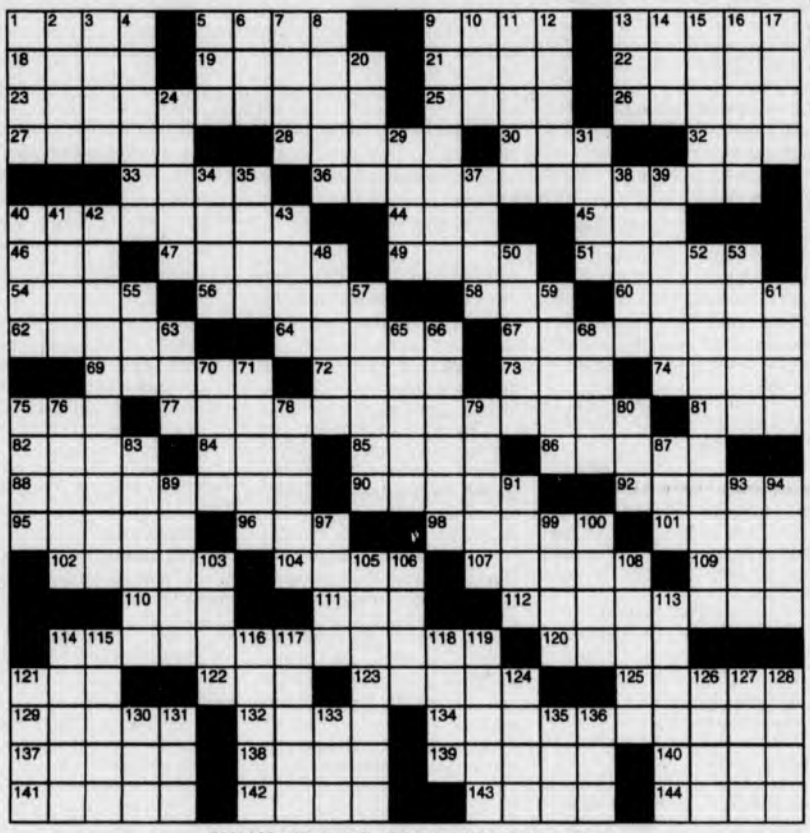
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Before you point fingers at who might be to blame for the unexpected change in your plans, take a few moments to reflect on how this turn of events might be a blessing in disguise.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You seek out advice in the first part of the week. But be careful not to let counsel from others overshadow your own sense of perception. Things become clearer by the week's end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The trusted colleagues you relied on earlier continue to offer support with your project. But you take more control, and by the week's end, you should be in full command.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Rely on your practical side while exploring investment possibilities. Caution is still your watchword in these matters. Your social life takes a gratifying turn by the week's end.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An already confusing situation appears to grow murkier during the first part of the week. But it all starts to clear by the week's end. Plan to spend the weekend with someone special.



(c) 2008 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a passion for life that inspires others to follow your example. You could be a motivational speaker.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

He's a green old Scrooge

The Grinch warms Boston's holiday hearts this season

By R. Scott Reedy

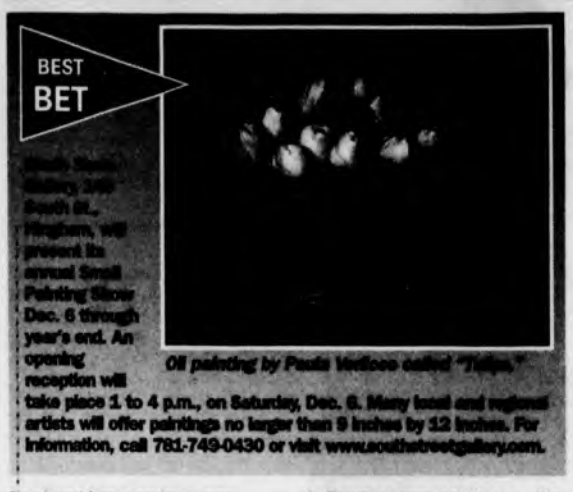
Andrew Keenan-Bolger as Young Max, front, and Walter Charles as Old Max star in "How The Grinch Stole Christmas! The Musical" at Boston's Citi Performing Arts Center Wang Theatre through Dec. 28.

He's been called everything from a heel who's as charming as an eel to a bad banana with a greasy black peel, so it's no wonder that, even during the holidays, the Grinch with a heart two sizes too small would have only his dog to keep him company. In the Dr. Seuss classic "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" — first published in 1957 and subsequently made into an animated 1966 television special and a 2000 live action feature film with Jim Carrey in the title role — it is the loyal canine, Max, who shares the mean one's mountaintop perch above Whoville. In a live musical version of the story written by Springfield native Theodore Geisel under his more famous pen name, the sled-pulling pooch even takes over the narrating duties handled to perfection by Boris Karloff in the small screen cartoon. The musical is now at Boston's Wang Theatre after sold-out holiday runs on Broadway in 2006 and 2007.

"The way I see it, Max was a puppy when the Grinch found him and took him in, so it is only natural that he would develop a bond with his owner," explained Broadway veteran and Boston University graduate Walter Charles by telephone recently. "I'm playing 'Old Max' in this production, so I get to tell the audience the story and relive the lifetime that the Grinch and Max have spent together."

While, thanks to annual rebroadcasts of the television special, many in the audience probably already know all about the Grinch who tries to steal Christmas right out from under his sweet-tempered neighbors, Charles himself had steered clear of the story until very recently.

"I came at my work in this show from a very different perspective, because I did not know anything about the Grinch. I'd never read the book or seen either the TV or feature film versions. I've always been much more of an Alistair Sim's 'Scrooge' and Charles Dickens' 'A Christmas Carol' person. Ultimately, I think that has turned out to be a very good thing, because it has allowed me to come at this show from a completely fresh angle. The way I see it, this is my part in my production and, as such, I am able to make the role, familiar to many, all my own."



Charles, who was featured in the national tour of 'My Fair Lady' that played Boston's Opera House in February, says the more he gets to know the story, the more he likes it. "This is a tremendous story of redemption, which is why it has become America's own 'A Christmas Carol.' And with this stage version, we're being very careful to be true to the original and to protect the integrity of the source material. It is obvious why this works so well. It is because Dr. Seuss was a genius."

('Dr. Seuss' "How the Grinch Stole Christmas, the Musical!" will be at the Citi Performing Arts Center Wang Theatre, 270 Tremont St., Boston, through Dec. 28. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 866-348-9738 or go online at citicenter.org.)

Jane Olivor will perform Dec. 20 at the Berklee Performance Center.

...e, more Olivor

...r returns to delight Boston fans

...Scott Reedy
...orrespondent

...Olivor accepts that ...she is probably best ...known for her beautiful, ...expressive voice, but she ...says she has always had a lot ...more on her mind than just performing.

"People know me only through my music, but I'm very passionate about the environment, too. For 30 years now, I've been preoccupied with animal rights and the environment," Olivor said recently by telephone from her home in Maryland. "I can still remember promoting a record, very early in my career, and reading a newspaper headline that mentioned global warming. It was the first time that I became aware of that term, but I could tell immediately that it wouldn't be the last."

Audiences became aware of the Brooklyn-born Olivor — who will make a rare concert appearance at Boston's Berklee Performance Center on Dec. 20 — in the 1970s when, while making her first cabaret appearance at New York's famed Reno Sweeney, she was discovered by legendary record producer Clive Davis, who signed Olivor to Columbia Records. Her debut album, "First Night," was released in 1976. Olivor's acclaimed version of the Broadway standard "Some Enchanted Evening," from "South Pacific," was released as a 45 rpm companion to her second album, "Chasing Rainbows," and helped that record reach the Top 100 on the Billboard charts.

"I love the Berklee Performance Center. I've played it so many times that it's like an old hangout."
Jane Olivor

Her third album, "Stay the Night," became Olivor's best-selling Columbia release on the power of the title song, which became Olivor's first hit single.

Other hits followed, including a duet with Johnny Mathis on "The Last Time I Felt Like This," from the movie "Same Time Next Year." Olivor and Mathis performed the song on the 1979 Academy Awards telecast where it lost in the Best Song category to the Donna Summer smash "Last Dance" from "Thank God It's Friday." Olivor also topped the charts again that year with her slowed-down, sensual cover of The Chiffons' "He's So Fine."

Just a few years later, Olivor put her burgeoning career on hold when her husband was diagnosed with prostate cancer. She cared for him until his passing in 1986. Olivor — who has long been compared to everyone from Barbra Streisand and Judy Garland to Edith Piaf — eventually resumed her career although persistent bouts of stage fright have limited her live appearances.

Her legions of fans remain loyal, however, and treat every Olivor concert as a special event. Her holiday-themed Berklee show — being presented by Quincy's John F. McDonald Jr., of JM Productions — will likely be no different.

"You never completely overcome stage fright. It is always there to hit you in the stomach. I still feel anxiety if I haven't sung in a while, but I don't turn to 20 below zero anymore — now it's much warmer and easier to overcome. And I love the Berklee Performance Center. I've played it so many times that it's like an old hangout. I even recorded two live albums there, 1982's 'Jane Olivor in Concert' and 2004's 'Safe Return.'

"This time around I'll be doing my music, of course, like 'Stay the Night' and my other hits, but I'll also be singing new songs, and some great old love songs. And, since it's that time of year, I will also be doing some wonderful Christmas music I really love, like 'Silent Night' and 'Oh Come, Oh Come Emmanuel,'" said the 61-year-old Olivor.

"I tend not to be political onstage, where my focus in always on beautiful melodies and lyrics. The songs I love most always have a great melody that can take you to the most wonderful places."

Discovering Scotland

Ed Symkus

PHOTOS/ED SYMKUS

The Dragon's Tooth Mountain looks down over North Ballachulish in the West Highlands.

Eilean Donan Castle, on the Isle of Skye, was used in the film "Highlander."

GLASGOW, SCOTLAND — A number of years ago, my wife and I were visiting England's Lake District when we decided to pop over the border into Scotland. We made our way to Edinburgh, toured the castle, found a cute little B&B, then went back to England, vowing to return some day.

It took 20 years, but we finally found ourselves on a night flight across the Atlantic, headed for Glasgow. The idea of beginning there came while I was interviewing Scottish actor Alan Cumming a few months ago. "Where would you go on a holiday in Scotland," I asked him. He didn't even hesitate. "Fly to Glasgow, rent a car, then go to the Hebrides," he said. "That's the real Scotland."

And so after a day and night in Glasgow at the lovely little Argyll Hotel (almost directly across the street from the fabulous, newly renovated Kelvingrove Art Gallery and Museum - filled with Scottish, Dutch, Italian and French art, as well as ongoing contemporary shows), we found ourselves driving to the Hebrides, a group of rugged and picturesque islands off the northwest coast of Scotland.

In our rented Mazda - we wisely chose an automatic over a manual transmission - the first thing we discovered about hitting the road in Scotland, aside from the whole driving-on-the-wrong-side business, was that you should not underestimate the time it takes to get anywhere. The roads are twisty and slow. Plan on around four hours to go about 100 miles.

Plan, too, on having a little trouble with the Scottish accent. But that's not a big problem, since everyone is so friendly. "Sorry, lad," said one maintenance worker, who couldn't help us find our B&B. But we did finally make it to the Aultbeg B&B in the little town of North Ballachulish, with a gorgeous view of the "Dragon's Tooth" mountain. We enjoyed an excellent meal at the Lochleven Seafood Cafe, which specialized in inventively prepared shellfish in upscale surroundings.

Traveling at a slow pace from town to town as we worked our way northward, we learned all kinds of Scottishisms, from a waitress in Mallaig saying, "Could I just ask you to settle the damage now?" To the beggar in Fort William asking my wife, "Have you got some change, love?" And a gardener we met complained about the "wee Bambis" (deer) eating his roses.

We headed over a bridge to the Isle of Skye, stopping first at the iconic 13th century Eilean Donan Castle (restored in the early 20th century, and later used in the movie "Highlander"), then settling in at the Corran Guest House, which overlooks Loch Snizort.

Having previously traveled throughout England and Wales, we were prepared to find bland and overcooked food in Scotland. We were pleasantly surprised. Yes, they have haggis, but they also have wonderful smoked salmon and plenty of salads with fresh greens. We had another terrific lunch at the Loch Bay Seafood Restaurant on the Waternish Penninsula.

Venturing from Skye to the Outer Hebrides, a group of windswept and treeless islands, involved a 90-minute ferry ride across smooth seas that let us off on the shores of Harris. From Harris you can drive north to the island of Lewis, and we spent a night on each island.

On these islands you'll find haunting areas including the mysterious Calanais Standing Stones on Lewis - the Scottish equivalent of Stonehenge. And, while driving the Golden Road in Harris, we viewed the boulder-strewn landscape that Stanley Kubrick used as a stand-in for Jupiter in "2001; A Space Odyssey."

We also made our way to the beautiful white sands of Luskentyre Beach on Harris, where, on the rare warm day, locals don wetsuits to take a dip in the sea. We chose to walk along the shore rather than join those brave souls.

Another ferry ride brought us to the island of North Uist, where a truck driver with a Scottish accent even most Scots would probably have trouble understanding directed us to a restaurant by telling us only where not to take a right or a left.

A three-night stay at the Temple View Hotel, right across from the ruins of an old temple, provided friendly accommodations, more excellent meals and wind - lots of wind. One of the owners, explaining how windy it was on the island, told us, "Anything below 60 mph is just a breeze." Pointing to the tattered Scottish flag whipping around out front, she added, "We go through a flag a month."

Wind or not the Uists (there's also a South Uist) are ideal for walking. We did a bird walk with a guide from the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds, and saw plenty of them, and later, an otter walk and saw none. We also took time to roam through fields and ruins, where we got to commune with lots of sheep.

Scotland remains a strange mix of the old and new. The major cities provide every sort of comfort you could want. But an escape to the rural areas, especially the islands, reveals a wild but welcoming world that feels like it hasn't changed for centuries.

Wind hearing postponed

Due to unavoidable circumstances, Al Moore, Chairperson of the Planning Board, will not be able to attend the Planning Board meeting on Monday, Dec. 15..

For this reason, the Wind Turbine continued public hearing scheduled for Monday night will be postponed.

The Wind Turbine public hearing will be opened at 7:15 p.m. for approximately one minute on Dec. 15 to immediately continue to a date and time certain.

There will be no introduction of or discussion of any information regarding this filing.

Since this public hearing postponement means the use of the Auditorium is not necessary, the meeting is being moved to the Basement Meeting Room for the remaining agenda items.

Balloon raising off Route 3A

Will show height of proposed turbines

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

If you see some balloons floating on the hill behind Graham Waste, don't think there is a sale on used cars. The balloons are part of the on-going Planning Board review process for two wind turbines with a proposed siting off Route 3A.

Beginning today (Friday) and continuing throughout the weekend, balloons will be floated as the approximate height of the two proposed wind turbine locations to aid the Planning Board in visualizing the scale of the project.

When the Planning Board discussed the possibility of raising balloons at the proposed siting of the turbines at their public hearing on Dec. 1, the plan was for two balloons to be floated on one tether (one to mark where the machinery hub of the turbine and the other to mark the high point of the turbine's blade).

After the meeting the applicant contacted the vendor who advised against placing two weather balloons on one tether. As a result, an alternate plan with what Planning Board chairman Al Moore expects to yield similar results has been developed.

"I don't think any of us (on the Planning Board) had first hand or even second hand knowledge of the type of balloons being used," said Moore. The Planning Board relies on their consulting engineer John Modzelewski to deal and advise on the technical aspects of each application before the board.

"I think he's come up with a scheme

Cohasset to read together again

Two books with local connections

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The common reading of a book can bring together a group of people — or even a community — of diverse interests, tastes, backgrounds and thoughts. That's the driving force behind the Paul Pratt Memorial Library's third annual Cohasset Reads Together program.

"As always, our mission in implementing a community reading initiative is to promote a shared community experience and dialogue about the selected books and to share the spirit of ideas, culture and community," said Library Director Jackie Rafferty.

This year, the library's program committee has chosen two books with timely themes and local connections: "New Boy" by Julian Houston and "A Slave No More" by David Blight.

Not only to both books have a connection to Cohasset, but also their authors have a connection to each other, which make them the ideal companion reads. As part of the library's programming throughout January and February, both authors are slated to speak in Cohasset.

"Program committee members read ("A Slave No More") and determined that this compelling book would be perfect for our townwide read, especially given the historical context of the first African-American poised to potentially become President (which subsequently occurred!) and the book's connection to Cohasset," said Rafferty.

David Blight's "A Slave No More" is in effect a memoir — it is the story of two slaves who made their break for freedom during the chaos of the Civil War. After reconstructing their childhoods as sons of white slave holders through their climb to black working-class stability in the north where they reunited with their families, Blight then reproduces the men's accounts of their

Gifted, talented program launched

Multi-step process used to identify students

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

At Deer Hill School, the teachers, staff and administration strive to meet the learning needs of all students. In that spirit, a new program has been developed to identify and instruct those students who show exceptional qualities in certain areas or at certain times.

Unveiled at a recent School Committee, Deer Hill has developed a method to identify and adapt the curriculum for gifted and talented students.

"At this school we always try to meet the individual needs of students. We want them to be appropriately challenged wherever they are," said Principal Jennifer deChiara.

The catalyst to the program was a grant offered by the state Department of Education for school districts to plan a gifted and talented program. It was a competitive grant and the Cohasset school district was a recipient of $8,000.

Their first objective was to train a group of teachers, as well as deChiara, in the assessment and instruction of gifted and talented students. The team of teachers took a semester long class this past spring at UMASS Boston titled Gifted and Talented education.

Over the summer, the team began to take what they learned to develop a gifted and talented program at Deer Hill School. Defining what gifted and talented means at Deer Hill and how the identification process would work were their primary goals.

"We wanted to create a fair and effective identification process," said deChiara.

To define the gifted and talented students, the committee uses the definition created by two of the most noted researchers in gifted education, Joseph Renzulli and Sally Reis, said deChiara. Gifted students possess three components: above average cognitive aptitude,

POLICE BEAT

Whipped cream cans used for 'high'

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Chief Hussey said police have talked to area stores about selling large numbers of whipped cream cans.

A concerned citizen notified police on Friday (Dec. 5) after finding 12 whipped cream cans in front of her house. Chief James Hussey said police are glad that she notified them. He explained that a quantity of whip cream cans is indicative that the aerosol is being used for intoxication. He said police have talked to area stores about selling large numbers of whip cream cans.

Detectives are investigating this incident.

MV accident

Police said a 2002 Hyundai, owned and operated by a Scituate man, put on the brakes but could not stop and struck a 2003 Ford that was waiting to make a left from Hull Street in Cohasset onto Canterbury Street in Hingham.

The accident occurred at about 11:12 a.m. on Monday (Dec. 1).

Both cars were headed in the same direction when the Ford, operated by a Cohasset man, stopped to make the left.

The operator of the Hyundai was cited for following too closely. His car had to be towed, police said.

Vandalism

Police are investigating vandalism that was reported by a neighbor while the homeowners on Parker Avenue were away last week. Officers followed up with the residents when they returned and confirmed that the roof to a 1997 Mazda convertible and window and roof of a 1989 Jeep had been vandalized and that the damage was not preexisting.

Note

Police said a note that was nonthreatening in nature is more of a civil issue. Officers responded to Lamberts Lane on Monday (Dec. 1) after receiving a call from a resident about a note left on the door. There is construction going on at the house. The note stated "we're watching you," police said. It appears that whoever left the note is unhappy with the construction project.

Summons

A 62-year-old Scituate woman is being summonsed to court for driving a car with revoked registration due to nonpayment of insurance, police said. An officer was on patrol on Sohier Street on Tuesday (Dec. 2) at about 6 p.m. when the officer spotted a car with an expired registration sticker; the officer ran the information through the cruiser's mobile data terminal that revealed the registration had been revoked. The officer pulled the car over and informed the operator she was driving illegally.

She was charged with operating after license revocation and operating without insurance. Her car was towed.

Arrest

An officer was monitoring traffic on the northbound side of Route 3A at 6:25 a.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 3) when the officer saw a car traveling at a high rate of speed. Radar clocked the vehicle as going 56 mph where the speed limit is 35.

The car was pulled over at 3A & Pond Street. The operator told the officer he did not have a license. Police said the 42-year-old Scituate man's license had been suspended for a prior operating under the influence charge.

He was arrested for driving without a license and cited for speeding.

Parking issue

Due to construction around the common, some of the no parking signs were temporarily covered with plastic bags. The bags were not removed in time for the Village Fair resulting in a parking problem on Highland Court, police said. Fairgoers parked on both sides of the small street making it difficult for emergency vehicles. An announcement was made inside St. Stephen's for people to move their cars, police said.

ID theft

A walk-in came to the station on Saturday to report that there were three credit card charges in excess of $1400 for three different purchases that the cardholder had not made.

Police provided the victim with and ID theft packet. Police are investigating and are looking into potential suspects.

Protective custody

Police responded to a call about a man wearing a red vest with a black bag slung over his shoulder knocking on doors on Smith Place and saying "if you don't open the door, call the police!" When police arrived they found the black bag on the ground. A woman wearing a red windbreaker stepped out. She had trouble standing and was under the influence of alcohol, police said. She was apparently lost after leaving a friend's house. Police brought her to the station under protective custody where she stayed until she sobered up.

Balloons will show height of proposed turbines that will work perfectly fine," said Moore. "The one thing we are trying to see as a board is how the turbines will look from Route 3A, from Sanctuary Pond, from even the Common…this is a good way as a board to do that and at the same time give residents a chance to see it as well."

Here is the set-up for the balloons this weekend:

- The balloons will be raised from approximately 8:30a.m. to sunset on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 12, 13 and 14. In the event of inclement weather on any of those days, the balloons will also be raised on Monday, Dec. 15.
- One balloon will be raised for each turbine.
- Each balloon will be a different color to distinguish the two turbine locations. The balloons will represent the maximum height reached by the turbine blades. The balloon will be between four and 10 feet in diameter depending on wind conditions at the time it is raised. The largest diameter balloon will be floated first and if unsuccessful (larger balloons tend to catch the wind and drift) successively smaller balloons will be floated. Each balloon will be a different color and will have a pink streamer attached to its base to aid in finding it.
- Below each balloon, orange six-to-10 foot streamers will be placed at the height of the nacelle, which is the machinery housing at the top of each wind turbine tower.
- A yellow streamer will be places at a lower elevation to represent the lowest point of the turbine blades.
- Below that, streamers about one foot long will be placed at intervals on the tether line from the lowest blade point to the ground.

Additionally, the balloon location will be monitored at approximate 10-minute intervals by the contractor. If wind conditions force the balloons more than 25 degrees off vertical, the balloons will be lowered temporarily and continuous attempts will be made to re-float them to their proposed location. At some point if conditions become too windy one would expect the work to be aborted.

Moore is hoping the weekend has decent weather to allow the Planning Board and the residents to see the balloons. While rain and clouds won't prevent the raising of the balloons, a blustery day will de-rail the endeavor.

A town-wide emergency notification call went out to all residences yesterday (Thursday) to let residents know the details of the plan.

Contact the Planning Board office at 781-383-3517 if you have any questions.

The Town Election is scheduled for a week later on Saturday, April 5.

Cohasset to read together again

own emancipation in their original language.

One of the men, John Washington, eventually retires here to Cohasset where he spends the last five years of his life with his son's family on North Main Street; he died in 1918 and is buried in Woodside Cemetery.

It was Library Trustee Sarah Pease who brought the book to the program committee. She and her husband, Sam, were attending a Yale reunion when they heard Professor David Blight speak.

"It was the most incredible talk I've ever heard on slavery and reconstruction," said Pease. Toward the end of the lecture, Blight revealed how Washington has spent his last five years in Cohasset.

"My husband and I practically fell off our chairs!" said Pease. After the lecture, they spoke to Blight and he offered them his phone number and e-mail address. Pease spent the next few months using her own enthusiasm for the book to encourage others to read it. She convinced the program committee to adopt "A Slave No More" as this year's town-wide read.

"Up here in the North many thing that slavery didn't touch us and this is proof it did touch us right here in Cohasset," said Pease.

- Fri. Feb. 13, 2p.m. Memoir Writing Workshop, part II. Library Meeting Room.
- Wed. Feb. 25, 11a.m. Library Book Group discusses "A Slave No More" by David Blight. Library Meeting Room

Much of "A Slave No More" narrative is directly from a manuscript written by ex-slave Washington himself, a manuscript once owned by Julian Houston, author of "New Boy." The manuscript has been passed down to him through his mother who was Washington's granddaughter's best friend. Somehow, he and David Blight found each other, a story Cohasset will hear more about when the two authors come to Cohasset to speak during our Cohasset Reads Together program.

The other selection, Julian Houston's "New Boy," is young adult historical fiction — a thinly veiled memoir of the author's own experiences as an African American adolescent of the 1950's. The novel takes the reader from the lushly coiffed landscape of an elite private school in New England to the vibrant beat of a Harlem peopled by Malcolm X, Dizzy Gillespie, and Joe Louis, and finally to a lunch-counter sit-in in Virginia where fledgling student activists are violently attacked by whites.

In these settings Rob Garrett, the 15-year-old African American narrator of "New Boy," grapples with the yearnings of adolescence — to create his own identity apart from his parents, though he has only vague notions of who that person might be — the black movement in his country begins, too, to find its own voice.

The Honorable Judge Julian Houston will kick-off the program's series of events as the featured speaker following the annual Dr. Martin Luther King Breakfast on Monday, Jan. 19; Professor David Blight will speak in the high school auditorium on Abraham Lincoln's Birthday, Thursday, Feb. 12 at 7p.m.

Houston is a retired justice of the Superior Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and Blight is professor of American History at Yale University.

"I would encourage everyone to attend the author events, even if the selected books are not books they may have gravitated to," said Rafferty. "Both authors are known to be fascinating and charismatic speakers, and I suspect that after hearing them speak, most participants will be eager to read the books."

The coming together of this year's books and programs has been a series of coincidences that when put together could add up to a little bit of fate.

After Houston speaks at the Martin Luther King Jr. breakfast, he will board a plane to Washington, D.C. to go to the inauguration of the first African-American president, Barack Obama. When Blight speaks on Feb. 12, he will be speaking on the 200th anniversary of President Abraham Lincoln's birth.

"Everything just came together," said Pease. "There is a real historical connection and timeliness to this year's program."

Once again the Cohasset schools' Read-a-thon will be part of our community reading program. The books in K-5 were selected for their relevance to the theme Freedom Quilts; grades K & 1 will read "Barefoot: Escape on the Underground Railroad" by Pamela Duncan Edwards and for grades 2-5, "Sweet Clara and the Freedom Quilt" by Deborah Hopkinson.

This is the third year of the Cohasset Reads together program. The first year's book was "The Last Pick," an autobiography about David J. McGillivray, race director of the Boston Marathon. Last year, the town immersed themselves in "Walden" by Henry David Thoreau and "A Walk in the Woods" by Bill Bryson.

The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Library. Multiple copies of books have been purchased to make them widely available.

Cohasset resident appointed to BGCB Board of Directors

COURTESY PHOTO

Cohasset resident William Earon was appointed to Boys & Girls Clubs of Boston's Board of Directors Dec. 2.

Earon is the managing director for Coastal Capital Advisors LLC, a private equity and board-consulting firm that invests in Massachusetts-based companies in the film and production industry.

Cohasset resident William Earon was appointed to Boys & Girls Clubs of Boston's Board of Directors Dec. 2 during the 114th annual meeting at the Westin Copley Place. Earon formerly served on the Board of Overseers for BGCB.

Earon is the managing director for Coastal Capital Advisors LLC, a private equity and board-consulting firm that invests in Massachusetts-based companies in the film and production industry. He also is managing partner of the Massachusetts Film Tax Credit Fund, and has worked for 28 years in accounting services, specializing in tax issues.

He spent 25 years at Ernst & Young, rising to become senior partner while leading E&Y's New England financial services tax practice. He also served as a member of the firm's Banking and Capital Markets Steering Committee.

Earon is active in the New England corporate community. He is a board member and president of the National Association of Corporate Directors - New England Chapter. He also is the past chairman of the 2008 NACD Director of the Year Awards Program. Currently, he is a member of Boys & Girls Clubs of Boston's Audit Committee, immediate past chairman of the Board of Directors of South Shore Art Center and board member and Corporate Governance Committee chairman of the Boston Police Athletic League. Earon received his bachelor's degree in business administration from Siena College.

Staying local Businesses look forward to holiday season

"We're all concerned, we're all small businesses. We need people to come in and support us."

— Darilynn Evans, Darilynn's Home Presence

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

When shopping this holiday season, think about staying local.

That's the feeling and request from local merchants in Cohasset Village and along Route 3A.

With the troubled economy and seemingly everyone tightening their belts, merchants and shoppers alike are thinking of creative ways to still make ends meet.

"Before you go to the mall, take a look around...there is a lot of great stuff in the village," said Michele Rizzo, co-owner of Carmela Drew and Simply Fresh.

Many of the merchants already have heard from customers who have decided to stay local for holiday shopping.

"A lot of people have said it's time to make a conscious effort without us soliciting it," said Darilynn Evans, owner of Darilynn's Home Presence.

Despite that good news, village merchants have noticed a general decrease in traffic, especially through October and November, compared to previous years and the village atmosphere has been relatively quiet. After Thanksgiving, they say there has been a noticeable increase in sales and traffic into shops.

"We're very grateful for our regular customers, they are as loyal as ever, but the traffic is definitely less," said Rizzo.

While the nightly news is grim, Cohasset merchants are doing their best to stay positive despite their circumstances.

"We're trying to keep upbeat and positive. Our goal is to be a village of independent merchants who are in it for the long haul," said Bielewicz, who has taken on a new emphasis in customer service to ensure clients have a good experience.

While numbers were up and down, just like the stock market, in October and November, Darilynn Evans has noticed a bit of an up tick over the past few days.

"We're all concerned, we're all small businesses. We need people to come in and support us," said Evans. "I think everyone (merchants and shoppers) is being concerned and cautious."

But, being cautious doesn't mean they aren't doing their best to reach out to customers and adjust to the changing economic times.

A group of nine village businesses have banded together to film a television ad to appear on cable stations. Some merchants appear in the spot and much of the ad shows the atmosphere of the village and its various stores, services and products.

"One of the reasons we did it was to push people to come to the village," said Evans. The television ad has aired this week in the evening hours on various cable channels.

Other merchants are putting on different promotions or discounts. "Everyone is doing what they can," Evans said.

At Carmela Drew, they have been coming up with ways to give customers more value for their dollar. Their prepared meals are still popular, but Rizzo is looking at creative ways to keep customers coming back. Family-oriented specials and meals are forthcoming, as well as complete gift baskets and they have begun carrying lower price point candy and stocking stuffer items.

At Simply Fresh, they will be introducing a family-oriented line of meals, good quality comfort food, like lasagna and shepherd's pie, that's a little less fancy than past menu items.

"If people are going out and spending, they want to know they are getting value," said Rizzo. "We want to make our product affordable and be flexible to the customer. They don't want to be paying through the nose for something, but they still want nice quality."

All the village merchants are hoping the Annual Village Holiday Stroll is once again a success. Businesses throughout the village will have music, refreshments and special events this Saturday night (Dec. 13) from 4 to 7p.m.

On Route 3A, King Jewelers, too, has taken steps to ensure there are products available at all price points.

"We always try to have something for everyone anyway, but we have added some lines that are designer looking for a lower price point," said Valerie King, owner of King Jewelers.

In the month of November, King Jewelers saw a 15 percent increase in sales over last year's numbers partly due to several successful event nights. King said December has started off a bit slower, but business has been picking up everyday.

"Honestly, if our numbers were flat, I'd be happy," said King. "We're predicting a December at least as good as last year."

While her numbers have remained constant, King says the customers are spending less than they have in the past.

With the news about the country is in a recession and the financial markets in turmoil, King knows her numbers aren't happening across all industries and merchants and credits it to shoppers who are staying local.

"I feel like in tough times people stick around home a lot more," said King. "People should keep a positive attitude and not watch the news!"

Bielewicz concurs, "people may be cutting corners where they can, but they are still celebrating Christmas and Hanukkah."

'Veteran Cooks' makes a great gift!

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

CRAZY WEATHER

Hello Cohasset. Welcome to the crazy weather of New England that is for sure. I have to say that the warm weather is so nice when it happens but it sure does feel weird. No complaints, just feeling strange. I wanted to say a wonderful congratulations goes out to the Cohasset High Schools production of the "West Side Story" held last weekend at the school. It always amazes me when a mixed group of ages and kids work together with the Directors, producers etc. to pull off such a great performance. Nice Work to all! The holidays are getting closer and a number of events and happenings are going on this weekend and next. Have fun, stay safe and get into the holiday spirit.

NEW ARRIVAL

Thank heavens for little girls... Gerard and Lynne Buckley would like to announce the arrival of their granddaughter, Eliza Lynne, who was born on Oct. 21, 2008 at Exeter Hospital in New Hampshire. She was 7 pounds 1/2 ounce and 20 inches long. Parents are Candice Buckley Schmitz, who grew up in Cohasset, and Ben Schmitz. They currently live in Epping, New Hampshire. Congratulations on this wonderful arrival in our world.

FONTBONNE

Cohasset resident Emily St. John earned second honors on Fontbonne Academy's first quarter honor roll and was inducted into the National Honor Society on Nov.20. Well done!

NDA HONORS

Notre Dame Academy Principal Kathleen Colin is pleased to announce the names of seven Cohasset students who made Honor Roll for Term One.

President's List:__Olivia Adkins, Alexandra Butler, Courtney Culhane, Katherine French and Kerry McCabe.

Principal's List: Claire Pozniak and Victoria Wade.

Congratulations all!

Recipe books are available for sale at $12.95 and may be purchased in Cohasset at the Legion Post, Atlantic Bagel, Village Wine and Spirits and Pilgrim Bank's South Main Street Branch.

XAVERIAN

Hats off to Edward Culhane and Sean Ahearne, both of Cohasset, on making the honor roll for the first marking period at Xaverian High School in Westwood.

Edward, who is a member of the Class of 2012, made first honors and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward James Culhane, Jr. To achieve this honor, Edward had to have all grades of 85 or above.

Sean, who is a member of the Class of 2010, made second honors and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence P. Aherne, Jr. Sean earned second honros with all grades 80 or above.

Congratulations!

GOING BATTY

Buttonwood Books & Toys welcomes author/illustrator Brian Lies on Sat. Dec. 20, 10:30 a.m. for a special story time and activity. Lies will be reading, whenever a group gathers, from "Bats at the Library. " Beautifully illustrated with rhyming prose the book is about a lively adventure, at night, through a library, by a colony of lovable bats. Drawn with exquisite detail "Bats at the Library," invites repeated readings as readers enjoy the bats late night excursions through the hallowed halls. Lies will be arriving in the BATSmobile, his jeep Cherokee wrapped with artwork from the book. Brian Lies has written and illustrated many books for children, and his award-winning work appears regularly in children's magazines and galleries around the country. A portion of the proceeds from this book is being donated to Bat Conservation International. This is a free event. If you are unable to attend and would like to order a personalized and/or signed copy, please call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665.

GIFT IDEA

Here is a gift idea if needed.

Residents ride for Jimmy Fund!

The Pan-Massachusetts Challenge raised a record-breaking $35 million for cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its August cycling event – $2 million more than the organization raised last year. The total sum is more than twice the amount ever raised for charity by any other athletic fundraising event. It is the single largest contribution made to the Jimmy Fund.

Eleven PMC cyclists, who reside in Cohasset, raised $40,981.27 of the $35 million.

The contribution represents 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar, a charity pass through rate nearly unparalleled within the $1.64 billion athletic fundraising event industry. Since its 1980 inception, the PMC has raised nearly $240 million for the Jimmy Fund.

In 2008, the PMC attracted 5,232 cycling fundraisers, about 300 more than last year. Riders came to Massachusetts from 36 states and eight countries. Each cyclist was required to raise between $1,300 and $4,000 to participate, depending on the chosen route. More than 90 percent of PMCers raised more money than they were required to.

Founded in 1980 when 36 cyclists rode across Massachusetts and raised $10,200 for the Jimmy Fund, the PMC is known today as the "gold standard" of athletic fundraising events, due to the unprecedented sums it raises and its consistently efficient charity pass-through rate.

This is the second straight year the PMC has been able to contribute 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar to the cause. Presenting sponsors, Boston Red Sox Foundation and Overstock.com, along with 200 other corporate sponsors, underwrite the cost of producing the event and provide in-kind contributions of goods and services. In addition, 2,800 volunteers work throughout the year and during PMC weekend, fulfilling many roles that are typically paid positions.

The 30th annual PMC is set for Aug. 1 and 2. Registration opens online on Jan. 12 for alumni, and Jan. 20 for newcomers. Visit: the Web site at pmc.org.

— PLAY REVIEW —

'West Side Story' impressive on many levels

By Kathryn Hillman
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

"West Side Story," the compelling tale of passionate teenage love, gang fights, and turf wars, was performed this past weekend by the students of Cohasset High School. The play was directed and choreographed by Stephanie Moriarty and produced and musically directed by Bryan Marks. The leads, Ian Porter as Tony and Jenny Magruder as Maria, did a fabulous job playing the two love-struck teens caught in the midst of a gang war between the Jets and the Sharks. The Jets, led by August Oddleifson as Riff, gave an energetic performance and were particularly good in their musical numbers "Jet Song" and "Cool." Another great number and a huge crowd-pleaser was "Gee, Officer Krupke." Sean McCarthy, who played Action, one of the Jet boys, was particularly well received by the crowd for his comic moments in the song.

There are many deeply emotional scenes throughout the show. Quite possibly the best-known scene in the entire play, the "Balcony Scene," in which Tony and Maria declare their love for each other, was executed beautifully – the singing was expressive and their emotion was tangible. The same can be said about "One Hand, One Heart" another one of Tony and Maria's duets. Tony also sings two songs solo, "Something's Coming" and "Maria". Ian Porter handled both difficult numbers very well. Another very well preformed number was the duet "A Boy Like That" sung by Maria and her sister Anita, who was played by Ellie Baumgarten. The moving duet sung by the two girls is about love and loss. Both actresses had impressive voices and displayed emotion very well. The reprise of "Somewhere," a theme first heard in the "Balcony Scene" by Maria and Tony, was sung by Margarita, played by Meghan Burke. It is a beautiful and emotional piece. Finally, "Tonight," sung by the entire cast, before the rumble at the end of Act I, was very well done, with remarkable harmonies with as many as five parts sung by different individuals or groups. This was the highlight of the first act, with Anita, Maria, and Tony singing solo, while the Jets and Sharks (the Puerto Rican gang) sing together.

The show was exceptionally well choreographed, done by Stephanie Moriarty with the assistance of dance captains Jean Thomae and Carly Salerno. The "Dance at the Gym" number, in which the Jets and the Sharks face off at a dance, was especially memorable. At the height of the excitement, Anita and Bernardo (played by Andrew Bell) have a dance-off against Riff and Velma, played by Sarah Coggins. Another impressive number was "America," sung by Anita and the Sharks' girls, featuring Rosalia (Logan Pratt), Consuela (Tara Goodwin), and Francisca (Lauren Mack). These three girls appeared again later to sing "I Feel Pretty" with Maria, another excellent number. The choreography for the Prologue and the Rumble were particularly impressive and very real. The dance captains nicely executed the ballet sequence.

Some of the most impressive "choreography" was not actually seen during the performance. The stage crew did a fantastic job. With Stage Manager Charlotte Malone and Assistant Stage Manager Terry MacCormack, the New York back alley sets were extremely realistic and the store and bridal shop were both set on a two-sided platform, for easy movement but still providing a very concrete set.

One scene-stealer was Judy Ritz's walk-on appearance at the beginning of the bridal shop scene, which drew applause from the crowd. James Earl as Lt. Shrank, Bill Mack as Officer Krupke, Cote Mitchell as Doc, and Margaret Goodwin as Glad Hand did very well in the supporting roles. Morgan McCarthy, who played Jet Baby John, did a great job as the youngest gang member, caught between childhood innocence and adult reality. Finally, the orchestra of 12 professionals and one student, Austin Meyers, did a superb job performing this complicated and challenging score.

When asked, Mr. Marks had this to say about the opening night production: "Very solid first night, I was very pleased. [We are] peaking at the right time," and the audience certainly seemed to concur. Cohasset High School's production of "West Side Story" was definitely deserving of the standing ovation it received.

Maria, played by junior Jenny Magruder, tells her friends, played by Tara Goodwin, Logan Pratt, and Lauren Mack, about her impending wedding with Tony as they performed a few numbers from West Side Story for senior citizens during a special preview performance at Atlantica before Thanksgiving. The show was performed last weekend at CHS.

What could be better than chicken minestrone soup while out for a holiday stroll? The crowd at last year's Cohasset Holiday Village Stroll kept Brian Houlihan of Bia Bistro very busy!

Don't miss the Cohasset Holiday Village Stroll

Grand Procession will kick off event

Stop down in the village this Saturday from 4-7 p.m. and experience the spirit of the holiday season.

New this year is "The Grand Procession" which will kick off this year's stroll at 4 o'clock. In the parade will be sled dogs, Brendan St. John's hayride, an antique beach buggy, carolers, bell ringers, holiday characters, "hats on parade" and of course, Santa on Glen Pratt's antique fire truck. The procession will end in front the hardware store for the lighting of the tree with beautiful caroling.

The carillon concert will then fill the air with beautiful music of the season compliments of Mary Kennedy. Holiday music will be heard throughout the evening outside. Carmela Drew will feature live music, and the Cohasset MS/HS Jazz ensemble will perform at the South Shore Art Center.

Meet in front of Fleming's for the hayride, and some cocoa. Stroll down Elm Street, South Main Street and Depot Court and visit the merchants and businesses for chowder, cocoa, cider, beef stew, hot dogs s'mores and many other culinary delights!

For the young at heart, there will be face painting at Paperscapes, a balloon man at Pilgrim Bank, the Grinch at Atlantic Brokerage, letters to Santa at Coastal Countryside, Rudolph at Pink Tulip, cookie decorating at French Memories, a jingle bell craft at Epiphany Designs, and of course, a visit with Santa at Coldwell Banker. Live modeling will take place in the windows of Ports and see the ice sculptures at 15 Depot Court.

Follow the balloons to find the action. The merchants and businesses are sponsoring many raffles, with the proceeds going to the Cohasset Food Pantry. Help Toys for Tots this year and bring a toy donation to Darilynn's. The weather forecast looks good, so come on down and enjoy!

Helping people in crisis through Wellspring's Edson Fund

The Broad Cove Chorale and the Unicorn Singers will present two Christmas concerts to benefit the Diane Edson Fund of Wellspring Multi-Service Center. "O Wondrous Night: The Nativity in Word and Song" will include choral pieces interspersed with poetry by John Donne, Milton, Longfellow and others. Audience members can join the celebration in singing beloved, traditional carols.

"O Wondrous Night" will be performed at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 13, at the House of Prayer in Hingham and at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 14, at the First Parish Church in Cohasset. Proceeds from the concerts will provide immediate assistance to South Shore residents in crisis facilitated through the Edson Fund.

Michael Theobold, a well-known area educator, will read some of the world's great poetry as part of the Wellspring fund-raiser. Theobald, formerly at Milton and Thayer Academies, will join the Broad Cove Chorale and Unicorn Singers. Poetry by Milton, Pasternak, Pope and Longfellow will be interspersed with choral music.

Michael Theobald was born in London, attended Malvern College and read modern languages at Brasenose College, Oxford. He came to the U.S. to teach at St. Paul's School, and in addition to many years of teaching, he was assistant Headmaster at Milton Academy, Headmaster of Hopkins School in New Haven, and principal of the Upper School at Thayer Academy. In retirement, he has been volunteering extensively and has won awards for his work with the homeless.

The late Diane Edson of Hingham, founder of Wellspring, sang with the Unicorn Singers for 15 years making this benefit concert particularly poignant. Several years ago Wellspring established the Diane Edson Fund—to be used for one purpose—to provide immediate aid for people in trouble. Generous support for this fund has enabled Wellspring to assist countless families and individuals in crisis. This winter the needs increase as more and more South Shore families face loss of vital services. The cause is compelling and the concerts promise to be a wonderful celebration of the season.

Oh Wondrous Night: The Nativity in Word and Song to benefit Wellspring Multi-Service Center

Tickets are $15 per person. Send checks payable to Wellspring Multi-Service Center, c/o Kathy Reardon, 9 Steamboat Lane, Hingham, MA 02043, or call 781-749-0162 Tickets are also available at Noble's Camera Shop, Hingham.

Holiday celebration at All Four Paws

Cohasset's All Four Paws Daycare & Boarding will open its doors to dogs and their humans from 1 to 4 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 13, for a holiday celebration. Santa Claus will make a special stop to pose for complimentary pictures with willing pooches. Refreshments and treats will be on hand/paw for two- and four-legged guests. Find out if one's pooch has been naughty or nice by visiting All Four Paws, Route 3A, on the Cohasset/Scituate line.

For more information, call Kim or Mike at 781-383-2010.

Upcoming events

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Breakfast will take place Monday, Jan. 19. Breakfast will be served from 9 to 10 a.m., and the program from 10 to 11 a.m. Guest speaker will be Julian Houston, author of "New Boy," a Cohasset Reads Together Book Choice in January/February, along with "Slave No More" by David Blight. The event will take place at First Parish Unitarian Universalist/Parish House, 23 North Main St., Cohasset. Cost is $5 per person or $15 per family.

Cohasset Reads Together, an evening with David Blight, author, "Slave No More," will take place at 7 p.m., on Feb. 12, at Cohasset High School.

Caroling on the Common is Dec. 13

Hey there, Merry-Makers! Once again, First Parish is sponsoring a holiday treat for young and old: the well-loved Cohasset tradition—— Caroling on the Common—— on Saturday, Dec. 13.

Participants will gather at the Parish House at 23 North Main St., between 3:45-4 p.m. for cookies and cider. The group will then leave to start the singing near the duck pond. At approximately 4:45 p.m., everyone will return to the Parish House for hot cocoa, cider and cookies (cookie donations will be much appreciated.)

Please bring a pair of socks (or two or three), which will be donated to Boston Health Care for the Homeless. Socks should be white cotton; both men's and women's sizes are needed.

For further information contact Sandy Bailey at the church office 781-383-1100 or Woody Chittick 781-383-3215.

These kids all think the cottage playhouses are super! The drawing date is set for Dec. 20 and free delivery will be provided in time for Christmas to Cohasset and adjacent towns.

Community Center raffling off playhouses

South Shore Community Center is raffling off two cottage playhouses, perfect for fostering hours of out-door imaginary play and fulfilling a child's dream. The raffle will run for five weeks only; the drawing date is set for Dec. 20 and free delivery will be provided in time for Christmas to Cohasset and adjacent towns.

The cottages are made from the highest quality materials and are valued at almost $5,000 each. The yellow and white painted New England style cottages are on display on the side lawn of the Community Center. Each measures 8 feet wide by 12 feet long, and includes a 4 foot by 8 foot porch. They have three aluminum windows, one child's door, one adult's door and a loft over the porch.

Raffle tickets are $20 each. Further the odds by purchasing three for $50 or seven for $100. Tickets can be purchased at the Community Center during office hours, at the nursery school during school hours, or by calling the Community Center at 781-383-0088.

South Shore Art Center offers gift ideas

South Shore Art Center, a non-profit visual arts organization, is optimistic about the holiday season as people search for creative, meaningful and inexpensive gifts. "We are finding that people are being more selective about their purchases and expenses," said Art Center director Sarah Hannan, "and that translates into gifts – such as a piece of art or an art class – that in many cases, last forever or affords a wonderful learning experience." The Art Center's current "Dwn2Size" and National Drawing Show showcase the work of more than 100 artists, both national and local, and artwork priced under $200, with many pieces under $100. Anne Heywood, who enjoys a national reputation, has 13 pieces on display in the lobby gallery. "Most of the artwork would look great in any home, with any décor. There are beautiful, small photo collages that could hang in a bathroom and larger pieces for an entryway, and paintings of Fenway Park, World's End, North River and your favorite ski slope! What a great way to give a unique and meaningful gift and support a local artist and art institution," said Art Center president Jennifer Willms.

Gift certificates for art and courses and workshops at the Art Center are available in any denomination. Winter term classes range from digital photography to basic drawing, art history to mosaics, ceramics, oil painting and furniture painting. A gift certificate for a class is a great gift for anyone interested in art; the Art Center offers classes every day of the week in most media for beginners to professional-level artists. Children's classes begin for students age 4 1/2 and include intensive studio studies for middle and high school students.

South Shore Art Center will participate in the Cohasset Village Holiday Stroll, from 4 to 8 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 13, offering 10 percent off art and gift counter sales, snowflake making for kids and live musical entertainment. Art Center galleries are open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and noon to 4 p.m. on Sundays, through Dec. 23.

Exhibit features local artists

Home Center Sotheby's International Realty is pleased to announce another in its continuing series of exhibitions of works by respected local artists.

The "Tuesday Painters" Art Exhibition represents the efforts of an eclectic group of award winning South Shore artists. They are presenting recent works by members Katherine Catlin, Jane Flavell Collins, Marsha Hoar, Yvette Rattenbury, Betty Rogers and Barbara Walsh.

Show runs through Jan. 17.

King's plaza shops host event

King Jewelers, together with Lemon Lime Aveda Lifestyle Salon, TanZia Tanning Studio and Peridot Nail and Skin Care Center, put on an evening of fun and festivities for the ladies of the South Shore.

The first annual "Ladies Night" was held on Thursday, Dec. 4, from 5-9pm. The Event was a success with more than 150 women enjoying all that King's plaza has to offer. TanZia and Peridot made available special offers on services and Aveda gift bags were presented by Lemon Lime Lifestyle Salon.

Santa made a special appearance for the children at Lemon Lime Salon and continued spreading Holiday cheer throughout King's Plaza. King Jewelers wanted the ladies to indulge in an evening of delicious Hors d'oeuvres, French wine, chocolate covered strawberries all while creating the "wish list" of their dreams! Every item entered into the wish list is offered to her special Santa at a 20 percent savings. Gift bags were also given to every lady visiting King Jewelers.

DeAnna Pappas, ABC's "The Bachelorette" made a very special appearance to King Jewelers for the event.

"We recognize we have a lot of students here that are bright, hardworking and come from families that value education," said deChiara. But, not all students will meet the specific criteria of gifted and talented.

The committee struggled with coming to the conclusion that there are those students at Deer Hill who are in a narrowly defined category.

"As public school teachers and educators, we believe every child possesses gifts and talents worthy of recognition," said deChiara. "But, gifted and talented students are those outliers that are made miserable by regular classroom curriculum because it is such a mismatch for them."

It is a multi-step process to identify gifted and talented students. First, a candidate pool is developed through aptitude test results, teacher referrals and parent/guardian referrals.

Then, the committee makes their initial assessment. The committee reviews the candidate pool and determines if more information is needed for a particular student. Referring persons will be invited to provide more information. Further assessment might be necessary.

"At this school we always try to meet the individual needs of students. We want them to be appropriately challenged wherever they are."
— Principal Jennifer deChiara

The evaluation of the gifted and talented candidate pool uses multiple criteria. Teacher recommendation and testimony, parent testimony and student work samples are all a part of the evaluation process.

"It's not right to use one test score to determine who gets in," said deChiara.

The last step would be to identify the students and to make recommendations for accelerated, compacted and/or enriched instruction. Curriculum compacting might be recommended when students already know or understand the concepts of a particular learning unit. The student would be supplemented with more in-depth learning materials so they remain challenged and interested.

Gifted and talented students may be given differentiated materials if a fourth grade student is reading at a ninth grade level.

"We want the reading materials to be appropriately challenging, but not thematically inappropriate for a fourth grader," said deChiara.

Another option exists if a student possesses off the charts aptitude in a particular subject where a third grader could be placed in a fourth grade class for that subject.

The gifted and talented program that is essentially woven into established school practices. Creating a suitable learning plan for all students is a goal for the staff at Deer Hill. All learning still takes place within the student's classroom.

The Deer Hill Gifted and Talented Committee consists of teacher representatives from each grade level, a special education teacher and Principal deChiara.

Principal deChiara wanted there to be an open and transparent process for the program. With stated guidelines for the gifted and talented program and multiple opportunities for enrichment, it is the hope all students will be challenged and learn to his or her full potential (see sidebar).

A parent information night will be held in January in conjunction with a STEM lab open house.

The School Committee received Principal deChiara's presentation positively.

"A strictly gifted and talented program doesn't affect the large population of the school, but it seemed the work they are doing (at Deer Hill) will have positive implications on the larger school population," said School Committee Chairman Rick Flynn in a phone interview.

"We are always saying we want to have each student performing at the highest level of their ability…this will help some students get to the next level."

Enriching education school-wide

There are opportunities for all students at Deer Hill to take part in enriching programs. An after-school program called Renzulli, where students use an on-line search engine to help find web sites and virtual field trips based on students' individual interests and learning profile. So far, 30 students have signed up for the Renzulli program.

During the school day, there is the EMC3 program. "EMC" stands for enrich, motivate and challenge. The program began in 2006 as part of a school-wide enrichment model. This year, students have the opportunity to choose from a growing list of elective-type classes. Teachers instruct in areas they personally have an interest or passion. Eighteen different classes were offered this fall; some of the more popular choices were chemical reactions, school newspaper, save the planet and student leadership.

"(The EMC3 program) allows students to integrate knowledge in order to create a new product," said deChiara. The program is multi-grade so it also helps to build community across grades.

"It taps into areas where the students do have special talents and interest, as well as the teachers," said deChiara.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

Gifted and talented

We start off by saying – we were lousy "testers" back in our school days. At least that is what we like to think.

Not scoring well on the SAT and other standardized tests, lumped us into the huge pool known as "average."

Being a parent, we can also say that our children inherited this poor testing condition and took their place among the ranks of average students.

We put this out there in the interest of full disclosure because a "gifted and talented" program is being launched at Deer Hill.

We want to be perfectly clear: This program and others like it are needed. As Principal Jennifer deChiara explains: "... gifted and talented students are those outliers that are made miserable by regular classroom curriculum because it is such a mismatch for them."

With so much funding and emphasis – and yes, state and federal laws — geared toward programs for children with learning disabilities and special needs, it is critically important that the special needs of the gifted and talented are not short-changed. Deer Hill received an $8,000 state grant for this program, which is a minuscule amount compared to money provided for other special needs programs.

But it is important that no child is left behind. If there are truly gifted and talented children who cannot succeed in the regular curriculum then we need to ensure that they are engaged and have the opportunity to reach their full potential.

However, in a community as competitive as Cohasset – where many parents consider their children gifted – Deer Hill's biggest challenge may not be selecting gifted and talented students for the program but dealing with the Moms and Dads whose kids are not chosen.

According to the definition offered by noted researchers, gifted students possess: above average cognitive attitude, above average task commitment and above average creativity.

Principal deChiara notes that the school recognizes that every child possess gifts and talents worthy of recognition.

We do not envy the school the task of identifying the gifted and talented for the program. First a candidate pool will be developed through aptitude test results, teacher referrals and parent/guardian referrals. Then after the initial assessment – referring persons will be invited to provide more information and further assessment might be necessary.

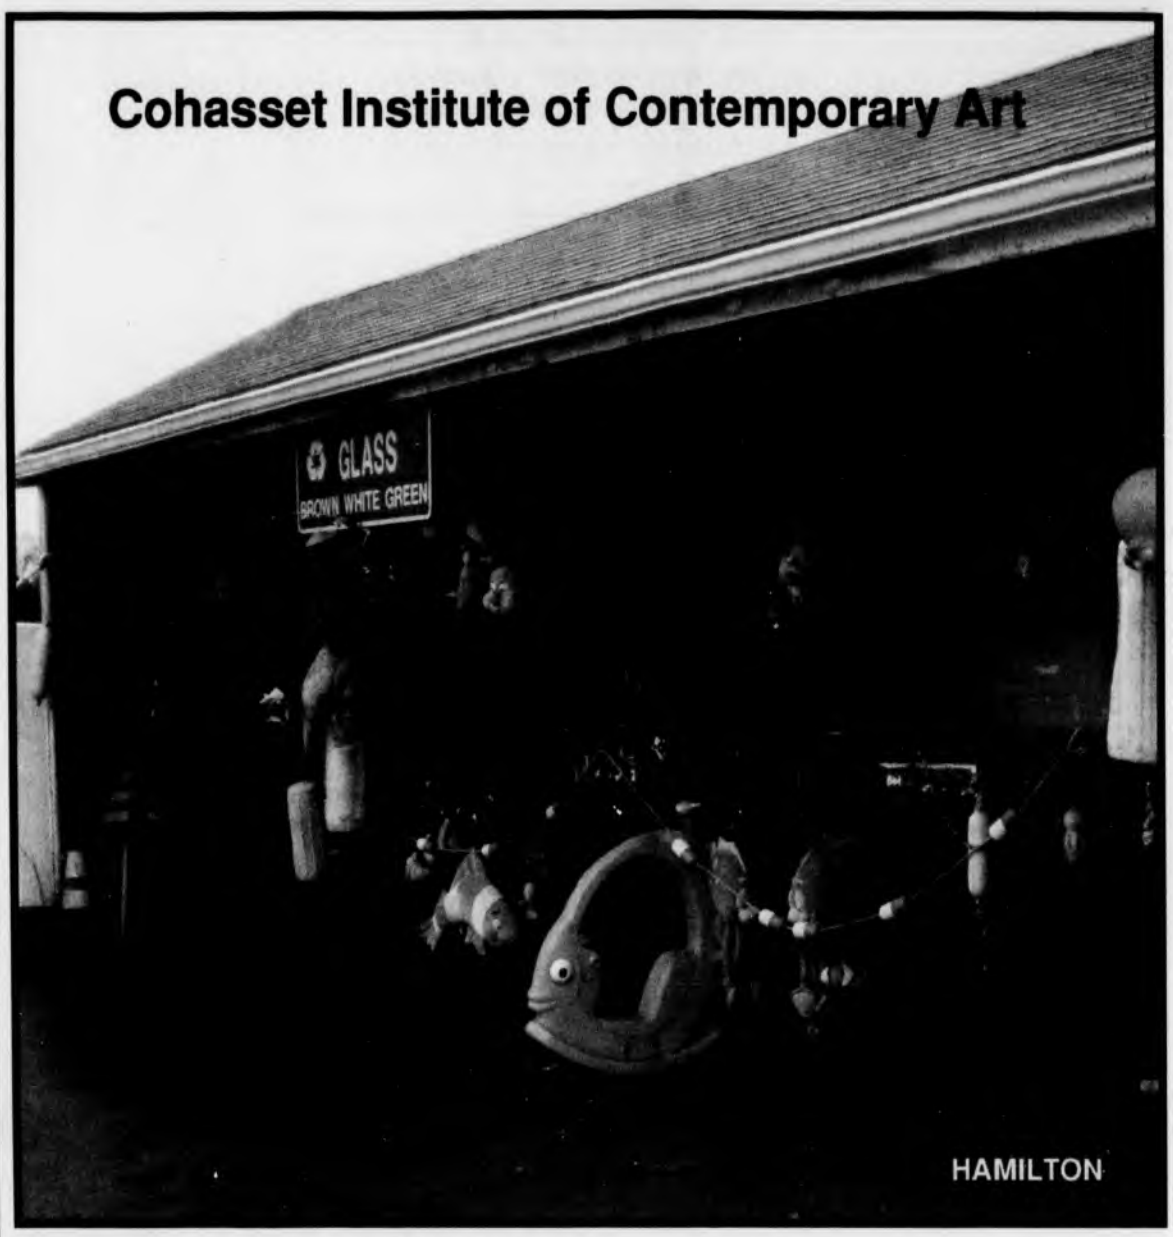
Assessing qualifying students is a tough job that will require a great deal of sensitivity.

We all know that all children – and all people – all have special qualities or gifts.

Our kids went on to excel despite their inherited poor testing condition. They learned the values of hard work and determination, qualities that have propelled them to the top of their chosen fields. Today they are considered anything but average.

It is too bad that we have labels such as "gifted," "average," or "special needs" because it tends to define us and can limit us.

All children need to know – and we are sure they are learning this in Cohasset – that they can all reach for the stars. We are glad all students are being offered the education enriching programs like the Renzulli after-school program and in-school EMC3 program. Perhaps through these programs they will discover a talent they didn't quite know they had.



But it is important that no child is left behind. If there are truly gifted and talented children who cannot succeed in the regular curriculum then we need to ensure that they are engaged and have the opportunity to reach their full potential.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Separating the wheat from the chaff

TO THE EDITOR:

In these days of increasing cost of everything, and an increasing flood of appeals for donations, it is well that we have an organization, the American Institute of Philanthropy, that rates over 500 national nonprofits for their ratios of fundraising expense to the funds actually expended for their purported purpose.

A wealth of other information is supplied also, and some of it is surprising - and shocking - and enough to cause one to revise one's choices to send donations.

Particularly disturbing are the data on the plethora of organizations that purport to serve cancer victims and our veterans; those worthy causes apparently have attracted some unworthy (or maybe some that are only incompetent) operators. The AIP's research has motivated some congressional hearings on the subject.

But of course we should give generously to the effective cancer and veterans organizations.

For more information, see www.charitywatch.org or aipmail@charitywatch.org. As Supreme Court Justice Lois Brandeis remarked "Sunshine is the best disinfectant!"

Sharing some good news

TO THE EDITOR:

Dear Margie and others of the Cohasset Food Pantry,

Looking out at the first snow of this winter – how beautiful – and writing this letter on behalf of the Rusty Skippers Band makes me feel the joy of the season. With so much grim economic news, I am happy to share some good news.

We had a wonderful annual Holiday Pops concert yesterday – a great crowd in the pews and 30 players squeezed into the spaces all around the front of the Meeting House. Once again, our talented and generous conductor, Steve Biagini, found us a terrific collection of pieces to play, including Christmas Festival, an annual Boston Pops staple, and three songs featuring Lilly Sestito and Tony Carbone as guest soloists. Our joy in playing seems to have been shared by the audience, who responded to the music with applause and with generous donations to benefit the Cohasset Food Pantry.

On behalf of the Rusty Skippers Band, enclosed is a donation to the Cohasset Food Pantry of $400 in cash. The band loves to play, anywhere, any time, but especially for such a good cause. It is quite remarkable that what started as Rev. Ed Atkinson's whimsical idea in 1995 exists as a true community band today. We are glad to bring joy to those who hear our music, and that we can make a contribution to our community.

All the best to you and the others who work so hard for the Food Pantry.

Betts Murray
Rusty Skippers

Donation to Cohasset Food Pantry

The following letter was addressed to Betts Murray, Rusty Skippers Band.

The Cohasset Food Pantry would like to acknowledge and thank the Rusty Skippers Band for your donation of $400 from your annual Pops Concert at the Village Fair this weekend – a very impressive sum from a very talented and eclectic group of Cohasset musicians!

Because we are an all-volunteer organization we depend entirely on donations from the community to support our operation. We're so fortunate that so many community groups like the Rusty Skippers Band choose to generously support the Food Pantry. Your contributions allow us to continue to provide food and personal care items to roughly 30 families in Cohasset who are in need of temporary assistance.

We'd appreciate it if you would pass our thanks along to all the other members of the Band!

HEALTH NOTES

Holiday angst is not good for you

By Steve Bobo
Special to the Mariner

Angst from the German, "a feeling of anxiety, apprehension or insecurity," certainly accompanies the holiday season. We all continue to do things, which we know are bad for us, such as eating too much, or idling our cars when waiting, but angst is something which creeps into our psyche unnoticed. Generally prompted by things over which we have little control like being cut off by another driver; being late for an appointment or the failure of a package to arrive on time. And believe it or not, feelings of angst are harmful to one's health.

The problem with angst is that the medical profession associates it with depression, which frequently accompanies it. Feeling tired is normal, but if sadness takes hold and won't go away, it may be depression. A person with severe depression has little or no interest in work or hobbies and may even have trouble getting out of bed. Depression is considered dangerous and is often treated with medication. If you notice the symptoms of depression, a doctor may prescribe antidepressant therapy that may take four weeks to have an effect.

And so, it's well during the stressful holidays, to balance the stress with common sense and an understanding that worrying can alter the balance of chemicals in the brain. It's really up to you to work out whether you're running too fast (mentally) and that's why you feel low, or is there some other cause. Many movies and books perhaps rightfully, portray rainy days, cold and stormy weather as gloomy. Some people experience depressive episodes in a seasonal pattern, normally in winter, when sunlight is limited and overcast days are frequent. Such depression is more common in climates having more

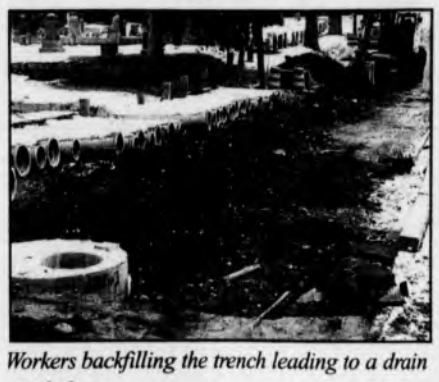
Trenching through Cohasset granite

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Little Harbor Project – This week we had a chance to wander from Town Hall to the streets and lanes to observe first-hand the current work on the Little Harbor Project. Per usual, work was proceeding all around the Little Harbor area, some easily visible and some not so visible.



One of the hidden-away work areas was on Sandy Cove Lane, one of Cohasset's many small private lanes. Near the ocean end of Sandy Cove Lane, LMH was busy crunching rock. A week ago, we showed a photo of the maintenance crew fixing the hydraulic system an excavator at this same location. Well, now the excavator is fixed, but has only made about 250 feet of progress in trenching for the main line sewer pipe, since then. Needless to say, this has been through good old Cohasset granite. (Once again, the contractor has found out why "Cohasset" is Indian-speak for "high rocky place.")

As we witnesses the traffic, most people were very understanding regarding the delay and tempers seemed to remain calm.

COURTESY PHOTOS

Excavator lifts off the ground.

Workers backfilling the trench leading to a drain manhole.

Stripes mark trees to be removed.

Atlantic Avenue service connection.

We've mentioned this before, but when the contractor needs to go through solid ledge he takes his 80,000 pound machine and puts so much force on the ledge to fracture it that the excavator actually raises 5 to 6 inches off of the ground, as seen in the photo.

After the main line sewer pipe has been installed, the contractor then works his way down the line adding the service lines. Service lines are the pipes that bring the sewer from the main line to the edge of a property. This week the contractor, LMH, was installing the service connections along Atlantic Avenue in the vicinity of Whitehead Road. This work is very visible, and actually needed to stop traffic on Atlantic Avenue while the work was underway. Stopping the traffic is a result of narrow roads, or when an active trench for a pipe crosses the majority of the roadway. When the road is blocked by the construction, periodically, the excavator moves out of the way to allow traffic, under control of a detail officer, to pass by the construction.

The photo clearly shows why traffic can't get past this work area. As we witnesses the traffic, most people were very understanding regarding the delay and tempers seemed to remain calm. Also, we might mention, that the workers seemed to know when it was time for them to move out of the way and let traffic clear.

Another part of the Little Harbor Project, currently underway, is additional storm drainage to carry rainwater from the streets. This week major drainage was being placed on Joy Place adjacent to Central Cemetery. This system will drain North Main Street from approximately Green Street to Sohier Street and send the water down Joy Place to Little Harbor, just beyond the cemetery. As we have mentioned before, it is really great to see the Town taking care of multiple infrastructure problems with just one project, rather than the more normal, dig and pave, dig more and pave again, and so-on.

At the most recent Town Meeting, a project to repair the compromised wall on Jerusalem Road between Bow Street and Steep Rocks was approved. From what we hear from the residents, this work can't be finished too soon. The temporary traffic lights required to maintain a safe road, with its restricted width, will be removed after the wall is repaired. As a part of this project, Jerusalem Road will be widened a bit and a pedestrian safe passage way will be added to the wall-side of the road. This will necessitate removing a few trees on the opposite side of the road. Whenever trees like these are to be removed a Shade Tree Hearing must be held. This hearing is scheduled for Jan 8th, 2009 in Town Hall. Particulars will be posted and will also appear in the Mariner as required by Massachusetts law. The photograph will give you an idea of the trees required to be removed. (We have taken a bit of liberty and have doctored these photos a bit to make the identifying orange paint lines stand out.)

How I learned to read

DRIVING WHILE TYPING

JOHN LENGYEL

Until I went to college I wasn't much of a reader. As a boy I was unfortunately so busy rolling down hills inside refrigerator cartons that I didn't have much time for literature. I did get an early start, though. When I was six I read my first real book, with long paragraphs and several hundred pages. It was called the Sears Wish Book for the 1971 Christmas Season. Sequels came out in 1972 and 1973 that I also loved, and 1974 and 1975 and 1976 and 1977. And 1978. Each was an exciting story with new characters introduced on just about every page doing the most interesting things. Boys were driving little cars, playing sports and camping, while girls were sewing dolls' clothes and pretending to change diapers, mop floors, vacuum, iron, scrub, cook, dust, polish, scour, launder, bake, nurture, obsess about their appearance, and take Prozac. There was also another one that came out in 1979.

The first book was especially episodic, and I can remember a whole chapter about Tonka Trucks. First, a happy boy in a groovy sweater was playing in a sandbox with about 18 different yellow and black trucks "made of heavy-duty steel." There seemed to be no end to the little sand hills needing to be graded and rolled flat, or to the sand quarries practically crying out to be excavated. How would he get all his work done before supper? Should he use the magnetic crane first, or pour cement? At what point would he just start giggling uncontrollably and devour handfuls of sand in ecstasy? I really identified with this character and his loud sweater, and would read the text over and over looking for clues as to where I might find him and his gigantic sandbox full of shiny new trucks.

There seemed to be no end to the little sand hills needing to be graded and rolled flat, or to the sand quarries practically crying out to be excavated.

The text was every bit as appealing as the pictures, describing details and features that often weren't visible, or plausible for that matter. A mini pool table made of half-inch particle board with fake wood grain taped over it was described as "rigid," and so beautiful that it would "turn a dull basement, den or family room into an exciting game room." A pea green Festival Electric Organ had so many keys and bass chords that apparently you would begin to enjoy its full sound "almost immediately."

Even the prices listed were captivating. "Rock Flower" dolls, named and modeled after a real singing group, were $1.74 each. Fine Fashion Wigs were $5.43. And a tetherball set "with stout steel pole" was only $6.57. Evidently the concept of rounding decimals eluded Man well into the Space Age. Back then had we all gotten ourselves up to our eyeballs in debt we no doubt would have tried to fix the resulting financial collapse with 689,772,165,397.38 dollars. It's funny to think how dumb people were only 40 years ago.

Of course my friends and I lost interest in light entertainments such as the Sears books when we got to Junior High School, where we were exposed to some of the most important depressing works ever written. There's nothing a happy-go-lucky suburban teen needs or loves more than to be led into the darkest woods of the human psyche and forced to lift every rotting log to see what might be crawling underneath. I honestly wonder why we ever wanted to go home. When each encounter in the lunch room or hallway is a lesson in man's inhumanity to man, you really can't get enough of books like Lord of the Flies and God of the Cannibal Children Who Are Actually Just Like You And Your Buddy Eric.

The real crowd pleasers were the Greek and Shakespearean tragedies. We couldn't parse one sentence of the dialog, but from the CliffsNotes we did gather that whether a person was good or bad in this life, clever or stupid, lazy or industrious, he was doomed to die early and often, usually at the hand of a trusted but power-mad family member. We related so well to these stories because we too had family members and hands, and because our grades completely depended on it.

In their haste to introduce nihilism and the futility of existence to the most impressionable, emotionally fragile people on earth, I think our schools can sometimes forget to also cover stories of unimaginable sadness. But whether they're into Kafka or Camus, kids today can still appreciate escapist fantasies like the Sears Catalog series we grew up with. Believe it or not you can find vintage copies on ebay, and the best part is, Sears still has a few of those Mary Proctor Scullery Maid Kits in stock, with real working bed pans. At $4.52 apiece I'm tempted to order two — one for the wife and one for parts.

John Lengyel lives in Cohasset. His Christmas wish is for the VerdiBird Paramedic Rescue Copter on page 155, but as he learned from A Separate Peace, he won't get it and instead will be betrayed by his best friend and made to fall out of a tree and eventually croak.

Blessed union of soles

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

I don't know about you, but my eyes tend to glaze over when the experts get out their graphs and statistics and try to tell me things aren't really that bad and will be even better once the billionaires on Wall Street and the millionaires in Detroit get their hands on trillions of our tax dollars.

I have my own barometer of how things are going and I can report to you that the glass is dropping and detecting it doesn't involve Wall Street or millionaires or even tax dollars.

For one thing, only the other day I learned that the nation's 7,000 shoe repair shops are doing a land office business. So many people are getting their shoes resoled that the cobblers are all but overwhelmed by the business, according to John McLaughlin, president of the Shoe Service Institute of America.

That can mean only one thing — hard times. People either don't have the money to buy new shoes or they are reluctant to spend it, with an uncertain future ahead. The next step, when you can't afford resoles, is cardboard inserts. When I was young and ice covered most of the earth, the best cardboard came from Kellogg's Corn Flakes boxes.

If that isn't enough, I was also told that the Hormel plant in Austin, Minn., is operating seven days a week and has just added a second shift to meet the demand for Spam, the canned meat concoction that 60 years ago came within a few meals of turning millions of soldiers, sailors and Marines into vegetarians.

I don't know what, outside of ham, goes into Spam and I'm not sure I want to. I feel the same way about sausage and chop suey. Whatever, Spam "seems to do well when hard times hit," said Dan Bartel, president of the Spammakers union, and I'll take his word for it.

After several years of struggling to meet its quota, the U.S. Army reached its goal of 80,000 recruits this year and Defense Undersecretary David Chu theorized that the military tends to "benefit when things look less positive in civil society." In other words, they're more likely to risk getting shot at for three squares.

It's not just individuals who are harbingers of hard times.

When Rancho Bernardo High School in suburban San Diego cut its budget for supplies by nearly a third, teacher Tom Farber knew just what to do. He sold advertising on his test pages — $10 for a quiz, $20 for a chapter test and $30 for a semester final. If Bob Kraft can do it for Gillette Stadium, why not?

Mayor Richard Daley proposed and the Chicago City Council approved leasing the city's parking meters to a private operator for $1.1 billion. The city has already leased out the crosstown Chicago Skyway and its parking garages and is negotiating to privatize Midway Airport.

Those are the little things that tell you more about hard times than all the congressional hearings in Washington.

Lots of homemade goods and goodies

Local farmer's market vendors take up shop at Rustic Market

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

When the outdoor markets close, the Rustic Market opens.

Del's Lemonade, located in the Jonathan Livingston Plaza, has closed for the winter months, but in its place a group of artisans, bakers and jewelry makers have taken up shop. The group of vendors were regulars at local farmer's markets throughout the summer months

Susan Franklin, owner of Del's Lemonade, is used to working full-time and the idea of taking the winter off didn't appeal to her. She also didn't like the idea of leaving the Del's storefront vacant in the winter. She began to ask around at local Farmer's Markets (Cohasset, Hingham and Hull) if vendors were interested in selling their wares at a storefront from November through March.

"I liked the idea of being able to give the vendors the opportunity to get their product in front of customers during an off-time," says Franklin.

Eight vendors signed on to join the Rustic Market. A wide variety of products are available from homemade granola to hand knit hats to soy candles to gluten-free goodies. The products range from a low of $3 to a high point of $40.

"The products make great stocking stuffers or tokens of appreciation for those who serve us all year (mailmen, teachers, bus drivers), says Franklin, who has joined the group and is making family recipe cookies under the name of Ischia.

While each vendor is in business on their own, there is a sense of cooperation and community. Each vendor volunteers his or her time to man the shop during the week. The vendors are also open to creating gift baskets using the variety of products found in the shop, said Franklin.

The Rustic Market is open Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from 11a.m. to 4p.m.

Mary's Desserts

"From simple to simply delicious" is how Cohasset resident Mary Ernst describes her desserts. From classic and basic desserts of chocolate chip cookies, oatmeal raisin cookies and brownies to more elaborate cakes, Ernst is ready and waiting to help locals with their holiday desserts. She is keeping a small display of goods at the shop, mostly cookies, but does most of her baking to order.

"I use all real ingredients — real butter, heavy cream, eggs — with no preservatives, so I don't like to bake things too far in advance," said Ernst. But, she will make almost anything, even if it is not one of her own recipes. With at least two days notice, she can fill almost any order and get it back to the Rustic Market for pick-up.

One of her favorite cakes to make is an old family recipe called Blitz Torte. It is a two-layer butter cake with each layer covered in a meringue topping, sprinkled with nuts, covered with homemade custard and (yes, there's more) each slice is served with whipped cream.

"When you taste it, your mouth sings," she attests. "It's very rich, you don't need a lot of it."

Pecan passion, a chewy, rich fudgy brownie based bar covered in caramel, is one of her most requested goodies.

"I saw (being involved in the Rustic Market) as an opportunity to promote my business," said Ernst, who makes all her baked goods at her residential licensed kitchen on Border Street.

Sea Glass Arts

Cissy White loves seaglass. She loves hunting for it, touching it, thinking about its journey, writing about it and even making jewelry with it. Her sea glass jewelry and other wares are available at the Rustic Market.

What may differentiate her sea glass jewelry from other sea glass artisans is she designs her products to ensure the sea glass can go back to its original form.

"I like the sea glass to be free," said White. She primarily uses wire to create her jewelry, but does use non-toxic cements in some pieces.

"I try to keep everything as green and local as possible," said White. She used recycled sterling silver and gathers her sea glass from local beaches.

White makes a variety of items from earrings and necklaces to book marks to ornaments all with sea glass she has found on the beach.

When she first discovered sea glass, she almost immediately fell in love with it. "I love the whole journey of the sea glass how it was once a part of something, it was broken and it has been on this journey of years to decades to turn in to what I've found on the beach. I was completely struck by the story of sea glass," she said.

In her house, there are vases and containers of sea glass and there are still some pieces she can't part with quite yet.

One of the biggest challenges she faces in jewelry making is finding two pieces that nearly match in size, shape and color for earrings.

Over the summer, White was a regular at several local Farmer's Markets and gained quite a following on the South Shore, she said.

"There was such enthusiasm at the Farmer's Market and people are still doing things in the winter" making an outlet like the Rustic Market a nice bridge over the winter.

Best Damn Granola

Cyndi Jacobs quit her job with an international charity in January to start her own business making homemade granola. She had been perfecting her granola recipe over many years, giving the granola as gifts to family and friends. After hearing over and over how she should market and sell her granola, she finally decided to take the plunge.

Made in a commercial kitchen in Dartmouth, Mass., Jacobs endeavors to use organic, local and fair trade ingredients whenever possible.

"It's been fun. We have a lot of fun coming up with the recipes and names," said Jacobs. The 'we' she is referring to is her supportive family, who has helped her get the business off the ground. "It's really been a family effort."

Family permeates her business right down to the business name, which originates from a joke played on an aunt. Jacob's visiting cousin was supposed to bring back her mother's favorite spaghetti sauce from an Italian restaurant in Brockton, but she never quite made it there. Not wanting to go back home empty handed, Jacobs whipped up a tomato sauce and when it was presented to her aunt she exclaimed, "this is the best damn sauce I've ever had." From that point on it became a family joke to refer to anything really good as "the best damn everything."

The Best Damn Granola Co. currently offers five different types of granola and has just introduced a granola made especially for dogs.

Their most popular granola, Fig n' nuts, is made with organic fruits and nuts blended with a host of spices for a homestyle taste.

There's Currantly Nuts, a blend of organic currants, cranberries, and nuts with a hint of almond.

Jammin' is granola's answer to the peanut butter and jelly sandwich, it is made with organic peanut butter blended with classic jam fruits for a taste reminiscent of PB&J.

Ginger Cinnsation is a combination of ginger and spicy cinnamon.

For those in need of an extra caffeinated kick there is Spazzz Berry made with chocolate covered raspberries and espresso beans.

For the dogs, there is Friday and Shire's Auss-ome Pup-kin granola, named after the Jacobs' family Australian shepherds.

A 12-ounce container of granola is $6.50 and a six-ounce container of the dog treat granola is $4.

To find out more about The Best Damn Granola, visit www.thebestdamngranola.com.

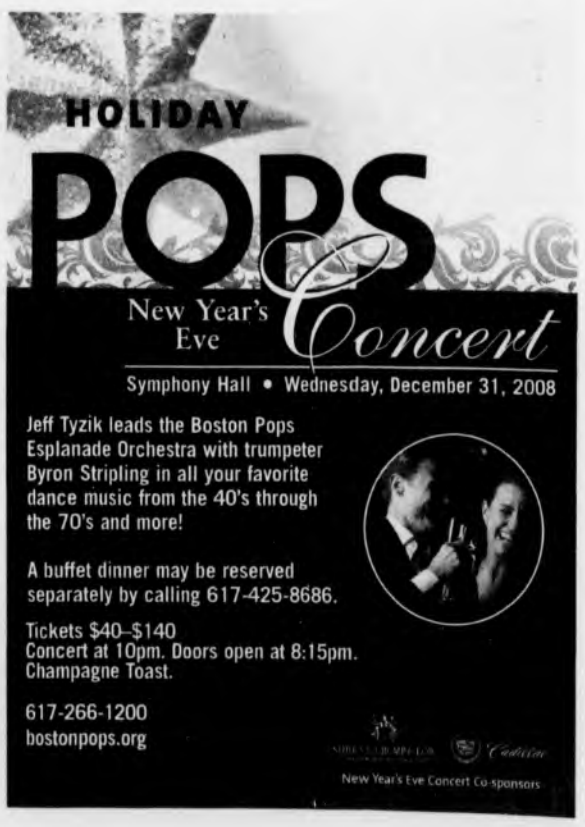
Ischia Gourmet

Using tried and true family cookie recipes, Susan Franklin has started her own cookie and baked goods business. Fittingly so, her business is named after the small island in Italy where her grandparents emigrated from many years ago.

Ischia offers a wide array of holiday cookies, from pecan tassies to almond biscotti to chocolate dipped coconut macaroons to Russian teacakes. She also makes her burnt almond candy, her late grandfather's recipe.

The cookies are available for purchase at the Rustic Kitchen and special orders.

What is the most difficult part of the job?



"It's hard to be around the cookies all day long," Franklin said with a laugh.

Other businesses featured at the Rustic Market:

- Blue Heron Arts, pottery, jewelry, hand knit goods
- Chris's Gourmet Treats, bread and rolls
- Earth Sisters Natural Soap and Candles, soaps, candles, lotions
- Up Phoods, gluten-free goodies

State debt highest in nation

HEDLUND REPORT

ROBERT HEDLUND

The nation's unofficial economic policy over the past decade can be summed up in one word: debt.

The average American is more in debt than ever before, with a consumer-istic lifestyle supported by, at least until recently, near unlimited access to credit. The federal government is in debt by more than $10 trillion, with foreign nations such as China and Japan holding more than 25 percent of the notes.

Here in Massachusetts, the situation is no different. The Commonwealth over the years has rung up more than $29 billion in outstanding debt on its credit card. To put that in perspective, every man, woman, and child in this state would have to send a $4,529 check to Beacon Hill in order to pay off all that debt. Not only is that figure the highest in the nation, but it checks in at more than three times the national average, according to the state's latest credit report from Moody's Investors Services.

To put that in perspective, every man, woman, and child in this state would have to send a $4,529 check to Beacon Hill in order to pay off all that debt.

The fact that the state borrows money to pay for school building construction grants, or to fix seawalls, shouldn't be much of a concern to the average taxpayer. Every state carries some debt, just like most businesses and homeowners. In fact, a demonstrated ability to accrue a responsible amount of debt and then pay it back on time is traditionally viewed as a positive characteristic.

The problems start when the government begins yielding its taxpayer-financed credit card like an irresponsible college student, making impulse purchases of the latest cultural fad (tax breaks for the biotech industry), using it to supplement their household budget (paying for the salaries of thousands of MassHighway employees), or other bad decisions (the MBTA spending billions to expand a transit system it already couldn't afford to maintain and operate).

Again, some of this debt is needed. For instance, this past summer the Legislature approved $3 billion in borrowing that will allow the state over the next five years to fix more than 100 dilapidated bridges, including the Fore River Bridge.

But this past session the Legislature also allowed the state to ring up another $1 billion in debt to pay for tax credits and construction grants for biotech companies. I was one of a handful of legislators to vote against this bill. The state has tried this strategy in the past: allocating buckets full of money for the industry du jour in hopes of luring them to relocate and/or expand in Massachusetts. We did this with the high-tech, defense, and financial service industries in the '80s and '90s. Fast-forward to 2008, and the Route 128 corridor is struggling, Raytheon is all but gone, and Fidelity keeps on shipping jobs to Rhode Island or Texas. Now we've borrowed more money and essentially given the governor the power to pick biotech winners and losers (although, as some joke, the final decisions may be as easy as whichever biotech firms throw the governor the biggest fundraiser).

Considering the state is facing at least a $1.5 billion budget deficit, this is not the time for $1 billion giveaways to corporate interests. And if we are going to adopt "corporate welfare" as an official state policy, we should do so in a way that benefits ALL cross-sections of our economy, not just the flavor of the day.

Debt is also behind these outrageous toll hikes that the Mass. Turnpike Authority is considering. Back in 1997, the Legislature made the ill-informed decision to pay for the Big Dig project (which then stood around $8 billion) through tolls inside Route 128, rather than a statewide gas tax hike, which they knew could have killed the project from a public relations standpoint. I was the only Southeastern Massachusetts lawmaker to vote against this funding scheme. Now the tolls are being pushed up, not just because of the debt, but because the Mass. Turnpike board back in 1999 and 2001 got sold the transportation equivalent of a sub-prime, variable interest rate mortgage. The bill for these "swaptions," which netted the Turnpike Authority a paltry $21 million in freed-up cash at the time, could now top $400 million and result in drivers paying $7 to go through an airport tunnel.

Even if the Turnpike mess is solved, the state soon will likely have to consider a massive bailout for the MBTA, which is currently drowning beneath an $8 billion load of debt while still looking to undertake another $3 billion worth of expansion projects. Part of this debt isn't the MBTA's fault – they were forced to whip out the credit card and pay for billions of dollars in projects under a mitigation agreement the state signed for the Big Dig. These projects have included Greenbush, the Silver Line, and the Urban Ring. But the MBTA now owes more money than it takes in at the farebox annually. As a result, the MBTA has been forced to push back more than $2 billion in deferred maintenance, and is cutting service in urban areas to pay for operating less-profitable service in the suburbs.

The situation in this state isn't all that much different that that college student who has rung up tens of thousands in credit card debt, without any way of paying it back. Eventually the debt becomes overwhelming and the credit cards get cut up. And any request for a financial bailout from the parents (or the taxpayers in the state's case) is only granted if accompanied by a promise of financial discipline. That's where we find ourselves right now. We must demand that elected officials on Beacon Hill and Capitol Hill start to recognize that continually accruing debt is not a sound economic policy.

State Senator Robert Hedlund represents the eight-town Plymouth Norfolk District that includes Cohasset.

HEALTH NOTES

Holiday angst is not good for you

FROM HEALTH, PAGE 12

severe winter weather patterns and limited sunlight.

Holidays somehow accentuate the so-called risk factors for angst and depression:

• Early childhood experience. Emotional trauma and abuse has a powerful effect on the psyche. If you had traumatic early life experiences, you may be more at risk to develop depression during the holidays.

• Loneliness and lack of social support. A key risk factor for depression is isolation and loneliness. Lack of support, whether it is family, friends or colleagues, makes coping with stress all the more difficult. Having marital and relationship problems can also make you feel alone and frustrated.

• Recent stressful or traumatic life experiences. Some events, like losing a loved one, are clearly stressful and cause enormous disruption and strain in our lives. However, anything that causes change can be a stressful life experience, even if it is normally considered a happy event such as a big work promotion, a wedding or childbirth, even a Christmas party.

• Alcohol and drugs. Alcohol and drugs can cause strong depression symptoms on their own. They can also make you more vulnerable to depression even if you decide to stop using them. Some people try to treat themselves with alcohol and drugs to self medicate, only worsening the problem.

Get your family and friends aboard. Discuss any worries with someone you respect and feel will empathize. If there are deciders in this world, there are also understanders.

• Finances and employment. Financial strain can be an enormous stressor. Struggling to pay bills or mortgage, or suddenly becoming unemployed, is a very stressful life event. Being unemployed can be a blow to self-confidence and can be a very difficult adjustment, especially for men.

• Health problems or chronic pain. Health problems and chronic pain may reduce your mobility, your ability to work or your spare time. They can chip away at supportive relationships and make you feel hopeless and frustrated.

Help!! Best to help yourself. Isolation fuels depression, so reach out to others, even if you feel like being alone. Get your family and friends aboard. Discuss any worries with someone you respect and feel will empathize. If there are deciders in this world, there are also understanders.

Cultivate supportive relationships; seek out friends you have fun with. Challenge negative thought patterns; let go of grudges or past wrongs; do something nice for someone else.

Get regular exercise and enough sleep

Eat a healthy, mood-boosting diet sometimes called comfort food — inexpensive, uncomplicated, and easy to prepare. Many people turn to comfort food for familiarity, emotional security. In other words, if you're feeling gloomy, slack off on the diet for a bit. Manage your stress and practice relaxation techniques

Research suggests new generation anti-depressants have little clinical benefit for most people.

It's a festive season. Time to follow the next best advice from the Board of Health: 'Don't Worry about it!' Our best advice is MAKE MERRY this HOLIDAY!

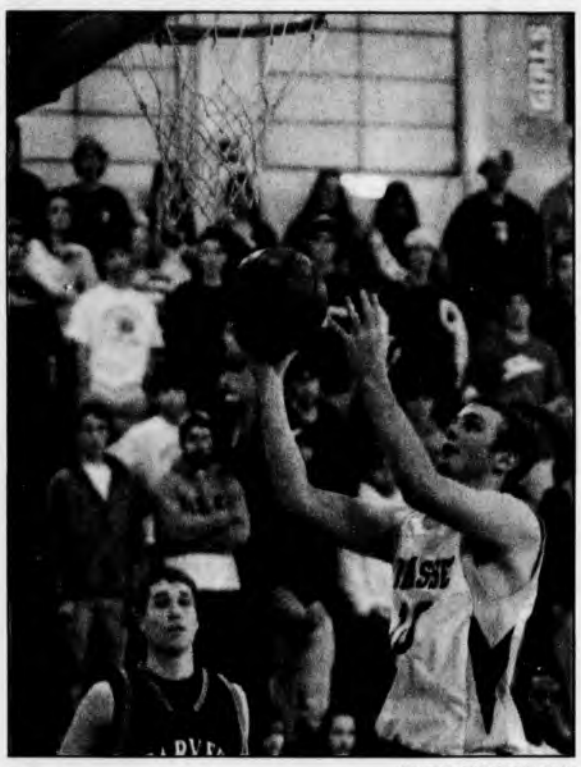
Boys varsity basketball ready for action

At the high school level, the Boys Varsity Basketball team is under the tutelage of legendary Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association Hall of Fame Coach Bo Ruggiero. He has 440+ career victories and is a 4-time "Coach of the Year" in the Attleboro Sun Chronicle.

This is his sixth assignment in a very successful career at both the high school and college levels. Coach Ruggiero says: "I'm very anxious to get my first season underway here at Cohasset High School."

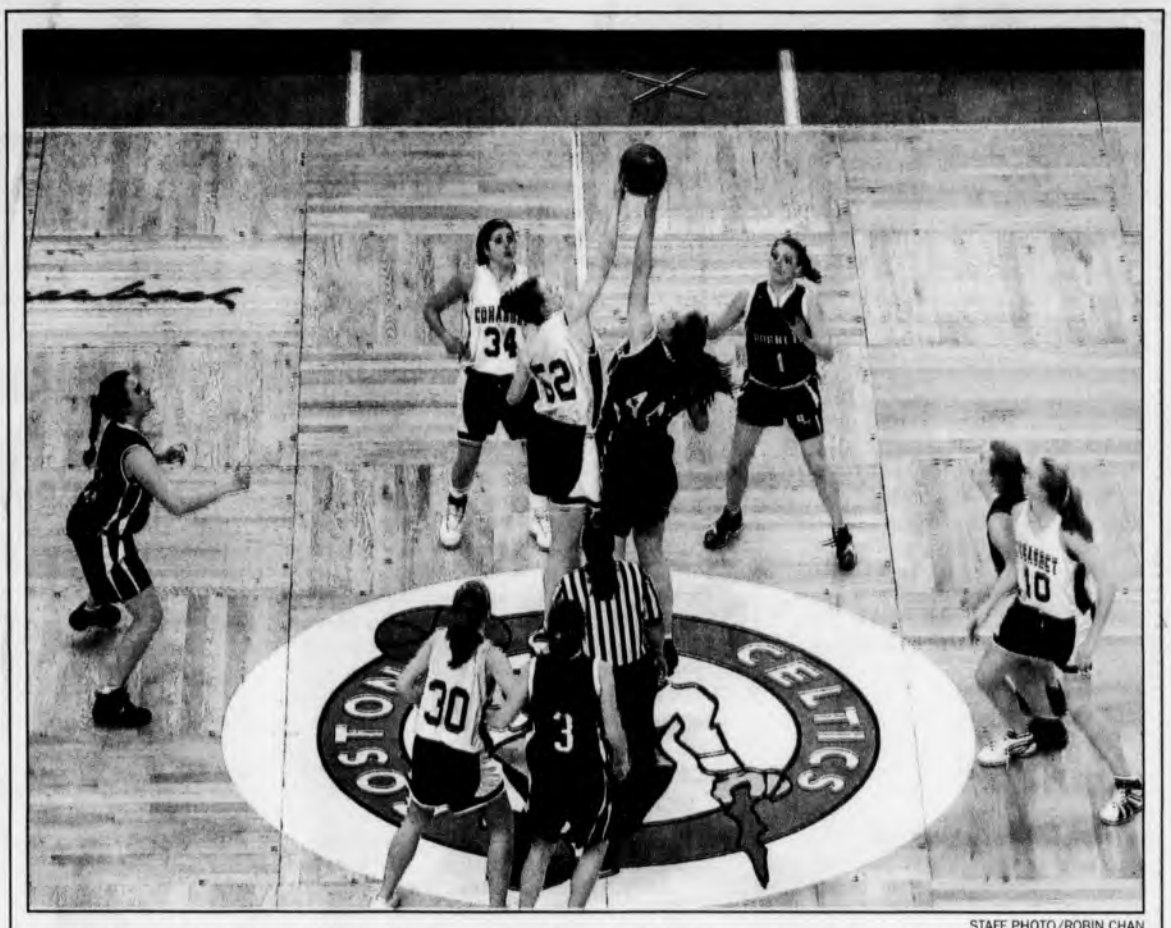
"The key to a successful program is discipline, hard work and teamwork."
— Coach Bo Ruggiero



Without a doubt, the challenges he faces are big ones. Not only did three starting seniors graduate from the program, but three other Varsity players from last year have made other commitments this winter outside of basketball. What his team lacks in cumulative experience though, Coach Ruggiero is quick to comment "they are an enthusiastic and hard working group of boys."

The Varsity Roster this year has four seniors, four juniors, three sophomores and one freshman. Senior Co-Captain Danny Martin, the 6 ft. 5 in. center and SSL all star last year, comes back at the five spot. Expectations for Martin are high this year coming off his strong performance last year. Next up is Senior Co-Captain Marcus Charles. Charles is an outside perimeter player, with a sweet jumpshot outside the arc. Senior Co-Captain John Sturino will be in the swing position. Although a bit undersized for that role, Sturino, and Charles as well, both possess a quickness off the ball and blazing speed. Sturio saw limited time last year due to an early season ankle injury.

The final senior on the squad is Owen Landon. Landon is a solid 3-sport athlete, playing soccer in the fall and lacrosse in the spring for CHS. Coach Ruggiero expects Landon to make great contributions to the club. The next big guy for the Skippers is 6 ft. 3 in. junior Johnny Maher. Maher is also a 3-sport athlete for Cohasset. Maher will be at the four spot for Cohasset. Expect to see him mixing it up underneath the boards.



The point guard spot will be for returning player, sophomore Robert Jones. Ruggiero commented "Robert is a good solid Cohasset's Sammi Lehr goes up and battles Manchester's Dani Ciccone (44) for the opening tip-off at the start of the last year's Division 4 state title game played at the Boston Garden. Cohasset went on to win the game and the title; the team is hoping for a repeat this season.

Girls gearing up to defend title

Nearly every player is back this season

The defending Division 4 State Champion Girls Varsity basketball team returns all but one player from last year's roster. New to the roster will be sophomore Carly Martin and freshman Anna Seraikas.

When asked about the challenges he faces this year, Coach John Levangie said: "We are still going to take each game one at a time. But this year, unlike last year, we are on people's radar screen."

The key to his success is that every goal for every player is in sync with the team goals.

"You don't see any of our players leading the league in any statistical categories," Levangie said. "We are playing to the team goal. Our goal will be achieved when at the end of the season, whenever that may be, each one of us can look back with no regrets.

"My system is based on the players being unselfish."
— Coach John Levangie

"My system is based on the players being unselfish. Essentially we can have nine starters on the team. Everyone understands and accepts their role. It's a team philosophy," he said.

Returning as captains are Seniors Kayla Farren, Carly Salerno and Sammi Lehr. Their leadership is strong, already having one year under their belt in those roles. That leadership will be critical as Levangie has assessed the already strong South Shore League as being even stronger.

"Carver, Hull, Norwell are all primed for a run at us," he said. But what will make the girls different than last year? Levangie noted: " The girls worked incredibly strong in the off-season, playing in more competitive leagues and going to more elite camps. Some of the girls even look taller than last year."

One area Coach Levangie is already seeing improvement on from last year, is their confidence in shooting the ball.

"I guess being State Champions gives you a little bit of confidence," he said.

Rounding out the Varsity Roster are Juniors Meredith Kelly, Samantha Crough, Tori Lehr, Sophomores Lindsey Davis, Carli Haggerty and Rachel Fredey. Coach Levangie is assisted by Matt Lewis and Basil Cronin.

Girls basketball coach honored

Cohasset Girls Basketball Coach John LeVangie was awarded the Division 4 South Girls Coach of the Year Award by the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association at its annual banquet on Nov. 27 at Holy Cross College.

The award was presented by MBCA Hall of Fame member and current Cohasset High School Boys Basketball Coach Bo Ruggiero.

The Cohasset High School community is very proud of what Coach LeVangie and his girls accomplished last season and look forward to another exciting winter of girls basketball. Congratulations!

Girls Varsity to take on Dorchester on opening night

The defending Division 4 state champion Lady Skippers will take on Dorchester in the first game of the season at 4 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 13, at Cohasset Middle High School.

The public is invited to the pre-game celebration as the girls are honored with a championship ring and the championship banner is raised in the gym.

Travel basketball players that wear their game shirts, accompanied by an adult, will get in free.

Come early and see the JV girls basketball play Dorchester at 2:30 pm. Saturday.

Taking it to the next level

CHS skaters eye continued improvement in '08-'09

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Every season has proven a little bit better than the previous one, and that is all Bob Walsh can ask.

"As a coach, that's the trend you look to establish," said Walsh, who is entering his third season as head coach of Cohasset High's hockey team. "We lost a lot of good players from last year's team, but we bring back more kids who are comfortable with the system we've been putting in place the last few years."

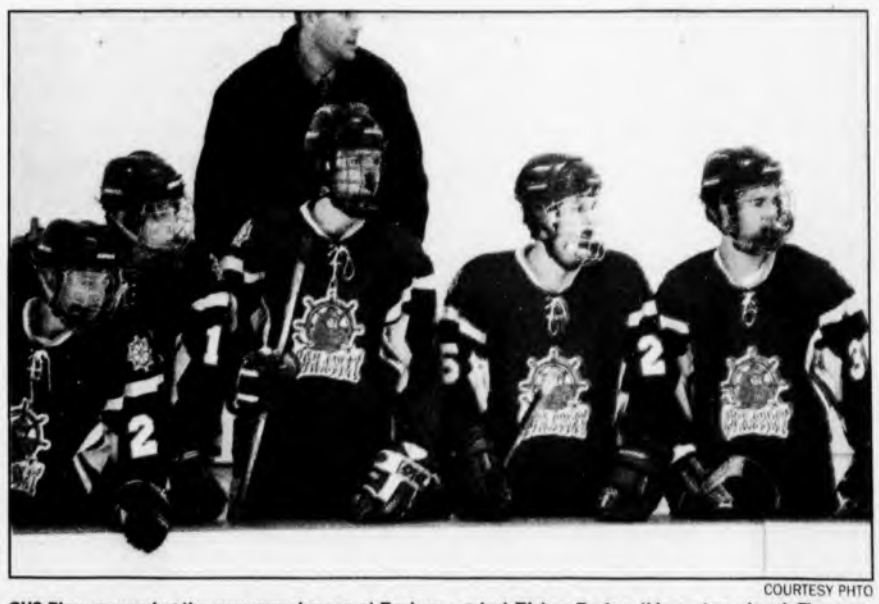
The Skippers placed second in the South Shore League to perennial state powerhouse Norwell last winter, finishing with an overall record of 13-4-3, a marked improvement over the .500 season Walsh compiled as a rookie head coach.

As a reward for last year's achievement, the Skippers received the eighth seed in the Div. 3 South Section, but were ousted in the first round by Westwood, 2-0, the eventual sectional finalists.

The Skippers lost four key players from that squad, including tri-captains and SSL all-stars Chaz Czerkawski, Pat Doonan and Frank Wheelwright. Czerkaswki and Doonan also finished one-two in the team-scoring race, while Wainwright anchored the blue line. Speedster Alex Goetz, who led the SSL in short-handed goals, also represents a big loss.

The Skippers' lone returning league all-star is senior goalie Johnny Wade. He and fellow senior Ian Lyster share the co-captaincy this winter.

Wade is a rather remarkable story. He grew up in hockey as a defenseman, but when the Skippers opened workouts in the winter of 2005 without a single goalie candidate, the then-freshman answered the call and strapped on the big pads. The natural athlete has progressed remarkably since then, as witnessed by his selection as a league all-star last March. Walsh, the former head coach at Bridgewater State, has helped speed that progression by bringing in a few of his old college goalies to work wide Wade.



"Johnny has worked hard to get where he has," said Walsh. "He's taken some good coaching and done a lot of stuff on his own to develop in the off season too. There's a lot more that goes into goaltending than most anyone realizes; the vision, knowing where to be on the ice, the up and down, the physical part of the game, playing the angles, and the mental makeup you need. Johnny has done a great job of improving in all of those areas."

Lyster, a big, physical defender, will be a mainstay in front of Wade. There are a few questions beyond that, though, on the blue line.

"We're a little thin in back, but only in experience," said Walsh, who played high school hockey at Matignon in the 70s and has been coaching the sport at the upper levels for 20 years.

Sophomore Brian Scott was a top four defenseman for the Skippers last season as a freshman, and his talent is unmistakable. In fact, Hockey Night in Boston inquired about him as well as Lyster.

A couple of injuries last winter to upperclassmen presented sophomores Sam Leahy and Eric Bartucca with the opportunity to see extended varsity minutes on the blue line, and both "answered the call well," according to Walsh.

"Getting them into some important minutes last year, and playing in our system was a big bonus," said Walsh of Leahy and Bartucca. "They both developed quickly once they got their opportunity, and I look for that to continue this year as they both get more comfortable within the system."

Freshman Sean McKenna, a former wrestler, and sophomore Jack Nelson are two players who will provide depth for the varsity squad while they continue their development at the JV level.

JV hockey

That's right: for the first time in recent memory, CHS is going to have a JV hockey team this winter.

Eight freshmen have come out for the team, a very good number for a school with two other winter sports and only 150 or so males in the student body. This raises the number of CHS hockey players to 25, the high-water mark for Walsh's tenure.

Obviously, with just 25 players, there will be a good number of swing players between varsity and JV, but that's a win-win, as far as Walsh is concerned.

"I think it's huge for our development as a hockey program that we get a good number of players developing at the JV level," said Walsh, who figures on a 10-12 game JV schedule. "That's a lot more ice time for development in our system and as players overall."

"This year's team doesn't look like it'll have any superstars, which I think can be good, because that forces a lot of players to step up into key roles."
— Coach Bob Walsh

The talent pool up front is a little more refined.

Junior Conor Queenan has played with seniors Paul Pozniak and Andrew Bell for years at various levels, including as summer league linemates this past off-season.

"Those guys really click together," said Walsh. "You try to match speed for speed and skill for skill when you put lines together, and these three guys really compliment each other well in those areas. They can all really fly. They each seem to have that sense of where the other two are at all times."

That said, Walsh considers his "second line" virtually interchangeable with the first.

Junior Andy McKenna was the third member of the high-powered Doonan-Czerkawski line last winter, and he is joined this winter by hard-nosed sophomore Anders Goetz, who finished third behind Doonan and Czerkawski in the team scoring race in '07-'08. Junior Brendan Doonan, Pat's kid brother, is penciled in as the third member of the line, and the brothers own comparable skill-sets, according to Walsh.

"Some days, you might say this is our first line, other days you might say it's Queenan-Pozniak-Bell," said Walsh. "This year's team doesn't look like it'll have any superstars, which I think can be good, because that forces a lot of players to step up into key roles. I'm looking forward to seeing how several players respond to the challenges."

Walsh says he will skate a third forward line regularly, and may even swing in a fourth line for regular shifts.

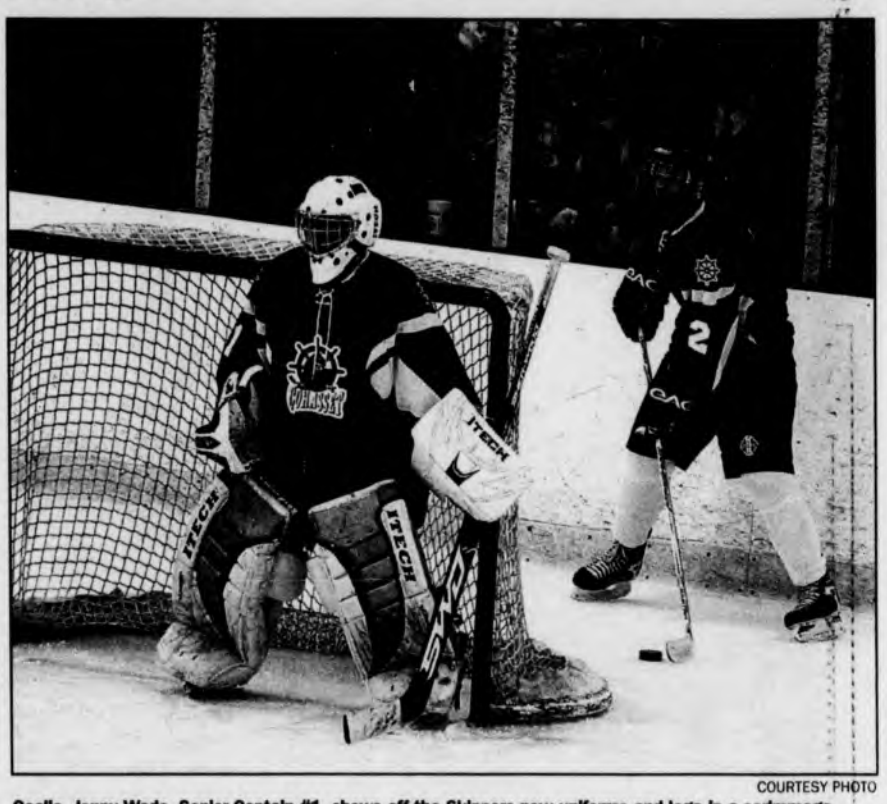
Alex Evans has caught the coach's eye early with some scrappy play, as have fellow freshmen Vinny Colorio, Johnny Collins, Jamie Faber, Brendan Kearney. Kearney scored the Skippers' first goal in this Saturday's scrimmage versus perennial state powerhouse Xaverian.

"We've definitely got some intriguing talent from that crop of freshmen," said Walsh. "I'm looking at being able to put together a couple of varsity lines with just freshmen. That's pretty unusual."

Walsh was able to line up the game with Xaverian, as he is long time friend with coach Dave Spinelli. It also helps that all three of his assistant coaches — his son, Bobby Walsh, Lachlan Burgess and Clyde Clifford, the goalie coach — all played for Spinelli at Xaverian. Bobby Walsh went on to play college hockey at Bridgewater State, captaining that team for three years, and Burgess played at Salve Regina.

"My assistant coaches are all in their mid-20's and can connect with and relate to the high school players pretty well," said the senior Walsh. "We're building a good team chemistry. It's a tight knit group. I've got nothing but good kids on this team, and I'm really looking forward to seeing what we can do together."

Norwell has dominated the South Shore League for the last half decade or so, going unbeaten in league play the last two seasons. The Clippers were hit hard by graduation — losing top scorers Dan Dempsey and Cody Cavicchi, among others — but most still consider them the team to beat this season.



The general perception, though, is that Norwell has come back to the pack some, and teams like Carver-Sacred Heart and Abington-East Bridgewater have made some noteworthy gains.

"I honestly think the South Shore League is going to be more competitive from top to bottom than it has been the last few years," said Walsh. "I don't think you're going to see those ugly 10-1 scores we've seen the last few years. There should be a lot more good, competitive 4-2 and 5-3 games, and I think that's going to make all of the teams better in the long run, and more ready for the state tournament."

COHASSET TRAVEL BASKETBALL

Sixth-graders tally first win of season

SIXTH-GRADERS WIN OPENER — The 2008-2009 season kicked off this past Sunday with a new attitude and new results, as the sixth-graders won their season opener 28-26 against Weymouth. A very determined dozen of teammates played exceptional defense and displayed excellent interior passing, using their height advantage to hold off the smaller Weymouth squad. It didn't matter who was on the floor, the rebounds belonged to Jack Chamberlain, Mike Yerardi, Patrick Federle, Harry Seraikas, Tanner Gildea, Harrison Martin or Jack Hoffman underneath for Cohasset.

Offensively the poise and patience of the five guards, Ben Buckley, Teddy Craven, Brett Dooley, Christian Kennedy and Cole Morrison, allowed the big guys underneath to work their way into position for quality shots. The unselfish passing resulted in eight out of the 12 players scoring led by Chamberlain's 7 points and Dooley's 6 points.

The defensive highlight of the day was provided by Harrison Martin sprinting the length of the court and rejecting the Weymouth player as he cruised in for an easy lay up. Martin's hustle seemed to inspire the rest of the Cohasset squad who turned up their defensive pressure and built a comfortable 10-point lead early into the second half.

However, the feisty Weymouth team did not quit and went on an 8-0 run to get within two points with only a minute remaining. As Cohasset spread the floor and ran the clock down, Dooley drained a jumper from the right elbow and Cohasset went up by four with 34 seconds remaining. Weymouth managed to score once again but Cohasset ran out the clock for their first victory of this young season.

EIGHTH-GRADERS FALL TO WEYMOUTH — Weymouth's eighth grade boys edged Cohasset's group of eighth graders 39-37 on Sunday. These two teams have played similar close games over the past two years, but this year's first contest resulted in an inspired Weymouth team holding onto their lead when it counted. Playing without their leading scorer Shane Haggerty down the stretch (fouled out with 4 minutes remaining) the Cohasset offense struggled to find an open shot as time expired. Cohasset failed to convert many open lay ups and free throws and was unable to find their big guy Myles Garbarini down low, instead settling to fire 3-pointer after 3-pointer with out much success. Weymouth's pressure defense seemed to cause problems for Cohasset as their offense struggled to find any rhythm. Thomas Gilliatt was the lone bright spot for Cohasset grabbing eight rebounds underneath.

Casey Anderson named TCCC Player of the Week

Roger Williams University senior forward Casey Anderson of Cohasset earned The Commonwealth Coast Conference Player of the Week honors for her play in two wins for RWU in November.

Anderson averaged 19.5 points, 12.0 rebounds and 3.0 steals per game as the Hawks compiled a 2-0 weekly record. In a 73-71 double-overtime win over Wellesley, Anderson registered 22 points, 14 rebounds and five steals in 46 minutes of action. She followed with her second double-double of the week, collecting 17 points and 11 rebounds in a 62-55 triumph over Lasell. In 75 minutes played over two games, Anderson committed just one turnover.

Cohasset youth hoop tips off the season

Basketball in Cohasset is in full swing this year with lots of exciting new faces and new challenges in the Cohasset basketball community.

The Youth program, which is played on Saturdays, has yet again set another record in participation with over 400 kids in the program. Close to 50 teams hit the hardwood last Saturday at the Osgood, Deer Hill and CMHS gymnasiums. Children in grades 1-8 are eligible to participate and no prior basketball experience is needed. One of the goals of the program is for participants to learn new skills each year and build upon those skill sets.

However, the primary objective is to get kids active and to get them to have fun. Sessions are comprised of skill development time and games. Teams are picked evenly (well, as evenly as possible) and all of the coaches and coordinators are volunteers. High School players officiate the games. When a student ref blows his or his whistle, not only does he "make the call," he uses the time to instruct the players on what the infraction is and why it isn't allowed. This makes it a learning experience for all. Learn all about the program at www.cohassetbasketball.com.

... the primary objective is to get kids active and to get them to have fun.

The Travel program is running on all cylinders with 10 teams in grades 5-8. Grade 5 boys play in the Abington Stars League in Weymouth every Saturday night. Grade 6-7-8 boys play in the very competitive Patriot League traveling as far as Halifax and Taunton. Also, the Cohasset Basketball Booster Club is supporting two additional boys travel teams due to the large turnout at tryouts. Both of these teams are in the CYO league, with St. Anthony's being the host parish.

The Girls Travel teams play in the South Shore League for grades 5-8. This also is a very competitive girls' league against select teams. Both the boys, the girls, and the CYO teams call CMHS home. Games are on Saturday nights or Sunday midday. Many times, the kids have a doubleheader in one weekend. The foundation for the high school program is the travel program where hopefully basics and fundamentals are taught to prepare these middle-schoolers for the level of basketball they will see at the High School level. But it is the goal of the Boosters to provide a team for as many kids as possible and to not discourage kids from playing.

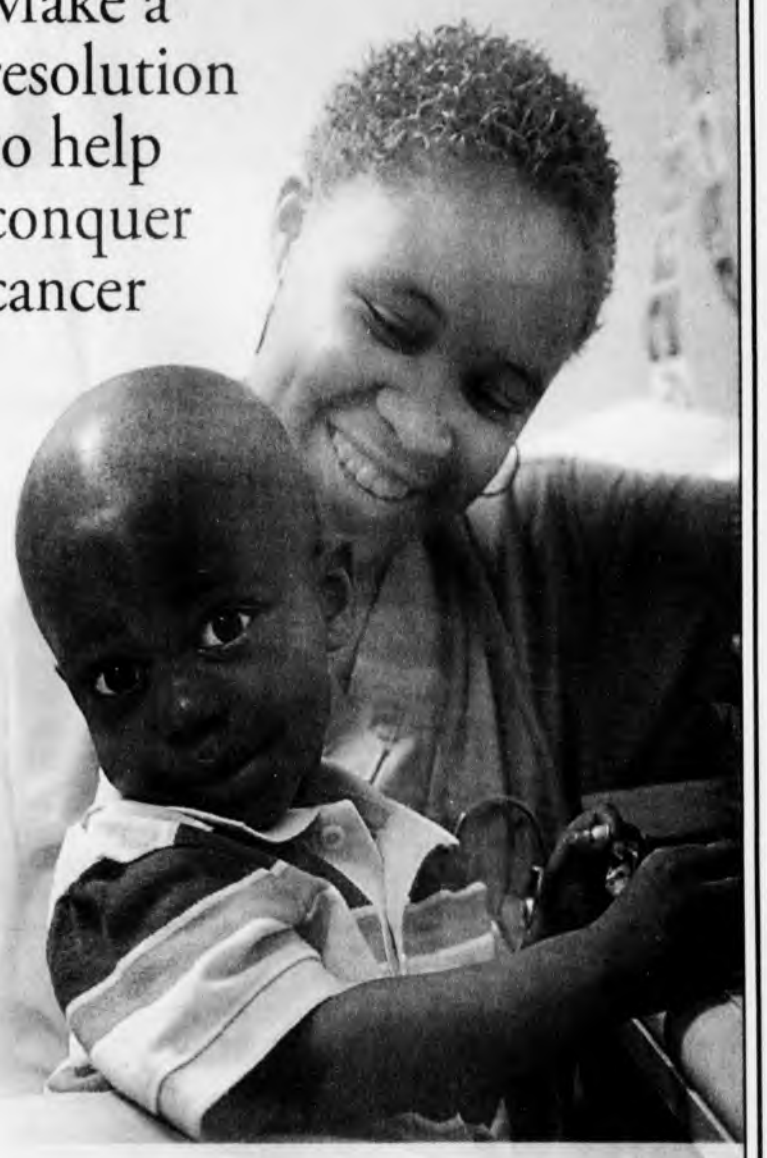
touchdowns for TECHNOLOGY

WIN FREE COMPUTERS FOR YOUR SCHOOL

About the contest:
Kaspersky Lab, the new standard in Internet Security, and WBCN, the Patriots Rock Radio Network, have teamed up to deliver Touchdowns for Technology – a program that embodies Kaspersky's mission to educate the community about the risks of the Internet. As part of the program, Kaspersky Lab will donate one computer for every touchdown New England scores in the 2008 regular football season. The total number of computers will be divided equally and donated to a deserving school in each New England state. Last year Kaspersky donated 75 computers to schools in New England.

How to enter:
Simply write a 250-word essay or less explaining why your school deserves new computers and send it to us. Anyone can enter a school including students, teachers, administrators... even a parent or grandparent!



In the essay, tell us why having new computers will change your experience at school. What things can you do that you can't do today? As a teacher, how will having new computers help your students? How can we help change the overall day-to-day learning at your school?

Enter today at http://usa.kaspersky.com/touchdowns OR send in an essay to:

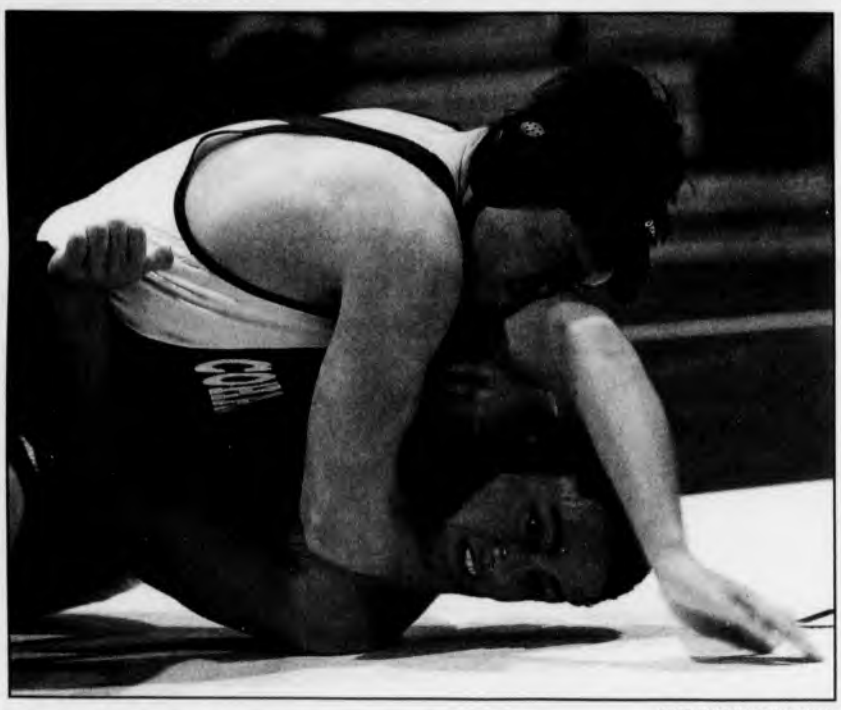
player, he has great court awareness and he loves the game" Jones will be a catalyst to the fast break due to his ability to see the whole floor. Others to watch for include sophomore guard Sam Richardson, a 6-footer who will see some Varsity action this year. Richardson is a good shooter and will figure into Cohasset scoring. Freshman Robbie Mahoney has been impressive so far this season. "To think last year he was playing eighth-grade travel basketball and now he is on the Varsity Roster," says Coach Ruggiero. Mahoney will play back up in the post positions. Juniors Kevin O'Connell, one of the purest 3-point shooter on the team, speedy Junior Jeff Charles, and Junior Dan Sullivan, also a strong post player and solid rebounder (with a nice hook shot to boot) round out the Junior class. Sophomore Mike Monaco completes the Varsity roster.

Coach Ruggiero is looking forward to leading the Boys Varsity Basketball program back to its successful roots.



"I'm very pleased with the work ethic I have seen thus far. We are working on fundamentals," he says. "We are going to not only run the fast break, but execute it. We are going to press. The key to a successful program is discipline, hard work and teamwork.

"We are working on conditioning as well. Being well conditioned will allow you to forge through the mental elements of playing 32 minutes of basketball. That being said, we still have lots to work on." Coach Ruggiero is assisted by Jim Willis, Dick Lawless and Jim Rougvie.

Middle School Dances – There will be a dance for Cohasset youngster's in grades seven and eight, from 7 to 10 p.m., on Friday, Dec. 12, at the Recreation Center Garage. A dance for the sixth grade class will be from 6 to 9 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 20. Cost is $6 per person and pre-registration is required on the Web site at cohassetrec.com is required. Dances are for Cohasset residents only and school identification is required. Late arrivals, after 7:30 p.m., or students leaving early require a parent to be present. Snacks and refreshments will be on sale.

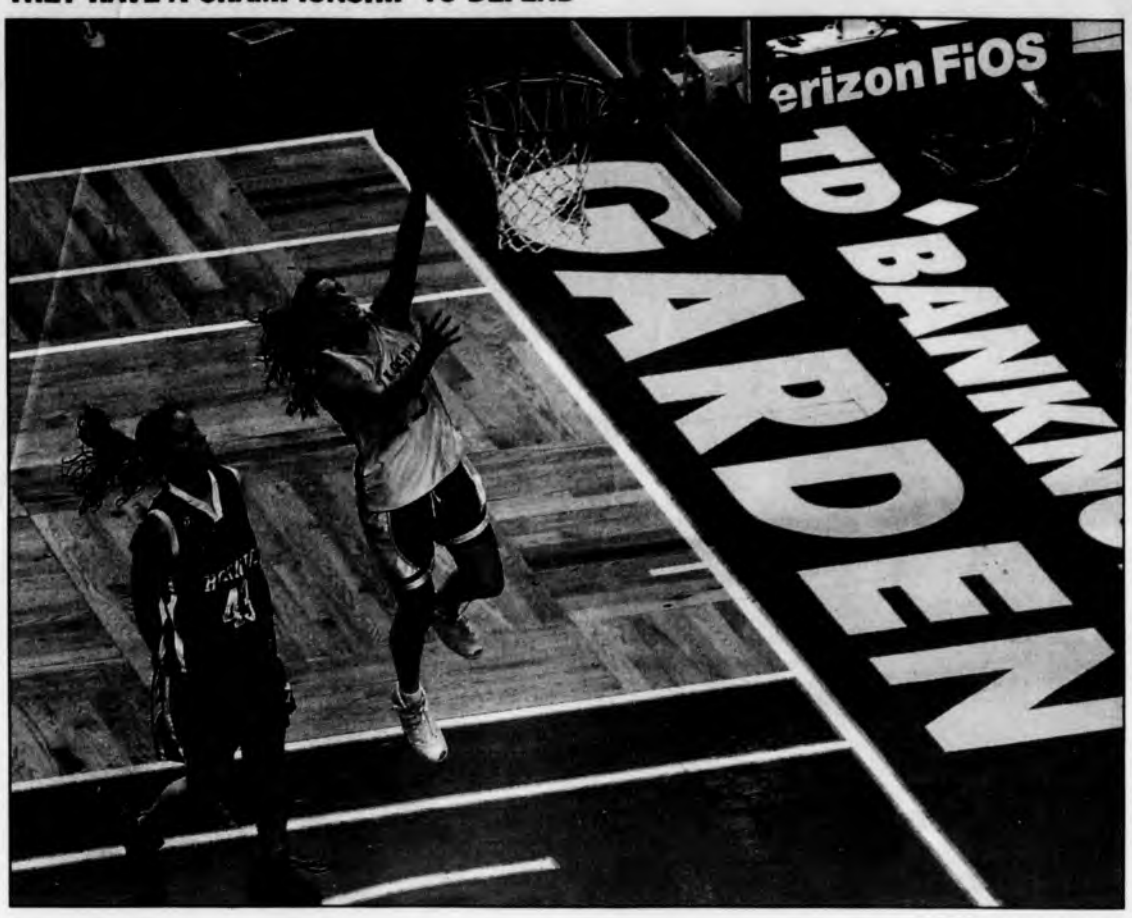
Sunday Afternoon Jam Session – Aspiring musicians can come down to the Recreation Center on Sunday afternoons from 4 to 6, and get together and play music. Music industry veteran and Cohasset resident Howie Altholtz is teaming up with Cohasset Recreation. This new program is made possible by the generosity of Crossroads Music of Hanover. Musicians should bring their own instruments and may bring their own equipment. Amps and drums will be available on site, also provided by Crossroads Music. Cost is $8 per visit or an all-access pass of $30 for five weeks. Register at cohassetrec.com.

Holiday Shopping Time Needed? – Need some time to shop? Parents can drop the kids off at the Recreation Center from noon to 4 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 20, and Recreation Department staff will keep kids ages 5 through 12 entertained with games and arts and crafts. Fee is $20.

Babysitting Course – This one-day, three-hour course is designed to assist fifth-through eighth-graders to be better babysitters and to learn the do's and don'ts of being home alone. The course will cover information on child development, playing with younger children, basic first aid, fire safety and prevention, and the overall responsibilities of babysitting. Instructor will be nurse and mother Kim Cleary. Each class is limited to 18 pre-registered students. Cost is $18. The class will take place 9 a.m. to noon, Saturday, Dec. 12, at Paul Pratt Library.

CPR – American Heart Association CPR Class 1, instructed by members of the Cohasset Fire Department, will take place from 6 to 9 p.m., on Wednesday, Jan. 14, at Cohasset Town Hall. CPR instruction will include adult, child and infant CPR. A two-year certification card will be earned. Cost is $45 per class.

Kids Love Crafts – Join others for a jammed filled program of ooey, gooey arts and crafts, stories and songs at the Recreation Center. Watch 2- to 4-year-olds make a mess and have some fun as they create crafts that can be treasured for a lifetime. Space is limited to 10 children with a parent. The six-week session will meet from 10 to 11 a.m., on Tuesdays, Jan. 6 through Feb. 10. Cost is $60



Gingerbread House Workshop with Kitchen Kids – Meets at Cohasset Town Hall, 2 to 4 p.m., on Wednesday, Dec. 17. Kitchen Kids is a great way to introduce children to the joy of creative cooking in a fun and safe atmosphere. Children, ages 5 through 12, will decorate their own gingerbread house to take home for the holidays. The class is hands-on with step-by-step instructions, in a safe and clean environment with instructor Sandy Tremblay. Class is limited, so register early.

New York City Trip – Saturday, Dec. 13. Spend a day shopping and touring New York City. Open to ages 18 and older. Children younger than 18 must be accompanied by an adult. Invite friends and enjoy a day you plan in the Big Apple. Deluxe motor coach leaves Town Hall at 6 a.m., with arrival in New York City at about 10:30 a.m. Drop off will be midtown, near Rockefeller Center and pick up will be in the same area at 7 p.m. Limited enrollment. Cost is $44 per person.

Yoga – Meets at Cohasset Town Hall, 9:30 a.m., on Thursdays. Cost is $8. This Hatha yoga class will focus on moving meditation including gentle stretching and strengthening postures with breathing exercises to decrease stress and increase flexibility.

Recreation Department Seeks Donations – The Recreation Center is being spruced up and in need of cash donations, bar stools, folding tables and chairs, pool tables, Ping Pong tables, Foosball tables, air hockey tables, arcade games, video game systems and televisions. All donations are eligible for tax deduction. With help the Recreation Center will be a safe and enjoyable after school destination and the best spot in town to host a party.

THEY HAVE A CHAMPIONSHIP TO DEFEND

Loring Hall to present operas and ballet

Patriot Cinemas, a local cinema chain owned by the Scott family, has contracted with Emerging Pictures to bring the best of Europe's opera and ballet to Loring Hall Cinema in Hingham. Emerging's premiere opera series will feature performances from the famous opera houses of Italy, Austria and England in high definition and surround sound.

The first opera production in the series will be Rossini's "Il Barbiere Di Siviglia" from the Teatro La Fenice, Venice, Italy. There will be one showing at 1 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 7.

Loring Hall will also present six showings of the holiday classic "The Nutcracker." These special showings will take place Sundays, Dec. 14 and 21, and Christmas Eve, Wednesday, Dec. 24, at noon and 2 p.m. Performed by one of the world's most renowned ballet companies, the Kirov Ballet comes to the screen in high definition from the Mariinsky Theatre in St. Petersburg, Russia.

Loring Hall was built in 1852 as a meetinghouse to "supply the want of a commodious and suitable building for lectures, picnics and social meetings of all kinds." Celebrated personalities such as Ralph Waldo Emerson and Oliver Wendell Holmes made Loring Hall part of their lecture circuit back in the early days of the hall. Converted to a "motion picture house of charming colonial design" in 1936, Derby Academy sold the building to Phil Scott in 1964. It continues as a first-run cinema as part of the Scott family's Patriot Cinema chain. "It seems only natural to offer our loyal customers the opportunity to see such celebrated art forms at Loring Hall, said David Scott. "Twice a month we are able to offer our customers an experience that will transport them to another place to see some of the most spectacular performances of our time in the convenience of the South Shore."

Loring Hall will present Englebert Humperdinck's "Hansel und Gretel" Sunday, Dec. 28, which was performed at the Glyndebourne Festival in England.

In 2009, scheduled operas will include "Norma" by Bellini; "Romeo et Juliette" by Gounod; "Otello" by Verdi; "Don Giovanni" by Mozart; "Lady Macbeth of the Mtsensk District" by Shostakovich; "Rigoletto" by Verdi; "L'Incoronazione Di Poppea" by Claudio Monteverdi; "Giulio Cesare" by Handel; and "Don Carlo" by Verdi.

Good times at the Senior Center

FOR ADULTS ONLY

LOUISE SMULLEN

On Nov. 25, the Roy family and Atlantica restaurant treated about 150 seniors to a delicious turkey dinner. As we ate, we enjoyed listening to Cohasset High's jazz combo.

If you had been to lunch at the Senior Center on the 19th of November you would have enjoyed a hopping good time. Weymouth Health Care provided a catered lunch. After lunch we were entertained by Dave Becker who played piano, guitar and saxophone, not all at the same time, of course. He also sang. Several of the ladies couldn't resist getting out of their chairs to dance to the toe-tapping tunes of the sax.

Luncheon is served Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of each week. More often than not, there is a program before lunch on Wednesday. Sometimes it is entertaining, such as the one above. Other times it is informative or educational. The Center keeps us up to date on medical issues, insurance benefits, legal help, housing options, etc.

The 12th of November, Carl Meir, former head of Duxbury High School's history department, spoke to us on the development of our two-party system in the U.S.A. He covered the period from the signing of the Declaration of Independence to the election of Abraham Lincoln and Secession. It was most interesting.

Not all activities take place at the Center. Last summer we cruised a portion of the Charles River between Cambridge and Boston. A guide pointed out places of interest along the way. Then we enjoyed lunching at the Cheesecake Factory.

An end-of-summer picnic was enjoyed at the Sailing Club area, with chowder, hot dogs and cheeseburgers served up by Anna Abbruzzese and her crew of helpers. We were also tooted around Cohasset Harbor in a pontoon boat — a most pleasant and relaxing day.

On Nov. 25, the Roy family and Atlantica restaurant treated about 150 seniors to a delicious turkey dinner. As we ate, we enjoyed listening to Cohasset High's jazz combo. After lunch we were delightfully entertained by members of the cast from "West Side Story," also from the high school.

Young families, do you have a mom or dad who has sold his or her home and has come to live with you? Why not introduce them to our Senior Center where they will receive a warm welcome and make new friends.

Scituate Cohasset Newcomers Club accepting new members

Whether one just moved to Scituate or Cohasset, or has lived here for years, Scituate Cohasset Newcomers Club is a great way to get involved in the community and make new friends. The club is currently accepting new members. For more information about becoming a member, visit the Web site at scnewcomers.com.

Every month, a newsletter is issued that includes the schedule of social events. Some events are geared toward adults, while others involve caregivers and tots or the entire family. Annual events include the Fall Kick-Off Party, Children's Halloween Party, Chili Cook Off and Summer Barbecue. Every season new events are added or revised depending on the needs of members. Special interest groups are constantly developing as creative ideas are presented.

SCNC prides itself on its dedication to community service, and has raised money and donated time to Habitat for Humanity and the Magical Moon Foundation, and continues to find ways to help those in need.

Members of Scituate Cohasset Newcomers Club kicked off the club's 2008-2009 season with a Ladies Night Out wine tasting with Bruce Sinclaire, proprietor of A Taste for Wine & Spirits in Cohasset.

Buttonwood Book Angel Program

Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza, Route 3A, Cohasset, is sponsoring its annual Book Angel Program to benefit local children. The goal of the program is to promote literacy and give the gift of reading to a local child. The book angel selects an angel from the tree in the store and buys a book for the child described on the angel. Buttonwood will give a 15 percent discount on the book and deliver the book to the appropriate agency.

Program recipients include Wellspring in Hull, Friends of the Homeless in Weymouth and the Blue Hills Healthy Families, serving the South Shore. This is the 15th year Buttonwood has sponsored the Book Angel Program. About 200 books were donated last year. The program runs through Dec. 23.

Call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665 for more information.

Author/illustrator Brian Lies

Author/illustrator Brian Lies will appear at Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza, at 10:30 a.m., on Saturday, Dec. 20, for a special story time and activity. Lies will read, whenever a group gathers, from "Bats at the Library."

Illustrated with rhyming prose, the book is about a lively adventure, at night, through a library, by a colony of lovable bats. Lies will arrive at the library in the BATSmobile, his jeep Cherokee wrapped with artwork from the book. Lies has written and illustrated many books for children, and his award-winning work appears regularly in children's magazines and galleries around the country. A portion of the proceeds from this book is being donated to Bat Conservation International. The event is free.

Those who are unable to attend and would like to order a personalized and/or signed copy should call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665.

Buttonwood Celebrates

Buttonwood Celebrates is a daylong celebration of the holiday season at Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza, Route 3A, Cohasset, on Saturday, Dec. 13.

Planned events include Santa Claus, Bill Brett, Cathy Corcoran, toy demonstrations and door prizes. The day begins at 10:30 a.m. with Brett signing his new book "Boston: A Year in the Life." Santa Claus will be on hand for wish taking and pictures. Game demonstrations will be available in the toy department. Hingham author Cathy Corcoran will launch her new book "Magic Happens" at 1:30 p.m.

Buttonwood gift certificates and other items will be drawn randomly throughout the day. Light refreshments will be served.

Call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665 for more information.

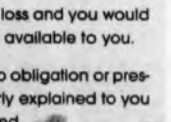
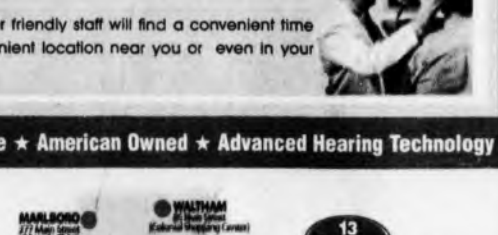
Do YOU Have Hearing Loss?



Find out right now by taking the test below*
*Complete audiometric testing needed to confirm hearing loss

YES	NO
❑	❑	1. Does your family complain because you play the TV too loudly?
❑	❑	2. Do you find it hard to hear in crowded places?
❑	❑	3. Do you often ask people to repeat themselves?
❑	❑	4. Do people around you seem to mumble?
❑	❑	5. Is it hard to hear when you can't see the speaker's face?
❑	❑	6. Do you have trouble hearing on the telephone?

If you answered "YES" to two or more of these questions, you may have hearing loss and you would need more testing to determine the scope of your loss and the options that are available to you.



Mass Audiology will provide you with this testing at no cost and with absolutely no obligation or pressure to purchase anything. The results of this comprehensive testing will be clearly explained to you and will provide you with all the information you need to make a well informed, smart decision about your hearing loss.

Call us today at 1-866-536-4327. Our friendly staff will find a convenient time and date for your testing at a convenient location near you or even in your home. All at no charge or obligation.

Adopt a family for the holidays

Help feed the hungry year-round

By Maureen Walsh
CORRESPONDENT

This is the second in a series of articles highlighting the work of Interfaith Social Services, this year's beneficiary of your donations to the "Gifts of Hope" campaign.

While holiday shoppers look for deals on CDs, MP3s and HD-TVs, the staff at Interfaith Social Services have different items on their shopping list: soup, cereal, canned tuna. Toys, books, games. Basic foods and simple gifts for children whose families are in need of help.

In recent weeks, the agency's Pantry Shelf has signed up 20 new families or more each day — more than 100 each week. Each family receives three-to-five days' worth of food once a month.

Many also hope to be "adopted" by people who will donate gifts for children at a time when family finances can't stretch beyond necessities.

"Many are losing jobs, or their part-time hours have been decreased, or they just can't keep up with utility bills," said Bettyanne Lang, ISS manager of material assistance. "Most families now are utilizing the food pantry in their own town and two or three others to make ends meet."

Interfaith Social Services is a private, nonprofit agency that aids the people of ten South Shore communities: Braintree, Cohasset. Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

From its offices at 105 Adams Street in Quincy, ISS provides food, clothing, financial management assistance and counseling to individuals and families in need.

The Pantry Shelf served 55 families in one two-hour period last week, a new one-day record in requests for assistance, said ISS Director Laura Stracco. The agency aims to provide nonperishable packaged and canned foods, plus frozen meats and fresh produce and dairy products to make well-rounded family meals.

"We depend on cash contributions to purchase food at the Greater Boston Food Bank, but we also depend on food drives or nonperishable donations to supplement what is not available from the Food Bank," she said.

There is a year-round need for donations, which often drop off during the winter months when the need is greatest, Stracco said. "Hunger doesn't know a season."

Lane said Pantry Shelf volunteers try hard to fill orders for special needs, such as low-salt or diabetic diets. Many of their Asian clients, most of them elderly, can't tolerate certain American foods.

"I've heard from many of our clients that they feel comfortable here, because they are treated with dignity and respect," she said.

Volunteers have assembled ingredients for a homemade birthday cake and located a cake donated by a local store, said Stracco. "We try to do something special to help out when we can."

The Adopt-a-Family program is another special way for individual donors, families and faith-based, business or community groups to brighten the holiday season for families who provide their children's ages, genders, clothing sizes and "wish list" items."

"Some donors do Christmas dinners, some give gifts all wrapped up nicely," said Lane, who arranges the "adoptions." "The families are grateful and the donors get a lot of joy from helping this way."

The ISS also needs toys and gifts for families looking for help at the last minute, she said. Items for children age 10 to 16 are particularly needed.

John Martland, president of the ISS board of directors, has adopted a family ever since a young girl captured his heart, he said, by asking for math books and bigger clothes, "because I'm growing."

"I went to the mall for clothes and this high school girl said, 'Can I help you?' I told her what I needed, and she put together a complete outfit."

"She was so happy to help," said Martland. "This brings a smile to everyone's face."

Give the Gift of Hope

The season of giving is upon us. For 16 years Community Newspaper Company's Gifts of Hope program has helped connect you to those in need in your own community. Each year, a local charity is selected to be the beneficiary of the Gifts of Hope donation campaign. And each year, your generous donations have helped feed the hungry, shelter the homeless and bring joy to the faces of young children across Massachusetts.

How can you help this year? Please join your local Community Newspaper in supporting Interfaith Social Services in its efforts to help those in need this holiday season. A donation of any size goes a long way.

Make your tax deductible check or money order payable to Interfaith Social Services. Mail to: Gift of Hope Program; c/o Anne Rodwell; Community Newspaper Company; 165 Enterprise Drive; Marshfield, MA 02050.

In addition to your "Gifts of Hope" donation, you can drop off food and unwrapped children's gifts for the Interfaith Social Services Pantry Shelf and Adopt-a-Family programs at the ISS offices weekdays, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., or call 617-773-6203 ext. 19 for alternate arrangements.

Please check toys for safety before donating. Food items must be nonperishable. No expired date, damaged or open containers are accepted. For donations of fresh, refrigerated or frozen foods, call 617-773-6203 ext. 19.

We welcome all to our inclusive spiritual community. We affirm our Unitarian Universalist Principles and put them into action by worshiping together, caring for one another, and working for a safe, just, and sustainable world.

Saturday, Dec. 13 - 3:45 p.m. - Caroling on the Common with refreshments afterwards and a socks offering!

First Parish Unitarian Universalist takes joy in sponsoring this annual tradition of Caroling on the Common. Gather at the Parish House at 23 North Main Street with your children and friends and neighbors for this community event. Song books with familiar carols will be provided. Cookie offerings are welcome for afterwards. Please bring a few pairs (or more than a few) of white socks in men's and women's sizes for our neighbors at Boston Health Care for the Homeless.

Sunday, Dec. 14:

• 8 a.m. – Circle Ministry (group led by Bill Baird & John Kornet and meeting on the 1st & 3rd Sundays, but only this Sunday for December)

• 9:50 a.m. – Childcare for our youngest and RE classes for children and youth – Parish House

• 10 a.m. – Worship in the Meeting House – Rev. Dr. Jan Carlsson-Bull will lead worship and preach on "All About Light."

• Everyone is invited for refreshments and fellowship in Trueblood Hall directly after the service and RE classes.

• 4 p.m. – The Unicorn Singers and Broad Cove Chorale – "O Wondrous Night: The Nativity in Word and Song" - The Meeting House

This much anticipated annual Christmas Concert will benefit the Wellspring Multi-service Center. The performance will include readings from poetry reflecting on the wonder at the manger. The poetry of John Donne, John Milton, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Alexander Pope, W.H. Auden, and Boris Pasternak will alternate with music by Randall Thompson, Ralph Vaughan Williams, Zoltán Kodály, Jan Pieterszoon Sweelinck, Francis Jean Marcel Poulenc. Tickets are $15 at the door or call 781-749-0162.

All are welcome as we worship and learn and live our faith together! To learn more about First Parish Unitarian Universalist, please come by the Parish House and pick up or sign up for the current monthly newsletter, The Common, or visit our website at www.firstparishcohasset.org or contact Rev. 'Gloria: A Renaissance Christmas Pageant' Dec. 21

Cappella Clausura and Creationdance will present a joint Christmas performance titled "Gloria: A Renaissance Christmas Pageant," featuring music ranging from medieval to modern, as well as costumed performers, dance and giant puppetry. The concert will be at 4 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 21, at First Parish Cohasset Parish House, 23 North Main St. Admission will be $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children.

Cappella Clausura is a women's ensemble in Boston that specializes in the music written through the centuries by women in clausurae, that is, in the cloisters.

In a different sort of Christmas pageant, suited to the entire family, Cappella Clausura, directed by Amelia LeClair, joins with Creationdance, directed by Helena Froehlich, to create a foray into the variety of music written to celebrate the mother of God and the birth of her son. For this concert of music and dance, Cappella Clausura has chosen works from its repertory of medieval, Renaissance, baroque and modern music, including works by Hildegard von Bingen and Patricia Van Ness. In keeping with the mission of Cappella Clausura, all the music is composed by women composers from throughout the centuries. All this will be topped off with some lively laude, or processional hymns, from 14th century Florence, which the audience is invited to sing with the cast. Froehlich and company will provide the choreography, costumes and puppetry as Cappella Clausura sings the Christmas story all the way from Gabriel to the visit of the Magi.

Cappella Clausura is a women's ensemble in Boston that specializes in the music written through the centuries by women in clausurae, that is, in the cloisters. Each season one of their concerts is a benefit to support issues particular to women. Their goal is to place this music in the standard repertoire.

For more information about the concert, call Allegra Martin at 617-872-0461.

Youth ministry poinsettia sale

St. Anthony and St. Paul youth ministry will sell poinsettias Sunday, Dec. 14, after all the masses. This is the first fundraiser of the year for the annual youth mission trip. Poinsettias will cost $ 10.

The youth group continues to grow. Two years ago there were only 20 members, and today it is 80 strong and growing.

St. Paul Parish is at 147 North St., Hingham. St. Anthony Catholic Church is at 10 Summer St., Cohasset.

St. Joseph Retreat Center

December retreat opportunities at St. Joseph Retreat Center, 339 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset, include:

• December 12 through 14, weekend retreat, "A Quiet Advent Weekend."

• Thursday, Dec.18, Morning of Prayer, 9 to 11:45 a.m., "God's Word Waiting to be Born in Us."

• Saturday, Dec. 27, Day of Prayer, 9 a.m. to 3.30 p.m., "Seeing Out of the Love that Holds You."

• Sunday, Dec. 28, Day of Prayer, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. "Chaos to Grace: For Women Who Celebrate Recovery."

• Dec. 29 through Jan. 1, Year End Retreat.

Caroling on the Common is Dec. 13

Hey there, Merry-Makers! Once again, First Parish is sponsoring a holiday treat for young and old: the well-loved Cohasset tradition—— Caroling on the Common—— on Saturday, Dec. 13.

Everyone is welcome! There will be songbooks for everyone. Because it gets dark quickly, you are asked to bring flashlights.

Participants will gather at the Parish House at 23 North Main St., between 3:45-4 p.m. for cookies and cider. The group will then leave to start the singing near the duck pond. At approximately 4:45 p.m., everyone will return to the Parish House for hot cocoa, cider and cookies (cookie donations will be much appreciated.)

Please bring a pair of socks (or two or three), which will be donated to Boston Health Care for the Homeless. Socks should be white cotton; both men's and women's sizes are needed.

For further information contact Sandy Bailey at the church office 781-383-1100 or Woody Chittick 781-383-3215.

Day of Silent Contemplation at Glastonbury Abbey

Into Great Silence, An Advent Day of Silent Contemplation, will take place at Glastonbury Abbey Conference Center, 16 Hull St., Hingham, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 13.

The film "Into Great Silence" by German filmmaker Philip Groning documents the rhythms of life at an ancient Carthusian monastery in the French Alps. Without narration or dialogue, the two-hour, 45-minute film invites the viewer to enter the great silence of the contemplative life of the monks in their daily routines of prayer, liturgy, labor, meals and solitude. Like a long meditation or prayer, the film leads the viewer into an experience of mindfulness and contemplation.

Like a long meditation or prayer, the film leads the viewer into an experience of mindfulness and contemplation.

The film will be shown in two sittings, one before and one after a mid-day break for silent reflection and a simple lunch of soup and bread. During this time participants may attend the noon liturgy, if they choose. To most fully enter the experience of the day, participants will be asked to keep silence between the introduction of the film and the afternoon discussion following the film.

To register, call 781-749-2155, ext. 200. A $25 donation is requested.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF DEC. 8, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your Arian penchant for impatience shows, as you consider passing a problem-prone project on to someone else. Best advice: Stay with it and work out those snarls yourself.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Even patient Bovines can be frustrated when carefully made plans go awry. But crank up that "stick-to-it-ivity" you do so well, and you'll soon find that your schedule is back in sync.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your aspect favors using more resourceful means in dealing with a workplace situation. Some discreet checking around could help shed light on the root cause of the problem.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You show an unusually strong streak of stubbornness in rejecting suggestions from friends and/or family members early in the week. But you become more receptive by the week's end.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat might find a gentler approach more effective when dealing with those who resist needed changes. Remember, the word "persuasion" starts with the sound "purr."

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A disappointing experience with someone you felt you could trust can be painful. But there just might be more to this situation than you're aware of. Press for an explanation.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Changing your views about something you believe in isn't easy. But you might reconsider as the facts come in. Keep your mind open, even if you're uneasy about what you might learn.

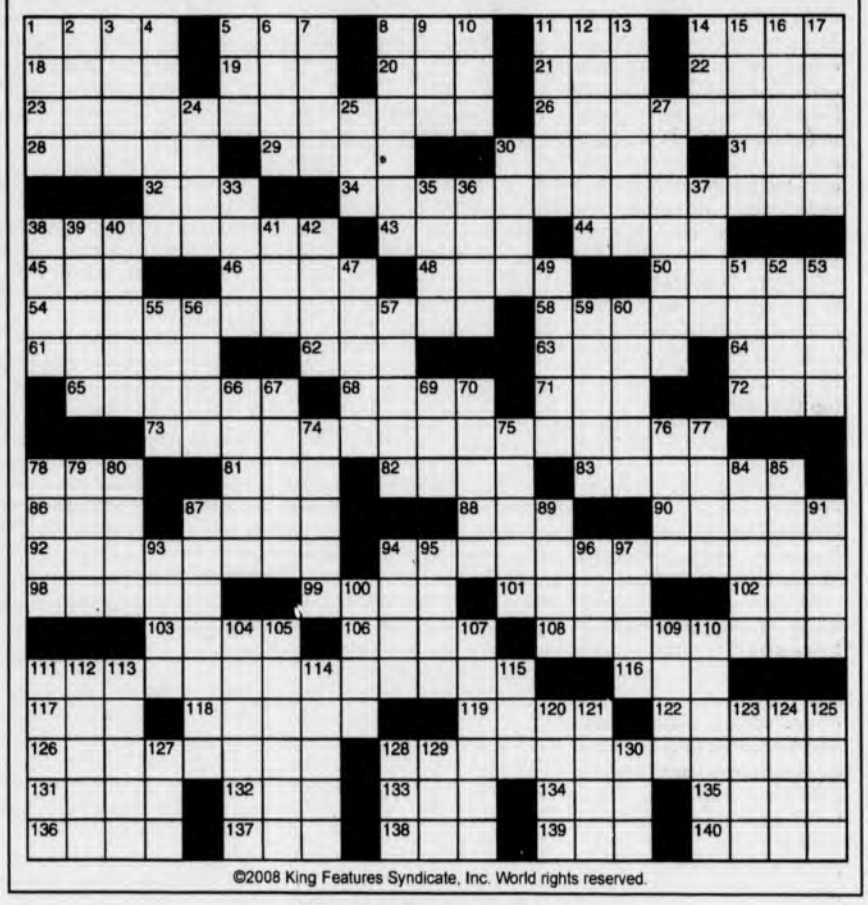
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to do some serious shifting of gears to get your project back on track. But cheer up. Your hard work starts to produce some positive results by the week's end.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unsettling mood at the start of the week soon lifts and gives way to a more positive attitude as you find fun and friendship beginning to dominate your aspect.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A delay in firming up holiday plans could work to your advantage. Use this time to scout out possibilities that might be more in line with what those close to you would prefer.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Some people might question some of the new friends you've welcomed into your life. But your ability to see beyond the obvious helps you recognize how special they are.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Financial matters can be especially tricky this week. It's best to follow a conservative investment path for now, and wait for a more fortuitous time to take a bolder approach.



(c) 2008 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your warmth, your humor and your genuine concern for others make you someone people love to keep close to their lives.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Coastal Nissan supports Wellspring

Through a series of programs, the Coastal Nissan dealership has teamed up with Hull's Wellspring Multi-Service Center to assist South Shore families in need. New England Patriots running back Kevin Faulk, who played a key role in these efforts, delivered $3,800 to Wellspring at a check presentation, which recognized the partners' initiatives to support the local community.

During the month of November, Coastal Nissan pledged $100 for each catch and first down made by Kevin Faulk; he made 23 catches and 15 first downs last month, generating the dealership's donation. "I'm really glad Coastal Nissan asked me to participate in this promotion. Wellspring is a great organization that helps out people in tough situations. It feels good to do my best and benefit others, too," said Mr. Faulk.

Coastal Nissan also created a food pantry and personal care collection, offering participating customers a discount on winterization services or a donation (on their behalf) to Wellspring. In addition, the dealership is assisting Wellspring with a purchase discount toward a fuel-efficient, seven-passenger, 2008 Nissan Quest mini-van this December, which will replace Wellspring's high-mileage van.

"Over the past eight years, we've grown our business by being good community citizens and treating our customers well," says Richard Walker, co-owner of Coastal Nissan. "We're thrilled to give back to the community, and hope our efforts will help people during these challenging times."

Vinny Harte, executive director of Wellspring, says the partnership with Coastal Nissan has provided immediate relief for local families. "Wellspring cannot thank Coastal Nissan enough for their community spirit and desire to help those in need," says Mr. Harte. "Their generosity has enabled us to reach beyond emergency services and help people become more independent, productive members of the community." He also noted that the partnership has served as a great opportunity to educate the public about Wellspring, and its year-round efforts to assist struggling families.

"I'm really glad Coastal Nissan asked me to participate in this promotion. Wellspring is a great organization that helps out people in tough situations. It feels good to do my best and benefit others, too."
— Kevin Faulk

Tom Norton, also a Coastal Nissan co-owner, says the dealership is committed to serving the community beyond its core business. "We look forward to our ongoing partnership with Wellspring, and hope to continue finding new, creative ways to positively impact the South Shore," says Mr. Norton.

Coastal Nissan's dealership is located at 109 Accord Park Drive, Norwell and at 742 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Cohasset. Tom Wopat stars as Billy Flynn in latest 'Chicago' tour

By R. Scott Reedy

Tom Wopat and the female ensemble perform in 'Chicago' through Dec. 14 at the Colonial Theatre.

This summer's too-quick closing of the new Broadway musical "A Catered Affair" put Tony nominee Tom Wopat out of a job. Wopat may have set a new record for shortest-ever unemployment by a Broadway performer, however –he went back to work exactly two days later in the long-running, Tony Award-winning revival of the musical "Chicago."

"What can I say, I like to work," Wopat said with a laugh recently while discussing the musical he first did on Broadway in 2004 and which he appears in this week at Boston's Colonial Theatre on national tour. "And Billy Flynn is a very comfortable role for me. I'm enjoying this tour, too, because we have a really young cast and I feel like one of my duties as the show's leading man is to set a good example. When I replaced James Naughton in 'City of Angels' years ago, he said 'This is your family now, take care of it.' It is a lesson I have taken to heart ever since."

The part of slick lawyer Billy Flynn has been played by everyone from Jerry Orbach in the original 1975 production to Naughton, who took home a 1997 Tony for the current revival, to George Hamilton, Wayne Brady, Patrick Swayze, David Hasselhoff, Gregory Harrison, Harry Hamlin, John O'Hurley and Usher to Wopat, on-stage, to Richard Gere in the 2002 film version. The character's appeal to actors, and audiences, is easy to explain, according to Wopat.

"What is great about Billy Flynn is that he is in control and he drives the action on stage. He's also a larger-than-life character, which is always fun for an actor. And it doesn't hurt either that when you play Billy you get to show up late and you only have to wear one outfit."

The musical is based on a 1926 play of the same name by Maureen Dallas Watkins and inspired by murder trials the author covered while working as a crime reporter. Woven together with songs like "All That Jazz," "Mr. Cellophane" and "Razzle Dazzle," by Fred Ebb and John Kander, the show tells the tale of murderess Roxie Hart, who, thanks to a slicker-than-slick lawyer, not only goes free, but also becomes a celebrity in the process.

"The script is clever in the way it shows how lawyers spin everything," said the 57-year-old Wisconsin-born Wopat, whose other Broadway credits include the 1999 revival of "Annie Get Your Gun" and the 2005 revival of "Glengarry Glen Ross." "I think that 'Chicago' has done so well in New York and on the road because it is a kind of perfect old-style Broadway musical. It is sarcastic, smart and clever, with some terrific dancing, too, which is a formula that works very well."

He may be best-known as Luke Duke from television's "The Dukes of Hazzard," but these days Wopat is more likely to be on a New York stage than on a television sound stage. He's set to play the Christopher Walken role in the musical version of the 2002 film "Catch Me if You Can," by the Tony Award-winning "Hairspray" team of Marc Shaiman and Scott Wittman with a book by Terrence McNally ("Master Class"), slated for Broadway in early 2010 after tryouts in Seattle next summer. He's also preparing to promote his just-finished third CD, "Consider It Swung," with a springtime stint at New York's famed Oak Room at the Algonquin Hotel. Between now and then, Wopat plans to stay in "Chicago."

He knows the current economic downturn has been hard on Broadway and also some national tours, but he isn't worried. "'Chicago' has become a franchise. It'll stay open in rain, hail, or snow."

("Chicago" will be at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston St., through Dec. 14. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 617-931-2787, or go online at broadwayacrossamerica.com/boston.)

The Boston Ballet is presenting its world-renowned production of 'The Nutcracker' for the 41st consecutive year.

Audiences will see a glorious 'Nutcracker' this year

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

This year's Boston Ballet production of "The Nutcracker," now in its 41st season, features not only the entire company, but also more than 250 children from Boston Ballet Schools in Boston, Newtonville and Norwell, and the full Tchaikovsky score performed live by the Boston Ballet Orchestra.

The holiday classic will be at Boston's Opera House through Dec. 28.

The show features the full Boston Ballet Orchestra led by Principal Conductor Jonathan McPhee and Associate Conductor Mark Churchill; spectacular sets designed by Helen Pond and Herbert Senn; intricate and whimsical costumes by David Walker and Charles Heightchew; and innovative lighting by Alexander Nichols.

The holiday classic will be at Boston's Opera House through Dec. 28.

A classical ballet in two acts, "The Nutcracker" is based on a story by E.T.A. Hoffmann that follows the enchanting journey of young Clara, who receives a nutcracker as a gift at a Christmas Eve party. Her nutcracker is ultimately transformed into a handsome young prince, who leads Clara through an enchanted forest and on to the Palace of Sweets, where she meets the Sugar Plum Fairy.

The ballet's most famous moments include a battle between toy soldiers and overgrown mice, a Christmas tree that grows to huge heights, the pas de deux for the Sugar Plum Fairy and her Cavalier, and a shimmering snow scene.

Braintree resident Jared Redick — a Boston Ballet soloist and principal of its Norwell Ballet School — will dance alongside many of his students from the South Shore including:

Duxbury: Tessa Endresen; Hingham: Emma Burleigh, Emily Carrick, Brooke Joyce, Caroline Kelleher, Paige King, Anne Lipsett, Jacqueline Messina, Julia Mitchell, Rebecca Mullaley, Caliann Murray, Erin Murray, Amelia Pedone, Hannah Pedone and Emma Reilly; Marshfield Center: Rachel Navarrette; Marshfield Hills: Kira Mohr; Norwell: Juliet Brown, Alexis Henriquez and Abigail Howland; Rockland: Lyndsay Norris; Scituate: Genevieve Goodman and Weymouth: Briana Ford.

Tickets to "The Nutcracker" can be purchased by calling Ticketmaster at 617-931-2787; going to ticketmaster.com; or in person Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., at Boston Ballet, 19 Clarendon St., Boston. Tickets start at just $30.

Groups of 20 and more can save up to 50 percent by calling group sales at 617-456-6343. Family and date night packages are also available.

Exciting enticements for cruise fans

Fran Golden
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA. — Two new ships, the Ruby Princess and Celebrity Solstice, just debuted in Fort Lauderdale on Caribbean itineraries and we were among the first onboard.

Princess tradition with a twist

Why mess with a good thing? The Ruby Princess is a fine, traditional, 3,070-passenger ship that's nearly identical in design to sister ships Emerald and Crown.

But that doesn't mean there aren't fun new features. My personal favorite: The Ultimate Ship Tour. For $150, you get to get a pretty complete look behind the scenes at how a cruise ship operates. Visit areas including the theater's costume shop, galley (where meals are prepared), engine room, laundry, funnel and bridge - for a photo with the captain. You even tour the medical center and get to see the ship's morgue - very CSI without the bodies.

The well-planned, three-hour itinerary is offered twice per cruise. Champagne and treats (including a take-home white chef's jacket) are served up along the way. It's an industry first.

Among other new activities on Ruby, "So You Want to Be A Rock Star," lets passengers perform with a live band - a step up from karaoke. The new Wizards Academy combines science and magic for kids.

Much of the prime action on the 113,000-ton Ruby takes place in La Piazza, the three-deck atrium area. On our Western Caribbean sailing there always seemed to be something going on from a violinist playing "Love Me Tender," to magic acts, to a rockin' mixology class. The coffee cafe and wine bar on the atrium's lower level are great places to check out the scene.

The other main hangout spot: The pool deck. The Ruby Princess has four pools. The aft pool is the quietist because, fortunately, not everyone discovers it. Center-ship at the Calypso pool there's a giant movie screen entertaining sun-seekers with movies and music videos. And Neptune's pool has entertainment provided by a live Caribbean band. The spa pool has a swim-against-the-current feature.

I could not stop visiting the open-air pool deck pizzeria, serving New York-style goodness - for $3 you can also order a whole pie served in your cabin.

I probably should have hit one of the 24 treadmills in the big ocean-view gym, too. But instead, at the ship's pretty Lotus Spa, I tried the new offering of a Thai massage ($159), which felt kind of like a yoga workout without the effort.

For lounging pleasure, the must-do spot is the adults-only Sanctuary, with cushy loungers, waiters fetching drinks and cold towels, and private cabanas where you can book a couple's massage. Access is limited (there's a small admission fee).

For a special meal, head to Sabatini's where the newly upgraded menu includes homemade ravioli with truffles and grilled lobster with pumpkin risotto - worth every penny of the $20 cover charge. The Ruby also has a steakhouse ($25) and three dining rooms (one open seating) where new menu offerings include a daily home-cooked entree - meatloaf, Texas chili.

The Ruby Princess is the newest ship in the Princess fleet.

On our cruise, there wasn't much of a late-night party crowd but truly funny comedians drew big audiences.

Two new show productions in the Princess Theater - "Broadway Ballroom," inspired by shows like "Dancing with the Stars," and "Once Upon a Dream," with an unusual backdrop of multidimensional animation, got positive reaction from the crowd.

What really shined on our sailing was service - in fact on its inaugural cruise, the Ruby Princess got the highest passenger rating for a new ship in the fleet.

Weeklong Western Caribbean itineraries priced from $712. For more information visit www.princess.com.

Celebrity Solstice brings change

And now for something completely different - the most frequent uttered word on the new Celebrity Solstice has to be "wow." The 2,850-passenger, 122,000-ton ship brings an impressively hip vibe to the cruise market.

The attention-grabbing, first-of-its-kind feature is a real half-acre lawn on top of the ship, where you can walk barefoot, putt on the three-hole course, pitch horseshoes or play croquet. At one end is a small, open-air theater, where master glassblowers from the Corning Museum of Glass in New York use fire, glowing blobs and hot rods to create bowls and animal sculptures to the oohs of onlookers, another shipboard first.

But the real wows are spaces like the main dining room, designed by Adam Tihany (Le Cirque in New York), glamorous with dramatic curtains, an off-white decor and a two-deck glass wine tower.

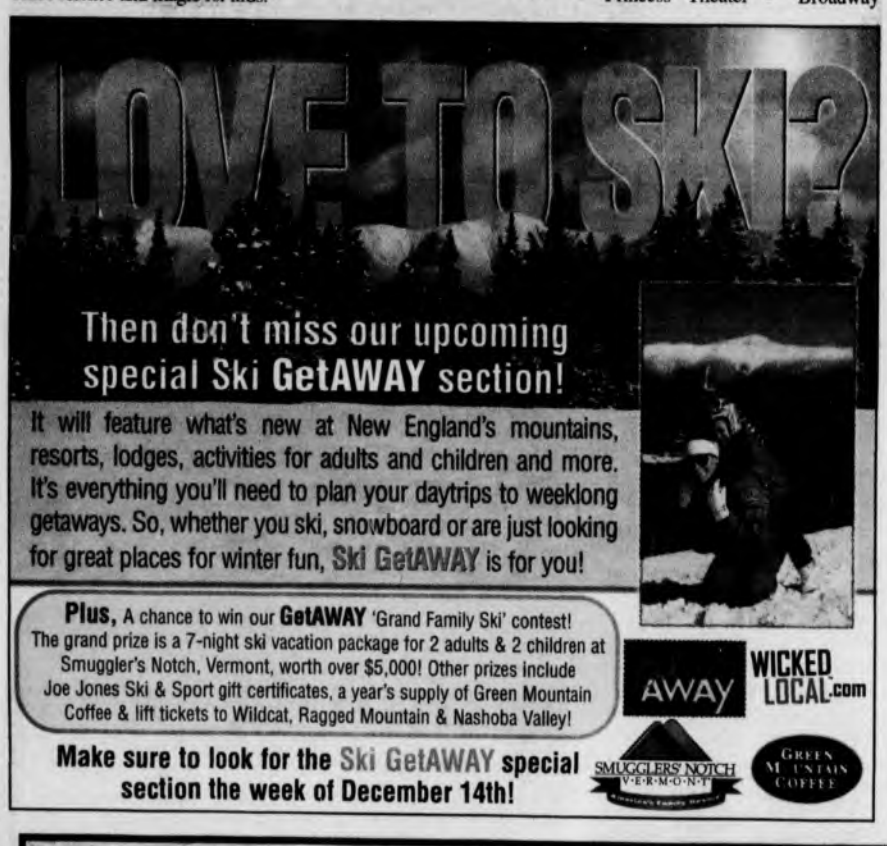
Night owls can party in the ship's all-white, ocean-view Sky observation lounge, where the scene is South Beach cool. Head to Quasar, the ship's disco, and you may think "Austin Powers" - there are egg-shaped chairs that hang from the ceiling for your swinging pleasure.

There are plenty of cushy quiet spaces, too. The ship's contemporary appeal is enhanced by a $5 million modern art collection. Wow.

In the 1,115-seat theater, the new show "Solstice" is a Cirque du Soleil-ish extravaganza with avant-garde costumed acrobats and "flying" performers on wires.

Those seeking retail therapy will enjoy the 18 shipboard shops, selling everything from one-of-a-kind artisan jewelry and glass to cruise logo wear.

In addition to the main dining room and buffet areas, dining venues include several classy restaurants - classic Continental, Asian fusion, Italian steakhouse - where cover charges of $5 to $30 apply. But for me, the must-do (for $5) are the crepes at Bistro on Five, the first creperie at sea.



Seeking to please women - the major decision-makers when it comes to cruise vacations - Celebrity turned to a panel of "boomer" women for design advice on cabins. They added about 15 percent more space, real hairdryers, more storage areas, lights and mirrors and bigger bathrooms - particularly impressive is a rail in the showers for women to lean on to shave their legs.

The 130 AquaSpa cabins come with all kinds of niceties, including unlimited access to the lovely relaxation and aromatherapy rooms at the ship's AquaSpa (others pay a fee).

Seeking to create a resort-like atmosphere on the pool deck, the designers created two adjacent pools and multiple sunning areas. There's also an indoor, adults-only Solarium pool with a glass ceiling and wall of water. Like the rest of the ship, it's a wow.

Weeklong Eastern Caribbean itineraries priced from $639 per person. Find more at www.celebritycruises.com.

Seniors need a new space

Swim Center land eyed for new construction

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

It still has a lot of hurdles to overcome and many details from financing to septic to be hashed over, but the plans for building a new Senior Center are slowing taking form.

A crowd of about 30 interested citizens of all ages, gathered at the current base of Elder Affairs operations at the South Shore Community Center to hear and share ideas about the possibility of a new Senior Center.

"As you may know, we have outgrown this space (in the Community Center)," said Joe Nedrow, chairman of the Council on Elder Affairs.

Elder Affairs is based in the front rooms of the Community Center building located at the corner of Depot Court and North Main Street. There is a dining room, a small office space, and a shared kitchen. Elder Affairs director Linda Elworthy's office is located in what can best be described as a storage closet and there is no place for a large group of seniors to gather or do special events. Elder Affairs currently pays $14,000 a year for the use of the space.

"We have a dream to better serve our senior neighbors," said Nedrow to kick off the discussion. "We want to share with you where we are and get input on where we go from here."

With almost 22 percent of the town's population over 60 (about 1650 residents) and 300 residents over 80, Nedrow said the need is great.

Back in August, the Cohasset Elder Affairs Board of Directors broached the subject of building, or moving, the Senior Center to a new location with the Board of Selectmen. During that pre-

CHRISTMAS TRIM

Jeffery Ritz of Cohasset, at right, smiles from ear to ear while Santa, who is seated at left, gets his beard trimmed by Leah O'Leary at Pat's Hairstyling and Barber Shop last Saturday (Dec. 13) before the Village Holiday Stroll. Santa said that he wanted to get a trim to look good for the children that night. For more photos of the annual holiday stroll, see page 23.

Some sewer capacity is available

Good news for village development

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"Hopefully it will make a positive difference in our little downtown."
— John Beck, Sewer Commission

When the Planning Board was hammering out a new set of zoning bylaws for the village business district, they knew there might be a serious obstacle in the way of change and development: town sewer capacity.

With the close quarters of the village area, a connection to the town sewer system is necessary for any and all new development or significant redevelopment. Until recently, the Sewer Commission has been firm in saying the wastewater treatment plant simply does not have the capacity to support additional tie-ins.

Following a study done by Coughlin Environmental Services, the Sewer Commission has found there is enough room in the plant to handle 56 more connections. This news may dwindle a growing waitlist of properties in the central sewer district that have been awaiting connection some for over a year.

"I think it is fundamentally a good thing. It will allow some potential village development the village zoning bylaw envisioned come to fruition," said Planning Board member Stuart Ivimey following the board's Monday night meeting.

Sewer Commission chairman John Beck it was a good process to look at the system and figure out what can safely be added in way of potential flow.

"Hopefully it will make a positive difference in our little downtown," said Beck, in a phone interview.

The plant capacity question was answered by looking at the most recent historical data (up to October 2008) for flows and pollutant loadings and comparing those to the plant's design capabilities, simply, the plant's ability to process and clean those flows. Daniel Coughlin, principal engineer at Coughlin Environmental Services, determined the set of design conditions for the recently renovated plant. In simplest terms, though complex engineering calculations were utilized, from the plant's designed capabilities he subtracted the average daily flows and loadings right now as well as the expected Little Harbor area flows and loadings.

"We have to reserve sufficient capacity to allow (the Little Harbor project) flows to come in and be suitably treated to meet our permit," said Coughlin. "The end result is we found there was a small amount of excess capacity in the system that the town could allocate out to address needs within the existing sewer service district."

Connections are measured in equivalent dwelling units, or EDUs. One EDU is equal to 440 gallons per day of capacity. When a connection is granted, the property owner had six months to pay for the connection in full. The cost can run from about $8,500 for houses or businesses with increased capacity needs (such as adding apartments) to $15,000 for new construction. At the end of six months, if the connection is not paid for in full, the property owner may file for an few months extension or the connection can be put back into the town's inventory.

PICTURE THIS/John Campbell

This week, the Mariner caught up with John Campbell at a meeting to generate ideas for the construction of a new Senior Center. John serves as president of the Friends of Elder Affairs and a member of the Board of Elder Affairs.

Name: John Campbell.

Occupation: Retired Training Director, Linda's husband, Mac's and Catie's Dad.

Best day of your life: The days each of our children were born.

Best vacation: Every vacation with family on the boat in Oak Bluffs Harbor, Martha's Vineyard.

Favorite season: Summer.

Favorite junk food: Rocky Road.

Best magazine: Good Old Boat Magazine.

Best movie: "Anne of Green Gables" and watching it with my daughter, Catie, near the Kleenex box.

Best TV show: "24."

Favorite music, song, group or artist: Fleetwood Mac.

Fun fact about yourself: I can trumpet like an elephant for the grandchildren.

Pet peeve: The extremes of politics on the left and the right, which prevents our solving important issues that have been facing our country for years.

Goal: Seeing our dream of a new first class Senior Center in Cohasset become a reality.

Person you'd most like to meet: Barack Obama.

Biggest worry: What, me worry?

Best part of Cohasset: The Second Congregational Church, its staff, and especially the choir and Joel, its Music Director.

Barrow trial date set

The trial of Christopher Barrow, the driver in a Cohasset crash last winter that took the life of 16-year-old Timothy Mahoney of Scituate, has been set for jury trial at Quincy District Court on Feb. 25, 2009.

Barrow, 19 years old and a Scituate resident, will be tried on one count of motor vehicle homicide by negligent operation.

The car accident happened shortly before 1 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 2, on Route 3A near Pond Street. Barrow suffered serious injuries in the accident and is now in a wheelchair.

During a pretrial hearing at Quincy District Court in October Barrow's attorney, Robert Jubinville, a Milton-based criminal lawyer, asked for a continuance as he hoped to resolve the case without going to trial and explained he needed extra time. Judge Sydney Hanlon granted the continuance. When Barrow appeared again on Dec. 5, no plea agreement had been made and the trial date was set.

Filing for real estate tax exemptions

The Cohasset Board of Assessors Office is currently accepting applications for Fiscal Year 2009 real estate tax exemptions. The qualification date is July 1, 2008. Applicants who have filed tax exemption forms since July 1, 2008 are not required to file again. The deadline for filing is March 29, 2009. The following exemptions are available:

Persons Over 70 Years Of Age – $2,000 off

Clause 41C – if annual income is less that $18,000 (single person) or $23,000 (married couple), and the value of your assets, excluding your home, is less than $33,000 (single person) or $35,000 (married couple) and must own and occupy for previous 10 years.

Surviving Spouse (no age requirement) – $350 off

Clause 17D – also minors of deceased parents and persons over 70 years of age. There is no limit on income, but the value of your assets, excluding your home, must not exceed $40,000 and must own and occupy for previous five years.

Disabled Veterans – $800 Off

Clause 22 – At least 10 percent disabled as determined by the Veterans Administration. Purple Heart Award recipients qualify, as well as Congressional Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Cross, Air Force Cross, Navy Cross. Other exemptions are available for more seriously disabled veterans and paraplegic veterans. Veteran must have been a Mass resident six months prior to enlisting OR live in Massachusetts for five consecutive years.

Blind Persons – $875 Off

Clause 37 – Must be registered with Massachusetts Commission for the Blind.

Tax Deferral – All or part of the tax

Clause 41A - Applicant must be 65 years of age as of July 1, 2008 with income less than $40,000 and must have resided in Massachusetts for the preceding 10 years. All or part of the tax may be deferred. (Effective 2007 the interest rate has been reduced to 4 percent)

Exemption forms are available at the Assessors' Office in the Town Hall. For additional information, or if you would like to inquire if you have already filed, please contact the Assessors' Office at 781-383-4114.

POLICE LOG

Patrols stepped up through holidays

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Cohasset police are encouraging safe driving through the holiday season. To that end, police are partnering with the Massachusetts State Police and other local police departments in conducting extra traffic enforcement focusing on the arrest of impaired drivers, Chief James Hussey said.

The mobilization program, dubbed Drunk Driving Over the Limit, Under Arrest, runs now through Jan. 4.

The mobilization includes stepped up enforcement through additional patrols.

Hussey said State and local police will conduct sobriety checkpoints and saturation patrols throughout the mobilization period.

The Executive Office of Public Safety and Security has provided $700,000 in federal grant funding for this initiative for both enforcement and a public education campaign.

In an effort to keep the roadways safe, Cohasset police offer the following travel tips:

- Drive sober and well rested;
- Obey the speed limit and allow extra time for unexpected traffic and weather conditions;
- If celebration plans involve alcohol, designated a sober driver before heading out, plan to use public transportation, or take a taxi. Police suggest programming cab information into your cell phone or sleep over at the location;
- Never accept a ride from an impaired driver;
- Report impaired drivers by dialing 911;
- Make sure everyone is properly buckled up. The best defense against a drunk, speeding or aggressive driver is wearing a seatbelt.

Additionally, those hosting holiday celebrations are urged to consider having ample non-alcoholic drinks available, do not serve alcohol to anyone under age 21, and prevent impaired guests from getting behind the wheel. More information is available at www.mass.gov/highwaysafety.

Each week on average 300 people are arrested for impaired driving in Massachusetts, Hussey said. A first-time conviction for drunk driving can cost more than $7,800, plus the expenses involved with insurance charges and attorney fees.

"Let's make this holiday season safe for everyone," Hussey said. "Plan your transportation so no one is driving a vehicle while impaired. This will save lives."

Erratic operation

On Monday (Dec. 8) at about 6:47 p.m. a concerned caller reported an erratically driven car on Route 3A that was stopping traffic and swerving. The caller was behind the car that was headed from the Hingham rotary into Cohasset. The car was described as a gold, metallic BMW. However, police were unable to locate the car, Chief Hussey said. Hussey said whenever possible providing the plate number or a partial plate number can help police. Police can run a partial plate number and description of the vehicle and find out who the car is registered to.

"We can follow up, find the registered owner and in some cases issue a citation," he said.

Diamond ring

Police are investigating the theft of a $2500 gold diamond ring and a diamond pendant of unknown value from a house on Nichols Road. The owner of the items is not sure when they went missing but believes the theft occurred within the past month. There was no forced entry to the home. The jewelry was taken from a bedroom, police said.

Items stolen

A walk-in to the police station reported the theft of two iPods, a Pulsar watch, handheld Nintendo, Exxon Mobil gift card, stainless steel survival knife and $80 in coins last week.

There was no forced entry to the home. Detectives processed some physical evidence from the scene, police said. The theft was reported on Tuesday morning (Dec. 9).

Laptop taken

A Nichols Road homeowner who had been away for a few days arrived home last week to find a laptop computer had been taken from a drawer in the kitchen. A set of keys had been moved put in a different spot and other rooms had been gone through, police said. Some costume jewelry from a daughter's bedroom also was missing.

The incident, which was reported on Tuesday night (Dec. 9), is under investigation.

Parking fine

A motorist is being fined $100 for illegally parking in a handicap spot on Depot Court. An officer saw the handicap placard in the car, but it was not displayed properly. The officer investigated further after observing the motorist, who did not appear to be handicapped, return to the vehicle. Further investigation revealed the placard belonged with another car. The incident occurred last Wednesday (Dec. 10).

Shoplifting

Police responded to a call from a store in Cohasset Plaza about a customer who had a bottle in her purse that the clerk did not think she had paid for. However, the only description of the woman's car was that it was a white car. No plate was provided and police could not locate the vehicle. The call came in on Wednesday (Dec. 10) at 8:18 p.m.

Hit and run

A witness told the owner of a 2007 blue Jeep that another vehicle had taken off after pulling into a parking spot, hitting a shopping carriage pushing it into the Jeep. The car that left was described as a white Toyota Sequoia and was headed north on Route 3A. A cruiser was sent in that direction but could not find the vehicle.

The incident occurred in Tedeschi Plaza on Friday (Dec. 12).

No trespass

A local store obtained a "no trespass order" last week against an individual who had been asked to leave the premises on previous occasions for causing disturbances due to intoxication. The person can be arrested if he violates the no-trespass order, police said.

Jewelry returned

On Friday (Dec. 12), a breaking and entering was reported where jewelry was taken from a home on South Main Street. There were no signs of forced entry. On Saturday (Dec. 13), police responded to same location where jewelry was in a bag left on top of the victim's motor vehicle. Police are trying to clarify what jewelry may still be missing.

Parking issues

Although no parking signs were posted, there were some parking problems on Elm Street during the Village Stroll last Saturday. Police went around to businesses and merchants to alert motorists parked illegally to move their cars. Police said emergency vehicles would have had trouble getting through Elm Street. A couple of cars had to be towed, Hussey said.

Winter parking

Winter parking regulations are in effect through April 1.

No overnight on-street parking between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. is allowed during winter parking regulations.

Violators are subject to a fine of $25.

Swim Center land eyed for Senior Center

sentation, they were eyeing a significant renovation to one of the more underused town buildings — the Recreation Center "Garage." Since then they have abandoned that idea and sought out other alternatives, primarily to construct a Senior Center from the ground up.

That's when Glenn Pratt, chairman of the Water Commission, came forward with five-acre piece of property owned by the Water Department located behind the Cohasset Swim Center. The land is no longer used for Water Department operations.

The wheels were set in motion. Civil engineer and Cohasset resident John Cavanaro agreed to take a look at the site and do some preliminary engineering pro bono.

Cavanaro found the best siting for the building would be to the left of the existing Swim Center parking lot.

"It is a very attractive mixed-use opportunity to take advantage of the existing assets," said Cavanaro. The site's proximity to the village and main roads made it more attractive as did the existing parking lot which is only used for about two months out of the year.

"We have a dream to better serve our senior neighbors. We want to share with you where we are and get input on where we go from here."

— Joe Nedrow, Council on Elder Affairs

Cavanaro stressed the effort would have to be a cooperative effort between the CEA and the trustees of the Swim Center. In order to build, Elder Affairs would have to come to an agreement or land swap with the Trustees.

Preliminary plans propose a 14,000 square foot building with two floors. The first floor would be devoted to the senior center and it was suggested six senior affordable apartments be created on the second floor.

"There's not question there is a need for senior housing," said Nedrow, adding the apartments would add a steady income stream and 24/7 on site security.

The initial cost estimate for the construction is approximately $2.2 million, unfurnished. It is the Elder Affairs' vision to construct in the most environmentally conscious and energy efficient manner, said Elworthy, the director of Elder Affairs. Additional grants or tax credits could be available with this type of building.

Representatives from a cross section of town boards were in attendance from the Board of Selectmen, Advisory Committee, Conservation Commission and Board of Health.

Members of the Elder Affairs Board of Directors went to several other area senior centers to look at their facilities and the additional services/programs they are able to offer because of their space. Philosophy classes, a billiard room, a full gym, a library area, a craft room and even a sit-in kitchen were all amenities.

"It truly reflected the community and people felt very comfortable," said John Campbell, a member of the Board of Directors and president of the Friends of Elder Affairs.

Some attendees were concerned the center could outgrow itself in a matter of five to 10 years and wanted to ensure the center had room to grow either built in or the possibility to expand.

The next steps for the project are to foremost sit down with the Trustees of the Swim Center to discuss the project and the possibility of collaboration between the two entities. The Elder Affairs also plans to apply for Community Preservation funding at the Annual Town Meeting in March to get money to hire an engineer and architect.

"Whatever facility we create will be a great asset to the town," said Nedrow and asked for continued interest and input. "Nothing is locked in yet...I hope each of you stay part of the process, everybody's ideas are important."

Sewer capacity could be good for village waiting list will be notified of the available sewer capacity early next year. Once notified commercial properties will have six months to purchase the connections and residential properties will have three months. Preference will be given to waiting list applicants in the order they were received.

Some of the properties that are slated to have the chance to connect to town sewer are 2 Smith Place on the other side of the MBTA tracks, 31R South Main Street (behind Village Wine and Spirits), 8 James Lane, 55 South Main (the Village gas station) and the Bernard's building. None of the properties that are being offered sewer connections have filed for special permits with the Planning Board, but some have had preliminary discussions regarding development possibilities with the board.

While there are eight village properties currently on the waiting list, most of the requests are for multiple EDUs, some request as many as 23 EDUs. As actual plans are filed with the town, the number of EDUs currently requested may change.

Two buildable residential lots on Pleasant Street were given the first two available connections. Somehow these two lots overlooked in the last expansion of the Central district. The Building Inspector confirmed that these lots were buildable and should have received stubs.

The wastewater treatment plant has been undergoing a significant upgrade in association with the Little Harbor sewer expansion project. Since the installation of the new membranes that filter the effluent and an overflow pipe (which has yet to be utilized) the Sewer Commission reported there has been no overflow events at the plant. In 2006 and 2007 there were several overflows when the plant was inundated with stormwater during heavy rain events. Last week, members of the Sewer Commission met with Elm Street residents to hear their thoughts on additional screening for the plant.

"The membranes are part of the reason the plant can handle more capacity," said Sewer Commissioner Sean Cunning.

The ongoing Little Harbor sewer project — the $15.2 million sewer distribution and plant expansion — will tie-in an additional 485 homes to town wastewater treatment plant. It is expected the homes will be tied in by late 2010. Then after homeowners hook up to the sewer, the Sewer Commission will have to re-evaluate the capacity again and see if any more connections are available. The associated sewer plant upgrade and expansion will increase the capacity from its current 300,000 gallons per day to 450,000 gallons per day.

There is a separate waiting list for sewer connections for vacant, but buildable, lots in the Little Harbor district. Currently, there are five lots on that list.

The capacity study will be re-done once all the new Little Harbor connections are on board with the plant.

New Year's resolutions

Selectmen begin goal setting process

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The discussion was broad in nature, with many of the goals repeated on several or all of the members' lists and some were of special interest specific to a particular selectman.

It was their last meeting of 2008 and the Board of Selectmen sat down to discuss its collective and individual selectman goals for the town for the near and distant future.

What can be called a brainstorming session, it was the first step in what could become a regular part of the Selectmen's agenda. Each Selectman came armed with their own list of priorities, issues and goals they would like to see addressed by the board and the town in the coming year(s).

The discussion was broad in nature, with many of the goals repeated on several or all of the members' lists and some were of special interest specific to a particular selectman. From finance to stormwater to grant writing to energy savings, the Selectmen's goals ran the gamut.

Selectmen Karen Quigley requested the goal setting session shortly after she joined the board in April.

"One of the motivations I had to run to sit on the Board of Selectmen was a I felt Town Hall as a whole tended to be reactive," Quigley said, adding her hope was to move toward a proactive attitude when addressing the issues facing the town.

Quigley's first item, which was echoed in all the Selectmen's list, was the importance of a technology committee. A committee exists currently, but has not been active as of late. All town departments utilize technology, especially computers, but right now there is no uniform purchase or replacement schedule or guidelines on the type of computer to purchase.

Grant opportunities — and how to best take advantage of them — was something the Selectmen have been looking at and want to continue looking into.

"We're more dependent on grants and we want to get as much money as we can as long as it is out there," said Quigley.

Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr said in the early part of the new year he has heard a federal stimulus bill geared toward creating jobs by helping to fund infrastructure, deferred maintenance and public safety projects. Many of the projects in the queue for Cohasset could fit the bill for federal aid. Carr said smaller projects that are permitted could go to the top of the list. The Jerusalem Road repair project, Jacob's Meadow culvert project, even the Town Hall restoration project could be candidates.

"We should be getting ready so we could have the opportunity (to get funding)...that is debt we don't have to take on," said Carr. The federal stimulus package, he noted, will not look at a town's wealth in its evaluation, because the purpose is to get people to work and stimulate the economy.

Looking more closely at how to best utilize Facility Manager Brian Adams and his department was one of the goals discussed. Another was to investigate where the town can be more energy efficient and insert more green practices.

Quigley would like to see more interaction and communication between the Selectmen and other boards, particularly as it relates to the budget. A regularly scheduled meeting between the Selectmen, the Advisory Committee, School Committee and Capital Budget Committee could go a long way during budget season, she said.

Board of Selectmen vice chair Paul Carlson named stormwater, facilities management and revisiting long-term debt goals as some of his objectives.

Selectman Fred Koed said stormwater, sidewalks and energy conservation were a few of his top items.

Carr suggested the Selectmen look into educating themselves on wind energy and wind energy rate negotiation should a turbine ever was erected in Cohasset.

Selectmen Ralph Dormitzer would like to review two of the newer and more controversial bylaws currently on the books — the stormwater management bylaw and the wind energy conversion bylaw. He also asked wanted to revisit with the Economic Development Committee and the Housing Partnership to ensure they are working toward specific goals.

"It's great we are thinking about the same things," said Carr.

Carr will compile an updated list of goals and re-distribute to the Board of Selectmen. Carr plans on creating categories for the goals and breaking them down into short-, mid- and long-term timeframes. Town Manager Bill Griffin suggested each goal be assigned a point person to help him with communication and ensure there is some sort of ownership over the goal.

"I think this is a really good start," said Quigley. It's possible a goal setting item will appear regularly on Board of Selectmen agendas in the coming year.

A sampling of goals discussed

Note: This list is in no particular order.

1. Revitalize the Technology Committee.
2. Develop a deferred maintenance strategy.
3. Better utilization facilities management.
4. Revisit the town's long-term debt objectives.
5. Investigate and prepare for possible federal grants.
6. Continue to tackle the town-wide stormwater issues.
7. Explore energy saving and efficiency possibilities.
8. Touch base with Selectmen-appointed committee to give them specific charges and projects.
9. Look into hiring a grant writer.
10. Tackle on how to get better cell phone coverage town-wide.

Planning goals

It might be the fact that the new year was just over two weeks away, but downstairs at the Planning Board meeting they were discussing goals as well. Despite the fact a full board was not present (Chairman Al Moore and member Mike Westcott were absent) and a goal discussion were not on the agenda, following a conversation on the need for an updated zoning map the Planning Board began to discuss what they would like to accomplish in the next year and over the next few years.

Vice chair Charles Samuelson suggested each member of the board come to the next meeting (Jan. 12) with a list of three things they would like to see accomplished in 2009. They'll look at where the commonalities are among the members.

"We can come up with a couple of things that are definitely doable and a couple of stretch goals," said Samuelson.

Planning Board member Stuart Ivimey agreed, "it will give us all a sense of where we want to be going."

And, Samuelson added, "something to focus on."

Schools unveil fiscal 2010 budget

Maintenance of services and staff are priorities

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"The goal this year is to keep what we have, keep the quality, keep the people and still move forward in a cost effective manner."
— Alfred Slanetz, School Committee

The School Committee got its first glimpse at the fiscal 2010 school budget this week. Knowing the trying fiscal times for the community, municipality and the state, the school is preparing accordingly.

The school administration presented a preliminary fiscal 2010 budget of $14,833,172 that includes projected state aid numbers. The budget is a 3.6 percent increase, or $516,775, over this year's budget.

The school budget will be updated as more information becomes available in the new year. As of now, there are still a number of significant unknowns, including the teacher's union contract (an agreement for a new contract has not been reached, only step and column increases are included in the budget) and state aid numbers.

Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh said this year's overall goal is to maintain and build upon the overall strength of the school system while recognizing continued local and state wide economic challenges. What that translates to is no new staff positions are recommended, but current class size numbers are preserved. Items like virtual high school that increase elective offerings without requiring extra staff is kept and there is an on emphasis collaborative purchasing on items from classroom supplies to utilities.

"The goal this year is to keep what we have, keep the quality, keep the people and still move forward in a cost effective manner," said vice chairman Alfred Slanetz.

Walsh agreed, "we don't intend to slide back, we're going to try to do this in the most cost effective manner."

Although the school department is proposing a $14.8 million budget, Walsh said that amount only covers about 90 percent of the cost to actually run the district. The remainder of the money, about 10 percent or $1.8 million, comes from offsets. The total cost to run the district is $16,687,426. About 75 percent of the budget comes from salaries.

The offset revenue has multiple components, including athletic fees, booster club funds, transportation/bus fees, use of facilities fees, state circuit breaker (special education funding), Metco reimbursement, grants and donations.

This year, the budget was presented in three parts to ensure clarity for some of the larger items. There is a number for the operational budget, the athletic budget and the transportation budget.

Of note in the athletic budget is for the first time more of its total cost is coming from offsets ($186,600), rather than the operational budget ($172,332).

"We've tipped the scale there," said Walsh. The athletic offsets consist of student athletic fees, gate receipts and booster donations. There has not been an increase in athletic fees, but an increase in participation is one of the drivers to the increase in offset revenue.

The transportation budget includes funding for lease-to-buy plans for two new school buses and one special education van. The School Committee and administration agrees on the absolute need to replace the vehicles for safety and the high cost of maintaining the aging vehicles. They are also bringing forth an application to the Capital Budget Committee and hope to get the funding through that mechanism. If not, they are prepared to include the vehicle purchases in the operational budget.

All the school committee members are concerned with how the state numbers will affect the budget. Word from State Rep. Garrett Bradley is to expect as much as a 10 percent cut in state aid. Right now, the budget includes a reduction in circuit breaker funding and level funding for chapter 70 state aid.

"As things change, we will change with them," said School Committee chairman Rick Flynn. "I think this is a great start."

The overview of the budget highlighted key points of the budget, but more in-depth school-by-school budget breakdowns will be on Wednesday, Jan. 7. The final School Committee budget certification will be in early March.

School budget calendar for fiscal 2010

- Jan. 7: School Committee budget meeting, line item review with the school principals.

Birthday wishes and more good news

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

Hi there Cohasset and Happy Holidays to all! I am still in awe that the holidays are here already but I guess it is true. Enjoy the weekend filled with snow and get into that holiday spirit.

BIRTHDAY WISHES

We have two birthday wishes to send out and recognize here in the paper this week.

First of all, a very special Happy Birthday goes out to Sabina Noering of Cohasset who celebrated her special day last weekend with family and friends. The party included each guest bringing a special tree ornament to hang on a beautiful holiday tree. After the party was over and the weekend was done, the tree was then donated to the Our World Museum for all to admire and enjoy throughout this week and next. What a lovely gift for you to give Sabina, Happy Birthday and thank you from all the kids and families in Our World!

Now, another birthday wish is going out to Miss Hannah Laugelle who is celebrating her 8th birthday TODAY!

Hannah, all of your family and friends want you to know how special you are and to make sure that you enjoy this day! Happy, Happy Birthday to a very special 8-year-old girl!!!

DAISY TROOP

A new Daisy troop led by Kristyn Stevens and Courtney Finn got into the holiday spirit by making special gingerbread houses at Our World Museum to give to the Police Station and Fire Station as a way to say, " a big thanks" for all that they do for our community!!

Daisy girls in the picture with Chief Silvia of Cohasset's Fire Department: Ava McKeon, Lauren Stevens, Liv Garelick, Emma Suzedell, Piper Finn, Sophia McAlarney, Olivia Perrachi, Tessa Morris, Caroline Williams, Amelia Boyle, Lindsay Ferreira, Alison Olson, and future Daisy members, Kate Stevens and Logan Finn.

AUDITIONS

The Cohasset Dramatic Club announces auditions for its spring musical, "Sweet Charity" the story about a down her luck dance hall girl, Charity Hope Valentine, who's always looking for life's silver lining. With memorable songs such as "If my friends could see me now" and "Big Spender", to name a few, the story was brought to life in the late 60's with Gwen Verdon creating the title role of Charity on broadway.

Shirley MacLaine recreated that title role in the movie in 1969 and that film received 3 Oscar nominations. The show offers terrific roles for women of all ages. It's a dance tour de force with original choreography created by Bob Fosse. Auditions are scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 4th at 6 pm and Monday, Jan. 5th at 7 pm with callbacks if necessary on Tuesday Jan. 7th at 7 pm at Cohasset Town Hall.

Auditioners should prepare 16 bars of the song of their choice. Please bring sheet music. An accompanist will be provided. Also dress comfortably as there will be a dance/movement audition. Some auditioners may be asked to read from the script. Please call Lisa Pratt with questions at 617-852-0091.

COURTESY PHOTO

HONORS

Congratulations go out to Lauren Hayes from her very proud mom and dad, Brion and Meredith Hayes of Cohasset. Lauren received Honors for the Fall semester at Holderness in New Hampshire. She played JV field hockey in the fall and is now skiing for the school team. Great accomplishments Lauren, keep up the great work!

KIDS NIGHT

Looking for a fun-filled evening for your kiddos to come to tonight while you finish up on shopping, wrapping or just vegging out for a bit with your friends or significant other? Well, tonight from 4-9 will be our Holiday Kids Nite with a holiday movie, a special holiday meal to make and enjoy and a lot of singing, holiday crafts and fun for all to be had. It will be held at the Our World Museum and we still have a few spaces left. If you are interested, contact Jen at 781-383-3198 or send an email to jen@ourworldcgdm.org.

The cost is $40 per family with additional children from the same family costing $10 more. If you would like to take part in a few of the hours, the cost will be $12 per hour. It is going to be a super night and we would love to have your kids with us as we celebrate our last Creative Nite before the Holiday.

On Sunday, Dec. 21 from 1-4 pm will be a "Holly Days" Children's Open House at the Our World Children's Global Discovery Museum. This program is $35 per family and will include the decoration of a tasty and pretty Gingerbread House for your child to bring home to enjoy with family and friends. That will take place from 1-3 pm with Kitchen Kids and friends(www.kitchenkidscook.com) and will then follow with ornament making, a special holiday snack and story with Miss Jen, Miss Julie and Miss Emily. All family and friends are then asked to be back to the museum to enjoy a musical hour of singing, instrument playing and a visit from, you guessed it, "The Man In The Big Red Suit" who will be ready for photos and singing galore.

All children will need to be pre-registered in advance by calling 781-383-3198 or sending an email to jen@ourworldcgdm.org. Parents can use the time from 1-4 to finish up any last minute holiday needs and come on back at 4:00 for a special fun-filled hour with your family and friends. Please plan on attending a wonderful and festive event, we look forward to seeing you there!

OFFER OF HELP

We received this from Adrian Morris of Lemon Lime, 812 Chief Justice Cushing Highway. "I am so sorry to hear about our community's devastating loss yesterday in Scituate. I can't imagine the pain that all these families are going through. I am not sure what they need at this point. With this in mind, I will be donating 100 percent of my salon profits this Saturday and Sunday (Dec. 20 & 21)) to meet their needs. I also would like to ask if anyone would like to donate anything. Please bring it to Lemon Lime and I will be sure it gets to these families. This is what Christmas is all about: helping those who need help."

That is the last bit of news for this week and before the Holidays next week. Happy Holidays to all as we begin our celebrations no matter what holiday that is.

Also, happy vacation week to so many students as they all enjoy family, friends and of course, a few new gifts here and there.

Town tour guidebook available this week

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For a small town, Cohasset has its share of notable sites, memorable walks and historic significance. The best of the best of all that is captured in a new publication of town history, "Exploring Historic Cohasset — Ten Tours and Concise History."

Hot off the presses, the book became available at several locations in Cohasset earlier this week. This guidebook is written by Cohasset resident Jacqueline Dormitzer and is it her fourth book on Cohasset history.

Not only can the book be used for visiting guests to acquaint them with your hometown, but also newcomers to Cohasset and "townies" looking for some fresh perspective and history on the town they may have lived in for many years.

Six of the tours set off from the quintessential Cohasset Common, one of the town's most recognizable landmarks. From the Common stems tours to the Village, Cohasset Harbor to Government Island, the South Shore Art Center and Central Cemetery.

"I thought about what would be convenient from the common," said Dormitzer. One of the more difficult tours to map out in print was Central Cemetery. The tour guides readers to some of the more interesting older tombstones.

"I had to go back there at least half a dozen times in order to arrange a logical route," said Dormitzer. Some tours are walkable, while others are more easily driven or bicycled. One of those scenic drives is the incomparable Jerusalem Road.

"You can't come to Cohasset without looking at Jerusalem Road," said Dormitzer. Accordingly, there is a tour that begins at Sandy Beach (which, for those Cohasset geography experts, is actually off Atlantic Avenue) and shows off some of the finer estates overlooking the water. The guidebook encouraged drivers to take a detour through Nichols Road to take in the sights of Little Harbor. In the reverse, the book points out the old Nantasket library (now an antiques shop at West Corner) and suggests a self-guided tour through Cohasset's own organic farm, Holly Hill Farm.

The final two tours are hiking trails in Whitney Woods and Wheelwright Park, where she suggests wearing hiking boots and toting along a compass. For all the tours there are plenty of photographs to help in locating places and bullet points of historical interest. At the end of each tour there is a reference to the other books where interested readers can find out more about a particular site and toward the back of the book is a concise history of the town of Cohasset.

Approximately 100 pages, it is printed four-color process throughout and mechanically bound so that the book can lay flat when opened to make it easier to use a reference while touring the sights.

Each tour has been field tested by Dormitzer with the assistance of her husband (and current selectman), Ralph.

Cohasset residents Jim Hamilton and Kimberlee Alemian handled the production details and book design, respectively. The photography in "Exploring Historic Cohasset" was contributed by Ralph Dormitzer, Richard Alemian and Margot Cheel.

The book is the fourth publication to result from a committee formed at the 2006 Town Meeting. Along with the appointment of the committee, $5000 was provided to publish the third Narrative History covering the years 1950 to 2000.

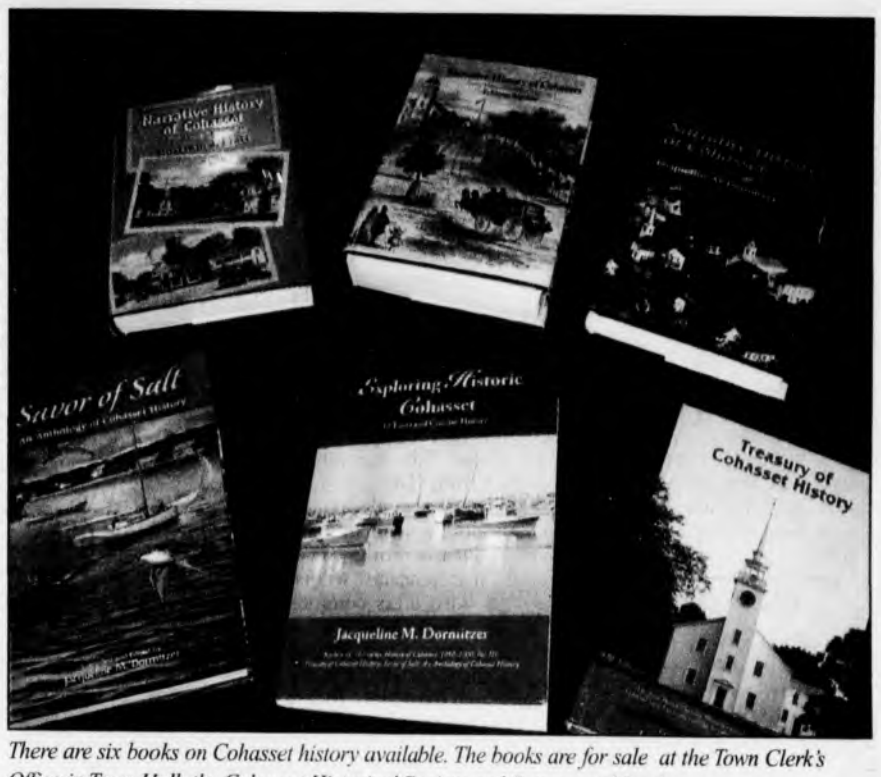
The team that brought the guidebook "Exploring Historic Cohasset — Ten Tours and Concise History" to fruition includes Kimberlee Alemian (book design). Jacqueline Dormitzer (author) and Jim Hamilton (production details).

Approximately 100 pages, it is printed four-color process throughout and mechanically bound so that the book can lay flat when opened to make it easier to use a reference while touring the sights.

Upon publication in 2002, four years after Dormitzer started her work on the book, 2,000 books from the initial press run were sold (at the time, there were approximated 2,800 Cohasset households).



Even before publication, the committee recognized the interest generated by the upcoming book could also carry through to the purchase of the Town's out-of-print Narrative Histories— E. Victor Bigleow's Narrative History 1898 and Burt Pratt's Narrative History 1950. Their covers were also redesigned so that the three narratives could be purchased as a set and their titles were revised to become Volume I, II and III.

In the course of Dormitzer's compiling research for her fifty-year narrative history, she came upon material that covered the years of the previous two histories, but had never been published in book form. Some of the material were newspaper articles; other material was from writers who had privately printed monographs and booklets, such as David Wadsworth for the Cohasset Historic Society.

There was enough material to publish two anthologies, the Treasury of Cohasset (2005) and Savor of Salt (2006).

The Committee on Town History's book account provided the funding for the project from the profits generated from the sale of the Town's five history books in print — three volumes of the Narrative History of Cohasset and two anthologies.

The latest book to the Cohasset History collection, as well as the Town's other history books, is available for sale at the Town Clerk's Office in Town Hall, the Cohasset Historical Society and Buttonwood Books. The price is $15.

There are six books on Cohasset history available. The books are for sale at the Town Clerk's Office in Town Hall, the Cohasset Historical Society and Buttonwood Books.

Treat's Pond update, Army Corps communiqué

The town has received a response to several questions they had sent to the Army Corps of Engineers regarding their proposed Treat's Pond saltmarsh restoration project. The town has asked about the impact of freshwater discharges into Cohasset Harbor from Treat's Pond, if a pipe connection was established if the project moved forward.

The town has asked about the impact of freshwater discharges into Cohasset Harbor from Treat's Pond, if a pipe connection was established if the project moved forward.

One of the proposals is to install a pipe underneath Atlantic Avenue and over some private property to outfall into the inner harbor.

In a letter, John Kennelly, Chief of Planning for the Army Corps, stated "if Treat's Pond were to become a salt water ecosystem, there would be very little difference in the salinity of the pond's discharge during dry weather conditions."

Kennelly said in wet weather the difference in salinity would be negligible. The conclusions were based on modeling and "reasonable assumptions about how freshwater would dilute the harbor based on modeling results."

Selectman Karen Quigley expressed concern about the Army Corps' methods in regard to this question, "they only used modeling, not testing. I'd like to have further discussion on that going forward."

The Army Corps also gave the town the lot numbers for privately owned parcels the town would have to get permanent easements to do the project.

"I'm sure right after Town Meeting we'll be back (on the Treat's Pond issue)," said Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr. He quipped, "it's the gift that keeps on giving."

Cohasset receives state fire grants

Sen. Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) and Rep. Garrett Bradley (D-Hingham) announce that the Town of Cohasset has been awarded $8,960.62 worth of grants from the state Department of Fire Services.

The Town of Cohasset will receive a $5,296 grant for the purchase of firefighting equipment and a $3,664.62 Student Awareness of Fire Education (SAFE) Program grant.

The firefighting equipment grants can be put toward the purchase of a variety of items including air packs, gear, and hoses. The SAFE program grant allows fire departments to spend time inside of classrooms teaching students about fire dangers and how to respond to in the case of a fire emergency.

"A well-equipped fire department and an educated public are two of the best defenses town's have in preventing fire disasters," Sen. Hedlund said.

"As a legislator these are the kinds of state programs that are a high priority for me and that are critical for all communities" said Rep. Bradley. "Thanks to Governor Patrick, Secretary of Public Safety and Security, Kevin Burke, and Legislators for their continued support of our firefighters and citizens."

The Board of Selectmen, acting as liquor license authority, approved an application transferring the wine and malt liquor license from the former Pizza Zone to 3A Pizza and Grille.

Kathleen Assad will serve as the restaurant's manager; Roshby Assad is the restaurant owner. 3A Pizza and Grill is located at 166 King St. in the same plaza as Good Sport.

Counseling center turns lives in New Directions

By Maureen Walsh
CORRESPONDENT

This is the third in a series of articles highlighting the work of Interfaith Social Services, this year's beneficiary of your donations to the "Gifts of Hope" campaign.

You've lost your job, your health, or your mother. You can't stop drinking, yelling, or crying. You're worried about your marriage, your teenager, or your unpaid bills. You're angry, tired or sad and you don't know why. You need something, but you don't know what.

"The hardest thing to do is to pick up the phone and make the first call," says Claire Hagan, director of the New Directions Counseling Center at Interfaith Social Services.

"We recognize that. Try to take that first step. It's not scary. This is a very safe, comfortable place to come."

For more than 60 years, the professional counselors at Interfaith Social Services have been helping children, adults, couples and families cope with a range of issues and emotions and seek a new direction in life.

"Many of the people who come to us have an underlying issue that we can help with," said ISS director Laura Stracco. "The cycle of poverty, domestic violence, drug or alcohol abuse, low self-esteem or a lack of self-confidence: We can help them break through what's been hurting them, so they can make it to the next step."

Interfaith Social Services is a private, nonprofit agency that aids the people of 10 South Shore communities: Braintree, Cohasset. Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

From its offices at 105 Adams Street in Quincy, ISS provides food, clothing, and financial management assistance to individuals and families in need.

There is no residency or income requirement for the New Directions Counseling Center.

The center accepts Medicaid and most insurance plans, and is one of the few mental health services in the Boston area to offer a sliding fee scale for clients in need or without insurance.

"We do not turn anyone away. We take everybody who calls," said Hagan. "Our clients are from all walks of life."

Give the Gift of Hope

The season of giving is upon us. For 16 years Community Newspaper Company's Gifts of Hope program has helped connect you to those in need in your own community. Each year, a local charity is selected to be the beneficiary of the Gifts of Hope donation campaign. And each year, your generous donations have helped feed the hungry, shelter the homeless and bring joy to the faces of young children across Massachusetts.

How can you help this year? Please join your local Community Newspaper in supporting Interfaith Social Services in its efforts to help those in need this holiday season. A donation of any size goes a long way.

Make your tax deductible check or money order payable to Interfaith Social Services. Mail to: Gift of Hope Program; c/o Anne Rodwell; Community Newspaper Company; 165 Enterprise Drive; Marshfield, MA 02050.

In addition to your Gifts of Hope donation, you can drop off food and unwrapped children's gifts for the Interfaith Social Services Pantry Shelf and Adopt-a-Family programs at the ISS offices weekdays, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., or call 617-773-6203, ext. 19, for alternate arrangements.

Please check toys for safety before donating. Food items must be nonperishable. No expired date, damaged or open container are accepted.. For donations of fresh, refrigerated or frozen foods, call 617-773-6203 ext. 19.

"We get referrals for people who can't get an appointment fast enough at other places. We will call back within 24 hours and see them within one week."

The seven counselors on staff, one male and six female, are all professionally trained and licensed clinical mental health counselors, licensed clinical social workers or master's level therapists, she said, and have nearly 200 years of combined counseling experience.

"They are competent and compassionate, and they will go that extra bit to make everything homey and comfortable."

New Directions therapists have specialties in many areas, including trauma and abuse, parenting and relationships, loss and bereavement, addictions and recovery, life change and elder issues, anxiety and depression.

The center is one of the few to offer Christian counseling to clients seeking Bible-based spirituality interwoven with traditional counseling.

New Directions also offers periodic educational support groups directed by a therapist for clients dealing with bereavement, parenting or anger management issues.

"Sometimes people don't know why they're calling," said Hagan, who makes the first contacts by phone and matches clients with the therapist best suited to help them.

"People are sometimes surprised by the emotions that can be expressed, and they may be surprised by the relief that comes. They don't understand why, they just know they feel better."

Stracco said the counseling center has helped ISS clients overcome addictions, reconcile with family members, go back to school, find successful jobs, move from shelters to their own homes, and enjoy being parents, knowing they are not repeating the cycle of violence they may themselves have experienced as children.

"They may have grown up with no mentors or role models," she said. "Our counselors may offer the first genuine, trusting relationships they've ever experienced."

CHRISTMAS ANGELS

The Christmas Angel Program began six years ago. Each holiday season, gift bags filled with goodies are given to Cohasset seniors who have no family, live alone, or are in long-term care facilities. The program has grown by leaps and bounds. This year, the teachers from the Osgood School sent 10 baskets, the Social Service League made up 20 of the bags (shown in foreground) and the Second Congregational Church is also participating and has included Elder Affairs as part of their Christmas Angel Giving Tree. Pictured are Elder Affairs outreach director Carol Barrett, Social Service League president Marita Carpenter and vice president Sandra Halverson.

Cohasset Day gives back

CEF, Elder Affairs and Pantry recipients of donations

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"We were just delighted to give that kind of money, it is a significant amount of money for each charity."
— Pete Brown, Economic Development Committee

Although Cohasset Day is the rearview mirror for the many residents who enjoyed the day's festivities, three local non-profits were recently reminded how the event brought Cohasset together in more ways than one.

A check, each for just under $2,300, was offered recently to the Cohasset Food Pantry, the Cohasset Education Foundation and the Cohasset Elder Affairs. At this time of year and perhaps especially this year, the donation was warmly received by each of the organizations.

The first-ever Cohasset Day took place on Saturday, Sept. 20 and raised in excess of $30,000 in gross proceeds and in-kind donations (money raised before expenses).

"The Economic Development Committee, in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce, is pleased with the result of Cohasset. Our proceeds exceeded $12,000," said Pete Brown, chairman of the Economic Development Committee.

Brown was especially proud of the number and amount of funds generated in sponsorships from local businesses, as well as the robust turnout of attendees. Being able to support three local non-profits was simply icing on the cake.

"We were just delighted to give that kind of money, it is a significant amount of money for each charity," said Brown. "We provided money to the organizations that we thought would benefit those most in need."

It took discussions over three meetings to decide on the charities the event would support. The charities were chosen prior to the event and listed in the schedule of events distributed on Cohasset Day.

"It really is a wonderful donation for us. It signifies recognition from the business community as well as the town the importance of excellence in our public schools," said John Englander, president of the Cohasset Education Foundation.

The CEF board is still hammering out how the donation will be utilized, they expect to put the money to good use in the schools by early next year. One of the possibilities is to help purchase additional supplies for the recently build STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) lab at Deer Hill, which the CEF funded.

Margie Steele, chairwomen of the Cohasset Food Pantry, noted the town's overall generosity this season.

"It's wonderful, the town is just wonderful with us. From the young to the old, everybody is doing so much for us," said Steele. Unlike other food pantries in the area, the Cohasset Food Pantry's shelves are stocked.

"Our food pantry is just packed, we're very fortunate. We're going to have enough for all our clients," said Steele. The food pantry serves roughly 20 clients at any one time.

Both the Food Pantry and Elder Affairs also received $500 in Stop and Shop gift cards.

At Elder Affairs, director Linda Ellworthy has already put to good use the funds received from Cohasset Day organizers.

Several of the gift cards were used to purchase items for a bag lunch seniors took along to a Christmas concert at Massasoit Community College. Others were used to help defray the cost of Wednesday's Christmas feast for 53 seniors.

"The rest are for Carol Barrett (outreach director for Elder Affairs) to distribute to seniors who are having difficulty making ends meet. The money will be used to help seniors with fuel and to enable Elder Affairs to continue paying our food shopping escort drivers a modest stipend when the funding is spent," Ellworthy said.

The EDC will begin in earnest the 2009 Cohasset Day planning come January.

"For a first time event we were very pleased," said Brown. "This event established a strong mutual relationship between the Chamber of Commerce and the EDC. We're looking forward to working with them with Cohasset Day and other efforts."

In fact, $500 of the Cohasset Day monies went toward the Chamber's Annual Village Holiday Stroll event this past Saturday.

Preliminary discussions and suggestions have already set into motion some tweaks to the Cohasset Day program. They plan on expanding the food portion of the event, changing the schedule to end a bit earlier, expanding the car parade and generally improving all the elements the went into creating the atmosphere for Cohasset Day.

"The result was beyond our dreams for our first year event and, on top of it all, everyone had a great time," said Brown.

The EDC set aside a sum of money for the 2009 Cohasset Day. "This year we started with nothing, next year at least we'll have something," said Brown.

The date for Cohasset Day has already been set for Saturday, Sept. 12 (a change from the date given at Special Town Meeting).

From the Archives of the Cohasset Historical Society

The Cohasset Historical Society was pleased to have a presence on Saturday for the Cohasset Village Stroll. Because our village museums are seasonal and open from June until September, we are grateful to Stacy Cuddy, owner of Hernan Salon for providing space in her window for a mini-exhibit.

Our beautiful children's mannequins are part of our Christmas exhibit of French designer creations from the late 1800s and early 1900s. Please stop by the Pratt Building at 106 South Main St., Monday-Friday, 10 to 4, to see the rest of these exquisite fashions.

If you have enjoyed reading our columns and discovering some of what we hold in our archives, please consider supporting the Historical Society. Your tax-deductible donation can be sent to: Cohasset Historical Society, PO Box 627, Cohasset, MA 02025. All donations are gratefully appreciated.

If you have something that you would consider donating to our archives please give us a call at 781-383-1434.

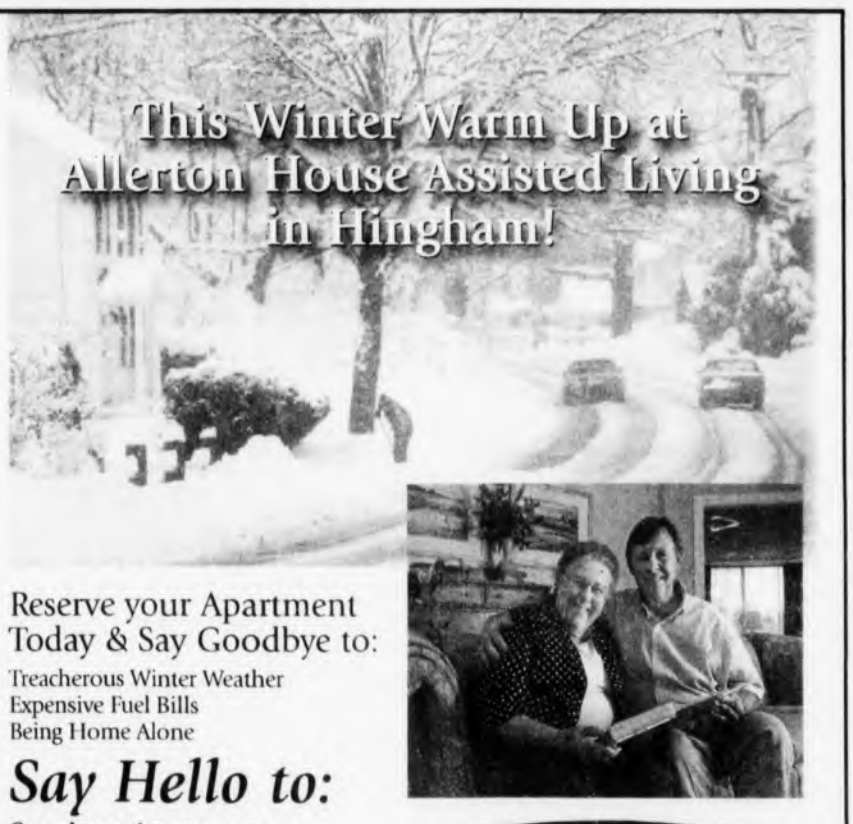
There is a Laser way to treat severe gum disease without cutting or stitches



Introducing

Laser Periodontal Therapy™

Finally, there's good news for those of you who suffer from gum disease (gingivitis and periodontitis). We now offer an exciting laser based technique for treatment of periodontal disease called Laser Periodontal Therapy™. Through the use of the Millennium Dental Technologies, Inc. PerioLase® Laser, designed especially for Laser Periodontal Therapy™, we can treat your moderate to severe gum disease and you can quickly return to your normal routine!

There's no incision (scalpel) and no stitches (sutures). Discomfort is greatly reduced, often there is not any pain at all. You heal naturally with full retention of your gums. Local area dentist Dr. Michael Thomas is fully trained and licensed to perform Laser Periodontal Therapy™, an FDA cleared and patented laser gum therapy that greatly reduces the pain and recovery time associated with traditional gum surgery. Dr. Thomas is the only dentist in the South Shore area using the PerioLase MVP-7, the first ever digital dental laser with FDA approval for use in the treatment of gum disease. If you suffer from tender, red, swollen, bleeding gums, or have been told you need periodontal surgery to treat gum disease, call us today for an appointment to evaluate your condition and see what a difference the laser treatment can make for you.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

Silver lining

Economic forecasts – globally, nationally, regionally and locally – are looking bleak.

Fiscal 2010, which starts July 1, is not going to be pretty.

Next door in Hingham, the selectmen announced this week that anticipated revenue for that town could fall millions of dollars short of the budget requests submitted as of Dec. 10.

The news is unlikely to be good here in Cohasset as the fiscal 2010 budget season begins in earnest in the weeks ahead.

We can take some solace that we are not alone.

But we can take greater comfort that Cohasset has an abundance of creative, energetic and talented residents on its town boards and committees who will surely roll their sleeves up and get down to business. The town can also tap the expertise of residents who are not currently serving in any official capacity.

We are going to have to band together and come up with ideas that can try to keep town services and the schools in tact.

There will be no easy answers. The fiscal picture could be worse than most of us have experienced in our lifetimes.

We were encouraged this week by remarks made by Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr, who said infrastructure, deferred maintenance and public safety projects in the queue for Cohasset could qualify for federal aid as part of the anticipated stimulus bill.

He said smaller projects that are permitted could go to the top of the list. The Jerusalem Road repair project, Jacob's Meadow culvert project, even the Town Hall restoration project could be candidates.

"We should be getting ready so we could have the opportunity (to get funding)…that is debt we don't have to take on," Carr said this week. The federal stimulus package, he noted, will not look at a town's wealth in its evaluation, because the purpose is to get people to work and stimulate the economy.

Selectman Karen Quigley said one of the reasons she ran the office is that she found as a whole Cohasset tended to be "reactive." Her hope was to move toward a proactive attitude when addressing the issues facing the town.

Although the selectmen's goal-setting session was not necessarily geared toward the economy – being "proactive" in the current climate is going to be more important than ever.

We all hope and pray the dark economic clouds – and potential storm brewing – would just go away.

Therefore, just for starters, our wish list for Santa this year would be for the stock market to turn around, the American automobile industry to rebound, and the housing industry to get back on its feet.

More realistic hopes are, however, for wisdom, creative thinking, and a spirit of togetherness – to get us through.

We believe there is always a silver lining. Cohasset is more fortunate than most towns and we are grateful for that.

MEETINGS

The following meetings are posted at Town Hall:

Capital Budget Committee, Jan. 6, 20, 27 and Feb. 3, 24, all at 7:30 p.m.
Conservation Commission, Jan. 8, 7 p.m.
Osgood School Council, Jan. 8, 3:30 p.m. at Osgood.
School Improvement, Feb. 4 at 2:30 p.m. at the Cohasset Middle High School.
Selectmen, Jan. 5, 7 p.m.
ZBA, Jan. 6, 8;30 p.m.
All meetings take place at Town Hall unless otherwise noted. Call the Town Clerk's office at 781-383-4100 for updates and additions.

Nomination papers for Town Election

Nomination papers for the Annual Town Election for 2009 will be available on Wednesday, Jan. 7 at the Town Clerk's Office. The last day to take out nomination papers will be Thursday, Feb.12 and the last day to register to vote is March 6. In order to hold an elected office, you must be a registered voter of the town. Please note that you are not running for office until you take out papers and the Board of Registrars certifies your signatures.

Positions available for the 2009 town election:

- Selectmen — ONE for three years
- School Committee — TWO for three years
- Trustees Paul Pratt Memorial Library — THREE for three years
- Assessor—ONE for three years
- Board of Health — ONE for three years
- Cohasset Housing Authority ONE for five years
- Planning Board — ONE for five years
- Recreation Commission — ONE for five years
- Sewer Commission — ONE for three years
- Water Commission — ONE for three years

Early deadline next week

Due to the Christmas holiday, the Cohasset Mariner will go to press on Wednesday, which is a day early next week. That means that all editorial copy and photographs must arrive by noon, Tuesday. Email Mary Ford at mford@cnc.com with questions.

However, the Cohasset Mariner will still arrive in your mailboxes and on the newsstands on Friday, Dec. 26.

For breaking news, videos and photo galleries, check out our web site at: www.wickedlocal.com/Cohasset

Merry Christmas!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Little Harbor pollution concerns

TO THE EDITOR:

After reading "Making Tracks" last week, does anyone see the incongruity of the activities around Little Harbor?

We are installing miles of sewer pipes with the thought of keeping pollution out of the Harbor and now we are possibly adding more petroleum laden street runoff into the Harbor with "This week major drainage was being placed on Joy Place adjacent to Central Cemetery. This system will drain North Main Street from approximately Green Street to Sohier Street and send the water down Joy Place to Little Harbor, just beyond the cemetery."

I know there are already storm drains going into the Harbor, however, I believe we are owed an explanation as to how yet another storm drain will not affect the Harbor.

I have lived on Little Harbor over 30 years and have seen many changes in the Harbor, both good and bad, and I sincerely hope that someone will be observant and document the changes in Little Harbor in the future. Some of these changes are subtle but potentially important.

Remembering veterans

TO THE EDITOR:

I visited Town Hall this summer to buy my beach sticker and found Korean War veteran David Strout's youthful picture among other veterans whose lives were lost in defense of the liberties we often take for granted. David Strout's memorial is located just outside of our home. I have come to call David's memorial site mine to care for. He is family.

If you live near a war memorial, would you please consider caring for and decorating it in their honor? Honor is the word I had printed on the ribbon decorating the greens I placed under David Strout's name. Honor. It's true. I do.

Heartfelt appreciation

This letter was addressed to Chairman Edwin Carr, Cohasset Town Hall.

Dear Chairman Carr:

On behalf of the family of John Clasby and the Hull Fire Department I would like to take this opportunity to thank the members of the Cohasset Fire and Police departments for their assistance during the funeral of Firefighter John Clasby on Nov. 17, 2008.

There are no words that can be expressed to acknowledge the loss of a fallen brother. The cooperation extended by all the public safety agencies will be forever remembered.

POLITICAL NOTES

Hedlund criticizes 'sham' 40B hearing

A little-publicized public hearing on recent changes to Chapter 40B guidelines is the latest move by state housing officials that demonstrates their lack of interest in working with affected communities and their elected officials, Sen. Robert Hedlund said recently.

"Considering the amount of negative attention DHCD and 40B has received in recent months, I am stunned that they would make such little effort to publicize this hearing," Hedlund said. "I can only assume that they simply were uninterested in hearing any statements that attempts to shed additional light on the fact that 40B is a horribly mismanaged and ineffective program that benefits developers more than it does low-income homebuyers."

Notice of the hearing was given in the form of small-type legal notices in select newspapers, and a brief link tucked away on a little-visited Department of Housing and Community Development Web site. The hearing was not included on the weekly list of events kept by State House News Service, which is considered by most to be the unofficial keeper of the Massachusetts political calendar. It was only through a chance conversation that Hedlund found out about the hearing 36 hours prior to its start.

"That DHCD didn't even notify the members of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Housing is appalling and borderline insulting," said Hedlund, who is the ranking minority party member of that committee, as well as the driving force behind October's Senate Post Audit and Oversight Committee hearing on 40B abuses.

Due to the lack of publicity, the meeting was less than an hour long. The only people who spoke were pro-40B developers, attorneys and advocates.

Hedlund, however, did submit written testimony to DHCD asking that the agency make a number of changes that he felt would bring a level fairness and accountability to the program. These changes include requiring developers to submit actual expense records during their cost certification review, amending definitions that allow developers to build more dense projects while handcuffing the ability of local zoning boards to scale back outrageously large proposals, and giving communities more time to increase its affordable housing inventory.

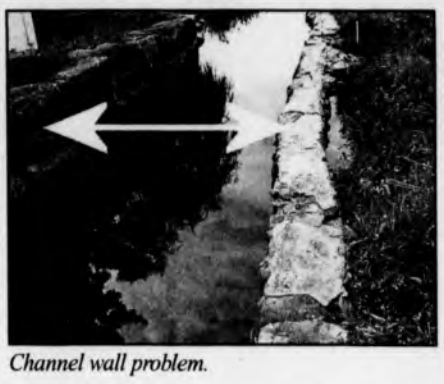
A tutorial on grinder pumps

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN



Little Harbor Project – We had several calls over the past month asking about the black pipes that can be seen occasionally rising from the ground around the Little Harbor Sewer Project area. But, to explain these pipes we will have to step back and review a little bit of background.

As you probably know, the little Harbor Sewer System and the North Cohasset sewer system differ considerably from the older central sewer system in the village center. The central sewer is a gravity system, where good old gravity is able to generate the flow of effluent from homes to the sewer plant. The two newer systems are low pressure pumped systems. In these newer systems, due to all of the hills and ledge, it is not economically feasible to maintain a constant slope in the pipes so the force of gravity can effectively do the pumping work. Instead, each home will have a pump to force the sewage effluent on its way to the sewer plant. (Actually, the pumps are properly called grinder pumps because not only do they pump the effluent, but they homogenize the sewage into slurry that can be pumped. Who knew?)

Now, moving on with our background explanation, as the slurry is being pumped up and down over hill and through dale, it is likely that there will be air entrained in the slurry and can separate from it. As the sewer pipes go up and down, this air will get trapped at the high spots in the pipe. The air can potentially reduce the flow and in some instances, stop it altogether. The trapped air is like vapor lock in an automotive fuel line, where no fuel can get past the air blockage to the engine and the engine won't start. That's not a good thing.

Consequently, equipment has been added periodically to bleed and vent the air out of the sewer lines into the atmosphere. This is done by installing precast concrete structures with manholes over the sewer line with special air purge valves connected to the sewer line that allow the trapped air to be released. The air is released into the underground structure and then it is vented to the atmosphere through a vent pipe.

The diagram shows both the above and below ground view of the manhole and the air separating valves. As you can see, most of the structure and equipment is below ground. Only the vent pipe, on the left side of the diagram, and the manhole used to maintain the equipment are visible above the ground. Some residents have asked if the vent pipes can be relocated further away from their property. Unfortunately, the answer is that there is very little flexibility in the vent pipe location. The air vent equipment needs to be located at points where air is likely to accumulate and must be in close proximity to the vent valves. The engineers have tried to locate the pipes to minimize their visual impact. If possible, they will be located near a telephone pole so that the pole somewhat masks their vertical stature. We might also mention that each of these vent pipes will be topped with an odor scrubber whose function it is to clean up the smell of any noxious gasses that may happen to escape along with the air.

Switching gears, last week's rains really messed up several of the areas where the sewer trenches had been backfilled, but not patched with asphalt. It has been customary for the contractor to do trench patching each Friday so that the work areas that are complete will be passable by the weekend. When rains like the gulley washer of last Friday happen, it's pretty obvious that the paving can't be done. Instead, the heavy rains turn the unpaved areas into puddleville. If the unpaved area is on a hill, the trench gravel is washed away by the torrential rains leaving miniature renditions of the Grand Canyon behind in the roadway. Friday, our phone rang off the hook with residents pointing out the damage wreaked by the rains. The project contractor did yeoman's service trying to patch things up. Monday of this week was projected to be the only decent weather day this week, so everyone was scrambling with our paving contractor to get a couple of private lanes base-coated and lots of patching done.

Jacobs Meadow Outfall Project – As we have reviewed before, the small Jacobs Meadow outfall channel next to the Legion building on Border Street is threatening to collapse. In the last 14 months the area shown in the photo by the arrow has moved to further narrow the channel by 5 inches. On Tuesday of this week, the DPW had to go down to the channel and break up a thin piece of concrete that had come loose from the wall so it would not clog the channel. Should this channel substantially collapse, the storm water collected in Jacobs Meadow from Lower King Street to the north, to as far south as Castle Lane would not be able to drain into the harbor effectively. This could cause serious flooding in the center village area.

This fall, Town Meeting approved the funds for the channel reconstruction. Before the project can go out for bid, we need to receive the blessing of numerous environmental regulatory bodies, both state and federal. The project has now passed muster with the Cohasset Conservation Commission and the State Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). Our engineers are currently preparing for a hearing with the Army Corps of Engineers (ACOE) in January of 2009. This meeting will be a joint meeting between the ACOE and other state and federal agencies. The concept of a joint meeting is a real time saver in the environmental permitting process, in that numerous agencies all review the project at the same time. It is very helpful in this process that the Town has spent significant efforts working with those near the project for their input as well as keeping the various regulatory agencies up to date regarding our plans as they progressed.

Finally, this will be our last article until after the New Year so, have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

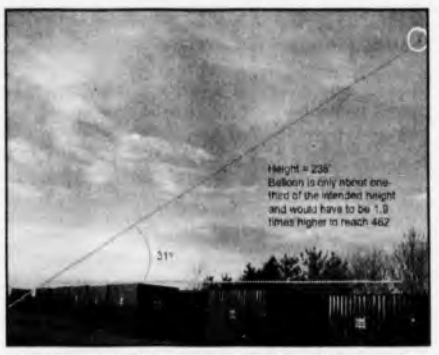
Test flawed, but still raises concerns

COMMENTARY



SHIELDS DAY

The balloon test this weekend to demonstrate the height of the proposed wind turbines was clearly flawed due to the high winds and poor engineering, simulating heights that were typically only one-third to one-half the actual anticipated height of the turbines. Even with these flaws, some conclusions (some obvious, others a bit surprising) could still be easily drawn by a quick drive around town:

- The turbines will be plainly visible from as far away as Sandy Beach
- As anticipated, the turbines would loom over Sunrise and Avalon and the neighborhoods of Fairoaks, Rose Hill, Rocky Lane, North Main Street, Forest Ave, Cedar Street, etc. as they soar well above the tree line
- The bright skies and wind directions made it painfully clear how intense the shadow flicker will be this time of year (with the sun low on the horizon) for many of the direct abutters as well as those much further away

- With the wind on Sunday, the balloon was perched directly over Hingham Lumber, showing how one of the turbines could fall right on top of it, its employees and its customers!
- The gateway to Cohasset would consist of two massive industrial structures – probably not the image most of us want to welcome our family and friends

As flawed as this test was, and maybe even misleading to many, it sent a clear message: turbines of this scale are not appropriate for Cohasset, and are not fair to impose on its citizens. Rather than asking the developer to spend more money proving his case, the planning board should first rule on all the fatal flaws of the project that by any objective measure would terminate it.

HEALTH NOTES

Keeping pets safe this winter

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Hold the presses! The Commonwealth of Massachusetts Executive Office of Public Safety and Security Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency, MEMA for short has just issued a bulletin: MEMA's Pet Safety Tips For The Winter Months – as if they don't have enough to do. If this came out two weeks before Christmas, it'll be interesting to see what they are going to do about Santa Claus, his sleigh and reindeer next week. But lest the Board of Health be called spoilsports or anti emergency management or something, we include substantially the entire text forthwith in hopes of preparing you for the strange weather we'll probably be having. MEMA goes on to say:

"As the harsh winter months settles in, it is important that you think about keeping your pets safe from all of the dangers that the season can present," stated Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency Director Don Boyce. "MEMA offers some tips to help insure your pet's safety."

• Do not leave your pet outdoors when temperatures drop below freezing.

Dogs need outdoor exercise, but take care not to keep them outdoors for lengthy periods of time during very cold weather. Short-coated dogs may feel more comfortable wearing a sweater during walks. Dogs and cats are safer indoors during all sorts of extreme weather.

• Wind-chill is a threat to pets, even those protected by shelters.

Outdoor dogs must be protected by a dry, draft-free doghouse that is large enough to allow the dog to both sit and lie down comfortably, but small enough to retain body heat. The floor should be elevated a few inches off the ground and covered with cedar shavings or straw. The entrance of the doghouse should be turned to face away from prevailing winds, and the entrance should be covered with a flap of heavy waterproof fabric or heavy plastic.

• Pets who spend a greater amount of time outdoors in the winter need more food.

Maintaining warmth depletes energy. Routinely check your pet's water dish to ensure the water is fresh and not frozen. To prevent your pet's tongue from freezing to their feeding or drinking bowl, plastic, rather than metal food and water bowls is preferred.

• Be leery of frozen bodies of water.

Always keep your pets on a leash when walking them near suspected frozen bodies of water. The ice may not be sturdy enough to support your pet. If a pet falls through the ice, do not attempt to rescue your pet yourself; go for help.

• Antifreeze and de-icing chemicals can be hazardous.

Antifreeze has a sweet taste that can attract animals. Always store antifreeze out of reach and clean up spills. Antifreeze made with propylene glycol can actually be swallowed in small amounts and not injure pets, wildlife or humans. De-icing chemicals, including salt, can irritate the pads of your pet's feet. Wipe your pet's feet with a damp towel after coming indoors, even if salt on sidewalks is not visible.

• Warm automobile engines are dangerous for cats and small wildlife.

Parked vehicles can attract small animals, which may crawl under the hood seeking warmth. To avoid injuring hiding animals, bang on your car's hood to scare them off before starting your engine.

For additional information about keeping your pets safe, go to the State of Massachusetts Animal Response Team (SMART) website at: www.smart-mass.org.

The Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) is the state agency responsible for coordinating federal, state, local, voluntary and private resources during emergencies and disasters in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. MEMA provides leadership to: develop plans for effective response to all hazards, disasters or threats; train emergency personnel to protect the public; provide information to the citizenry; and assist individuals, families, businesses and communities to mitigate against, prepare for and respond to and recover from emergencies, both natural and man made. For additional information about MEMA and Winter Preparedness, go to: www.mass.gov/mema.

Cohasset and its pets have had a long and cordial relationship with MEMA's Region 4b that includes the greater Boston area as well as Weymouth and Hingham.

Small town corruption

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

My earliest recollections of government on the South Shore involve a Braintree selectman who went to jail for selling a job with the town and a mayor of Quincy who was ousted for some campaign shenanigans.

True, their sins never reached the proportions of Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich's alleged crime that placed a U. S. Senate seat on the auction block for what was said to be as much as a million dollars.

I first heard of John Smith during the summer of 1949 when I was working at a concession, which some say had a shady side of its own, in Paragon Park. Some still spoke nostalgically of him, like Bostonians speak of Jim Curley.

But they were an indication that corruption, however small, can happen anywhere.

Like even the little town of Hull, where John Smith — no, not the one whose name appears on motel registers everywhere — ruled for 33 years until his death in 1926, and whose influence lingered on in his "Citizens Association" for another 13 years.

I first heard of John Smith during the summer of 1949 when I was working at a concession, which some say had a shady side of its own, in Paragon Park. Some still spoke nostalgically of him, like Bostonians speak of Jim Curley.

Then I came across the book "Old Nantasket," the memoirs of Dr. William M. Bergan, the Hull dentist, onetime selectman and himself a member of Boss Smith's Citizens Association, which he called "The Old Ring."

"He was an imposing personality," wrote Bergan. "His family name was Schmidt and had been changed to Smith. He was of Prussian ancestry. He had a commanding military bearing. He was a natural-born leader."

Smith, who was the owner of the Nantasket Ice Company, controlled Hull by controlling the annual town meeting, which not only enacted the town bylaws but, until 1918, elected the town officers as well.

No bylaw was passed without Smith's approval. No one ran for public office either.

"Who the slate of candidates would be, and what was going to happen in the town meeting, would be all cut and dried in a meeting of a handful Smith's lieutenants in a smoke-filled hotel room," said Bergan.

"From the beginning of his reign, he always announced a month in advance of the town meeting exactly what the tax rate would be. He told the head of the departments … to fit into the tax rate he had previously announced."

No one spoke against a Smith article or candidate. "In the March 1904 town meeting, a citizen coughed and sneezed at the same time. They threw him out of the hall. They thought he had said something."

John F. "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald, the mayor of Boston and grandfather of a future president, who owned a summer home in Hull, once made the mistake of speaking out against Smith and The Old Ring.

The next day, a ditch five feet wide and seven feet deep was dug in front of his summer home and it remained there for the rest of the summer season. Not even the mayor of Boston had the clout to defy John Smith, the Boss of Hull.

'Our Town' to focus on Cohasset Conservation Trust

This week on "Our Town," viewers can watch a new show detailing the work of the Cohasset Conservation Trust. Co-host Mark DeGiacomo, a trustee with the group, sits down with fellow board members Debbie Shadd and Gary Vanderweil to discuss the efforts of the group to protect and preserve some of Cohasset's most beautiful landscape.

Co-host Pat Martin goes behind the camera to film the trustees touring and highlighting six of the 18 properties the trust maintains.

Tune in starting Monday, at 9 p.m., or Tuesday or Thursday, at 9 p.m., all on Comcast Channel 10.

A large weather balloon was floated at the proposed height of the tip of the blade of the proposed wind turbine. The turbines are proposed to be constructed next to the now capped Cohasset Heights landfill; the location is up on the hill behind the Graham Waste garage off Route 3A.

Charlie Gravel, owner of Atlantic Design Engineering, guides orange streamers off the ground on Saturday morning. The orange streamers were placed to show the low point of the proposed turbine's blades. The balloons were up all weekend and into Monday, but at times had be taken down due to wind and other weather concerns

A weather balloon is filled with helium before being floated high on the proposed siting for the Cohasset Heights wind turbine project. Two weather balloons (one for each turbine) were floated at the proposed height of the tip of the blade, then orange streamers at the height of the nacelle, or hub where the blades originate. The demonstration was designed to give the Planning Board, which is currently reviewing the project, a sense of the turbine's height.

—CONCERT REVIEW—

CHMS Winter Concert warmed the heart

By Kathryn Hillman
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

The Cohasset Middle School Winter Concert, which took place this past Wednesday (Dec. 10), featured the concert bands, chorus, and a concert repertoire ensemble, all under the direction of Mrs. Goldstein. Band members from the sixth grade played two numbers, including the highly original and amusing Concerto for Post and Pans, by Ralph Ford. The piece featured the drummers on pots for short solos throughout the song.

The sixth-grade band played with the seventh-and eighth-grade band in a piece titled Asturias, written by Issac Albeniz and arranged by Michael Story. The piece showcased each instrument very clearly. The seventh- and eighth- grade band played three songs, including December Sky written by Erik Morales. The piece characterized a cold, crisp December night. The writer got the inspiration from his daughter, and the band invoked this imagery beautifully.

The concert choir preformed a segment following the band. The sixth-grade chorus sang a piece called O Music written by Lowell Mason, who made music standard in public schools, and was arranged by Doreen Rao. The sixth-grade chorus also did Joshua Fit the Battle of Jericho, a traditional Spiritual arranged by Brad Printz. This mix of jazz and blues had everyone clapping along. The sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade choruses came together to sing The Journey, by Antonin Dvorak and arranged by Joseph Martin. The piece is an adaptation from Appalachian Spring's Quaker Hymn. The seventh- and eighth-grade chorus then sang a few songs, including the old-time favorite Winter Wonderland by Felix Bernard, with the audience singing along.

The final group to perform was the Concert Repertoire Ensemble. There were only five members: Joe Buckley, Julien Geyer, Robbie Hillman, Ben Buckley, and Ben Williams. The small group preformed four songs, offering plenty of room for solos. The first number, Bag O' Blues written by Bruce Pearson and arranged by C. Goldstein, featured a saxophone solo by Ben Williams. Country Gardens, a traditional English Folk Song, featured the three trumpet players, Julien Geyer, Ben Buckley, and Robbie Hillman. Andante by Handel, another classical piece, was played as a duet by Joe Buckley on the flute and Ben Williams on the saxophone. Both pieces were executed beautifully. For their final piece, the ensemble played the popular Viva La Vida by Coldplay and arranged by N. Goldstein. The audience enjoyed this piece in particular.

All three musical sections did an impressive job in the concert.

CHS gearing up for the holidays

LIFE AT CHS

LAUREN MACK

Hello everyone! Let me start off this week by saying that on Sunday it snowed, and by Wednesday, several students were spotted in the halls wearing flip-flops. Only in New England, right? Anyways, I apologize for any inconvenience that the absence of last week's article may have caused. I also hope that everyone made an effort to attend at least one of the recent performances of West Side Story! The cast was lucky enough to have several "superfans", or people who went to all three shows. Each performance was a solid one, and I give my regards to all those who worked hard in making the production phenomenal.

The high school has certainly been getting into the holiday spirit lately. Earlier this week, the International club and Art club teamed up to make special holiday decorations for the foreign language hallway. And last Friday, the band and chorus went on their annual Day Tour, in which the travel to places in the community, like Sunrise Assisted Living, Deer Hill, and Osgood, and perform various holiday songs that they have specially prepared for the season. In addition, the band and chorus hosted their annual winter concert this past Thursday where they performed this year's festival pieces in addition to some holiday classics.

This week's quote of the week comes from a woman who might be considered the "school mom" because she's the one we go to if we have a stomachache, headache, schoolache, or any other kind of ache that a student may be suffering from. Her name is Mrs. Judy Collins, and she is the school nurse. Often times, when I make my trips down to the nurse's office, I look into the little rooms with beds and wonder how often students visit the nurse to simply take naps. When presented with this question, Mrs. Collins responded that, "Kids don't come down here for naps, they come down for crackers. But I only give them to students when I'm in a good mood, because, in the end, it's all about me." Sure enough, shortly after this was stated, a student walked into the nurse's office and requested a small bag of oyster crackers. And with that, I leave you all to a wonderful weekend! Farvel!

CEF grant programs

Walk through any of the Cohasset schools and you can see the impact of CEF's fundraising efforts. The CEF's grant programs are made possible by you – families with an interest in fostering excellence in our schools through innovation and creativity in teaching.

Join CEF members this year by donating to their annual donor campaign, which is currently under way. And look forward to upcoming events including the Annual Spring Benefit and the Children's Spelling Bee for grades two through five. And, don't forget to participate in the CEF's Teacher Appreciation Program, "Extra Credit" this holiday season!

IT'S HAPPENING

Christmas Pageant

Cappella Clausura and Creationdance will present a joint Christmas performance titled "Gloria: A Renaissance Christmas Pageant," featuring music ranging from medieval to modern, as well as costumed performers, dance and giant puppetry. The concert will be at 4 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 21, at First Parish Cohasset Parish House, 23 North Main St. Admission will be $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children.

In a different sort of Christmas pageant, suited to the entire family, Cappella Clausura, directed by Amelia LeClair, joins with Creationdance, directed by Helena Froehlich, to create a foray into the variety of music written to celebrate the mother of God and the birth of her son. For this concert of music and dance, Cappella Clausura has chosen works from its repertory of medieval, Renaissance, baroque and modern music, including works by Hildegard von Bingen and Patricia Van Ness. In keeping with the mission of Cappella Clausura, all the music is composed by women composers from throughout the centuries. All this will be topped off with some lively laude, or processional hymns, from 14th century Florence, which the audience is invited to sing with the cast. Froehlich and company will provide the choreography, costumes and puppetry as Cappella Clausura sings the Christmas story all the way from Gabriel to the visit of the Magi.

For more information about the concert, call Allegra Martin at 617-872-0461.

Cohasset Girls Varsity Basketball Team Player Sammi Lehr, who is also League All-Sstar and Fox Player of the year, happily checks out her new Championship ring.

Girls basketball season underway

Veteran team posts first win

By Susan Franklin

Sunday was a special day in the High School Gymnasium. The defending State Champion girls varsity basketball team was suited up and ready to kick off the season against Dorchester. An eager crowd filled of proud parents, supportive townspeople and younger players, who regard this successful squad with awe, lined the stands.

A ceremony preceded the contest where a championship banner was raised. Each player and their coaches were recognized for their accomplishments in the 2007 season and presented with a ring commemorating their championship win.

The ring has a blue stone and the band is decorated with meaningful symbols of their school, themselves and their championship win. An image of a Skipper graces the band along with the letter "C" for Cohasset as well as the year and the player's number. Each ring was engraved with a personal message, which in some cases included the score of the championship win or the first initial of each player.

The girls Varsity Basketball team and their coaches received their championship rings before the start of Saturday's game against Dorchester High School.

Coach John LeVangie addressed the crowd, announcing each of his players and fellow coaches and presenting them with their ring. He said that "this is not just about basketball, but about life" and the young women on this team understand what he means. The journey to a championship is an arduous one, albeit the reward is well worth the hard work and emotional challenges it takes to get there. In addition to the obvious life lessons about winning and losing, these players are a group of talented individuals who became a formidable team. They understand hard work and dedication. They respect leadership and know that succeeding in this fast paced game means testing your limits and trusting one another.

A ring was presented by Coach LeVangie to the wife and two sons of his life long friend Dick Milner who passed away shortly

New sports guy frozen, but happy to be here

POPPIN' OFF

WILLIAM WASSERSUG

It's nice to be home.

Nice and cold.

Very, very cold, or at least it feels like it after living by the Magical little place in Central Florida for the past two years, playing with giant mice, princesses and pirates, with a little football tossed in for fun.

But now I'm back near where I grew up with an opportunity to be a part of the local sports scene as the new sports editor of the Norwell Mariner, Cohasset Mariner, Scituate Mariner and the Pembroke Mariner & Reporter.

I'm shivering, but excited to be back.

Some of you may remember my name from about five or six years back when I was writing and taking photos for these same papers.

This time I hope to do that and more. Much more. I want to bring sports to life, from the little ones just learning to play, to the high schoolers, to the hometown hero making it big in The Show, or even the guys and ladies just out there playing for fun.

I've been there.

Through the years I've covered just about every sport at some point, with the possible exception of Ninja Warrior, which is by the way, highly entertaining and a true sport.

I've been a player, coach, media and a fan, and see the games from all of those angles.

That, of course can make it tough. Media objectivity, coach-speak, Monday morning quarterbacking and the famous 'I would have caught that' vision don't always mix.

Fortunately they do make for entertaining and balanced stories, unless we're taking about the Red Sox, where fan-guy usually leads the way at the mouth and the keyboard.

I've been a player, coach, media and a fan, and see the games from all of those angles.

That was fun in October, living just a few hours from Tampa, where the bandwagon filled in the course of two weeks.

Just so you know me, here's a little rundown.

I grew up in Randolph, got cold, headed to The U (Miami) to warm up and water ski for the Hurricane Skiers. After that I was back in Randolph, where I started writing sports before I got cold again and spent the next 12 years in sunny California, writing sports for The Scout at Marine Corps Base Camp Pendleton.

Somehow, I then found myself back in Randolph, then New Hampshire, still writing sports. Then I got really, really cold and Cohasset's Robert Jones makes a hard drive to the basket during a game against East Bridgewater Tuesday.

Hoopsters down East Bridgewater

The Cohasset boys varsity basketball team opened the season Tuesday on the road in East Bridgewater.

The Skippers, under the new leadership of coach Bo Ruggiero, looked sharp and ready to play as they jumped out to a quick 10-2 lead on the way to a 65-50 victory.

Senior co-captains Danny Martin, Marcus Charles, John Sturino, along with junior Johnny Maher and sophomore Robert Jones were the starters.

Maher (9 points, 9 rebounds, 3 assists) scored the first points of the season when he picked up a loose ball knocked free by Jones (21 points, 7 steals) and layed it in for the hoop.

The Skippers stymied the Vikings as they applied full court pressure the entire game. In the first quarter the Vikings struggled and turned the ball over several times. Sturino (9 points, 5 rebounds) got the party started for Cohasset with the hot hand. As time was ticking off the clock, Jones took it to the arc and hit a three-pointer to put Cohasset on top 19-9 at the end of the first quarter.

The intensity maintained through the second quarter. Junior Kevin O'Connell and

First game jitters bite Skippers

Hockey team falls at Rockland

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

ROCKLAND - It was a case of first-night jitters for the Cohasset hockey team, and a case of a senior captain having a huge night for Rockland as the Bulldogs downed the Skippers 4-2 Monday night at the Rockland Ice Arena.

Rockland's Shawn Ryan notched a hat-trick to lead his squad, while Cohasset freshman Alex Evans potted his first career goal, a beautiful diving backhander off a rebound to goalie Matt Ingeno's right..

Cohasset (0-1) struck first with a goal from Conor Queenan with 10:16 left in the first period, but Rockland (1-1) turned the game around with a pair of goals eight seconds apart less than two minutes later.

Ryan netted the tying goal with a blast over Cohasset netminder Jonny Wade's right shoulder, and Brendan Hurley gave the Bulldogs a 2-1 lead with a long screen moments later.

"They had three guys break across the blue-line and they threw the puck on the net," Cohasset coach Bob Walsh said of the go-ahead goal. "Jonny was screened and couldn't see it, so he dropped down on his knees and the shot was up high."

Ryan gave the Bulldogs a 3-1 lead with 10:43 left in the second period, but the Skippers weren't giving up.

Down 3-1, Cohasset mounted a bit of a rally late in the period, peppering Ingeno with three solid shots, but none got through.

"Their goalie came up with big stops he needed," Walsh said. "We didn't take advantage of a few rebounds. It was a bit of firstafter last year's championship win. LeVangie credits Milner for helping him bring this team to victory. His presence on the sidelines had significant impact on the players and memories of him will long drive this team forward. LeVangie also recognized his wife who has ardently supported him in his passion for this game and this team.

The team had little trouble with their first contest posting a 75-15 win over Dorchester. The players seemed excited to be back on the floor and the magic that we all recall from last season began to show through almost immediately. They played with the style and intensity that in addition to the skill and performance, sets them apart. The crowd was behind their team all game enjoying the familiar excitement of watching them work. No doubt basketball is in the air again and the Skippers are ready to play and their fans are ready to cheer.

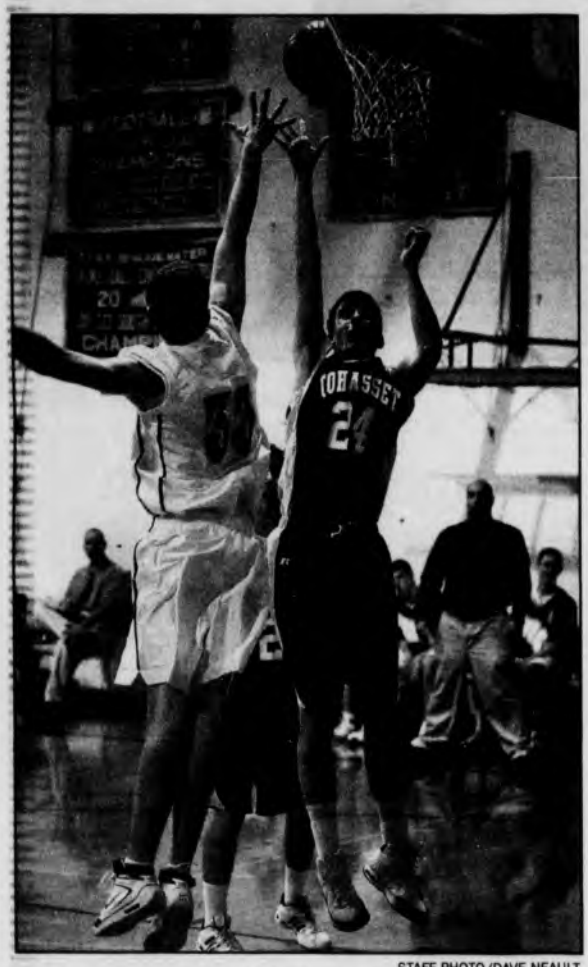
senior Owen Landon started the second half and provided good defense and great ball deflection.

Martin (14 points, 8 rebounds) was strong at the stripe, frequently getting hacked under the boards. Freshman Robbie Mahoney saw his first varsity action in the final moments of the quarter and was impressive under the offensive board, keeping the ball alive.

Cohasset led at the half 33-24 and was playing terrific team ball.

The Skippers came out flat in the third quarter, not getting second and third shot opportunities.

The Vikings were nailing their shots and at the end of the third, cut the lead to one, 39-40, outscoring Cohasset 15-7 in the quarter.



The beginning of the fourth quarter saw East Bridgewater take the lead on their opening possession.

Cohasset retaliated with a Jones trey, then a steal, where Jones fed Charles (11 points) for the bucket and a foul. Charles' foul shot put the Skippers up by six and they never looked back.

Cohasset outscored the Vikings 25-11 in the final frame.

"I'm pleased the team was able to win its first game of the season after working long and hard in the preseason," Ruggiero said. "Our guys deserved the win because of our work ethic. Our conditioning paid off in the fourth quarter after we went down by one and then both our mental and physical conditioning allowed us to pull away and win by 15. We showed a great deal of poise down the stretch. Next up is Carver, a very strong and tough team. They are undefeated at 3-0 and so we have some serious work cut out for us"

Cohasset travels to Carver tonight and opens at home on Monday, at 4:30 pm against Nantucket.

Sixth graders lose youth basketball opener

It was a game of two totally different halves with Cohasset outscoring Abington 16-14 in the second half; unfortunately, Abington outscored Cohasset 22-2 in the first half resulting in a 36 - 18 defeat.

The first half score, however did not justify the attempts Cohasset had at keeping this a close game. Cohasset's big men, Patrick Federle and Jack Chamberlain dominated the boards but the team's inability to handle Abington's pressure defense and convert some easy lay-ups, as well as 14 missed free throws left a hole too big to climb out of in the second half.

The second half brought some new life to the Cohasset offense as both Harry Seraikas and Federle found room underneath and were able to provide the finish the offense was missing in the first half.

With the offense beginning to find its groove, the defense turned up the pressure and Abington started turning the ball over thanks to some great hustle from Cole Morrison, Teddy Craven, Tanner Gildea and Jack Hoffman.

The end result might not have been in Cohasset's favor but their willingness to compete like they did in the second half promises to bring positive results in the near future. Next up is a road trip to Silver Lake and then Hull in Cohasset on Sunday morning at 11:00am.

Eighth graders fall to Abington

Cohasset's eighth grade boys traveled to the Weymouth Naval Base for an afternoon tilt with perennial league power Abington. With only eight healthy players in uniform the Cohasset squad fought the talented Green Wave right down to the last few minutes before succumbing to their relentless opponent 48-36. Abington, thanks to some excellent outside shooting against Cohasset's zone defense, built an 8 point lead at halftime.

The second half began with Cohasset applying man-to-man pressure resulting in numerous turnovers, allowing Christian Davis, Shane Haggerty and Colin Gideon-Murphy to utilize their speed and convert numerous lay-ups. The short handed Cohasset squad ran out of gas late in the game, again relying on multiple three point attempts which resulted in many long rebounds and fast breaks for Abington which pulled away in the final minutes of the game.

Despite the outcome, Cohasset played with much more energy and determination than the previous week.

Davis and Haggerty attacked the hoop resulting in more free throw attempts, Gideon-Murphy's hustle forced turnovers and Conor Dooley was able to box out and get the rebounds underneath.

Cohasset looks forward to next week's games against Silver Lake on Saturday night in Halifax and a Sunday afternoon match at the Cohasset Middle High School against arch rival Hull.

Game-time is 1 p.m.

night jitters. We have a young team, a lot of freshmen."

Walsh wasn't making excuses. He was very pleased with his youngsters.

"My freshmen really wanted to play tonight," he said. "It was a great effort on their part. We just came up a little short."

Evans' score in the third period gave the Skippers a lift.

"It was great to see Alex score," Walsh said. "He's a hungry little player. He's one of the smallest players on the ice, and one of the toughest."

While the goal gave Cohasset a boost, it also spurred Rockland.

After the goal, the Bulldogs played a tad quicker, leading to Ryan's third goal and a 4-2 advantage with just under eight minutes left.

For Ryan, the night was a big one.

"I broke my stick right off," he said. "I was a little uncomfortable. Three goals was pretty good and Gino had a lot of good saves in key points. We played good defense."

Walsh, who said his team would be practicing at 4:50 a.m. Tuesday, could find things to build on in the loss.

"It was 2-1 after on period and it was a 1-0 second period," he said. "It was closer than it sounded. We had chances and just couldn't capitalize. Rockland did a great job taking advantage of really good shooting situations. Our guys just need to get their legs under them. We have a big league game Wednesday."

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse registration begins Dec. 15

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will open its online registration for the spring 2009 season Dec. 15. To register go to the Web site at cohassetlacrosse.com and click on the registration link.

Registrations will be accepted for both boys and girls at U15 for seventh- and eighth-graders; U13, fifth- and sixth-graders; and U11, third- and fourth-graders. All youth players are welcome, regardless of experience.

Registration will continue Through Jan. 15. The program is committed to accepting every player who signs up during open registration. Once that sign-up period is completed the program will establish its ideal roster sizes and take late registrants on a first-come, first-served basis only until the rosters are filled. At that point a waiting list will be established, or players may be turned away.

Fees for 2009 are $160 per player, with family pricing of $100 for each additional family member. Scholarships are available for families facing unusual circumstances or financial difficulty. Check the appropriate box on the online form.

Those who have any issues with online access or registration-related questions, contact Stuart Sanderson at stuart.sanderson@barcap.com or call 383-0902 evenings/weekends.

Wrestlers optimistic after opening meet

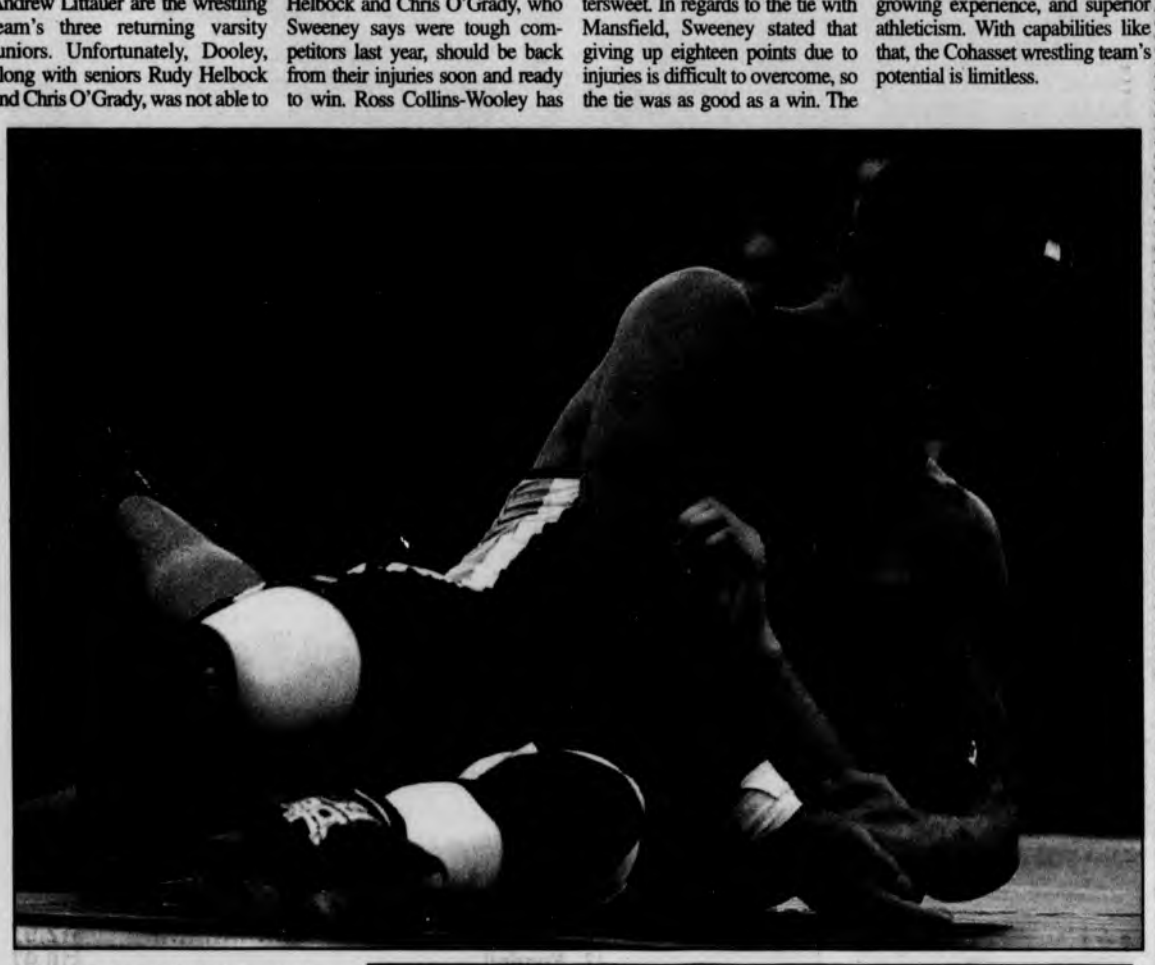
Team ties Mansfield, falls to Pembroke

By Emily Toomey
CHS CORRESPONDENT

Frigid air, shouting, and ear-piercing buzzers- these are the tell-tale signs that wrestling season has begun. The first match of the 2008-09 season was last Saturday, with the Cohasset wrestling team tying Mansfield 36-36, and losing to Pembroke 51-9.

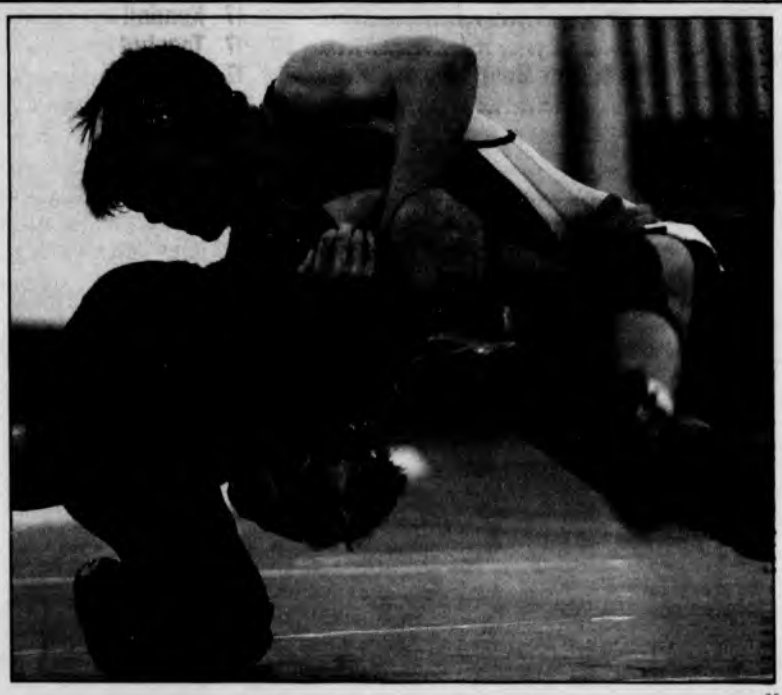
Regardless of the mixed outcome, head coach Torin Sweeney and assistant coach Pete Buckley remain optimistic.

This year's team, led by senior captains Ross Collins-Wooley, Mike Froio, and David Toomey, consists of promising newcomers and experienced veterans. Freshmen Gus Helbock, Graden Foley, and Derek Froio each wrestled varsity this weekend, with Froio making a solid pin and Helbock winning a nail-biting match against Mansfield to clinch the tie for Cohasset in the last period. Chris Brash and Robert Weiss, also freshmen, were victorious during their matches on Saturday as well.



Sophomores Robbie Hill, Thomas Flibotte, and Alex Kinnealey worked hard on varsity to win a total of three matches. Hill started strong with a big win against Mansfield, and Flibotte, last season's Rookie of the Year, won both his matches, beating Pembroke's senior captain. Matt Brooks, Bill Mack, and Colin Tarpey fared equally well against the JV teams.

Matt Dooley, Jack Murphy, and Andrew Littauer are the wrestling team's three returning varsity juniors. Unfortunately, Dooley, along with seniors Rudy Helbock and Chris O'Grady, was not able to compete due to injuries. Littauer won both of his matches while Murphy, a returning Sectional champion, made a strong pin against Mansfield. Fellow juniors Sean MacCarthy, Cam Washak, Justin Yeager and Chase Stebbins are also expected to be important components of this year's varsity team.



Cohasset's five seniors can anticipate a successful season based on their experience and records. Rudy Helbock and Chris O'Grady, who Sweeney says were tough competitors last year, should be back from their injuries soon and ready to win. Ross Collins-Wooley has earned a varsity letter twice and gives depth in the middle of the lineup, says Sweeney. Mike Froio, who is starting for his fourth season, pinned against Mansfield this weekend. He was injured for the majority of last season and has placed in the Sectionals twice. The other fourth year starting captain, David Toomey, succeeded with two wins over Mansfield and Pembroke.

Overall, Saturday's meet was bittersweet. In regards to the tie with Mansfield, Sweeney stated that giving up eighteen points due to injuries is difficult to overcome, so the tie was as good as a win. The main pins were from Murphy, Flibotte, and both Froios, while Hill, Littauer, Toomey, and Helbock contributed to the team points with wins. Contending with Pembroke was less triumphant- Cohasset's three wins were by Toomey, Littauer, and Flibotte.

Despite the injuries and loss to Pembroke, Cohasset's tie with Mansfield reveals the widespread talent in the team. All of the members showed staunch dedication, growing experience, and superior athleticism. With capabilities like that, the Cohasset wrestling team's potential is limitless.

High winds brought this large tree down along with power lines on Hull Street in Cohasset on a Sunday afternoon in mid-November. Traffic was detoured to North Main Street in Cohasset for over an hour while the tree and wires were cleared. A powerful cold front that crossed the area late the previous evening prompted the National Weather Service in Taunton, Mass, to posting a Tornado Watch for much of Southern New England. Here a Cohasset police cruiser awaits a crew to remove the tree along with National Grid for the downed wires.

Reaching out to help in your own community.

The season of giving is upon us. Gifts of Hope can help you give to those in need in your community.

For the past 17 years, Community Newspaper Company's Gifts of Hope program has helped connect you to those in need in your own community. Each year, a local charity is selected to be the beneficiary of the Gifts of Hope donation campaign. And each year, your generous donations have helped feed the hungry, shelter the homeless and bring joy to the faces of young children across Massachusetts.

How can you help this year? Please join the Cohasset Mariner in supporting the Interfaith Social Services in their efforts to help those in need this holiday season. A donation of any size goes a long way.

Please make your tax deductible check or money order payable to: Interfaith Social Services.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
DEC. 15, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Careful, Lamb. Don't let your generous nature lead to some serious overspending as you contemplate your holiday gift-giving. Your social life kicks off into high gear by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A positive attitude helps you weather annoying but unavoidable changes in holiday plans. Aspects favor new friendships and reinforcement of existing relationships.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Demands on your energy level could be much higher than usual as you prepare for the upcoming holidays. Be sure to pace yourself. Friends and family will be happy to help.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't allow a suddenly icy reaction from a friend or family member to continue without learning what caused it — and what can be done to restore that once warm and caring relationship.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A relationship seems to be unraveling, mostly from a lack of attention. It might be a good idea to ease up on whatever else you're doing so you can spend more time working to mend it.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) New facts emerge that not only help explain the recent rift with a trusted colleague, but also might provide a chance to wipe the slate clean and make a fresh start in your friendship.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family member's personal situation is, fortunately, resolved in time for you to get back into your hectic round of holiday preparations. An old friend might bring a new friend into your life.

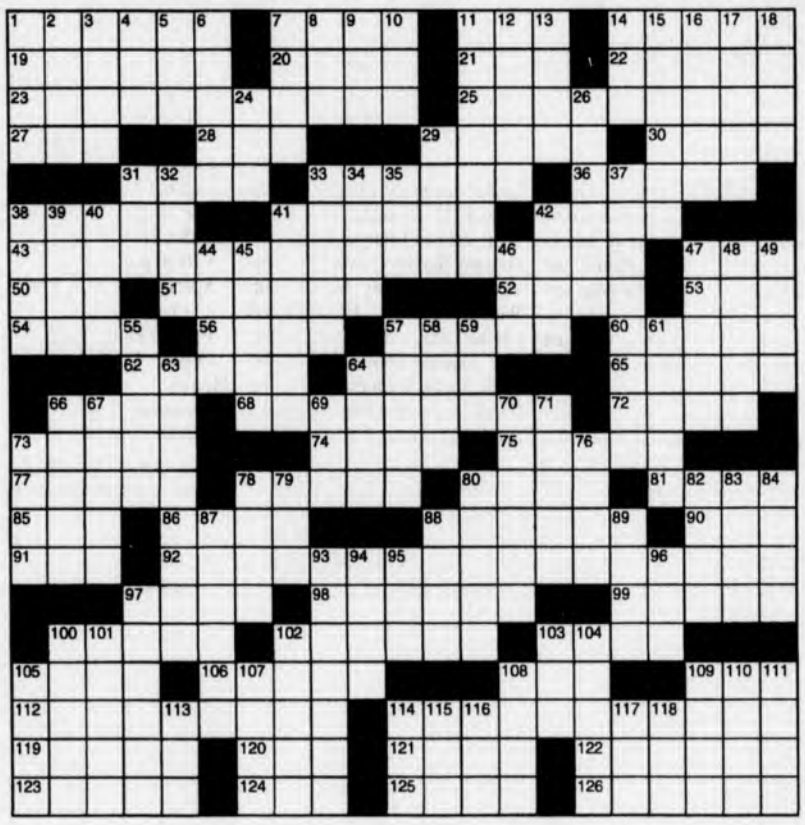
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Pace yourself in meeting holiday pressures and workplace demands to avoid winding up with a frayed temper and a Scorpian stinger that lashes out at puzzled kith, kin and colleagues.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A financial matter requires close attention. Also, news from a trusted source provides the means to help sort out a long-standing state of confusion and put it into perspective.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a good time to reinforce family ties. Make it a priority to assess and resolve all outstanding problems. Start the upcoming holiday season with a full measure of love.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't be pressured into a so-called solid-gold investment. Wait until the holiday distractions are over. Then take a harder look at it. You might find that the "gold" is starting to flake off.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A former friend might be trying to heal the breach between you by using a mutual friend as an intermediary. Best advice: Keep an open mind despite any lingering bad feelings.



(c) 2008 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of saying the right thing at the right time. Your friendships are deep and lasting.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Movie review

'Nixon' finally wins my vote

Film Review
AL ALEXANDER

Frost/Nixon (A)

Richard Nixon (Frank Langella) lets David Frost (Michael Sheen) know who will be in charge during their upcoming interviews.

Although it's set 31 years ago, the big-screen version of Peter Morgan's Tony-winning "Frost/Nixon" couldn't be a timelier treatise on the point where our society began staggering down a path of passivity and lowered expectations.

Yes, it's an indictment of Richard Nixon, the man who rightfully caused Americans to lose trust in their leaders, but it's also very much a condemnation of the Fourth Estate's indulgence in checkbook journalism.

Therein lies a great irony in which a disgraced president was able to profit off the same institution that brought him down. But there are plenty of differences between Nixonslayers Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein and his unwitting resurrector, British talk-show host and international playboy David Frost.

Frost dated supermodels and actresses (most notably Diahann Carroll), hobnobbed with royalty and perfected the fine art of self-promotion. He may have hoped he could get Nixon to confess his sins. But he was more interested in making enough money to fortify his own indiscretions once he landed the interview that would draw the largest TV audience ever for a news interview program.

The price Frost paid Nixon was $600,000 (a huge sum in 1976); the price for journalistic standards was much higher.

That "Frost/Nixon" is able to communicate this with such grace and subtlety is key to it being one of the finest films of the year. But it's only part of a greater whole that includes outstanding writing by Morgan, the sharpest direction yet by Ron Howard and indescribably good acting by Michael Sheen as Frost and Frank Langella as Nixon.

Both reprise the roles they perfected to much acclaim on stage in London and later Broadway, where Langella picked up a well-deserved Tony. If it's possible they're even more dynamic on film, where the camera's ability to get up close and personal adds dramatically to the tension as they come face to face for four 3-and-a-half-hour interviews over a 12-day period in the late winter of 1977.

It was a showdown between the paranoid ex-world leader in the Thom McAns and the gregarious British talk-meister in the Gucci loafers; the Quaker and the playboy; the seasoned lawyer and the part-time game-show host.

On paper (and in Nixon's mind), it seemed like a colossal mismatch in which Nixon would not only dominate the conversation but also rehabilitate his ability to look presidential. But a funny thing happened on the way to the inevitable.

Much like "Rocky," that other huge underdog that prevailed in the winter of 1977, Frost was not about to take a dive, especially with respected researchers like Bob Zelnick (Oliver Platt) and James Reston (Sam Rockwell) in his corner to help him deflect everything Nixon and his chief of staff, Col. Jack Brennan (Kevin Bacon) threw at them.

Appropriately, Morgan frames his screenplay like a boxing match, presenting each of the four interview sessions like rounds of a fight. It works marvelously, too, leaving you in breathless anticipation of both Frost's questions and Nixon's increasingly candid answers, especially concerning his role in the Watergate cover-up.

Both emerge bloodied and battered, but each wins a level of respect you never thought possible for men consumed by both ambition and the need to have their enormous egos stroked.

It's a blast of pathos you don't always see coming. But it's also unexpectedly hilarious, as these titans of power and wealth tiptoe through a minefield of paranoia and insecurity.

Langella is blessed with most of the showier, Oscar-baiting moments, which he fully capitalizes on with a performance that's more of an interpretation than an impersonation. It's a choice that allows Langella to bring out all the quirks and idiosyncrasies that made Nixon Nixon, particularly the man's uncanny ability to always shoot himself in the foot.

Many viewers will hate Nixon going in, and hate him going out. But Langella did something I never thought possible by eliciting empathy for the disgraced president in a devastatingly emotional final scene that silently and poignantly captures how a man capable of greatness suddenly appears so little.

Sheen ("The Queen") is no slouch, either. He finds the humanity lurking behind the bigger-than-life façade, deftly revealing the inner doubts the public never saw when Frost was scoring with audiences and a bevy of beauties, well represented here by his girlfriend at the time, Caroline Cushing (Rebecca Hall).

It's riveting stuff, delivered with a showman like quality that enables "Frost/Nixon" to be hugely entertaining without ever surrendering an ounce of gravitas. It bravely and confidently takes what Gerald Ford called "our national nightmare" and turns a showdown between a British huckster and an all-American felon into a cinematic dream.

Rated PG-13.

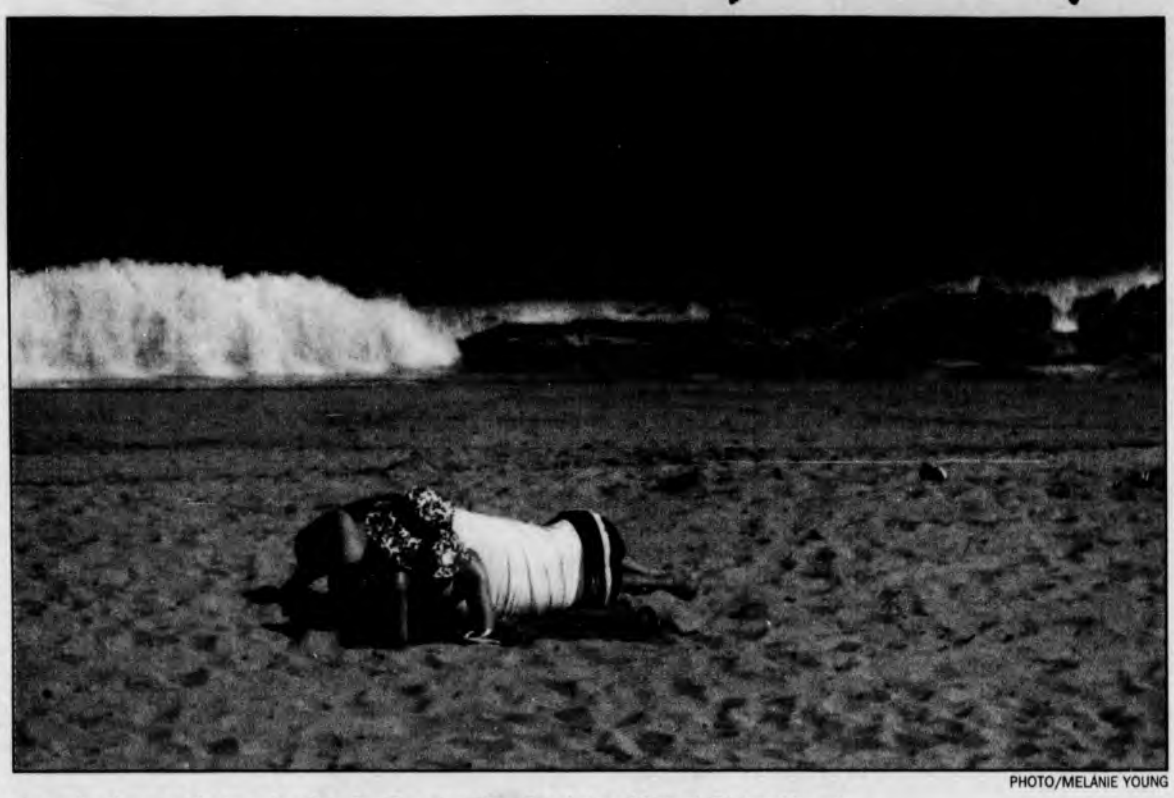
Mexico's Low Key Hot Spot



Melanie Young
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO, NAYARIT, MEXICO

Majestic Pacific waves slid up the ivory sand as my boyfriend and I walked barefoot down the long beach, nearly deserted except for two young Mexican women watching the surf. Just behind us in a palm grove, a waiter was setting up brightly painted tables and chairs on the sand under a restaurant's thatched palapa for lunch.

We were just up the coast from Puerto Vallarta in the resort region recently dubbed the "Riviera Nayarit" — Nayarit being the name of the Mexican state and "Riviera," perhaps, to suggest the cachet of this just-being-discovered coast and its beauty. If the beach where we strolled was any indication, the name fits.

The beach was backed by a serene hamlet — population 3,000 — formally known as San Francisco, though locals call it San Pancho.

A couple relaxes on the town beach in San Francisco (San Pancho) on Mexico's Riviera Nayarit.

Earlier, roosters crowed as we strolled down the cobblestone main street that led to the beach, passing brightly painted walls, a small sidewalk market laden with golden mangoes and other fruit, a few craft shops, and a woman named Carmen grilling chicken "pollo asado" — which smelled fantastic. We stopped to admire the town's well-maintained public garden, a riot of tropical blooms and lush foliage.

On a shady plaza near Playa San Pancho, a Huichol Indian named Lucio was displaying his wares — rainbow-hued folkloric animals and bowls covered with intricate designs made with tiny seed beads set in wax — as his young daughter played under the table.

We felt like we were in Old Mexico. In reality, we had come to San Francisco from our base at a fancy resort, Grand Velas All Suites & Spa Resort, in the upscale development of Nuevo Vallarta.

In Riviera Nayarit you'll find the upscale hotels and golf courses, and the little towns with authentic Mexican ambience. Each one is different and the pace is easygoing, sort of like Puerto Vallarta before it was discovered, said Oscar Cruces, managing director of the Grand Velas, explaining the allure of the region.

Grand Velas epitomizes the upper end of the Riviera Nayarit resort spectrum, and our premium-level suite overlooked the beach from a large private terrace equipped with a Jacuzzi under the stars and lounging bed big enough for two.

The resort's spa offers a variety of classes — yoga, tai chi, meditation, salsa dancing. And there are exotic treatments, including a "body mask" that incorporates a massage that uses heated seashells. For golfers, there are seven courses nearby.

Nuevo Vallarta is home to more than two dozen luxury hotels and close enough to downtown Puerto Vallarta for guests to enjoy the shopping, nightlife and historic Old Town that so enchanted Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor during the filming of John Huston's "Night of the Iguana" that they bought houses there.

But low key, Mexican-style, can also be found nearby. In addition to San Francisco, we stopped in Sayulita, a surfing haven that has managed to retain an old hippie ambience even as it has become increasingly upscale. Just about everyone here looked tan and fit as we watched novice surfers on the moderate waves at the town beach. Learning will cost you $30 for a group class of three or more, or $50 for a private 1 1/2-hour lesson.

Even the non-surfing tourist can have fun in this colorful town with its plentiful shops, restaurants and small hotels.

Another appealing spot in the Riviera Nayarit is Bucerias, famous for its restaurants. According to our guide, there are more than 40 places to eat on one street, Avenida Pacifica, alone.

Eco-travelers to Riviera Nayarit will find attractions including a turtle rescue center, bird watching and whale watch tours. For the adventurous there are canopy tours (zip-lining through the high tree canopy) and opportunities for sailing, snorkeling and horseback riding.

With more than 100 miles of coastline, the Riviera Nayarit is being hailed as the "Next Great Place." Bill Gates has purchased property in Litibu, a luxurious residential area. But perhaps the best indicator of the area's newfound fame is that the Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders were photographed in the Riviera Nayarit — Punta de Mita, Rincon de Guayabitos and San Blas, for their 2009 calendar. For when those bikini-clad cheerleaders come, can crowds be far behind?

Carr to run; Flynn to step down

Election field begins to take shape

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

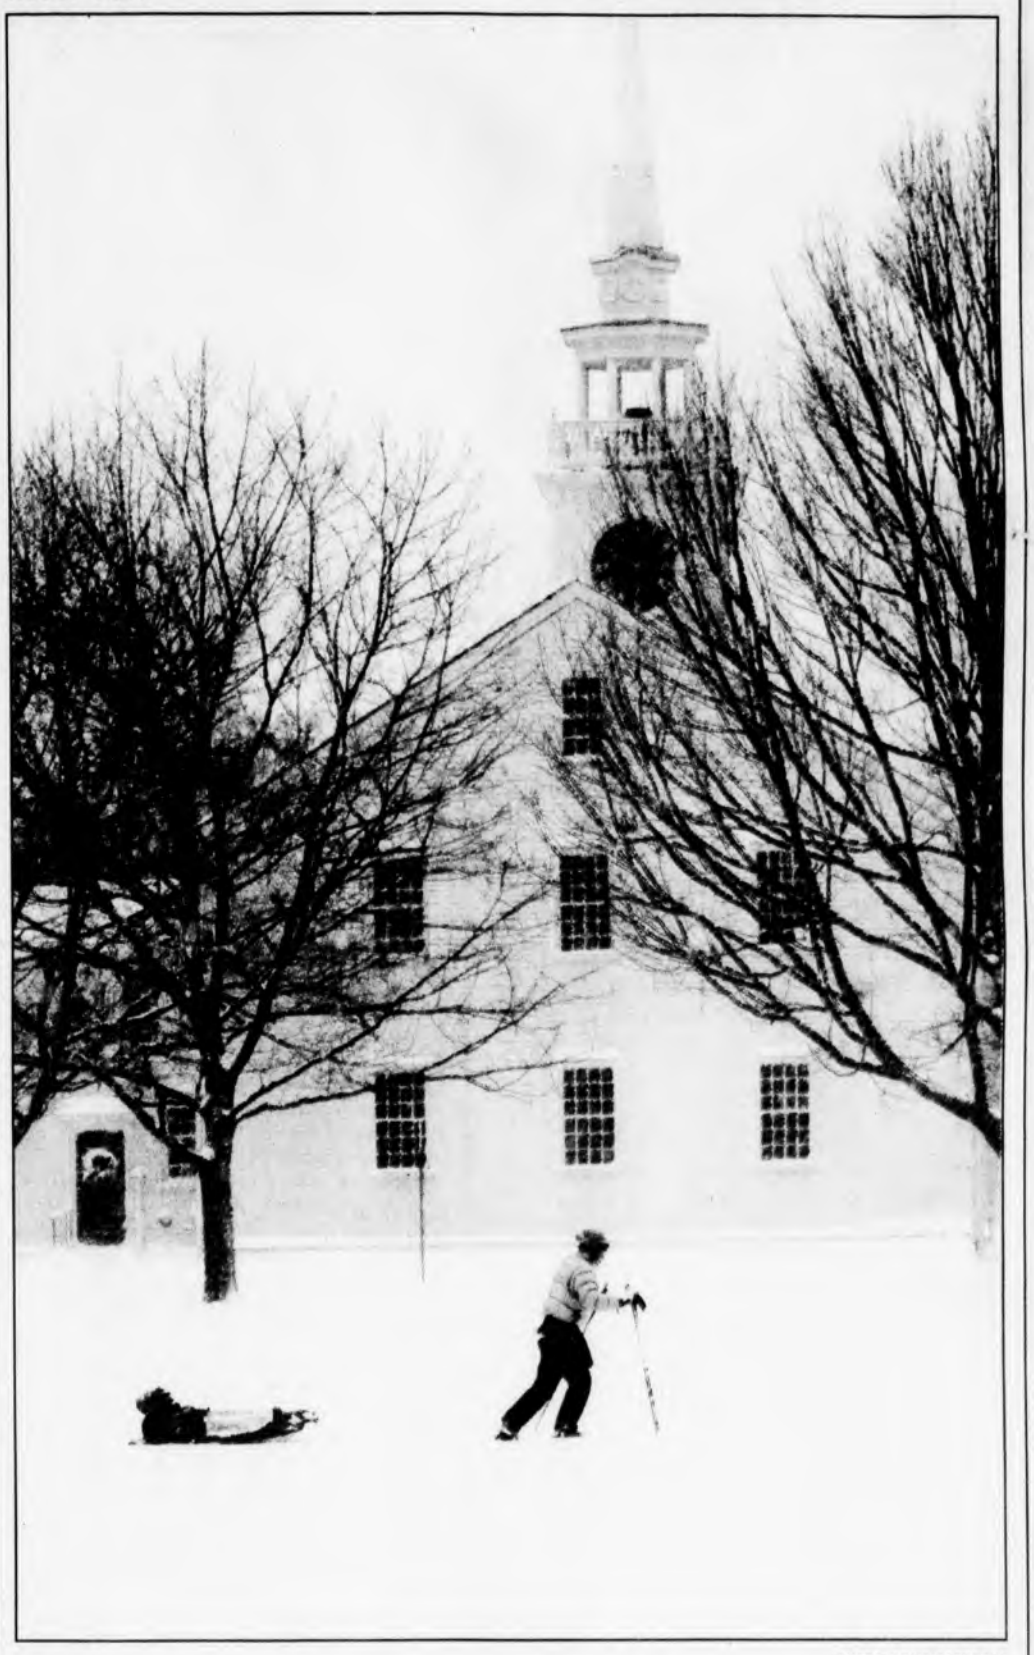
The 2009 election is still a good four months off, but the election season is about to begin. Beginning Wednesday, Jan. 7, citizens can begin to take out nomination papers to be considered on the ballot.

The last two town election seasons have been relatively quiet with few or no races for seats on town boards. During the 2007 and 2008 elections, seats on Board of Selectmen have gone uncontested. This past April, incumbent School Committee Alfred Slanetz faced no opposition for his seat. In fact, the only race was for a seat on the Sewer Commission and a write-in campaign for an open seat on the Recreation Commission.

Will this year be different?

The Board of Selectmen and the Planning Board have one seat with an expiring term, while the School Committee has two seats. Both the Water and Sewer Commissions will have one seat expiring. The Mariner checked in with each of the committee members up for re-election this spring to see who is planning to run.

However, come next week the field will be wide open and citizens longing to serve their town will have just as much as chance as any of the incumbents.



Current Board of Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr, who is finishing out his first term, told the Mariner he plans to seek a second term. After talking over the decision with his family, he determined his work is not yet completed as a Selectman.

"I have very much enjoyed serving on the board and find it a great way to support my community. I have always said I would like to serve as long as I feel I can be effective for the town," said Carr in an e-mail.

During his three years on the board, Carr has been proud of the progress and

Who should be Citizen of the Year?

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

In keeping with an 16-year tradition recognizing an individual for outstanding service to the community or a special achievement — the Cohasset Mariner is now accepting nominations for the annual Citizen of the Year Award.

Here at the Mariner, we invite our readers to take this opportunity to nominate a person who has made a significant contribution to Cohasset. This is a community award: the Mariner is the means by which we are able to recognize, thank and honor those around us who make the quiet, generous contributions that make our town a wonderful place to call home.

Last year, Cohasset Mariner readers honored Merle Brown as Citizen of the Year. Brown, a Cohasset native, has served the town for decades. His tireless involvement includes: four terms as a Selectman, years on the Conservation Commission, launching the recycling committee and "Pay as You Throw" program, working on the Beechwood Ball Park project, years with the Boys Scouts – and so much more.

See nomination form on page 17.

The deadline for nominations for the 2007 Citizen of the Year is 5 p.m. Friday, Jan. 23. Please see the nomination form on page 17. The form may be photocopied. Letters of nomination are also accepted and should be mailed or sent by fax to The Cohasset Mariner, 73 South St., Hingham 02043. Our fax number is 781-741-2931. Letters of nomination by email to mford@cnc.com are also welcome.

This is not a popularity contest. Following the close of nominations, a selection panel — after reviewing the names submitted by poring over the nomination letters and comments — will select the Citizen of the Year.

Nominees may be someone in elected office, a member of an appointed town committee, teacher or school administrator, clergy member, firefighter, police officer or other municipal worker. And the nominee may be a person in the business community, sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has freely given of his or her time and energy for a worthwhile Cohasset project or cause.

This year's recipient will be the16th person honored as the Cohasset Citizen of the Year, joining past recipients:

1993: Gerard T. Keating, "Mr. Cohasset": for his more than half-century of contributions to the community, including serving as chairman of the Snow brings a white Christmas

DPW faced challenges in clean-up

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"If people in their neighborhood could find their nearest hydrant, shovel that hydrant out to make sure if in fact we do need to get to them, they are clear."
— Fire Chief Robert Silvia

It did bring Cohasset a white Christmas, but this past weekend's snowstorms carried with it a lot of punch and about a foot and half of snow.

A blanket of icy, crunchy snow covered the lawns, banks of snow lined the streets of Cohasset and caused many to tread carefully on their way about town all week.

With weather forecasters predicting a serious snowstorm on Friday mid-afternoon (Dec. 19), Cohasset schools played it safe and sent kids home on an early release schedule. All the students made it safely home before the flakes began to fall. Meanwhile, the Department of Public Works knew it was in for a long weekend as the responsibility of keeping 37 miles of accepted roads in town and 11 miles of private ways clear and safe for passage was on their shoulders.

"Mother Nature took her course…it was challenging, but we got the job done," said Leo Ekbom, equipment operator for the DPW. On Tuesday night, the DPW was still in clean-up mode and was gearing up to clear the downtown/village area from Border Street to Depot Court of snow.

The storm, which seemed to have only brief pauses during the course of the weekend, kept the DPW busy. On Friday night they started sanding and salting, then plowing, which continued into Saturday. On Sunday the temperatures rose creating runoff, so the DPW had to clear the storm drains to prevent flooding. Then, it got cold, freezing the runoff and it was back to sanding and salting.

"Unfortunately, it took a lot of extra work hours…It was a big battle," said Ekbom. Thankfully, he said, not many people were on the road making it easier for them to do their job.

With Cohasset's signature country roads and dozens of cul-de-sac developments, snow removal can be a little tricky in those tight places, but the DPW has years of experience, even on those tough to negotiate roads.

"These guys have been doing this so long, it is almost second nature to them," said Ekbom. The on-going water and sewer construction work made plowing in those areas difficult.

Emergency response was still up and running during the weekend long storms, Fire Chief Robert Silvia said the only effect from the storms was slightly longer response times.

On Sunday, the fire department began to dig out the hundreds of fire hydrants buried in the snow. While the fire department does make its way around to all the hydrants to ensure they are clear and ready to use in the event of a fire, Silvia said it would be extremely helpful if residents could aid in the process.

"If people in their neighborhood could find their nearest hydrant, shovel that hydrant out to make sure if in fact we do need to get to them, they are clear," said Silvia. "There are hundreds of them in town and we try to get to them as quickly as possible, but it is a couple of days before we get to them all."

Any help from residents would be appreciated and could save precious time in the event of a major fire, Silvia said.

Cohasset Fire Chief Robert Silvia looks into the basement of the Scituate home located at 27 Turner Road Wednesday afternoon (Dec. 17) after an explosion leveled the house killing one person. Several other homes were uninhabitable following the blast.

Cohasset helps Scituate in aftermath of house explosion

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

An explosion destroyed a house at 27 Turner Road at about 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 17, leaving one man dead and several houses uninhabitable.

Shortly before 2:30p.m., Cohasset dispatch fielded about 30 emergency 9-1-1 calls for a home explosion. In large emergencies when Scituate dispatch is completely flooded with calls, the calls are then forwarded to Cohasset dispatch.

The explosion spread debris across the street, blowing the windows out of nearby homes and leaving in its place only the foundation of the home. The front door of the home was found across the street, more than four houses away. More than seven homes were significantly damaged.

When Scituate firefighters responded to the scene, they almost immediately called for mutual aid by striking a second alarm. Four Cohasset firefighters responded to the scene with a fire engine and an ambulance. They remained on the scene for about three hours.

Cohasset Police also supplied mutual aid.

"We sent two officers who assisted in creating a perimeter at the scene and helped with traffic control," Police Chief James Hussey said.

The firehouse was covered by the department's own off-duty personnel.

As of press time, the cause of the explosion is still under investigation, but early investigators have concluded human involvement, either accidental or intentional, played a role in the incident.

Smell gas inside the house? Call 9-1-1

In light of last week's explosion in Scituate and the possible role gas played in the incident (several reports say neighbors smelled a strong odor of gas before the explosion), the Mariner asked Chief Robert Silvia what are the guidelines for gas.

"The biggest potential problem with gas is when it is trapped inside an enclosed area, i.e. your home, and it finds an ignition source," said Silvia.

He advised when the smell of gas comes from inside the home that is cause for a true emergency and is a priority call for the fire department.

"An inside leak, that's what we worry about," said Silvia.

When the fire department responds to a smell of gas inside the house, they try to locate the source. "It might be something as simple as a pilot light out on a stove," said Silvia. But, in extreme cases, the occupants could be evacuated.

"If there is a strong odor of gas, leave the building and make the 9-1-1 call outside," he advises.

When the smell of gas is noticeable outside a home or neighborhood, the fire department does respond and contacts National Grid to do a thorough survey of the neighborhood. If the gas company determines there is no immediate danger, they have up to 18 months to correct the problem.

Case in point is there was a recurring smell of gas in the area of Beach Street and Atlantic Avenue since last June. Although the fire department received a dozen and a half calls about the smell of gas in that general area, it wasn't until this past month, the gas company corrected the leak.

School policy manual is complete

For the first time, the Cohasset Public Schools has a complete and comprehensive policy manual. The final draft of the manual was presented to the School Committee last Wednesday for its final review.

Jim Hardy, the school's policy manual consultant, helped a subcommittee conduct a thorough document review of all the manuals, memorandums of understandings, faculty and staff handbooks to eliminate duplication and streamline.

"We went page-by-page through that manual to make sure it reflects the most current local, state and federal regulations," said Hardy at the School Committee meeting, Dec. 17.

The policy manual update has been an on-going effort by the School Committee. The total one-time cost was $9,000 over three fiscal years.

In addition to a lengthy hard copy binder, the policy manual is also available on CD and, once approved by the School Committee in January, it will be available on the Cohasset Public Schools website (www.cohassetk12.org). The electronic version of the policy makes the manual "a living document" making updates and changes easier.

Previously, the policies of the Cohasset Schools were piecemeal, this document puts everything in one place.

Each member of the School Committee is currently reviewing the substantial policy manual in its electronic version and it is the aim to approve it at a meeting in January.

"It's a major accomplishment to have a whole manual," said Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh.

POLICE BEAT

Storm-related accidents add up

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

...a 2001 Chevrolet, operated by a Cohasset resident, went off the road near the 400 block of Jerusalem Road. There were no apparent injuries but the vehicle had to be towed off a rock and then could be driven away, police said.

• On Friday (Dec. 19), at 1:34 p.m., a cruiser, which was responding to a call, veered to avoid a car that had pulled out in front of it on North Main Street during the snowstorm. Other vehicles had pulled over to let the cruiser pass and just as the cruiser passed those vehicles, it had to swerve to avoid a car that had pulled out to make a left on Jason Road.

The cruiser went off the road and hit a sign pole; the officer was not injured and the cruiser had minor damage. The cruiser remained in service, Chief James Hussey said.

• A walk-in to the police station last Friday (Dec. 19) at 3:34 p.m. reported that his 2005 Dodge pickup was hit by a blue Chevrolet pickup at Shaw's Plaza. No plate was provided. The Dodge had some damage to the tailgate and rear bumper.

• A 2009 Lexus, operated by a Pennsylvania resident, was headed down the steep decline on Pond Street and slid sideways, hitting the median island near the tracks. The incident occurred at 4:17 p.m. on Friday (Dec. 19). There were no apparent injuries. The Lexus had to be towed.

• At 4:45 p.m. on Saturday (Dec. 20), the operator of a 2001 Ford, who lives in Rockland, called police to report he had slid off the road in the vicinity of 40 Gammons Road. The car needed to be towed. Police noted damage to some trees and possibly to the catch basin at the site.

• On Saturday (Dec. 20) at 4:42 p.m. a 2003 Nissan, operated by a Cohasset resident, was on Jerusalem Road, when the car slid off the roadway hitting some concrete jersey barriers. There were no apparent injuries but the car had to be towed, police said.

• On Sunday (Dec. 21) at 8:26 a.m., a 2001 Chevrolet, operated by a Cohasset resident, went off the road near the 400 block of Jerusalem Road. There were no apparent injuries but the vehicle had to be towed off a rock and then could be driven away, police said.

• At 12:16 p.m. on Sunday (Dec. 21), a 2008 BMW near the 600 block of Jerusalem Road (heading toward West Corner) slid off the road and struck a utility pole. There was damage to the passenger side of the BMW and to the passenger side mirror. There was damage near the tire and the BMW had to be towed, police said. There were no apparent injuries.

• At 12:45 p.m. on Sunday (Dec. 21), a 2006 Toyota, driven by a Cohasset man, tried to take a right from CJC Highway onto Lower King Street, but slid into a snow bank and stayed in the lane.

A 2004 Ford, operated by a Hull man that was also headed north on 3A then struck the right rear of the Toyota, damaging the trunk and bumper. There were no apparent injuries.

Summons

A 52-year-old Cohasset woman is being summonsed to court on charges of unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, marked lanes violation and having an expired inspection sticker following a traffic stop on Tuesday (Dec. 16) at 10:41 a.m.

Chief Hussey said an officer was conducting traffic enforcement on Ripley Road when the officer saw a car pass by with an expired inspection sticker.

Further investigation revealed the woman's license was also expired.

Head-on

On Tuesday (Dec. 16) at 7 p.m., police responded to a head-on crash on N. Main Street. Police said a 2005 Hyundai, operated by a Plymouth woman, crossed the centerline hitting a 2004 Buick, operated by a Cohasset man.

The Plymouth woman was cited for marked lanes violation. There were no apparent injuries, police said.

Muddy footprints

Police called for assistance from the Hingham Police K-9 unit after a homeowner reported hearing something and then found muddy footprints in the house, police said.

Police said entry was gained through an unlocked front door. The homeowner yelled, apparently scaring the suspect off. The police K-9 initially tracked the suspect but it led to a dead end, Chief Hussey said.

The homeowner does not think anything was taken, police said.

Snowballs

A concerned homeowner from Hugh Strain Road called to report a man was banging on the front window of the house on Friday (Dec. 19) at 5:47 p.m. But when police arrived the homeowner explained the person who knocked on the window was complaining about kids throwing snowballs. Apparently, he had seen the kids run to the house, police said.

Dog bite

A worker inside a house on King Street was nipped by the homeowner's dog last week. The bite was minor and the dog has been quarantined, police said.. The man went to the emergency room at the Milford Regional Medical Center to have the bite checked out. The ER nurse there contacted Cohasset police.

Plow damage

Police responded to a report on Sunday (Dec. 21) about a car being damaged by a plow on Smith Place. The police worked to help identify the private plow operator so the matter could be resolved between the car owner and the plow operator.

Winter parking

Winter parking regulations are in effect through April 1.

No overnight on-street parking between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. is allowed during winter parking regulations.

Violators are subject to a fine of $25.

Who should be Citizen of the Year?

Council on Aging, chairman of the school committee, president of the hockey boosters club, vice president of the Cohasset Historical Society, director of veterans services, and lector, eucharistic minister and usher at St. Anthony's Church.

1994: Joseph D. Buckley, for his work behind the scenes helping seniors understand the complexities of the healthcare system and to access health benefits through SHINE (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders), his service on the Council on Aging, and volunteer work over the years with the Boy Scouts, Little league, Sunday School and more.

1995: Dr. Robert T. Sceery, for his more than 40 years of dedicated service as a pediatrician in town and school doctor. He also served on the board of health and led the fight back in the 1970s to sewer the town. He is also a familiar figure at town meetings where he speaks his mind on important issues.

1996: The Rev. Gary Ritts, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, for being a positive force for good through his work with the Appalachia Service Project (ASP), an ecumenical volunteer effort involving Cohasset teenagers. ASP is a home building ministry in central Appalachia.

1997: Anna Abbruzzese, for all her volunteer work including preparing and delivering meals for the Pine Street Inn, driving the senior shuttle and coordinating the Gourmet Cooking Club at the Council on Elder Affairs; and her many efforts to help revitalize Cohasset Village through the Farmers' Market and much more.

1998: Katherine Stanton, for her tireless service to the town and its citizens over the years. She also volunteers as a case reviewer for the state Dept. of Social Services, served on the school committee and recreation committee, and along with her family was involved with the creation of the Cohasset Sailing Club.

1999: Clark Chatterton, for his generosity of spirit and deep caring for his fellow man, his years of work as a teacher and athletic director at the high school, including innumerable efforts helping others behind the scenes. He also helped raise money for many causes including Alumni Field and the American Cancer Society.

2000: former state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray for a lifetime of service to her hometown, first as den mother and Little League mother and Girl Scout leader, and then as selectman. She was also honored for her public service as state representative for more than two decades and for always putting her constituents first.

2001: Glenn Pratt for his dogged determination over 20 years to see more cemetery space in town, remembering local soldiers who made the ultimate sacrifice, helping to lead the effort to expand the community center, serving as an elected official, and spearheading the effort to build a memorial to local mothers who lost sons in wartime.

2002: Arthur Lehr for more than 50 years of volunteer service on worthwhile projects including the Boy Scouts; serving on the Zoning Board of Appeals and as a Registrar of Voters; Clerk of the Works for the DPW garage, Little League Complex, and Mariners Park; serving on the Recycling Committee, as town Civil Defense Director, on Gravel Pit Reuse Committee and more.

2003: Marjorie Murphy for touching countless lives through her roughly 25 years as school librarian at Deer Hill. With eyes that twinkle and an infectious smile, Mrs. Murphy devoted her life to helping children discover the wonders of reading and the value of a good book.

2004: John Coe, a WWII veteran, for all his volunteer service at the Senior Center where he helps make the center a warm place where people come and meet friends; for his work quietly behind the scenes helping fellow citizens and his service as the "beloved Town Crier" every year at the Village Fair.

2005: Marjorie "Margie" Steele, who is the "heart and soul of the Cohasset Food Pantry," for her energy and long-time commitment to the important service, which has helped countless people in need over the years.

2006: Roger Whitley, a retired architect, former Advisory Committee member, and Paul Pratt Library Trustee, who has spent much time over his 50 years as a Cohasset resident "involved."

2007: Merle Brown, former selectman (four terms), Conservation Commissioner, involvement with Beechwood Ball Park project, Boy Scouts, recycling, to name a few.

Turbine hearing Jan. 12

The Planning Board has continued the public hearing on the proposed Cohasset Heights wind turbine project until Monday, Jan. 12 at 7:30p.m. Noise, flicker and the recent balloon demonstration will be some of the topics discussed. All the additional data the Planning Board requested at their last public hearing on Dec. 1 is to be submitted to the planning board office for review by Dec. 29, giving the board's consulting engineers two weeks to review the data.

"The data has to be received by December 29, or we're just going to postpone," said Planning Board vice chair Charles Samuelson.

Election field begins to take shape

Long-time School Committee member and current chairman, Rick Flynn, chats with a supporter along Highland Avenue during Election Day 2006. Flynn told the Mariner this week he will not be running for reelection.

accomplishments on many issues. He names "aggressively addressing the budget, supporting renewable energy opportunities, addressing the town-wide flooding problems we face and actively supporting our schools and the business community" as a few.

"Today with a troubled economy in Massachusetts, I feel my current career as a member of the Governor's economic team on Beacon Hill brings a very important set of knowledge and experiences to help Cohasset," said Carr. Carr is the chief of staff in the Executive Office of Housing and Economic Development.

He is currently working with Town Manager Bill Griffin and other boards to make sure that every opportunity that could be considered for federal investment in Cohasset is ready to go and presented well, he said.

"Even if the Federal stimulus bill is not enacted by Congress this kind of preparation by the town is critical to our future. This work alone will carry over to the spring and summer and into a new term for me, if elected. I hope the people of Cohasset will support me and help me see to see this important work through," Carr said.

Carr will make a formal announcement of his re-election bid in the new year.

School Committee

The School Committee will see some change following the election. The terms of current members Chairman Rick Flynn and Steve Fusco expire in April.

"I am not planning on running," said Flynn with no hesitation. "It's been wonderful but it's time for someone else to step up."

Flynn has long been a fixture on the board; he will complete his ninth year on the committee in April. Four of those years he has served as chairman. Before ever serving on the School Committee, he was an Advisory Committee member for six years.

"The whole experience has been great, I've learned a lot and hopefully added something to the public school system in Cohasset," said Flynn.

During his tenure, the physical plant for all the schools have been renovated — on time and on budget, he adds.

"That was an accomplishment of the town as a whole," Flynn said. "We've added lots of teachers and programs to the schools even in the face of challenging financial times…we've tried to move things forward."

Although he notes there have been a few bumps in the road and contentious periods among the committee, he knows now the schools are more or less fiscally in shape, the financial reporting is better and academically speaking Cohasset is succeeding.

"The glass is more full than empty," said Flynn. "If I can look back and know I made some contribution, I feel good about it."

Steve Fusco, who will finish his first-term on the School Committee in April, is still mulling over a re-election campaign. Although he hasn't come to a final decision, he is leaning toward not running for a second term.

"There is a ton that need to get done and I'd like to be a part of it, but right now I'm trying to focus on work," said Fusco. With his full-time job he does a fair amount of traveling, which has forced him to miss School Committee meetings on numerous occasions. Fusco said he will make his final decision on re-election in the early part of 2009.

Ted Carr waves to potential voters as they turn onto Highland Avenue during the 2006 Town Election. Carr won the seat and is currently the Selectmen Chairman. He said this week he plans to seek a second term.

Planning Board

First-term Planning Board member Michael Westcott will not be seeking re-election. A new job with an out-of-state commute he said limits his availability and ability to be actively involved.

"Unfortunately, my commitments out of town in Connecticut will keep me from adequately serving for the foreseeable future," said Westcott. "I certainly will miss what we do and I will stay involved in town in other ways…"I don't want to hold the board back from any decisions or anything at all by virtue of my being out of town for most of the week."

Westcott ran for the Planning Board seat after serving on the Master Plan committee, "I joined based on my work on the Cohasset master plan and my desire to see that work turned into action rather than dust as most plans are reduced to."

In his five years on the board, Westcott has helped to make strides on many ideas found in the Master Plan.

"I am proud to have worked with a great group to advance the interests of the community based on that document. I am please that the board reviewed and has used that as a road map," said Westcott.

The development of the transit-oriented district bylaw and eventual Planning Board approval of the project on Route 3A is among the accomplishments. Encouraging investment in the village and its vitality through the bylaw changes and the results already being seen at the new business in the completed Depot Court building.

"I am also proud that we implemented other initiatives such as the large home bylaw and have worked to give voice to the rights and interests of residents to protect the character and natural beauty of town. All in all, I have been privileged to serve a community I care about with a great group of people on the board," said Westcott.

Water and Sewer Commissions

Both the Water and Sewer Commission (both are three-person boards) have one seat expiring in April. John McNabb of the Water Commission and John Beck, chairmam of the Sewer Commission have terms expiring.

Four-term Water Commissioner John McNabb announced in a press release this week that he would seek re-election in April.

John Beck could not be reached for comment by press time.

In addition to the board listed above the Board of Health, Board of Assessors, Recreation Commission, and Housing Authority each have one seat expiring in April. Paul Pratt Memorial Library Trustees has three terms expiring.

Nomination papers available Jan. 7

Nomination papers for the Annual Town Election for 2009 will be available on Wednesday, January 7, 2009 at the Town Clerk's Office. The last day to take out nomination papers will be Thursday, Feb. 12.

In order to hold an elected office, you must be a registered voter of the town. It is important to note that you are not running for office until you take out papers and the Board of Registrars certifies your signatures.

Positions available for the 2009 town election include: Selectmen — one three-year position; School Committee – two three-year positions; Trustees Paul Pratt Memorial Library – three three-year positions; Assessor—one three-year position; Board of Health — one three-year position; Planning Board — one for five-year position; Recreation Commission – one five-year position; Sewer Commission – one three-year position; and Water Commission — one three-year position.

Annual Town Election will be held on Saturday, April 4, 2009.

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

HOLIDAYS

Hi there Cohasset. I hope that everyone has enjoyed the holidays so far and are looking ahead to a fun vacation week and a welcome to the New Year, 2009!!

The snow this past weekend has been so pretty and fun to play in and a giant thank you is being sent out to all the DPW workers, police/fire people and all the other people who were out plowing, sanding and working together to keep everyone as safe as possible. Now, on to a little bit of news to share and get ready for more as we head on into our wonderful New Year of 2009.

BIRTHDAY WISHES

Happy 40th Birthday wishes are being shouted out to Miss Julie Laugelle as she enjoys her special day on December 29th! Your husband Geri, your two wonderful kiddos, Hannah and Samuel along with your extended family and so many friends all join in together to say HAPPY BIRTHDAY to a fantastic wife, mom and friend.

BC SCHOLARS

William J. Kemeza, president of Boston College High School, announced that Thomas Chase and Erikk Hokenson of Cohasset have been named AP Scholars by the College Board in recognition of their exceptional achievement on the College-Level Advanced Placement (AP) Examinations.

At Boston College High, 126 students received one of the four levels of recognition from the College Board.

Fifty students, including Erikk, qualified for the AP Scholar Award by earning an average grade of 3 or higher on three or more AP Exams they took.

Twenty-three students qualified for the AP Scholar with Honor Award.

Fifty-three students, including Thomas, qualified for the AP Scholar with Distinction Award by earning an average grade of at least 3.5 on all AP Exams taken, and grades of 3 or higher on five or more of these exams.

Erikk is a freshman at the University of St. Andrews, Scotland, Thomas at the University of Notre Dame.

About 18 percent of the more than one million high school students in more than 15,000 secondary schools worldwide, who took AP Exams, performed at a sufficiently high level to merit the recognition of AP Scholar.

AUDITIONS

The Cohasset Dramatic Club announces auditions for its spring musical, "Sweet Charity" the story about a down her luck dance hall girl, Charity Hope Valentine, who's always looking for life's silver lining. With memorable songs such as "If my friends could see me now" and "Big Spender", to name a few, the story was brought to life in the late 60's with Gwen Verdon creating the title role of Charity on broadway.

Shirley MacLaine recreated that title role in the movie in 1969 and that film received 3 Oscar nominations. The show offers terrific roles for women of all ages. It's a dance tour de force with original choreography created by Bob Fosse. Auditions are scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 4th at 6 pm and Monday, Jan. 5th at 7 pm with callbacks if necessary on Tuesday Jan. 7th at 7 pm at Cohasset Town Hall.

Auditioners should prepare 16 bars of the song of their choice. Please bring sheet music. An accompanist will be provided. Also dress comfortably as there will be a dance/movement audition. Some auditioners may be asked to read from the script. Please call Lisa Pratt with questions at 617-852-0091.

That is all for the week. Send in all your news no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm in order for it to be in that week's paper.. However this coming week, I need the news by Monday at 5 p.m. – early deadline!

TASTE OF WINTER

Donning an oversized pair of sunglasses, four-year-old Cliff Stern of New York tries to catch snowflakes on his tongue while he and his family are visiting his grandmother, Jane Kryicos of Cohasset, for the holidays. Saturday's storm produced tons of "catchable" snowflakes.

Notre Dame Academy to host lecture

Photojournalist Paula Lerner will speak on the topic "Giving Afghan Women a Voice" at Notre Dame Academy at 7 p.m., on Wednesday, Jan. 7. Lerner has made multiple trips to Afghanistan documenting the efforts of the organization Bpeace. Her photos chronicle the hardships, resiliency and beauty of Afghan women entrepreneurs in Kabul and Kandahar as they grew their businesses. In addition to the lecture, Lerner's work will be on display at the Academy.

A Harvard graduate, Lerner's passion for women's issues has been a recurring theme in her more than 20-year career. She has traveled from the rainforests of Brazil to the back roads of New England and her work has appeared in Smithsonian, People, Time, Business Week and Der Spiegel, among others.

This event is free and open to the public. If interested in attending, call 781.749.5930, ext. 244. Notre Dame Academy is at 1073 Main St., Hingham.

Little things can make a big difference

Fourth grader designs inspirational shirt

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"I've learned you can just be different, be yourself, every little thing you do can make a big difference in the world."
— Maggie Queenan

STAFF PHOTOS/ROBIN CHAN

Helping others come easy for fourth grader Maggie Queenan, 9, who will be donating the sales of her shirt, "little things make a big difference", to the Smile Train, a charity whose mission is to provide free cleft surgery to poor children in developing countries.

Nine-year-old Maggie Queenan may be in the fourth grade, but she's already learned that she can make a difference in other's lives.

This holiday season, Maggie placed a simple, yet powerful message on a t-shirt in the hopes of doing something good for others — and she has succeeded on more than one front.

In baby blue with specks of glitter on a Rudolph-red nose shirt, the message is brilliant in it simplicity: "Little things make a big difference."

"I am such a little thing, but I can make such a big difference in the world by helping people," Maggie explained.

In addition to gaining self-confidence, through her message she might inspire others and, to top it off, the net profits from the sale of the long-sleeve t-shirt will go to a charity specifically chosen by Maggie.

Maggie collaborated with Jenifer Hoffman, her Bayberry Road neighbor and founder of the lifestyle messaging company, Emotional Armor, to create a meaningful message and an appropriate canvas.

Maggie came to Hoffman this fall to ask if she could do a project and come up with her own inspirational message. Hoffman immediately agreed to help her and told her the first step was to come up with a meaningful message.

Fourth grader Maggie Queenan, 9, holds a bunch of presents filled with shirts that she made. The profits from the sale of the shirts will go to the Smile Train.

The initial concept for the phrase came to Maggie in a flash. She and Hoffman's daughter, also named Maggie, were raking leaves in the yard. Maggie Hoffman was trying to tackle the yard full of leaves. Maggie Queenan advised her to take little amounts and they eventually would add up to bigger amount. Aha! She thought she had found her message. She ran to see Mrs. Hoffman.

Hoffman was encouraging, but said she wasn't quite there yet. She told Maggie she had a bigger message in her and needed to play around with the phrasing.

Two days later Maggie was working on her math homework when she looked over at a pile of shoes. The shoes were part of a project her older brother was doing; he was collecting shoes to be given to the less fortunate.

It was her eureka moment.

"It was a little thing he was doing but he was making a big difference in someone's life," said Maggie. And there was her phrase: "Little things make a big difference."

She set out to write a page-long handwritten note to Hoffman about her idea and what it meant to her. She explained how she thought of the phrase and why she believed it was a positive message.

The message is universal and can resonate with each individual wearing it in a different way. It can mean by making a difference for the environment by committing to recycling or helping an elderly neighbor with the raking. Or it could mean although you might be little physically, you can still do amazing things to make a difference in the world (that's the way one of her petite customers took it to mean).

At the crux of what Emotional Armor does is the net profits from the sale of merchandise is donated directly to non-profit organizations. The net profits from sales are being used to start an innovative empowerment program for children as well as helping to fund groundbreaking efforts in violence prevention. Both are efforts are close to Hoffman's heart.

Similarly, in Maggie's project, she was charged to pick a charity close to her heart to donate her profits to. She chose Smile Train, a charity whose mission is to provide free cleft surgery to poor children in developing countries. Emotional Armor will present Maggie with a check for Smile Train when all her shirts have sold. Hoffman gave Maggie her project one step at a time. When she came to her with the phrase, Hoffman gave her the swatches to pick the colors for the shirt, then she chose the recipient of her profits and finally they went together to pick out the packaging for the product.

Maggie, who is very detail oriented, coordinated the shirts baby blue and silver writing by wrapping it in blue tissue paper and a silver bow.

Maggie worked largely independently during the development of the message and shirt. Through the whole process, Hoffman has been impressed with Maggie's maturity, "it's hard to remember she's nine."

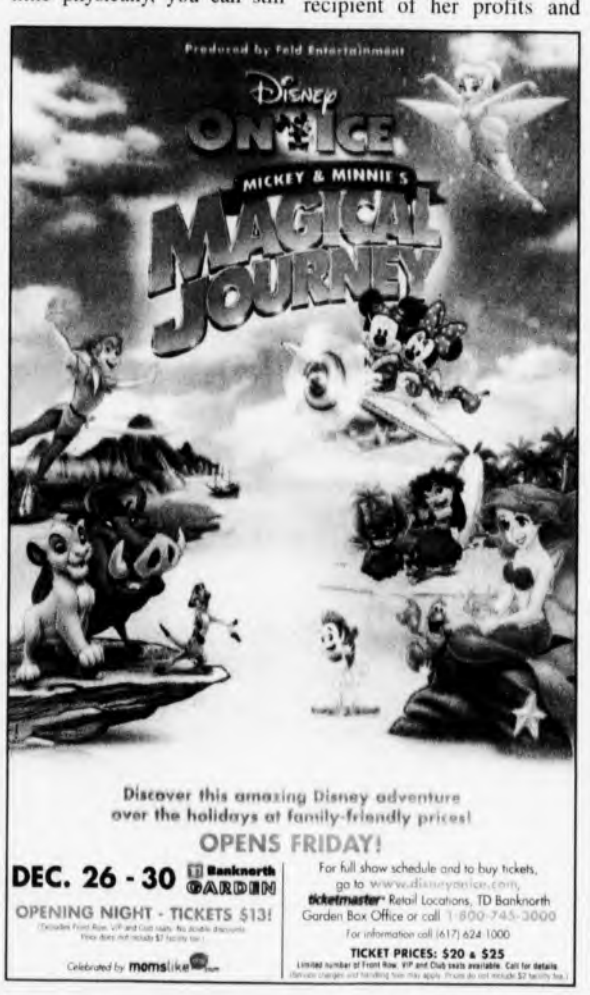
Working on the project as a whole has been a fun experience, but she particularly enjoyed the design elements: choosing the colors and the packaging for the shirts.

Hoffman said that doesn't surprise her, "the thing about Maggie is she always is putting colors together you wouldn't otherwise see. She has a strong sense of color…she walks to the beat of her own drum."

One of the greatest moments was when the package containing the shirts arrived at her front door, "I have never seen Maggie that excited," said Hoffman.

The project seems to be a win for all involved.

"I've learned you can just be different, be yourself, every little thing you do can make a big difference in the world," said Maggie.



"We are so proud of her. I really think she could make a big difference — she already has," said Maggie's mom, Carolyn Queenan.

Hoffman is proud as well, ""I believe there is this thing called emotional currency that can never be taken away regardless of what's happening with stock market. It's a seed of empathy, they learn to believe in themselves and to care for others."

The only place the shirts are available is at The COOP in Hingham Square, a recently opened shop that displays the wares of women entrepreneurs. Maggie is the youngest of them all.

Maggie's shirts have been flying off the shelves; outselling even the other Emotional Armor wares. In the first day the COOP was open, three of the shirts were purchased.

Let there be peace on Earth

It seemed like the war would never end.

Battles raged across the countryside, as brother fought brother.

Four years earlier, at a time when the bitterness between the North and South had erupted into the Civil War, he had lost his beloved wife from burns suffered in a tragic accident.

Now, like bookends on grief, his son Charles lay crippled from a battle wound.

Over these four long years, his journal entries as the Christmas season unfolded reflected uncharacteristic sadness. The prior year, he had made no entry at all.

Then, on Dec. 25, 1864, months before the war ended at Appomattox, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow poured out his heart in a poem that was to become the carol, "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day."

As church bells chimed out peace and goodwill in the wintry air, Longfellow sat at his desk and wrote:

"And in despair I hung my head.

There is no peace on Earth I said.

For hate is strong, and mocks the song, of peace on Earth, good will toward men."

As the day passed, he moved forward and found triumph over despair:

"Then the bells rang more loud and deep, God is not dead, nor does He sleep.

Hate will fail, the right prevail, of Peace on Earth, good will toward men."

In these turbulent times, as we pause to celebrate a joyous time in our spiritual calendar, it seems a lot easier to find presents at the mall than to find inner peace.

We yearn to toss aside sadness and cares like a threadbare coat and let peace, joy, and hope flow over us. Yet harsh realities crowd in. How can we feel joy, allow ourselves to feel joy, when we see suffering around us? We do as much as we can, donating canned goods to the food pantry and perhaps plucking a paper star off a community Christmas tree to buy a present for a child in need.

Yet, even as we pray for serenity, we may wonder what good inner peace is, in this war-prone world.

We forget that the greatest contribution we can make to world peace is to let the light of peace dwell within us.

We can never underestimate the power of one person choosing peace. Think of how the lives of the Lord Jesus Christ, Ghandi, and Dr. Martin Luther King changed the world forever.

Even as we are inspired by these great lives, we wonder what effect we can have. We are not world leaders. But we can do our part in increasing the light of peace.

It's like each of us can be a glowing candle. A few candles together make a pool of light. All over the world, despite raging wars, rampaging disease, poverty, and hunger, such pools of light exist.

Each time a candle lights, each time a pool forms, the light increases.

One day, the pools of light will increase and merge into a peaceful world.

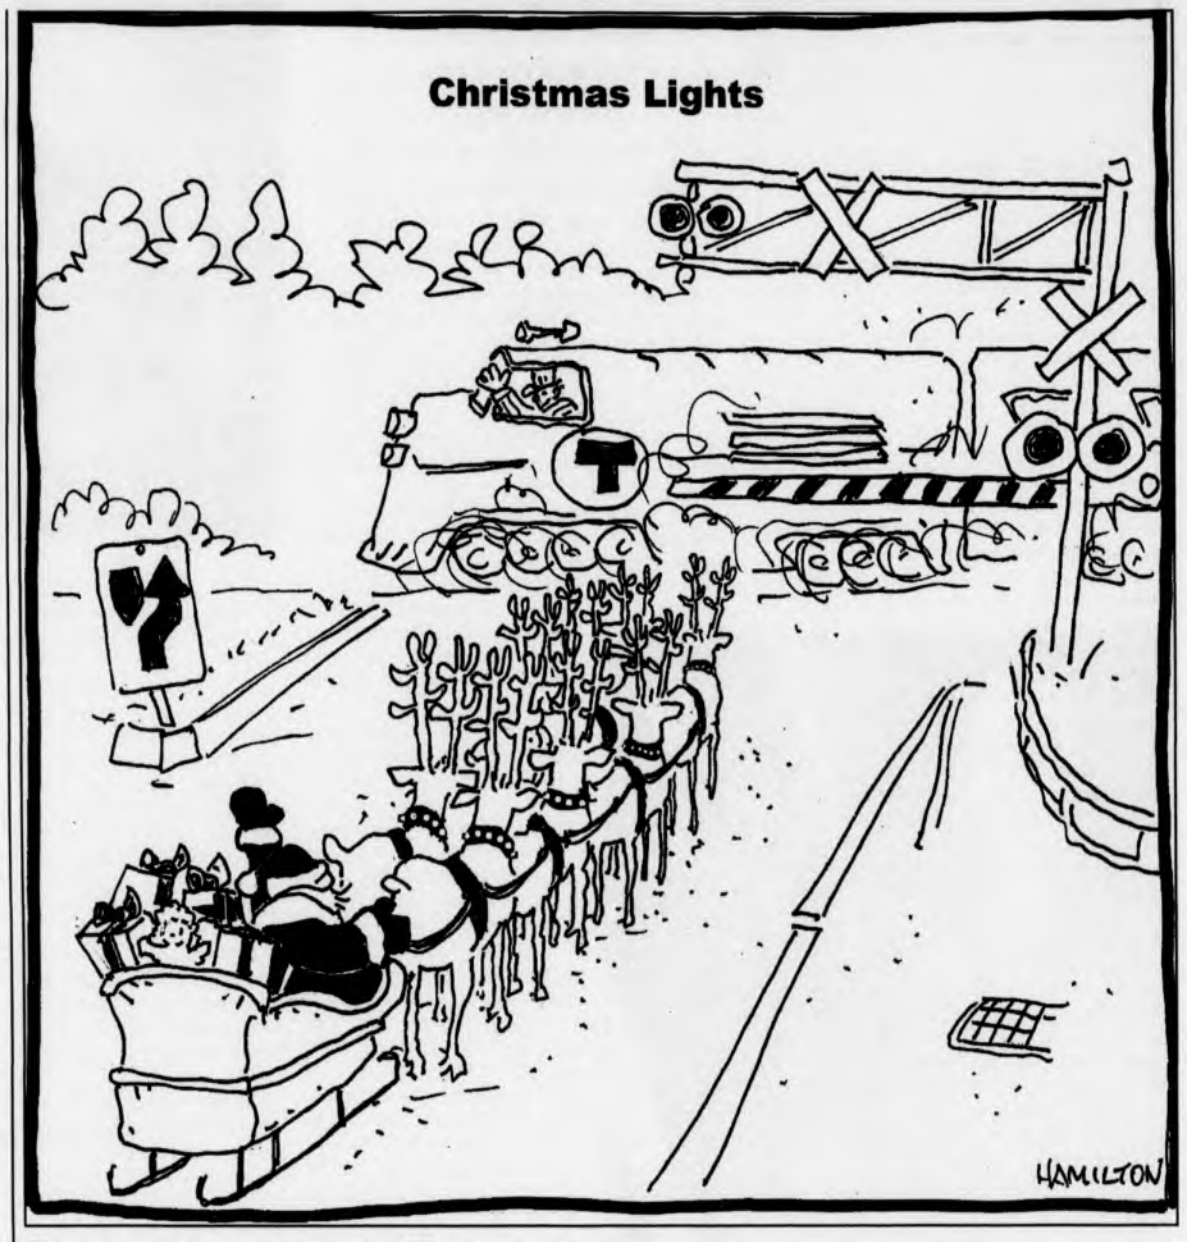
Until then, it is so important to keep our light from being dimmed.

And we are never too young to hear this message.

"Peace will come to all, if we just follow the Light," cowboy star Gene Autry sang in the beloved children's classic "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," reminding youngsters about the true meaning of Christmas even while the little ones anticipated all those goodies from Santa's sack.

Longfellow found peace by looking forward to the time when peace would come once again to a country, a peace he didn't know was just months away.

It's by looking forward and moving forward that we progress. In the midst of a difficult situation, moving forward is the order of the day.



Background for the carol "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day" and the life of Longfellow were drawn from Web site www.whatsaiththescriptures.com, where more information about Longfellow may be found. Looking up the stories behind this and other songs of the season is a fun way to truly understand and appreciate their meaning.

Many of us have sung the words, "Let there be peace on Earth, and let it begin with me."

Those words, put in practice, can change the world.

Our peace is the hope of our friends, our families, and our world.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Legion family appreciated

TO THE EDITOR:

The following letter was addressed to Stephen Wigmore, Commander George H. Mealey Post 118, 88 Summer St., Cohasset. A copy was provided to the Mariner for publication.

Dear Commander Wigmore,

Once again the Legion has outdone themselves with a home-cooked turkey dinner with all the trimmings, served by jovial Legion member elves to the delight of all attending.

Dessert, coffee and schnapps topped off the meal and the drawings for the poinsettia plants has always been a hit.

The sad note for this great evening was a member who was missing, Dee you were missed!

Once again, thanks for such a great evening.

Arlene H. Tuohey, President
Harborview Tenants Association

Scouts thanked for kindness

The following letter was addressed to Jan Blackington, 118 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset. A copy was provided to the Mariner for publication.

Dear Jan and Troop 4870 leaders,

What can we say – words are just never enough to express our gratitude for the effort, kindness and the music you bring to us each year. The cards were beautiful and the Christmas caroling and songs always put folks in a happy mood.

We are especially grateful that Harborview continues to be in your thoughts and remembered each year. The gifts of the lighted tree, candy canes and snowflakes surprised and delighted many of our residents. They are being proudly displayed on the grass in the front of our community building for all to see.

We thank you for sharing your families with us at this busy time of the year.

CANDIDATE'S CORNER

McNabb seeking reelection to Water Commission

Water Commissioner John McNabb has announced he will be a candidate for re-election at the April 4, 2009 Town Election. McNabb, 52, has served four terms since he was first elected to the Board of Water Commissioners in 1997.

"While we have made significant progress over the past 12 years, there is still much that needs to be done to ensure that Cohasset continues to have a state-of-the art 21st Century water system," said McNabb. "We need to retrofit the Lily Pond Treatment Plant with the MIEX pretreatment system to meet the upcoming more stringent federal drinking water standards. We also need to complete more loops in the distribution system to reduce the number of dead ends and to increase water pressure in the higher elevation areas of the Town."

McNabb cited some of the accomplishments from his 12 years on the Board so far. "We have replaced or rehabilitated more than 50 percent of the water distribution mains," said McNabb, "which has improved fire protection and water service. We have replaced almost all of the major components of the Lily Pond Water Treatment Plant, installed a state of the art SCADA system to automate plant operations, and have built 36 raingardens to passively clean stormwater before it enters Lily Pond." In 2003, the Department was awarded the Public Water System Award by the Department of Environmental Protection for outstanding performance.

John McNabb

McNabb has presented two papers at regional conferences of the New England Works Association (NEWWA). In 2007 his presentation focused on how the Cohasset Water Department has successfully recovered from the 1994-1995 water emergency where large parts of town were without water. In 2008 he presented a paper that analyzed the Massachusetts drinking water infrastructure and called on the state to provide more financial assistance to local water departments to improve their water infrastructure.

McNabb will be presenting a paper at the April 1-2, 2009 NEWWA conference in Worcester on the Water Commissions watershed protection program, and at the April 8-10, 2009 American Water Works Association (AWWA) National Water Security Congress in Washington, DC on a potential security vulnerability to the national drinking water infrastructure.

McNabb has also served on several other town boards and committees, including the Board of Trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, the Committee to Survey the Structure and Functions of Town Government, the Stormwater Committee, the Water Resources Protection Committee, and the Recycling Committee. For seven years, 1998-2005, he served as one of Cohasset's representatives to the South Shore Recycling Cooperative, which he co-founded.

McNabb, who lives at 53 Pond St., works as Director of Research & Policy at the Boston office of Clean Water Action, a national environmental group, where he has worked since 1999. He is also President of South Shore PC Services, which provides computer services to homeowners and small businesses on the South Shore.

Being snowed in has its blessings

CHANGING LANES

KATHERINE BENNETT

Christmas came early for me this year. I got to soak in my children and appreciate the fact that my 5 year old probably won't sing "Jingle Bell Wock" forever.

I am grateful for the snow. It goes beyond the whole "white Christmas" thing because the cynic in me can't help but feel we are in for months of brown sugar and slippery sidewalks. I am glad that my plans for last weekend were changed and that my family and I were snowed in.

Every year I seem to get too wound up by all the hubbub surrounding Christmas. There's so much to do – gifts to deliver, cookies to make, children to manage. Trying to arrive with four smudge-free children anywhere when chocolate chips are being squirreled away in pockets is a lesson in humility. As we pass each moment, the historian in me feels compelled to capture each experience on film, as if to create an archive of propaganda for my children. I can see myself 20 years from now sitting in some sort of futuristic psychiatrists office with my grown children. I will be insisting "But we made gingerbread houses. They had happy childhoods!"

Last Saturday, we had to miss a meaningful family gathering because we weren't sure it would be a good idea to drive a few hours north into the storm and risk getting stuck. Noontime on Saturday, the day lay before us, and there was nothing on the agenda. Four children spun with manic joy as they watched inch after inch of snow erase mommy's need to be out and about.

My first thought was "What am I going to do with them?," knowing full well that the amount of time it takes to dress children properly for the snow is inversely proportional to the time someone will declare "I have to go to the bathroom". Lauren, Molly and Little Drew were game for making igloos and playing with Einstein, our giant Bernese mountain dog who bounds and gallops through the snow. Austin, however, does not like to be cold and would rather play on the computer, so any fantasies of a blissful day of family togetherness outdoors was short lived.

After racking my brain for something we could all do together (and facing the reality I did not have the inner strength to muster the enthusiasm for another Monopoly death match), I remembered the Easy Bake oven I had gotten the children for Christmas. Enlisting the help of my very take charge 11 year old, I let the children have the oven early and gave them each three bags of Easy Bake "ingredients". Molly was a superstar, helping each of her siblings create the culinary delights of party cakes and pretzels with cheesy toppings (how that happens from a powder I don't want to know). I did my best to ignore that all of the children really liked the just add water mixes better than anything I was offering them to eat. We did not eat lunch. Easy bake creations were more than enough.

In a million years, I would not have guessed that my four children (5, 7, 9 and 11) could be satisfied by something so simple. I'm so used to planning ahead and trying to anticipate a developmentally appropriate activity for each child. They didn't need that. They didn't need to make any more Christmas ornaments or hear educational and spiritually enriching stories. My children did just fine with 12 bags of cleverly packaged refined sugar and a glorified box with a light bulb in it. There was peace and joy. All I had to do was step out of the way and let it happen.

This is a great lesson for me. When best-laid plans are scuttled by the intrusion of reality, it's my tendency to get stuck in the disappointment of "things not turning out as they should." Change is hard. There's the mild disappointment when the plans for a day fall through, but there are larger anxieties that come when life circumstances change. Instead of an event being canceled, some of us are experiencing job loss and financial crisis. Families experience deaths and fractured relationships. Our fantasies for the future often have to be radically altered because life changes. I can get caught in the trap of thinking "if only" and "things should be different."

This blizzard was an unplanned blessing. I had a moment to reflect and realized that in life, the word "should" is not very helpful. As individuals, we control very little beyond our capacity to respond to the changes in life. Parents, children, spouses, employers, friends, and even the weather may behave in ways that we do not always appreciate. We have a choice. We can rant and rave about the way things "should have turned out." We can daydream retroactively about the fact we "should" have been promoted. We can nurse the wounds our loved ones inflict upon our egos when they make foolish choices.

Or, we can adjust. We can find the blessings on the other side of seeming catastrophe. If we take a deep breath and absorb the hit of the new reality, we often learn that there are people standing behind us, ready to buoy us up with kindnesses large and small. I think of my neighbor who plows my driveway before I even ask. I think of a school secretary who offers words of encouragement and a soft touch to my preteen daughter at just the right moment. I see how friendships mature when the challenges in life leave us no energy for false sentiment. Love grows when we suffer and people are there for us.

When I have responded to unexpected disappointments with a rigid smile and a brittle "We're just fine here," I block the possibilities of Plan B. Until the old "should" is released, I cannot be open to a new solution. Saturday morning I was pretty bummed out to miss a great party. Until I let that go, I was stressed and disheartened by the thought my children were going to make a giant mess and spend all day saying "But I already played in the snow and I'm BOOOOORED!"

Christmas came early for me this year. I got to soak in my children and appreciate the fact that my 5 year old probably won't sing "Jingle Bell Wock" forever. After being the honored guest in a giant blanket house, I got to curl up on the sofa and do some reading.

Plan B is full of blessings. Maybe status, money, or the connections we "should maintain" slip away. No worries. Change brings possibilities we can't imagine yet. Joy, in some form or another, is around the corner.

May you all have a blessed 2009.

Hanging onto faith and hope

MAMA DIARIES

DEBBIE SQUIRES-LEE

It is no coincidence that Hanukkah and Kwaanza and Diwali and Christmas and the Solstice are about light and candles and bonfires.

The holidays are becoming challenging. Very challenging. My aunt's cancer has returned. Surgery is not an option. A good friend's mother's breast cancer has come back. My best friend's mother may be dying. Good friends are facing surgery. Serious surgeries. Friends and acquaintances in and around town have recently been diagnosed with breast cancer, or are facing its resurgence. Many friends far and near have lost their jobs.

And I have lost my merry. I have no happy. And good cheer? Hard to come by. How do you celebrate Christmas, Hanukkah or any of the winter holidays when tragedy is lurking around every lighted window?

Frankly, I've been embroiled in my funk.

Then, recently, a friend sent me a Solstice greeting. The handwritten message said, "May the peace of the stillness of the season be with you as your spirit is renewed with the return of the sun." It was exactly what I needed at exactly the right time. I was struck silent and filled with calm, and I was reminded.

I was reminded that all of the winter holidays celebrate renewal, the return of the sun. It is no coincidence that Hanukkah and Kwaanza and Diwali and Christmas and the Solstice are about light and candles and bonfires. Because on the darkest day, in the darkest time, all we have is hope and faith.

Hope and faith that the sun will rise, and that spring will come. That better times are before us. And that love, which always shines brightest when it is needed most, will sustain us. We just need to hang on through the darkness. In peace and stillness. With hope and faith.

That, I can do. Even without the merry or the happy, I can hold onto the central meaning of the winter holidays. Even in the midst of sickness, and uncertainty, we can hold onto hope. We can hold onto faith.

I have been teaching our little ones at church two songs for our upcoming holiday pageant. One starts, "Candles, candles, burning brightly, to celebrate the miracle of Hanukkah light." Their little voices belt out those words with such confident assurance. That the candles do burn brightly. There is power in that faith – whatever your religious convictions. There is power in the faith in tomorrow. The days will lengthen, the sun will rise. My friends and family may still be sick, or out of work, but I can hold on with hope and faith that they, and I, will be OK.

So if there is no Merry in your Christmas, no Happy in your Hanukkah, or if you cannot summon any good cheer, just hang onto faith and hope. It will have to do.

As my friend's Solstice card ended, I end: "May the darkest night and the re-birth of the sun bring you peace with perfect love and perfect trust." Peace.

HEALTH NOTES

Keeping your waistline in check

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Actually, the traditional Christmas dinner can provide a well balanced meal if one accepts that vegetables and to a lesser extent, potatoes make up a part of the meal. Remorse about overindulgence may even be helpful.

Happily, Christmas comes but once a year and it's a time to eat drink and be merry, but as the parties start, so do temptations, assaults on conscience and control.

Last week, we talked about anxieties, but the holidays create situations that also may affect your physical wellness. A primary barrier to feeling well is a hangover, nonetheless the board doesn't advocate old-fashioned temperance; nor does anyone expect to be particularly careful about diet and heeding all the advice we see about moderation. So is it possible to enjoy Christmas festivities without harm to our bodies? If you can't feel good about the holidays, what's the point? Lets face it, during holidays diets and other activities change. The plan should be not to let excesses derail the good practices of diet and exercise built up over the rest of the year.

An English dietician has said "On average, people add the equivalent of about four and a half pounds of sugar (to their regular diet) in the four weeks over the festive period." She further says "People misunderstand what actually puts the weight on. They think it's just fat, and that by avoiding fatty food they will avoid weight gain, but in fact it's carbohydrates that put on most of the weight." Sugar, flour and butter, the main ingredients in almost all cookies (called short bread).

Actually, the traditional Christmas dinner can provide a well balanced meal if one accepts that vegetables and to a lesser extent, potatoes make up a part of the meal. Remorse about overindulgence may even be helpful.

Of course, exercise is a key factor in keeping unwanted weight off. Our English dietician says those at risk of gaining weight exercise sporadically, increase the intake carbohydrates (read cookies, etc.) then add the alcohol."

Oh yes, holiday alcohol. Apparently alcohol reduces the effects of beta carotene introduced into the system by healthy vegetables such as carrots and squash. In addition, those taking beta carotene pills designed to reduce arterial plaque, a major contributor to stroke and heart attack, should understand that alcohol substantially reduces the effect of such pills. So what can we do if we want to avoid the post Christmas bulge? "Taking a nice brisk walk can do wonders and help make you feel refreshed," says our charming nutritionist.

Plan — We also learn planning is what is needed to keep your waistline in check. "Just think about what's healthy and what's not. For example if I know I'm going to be going to a lot of buffets, they usually have things that just sit in your stomach – so if you get to the buffet early you can go for the salads, raw vegetables – rather than solid stuff like sandwiches, sausage rolls and other pastry-based food types."

What's good? Meat, fish which is easier on the digestion than red meat, nuts and seeds which are protein rich; and what's not:

The Worst News of all: "Chocolates can be a problem because they are loaded with sugar and additives unless they're organic. The cocoa bean is the most sprayed crop on the planet so you may enjoy it but you're getting a high cocktail of chemicals which your body has to deal with."

Fortunately, our advisor is miles away in time and space so we have some latitude. Perhaps the best thing to do is relax, enjoy ourselves and use the common sense we are going to need this Christmas season and into the future. And of course have the finest of holidays and a safe and happy New Year.

Little guys of the year

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

Well, another year has passed. Time for the big city media to pick their Men or Women of the Year, the individuals who have made life mostly miserable for the rest of us. Me, I choose the little guy, the one who didn't do us any harm or gave us a laugh, guys like:

Michael Horton of Topeka, Kan., won not one, but two cars, a Saturn Outlook and a Mitsubishi Langer, in 10 days in two separate contests, and then tickets to a Kansas City Chiefs football game in a third.

Ken Mink, expelled from Lees College in Kentucky, enrolled in Roane State Community College in Tennessee, made the basketball team and scored two points against the King College Jayvees. Ken is 73.

Curt Hocker shot five holes-in-one in a six-day span at the El Paso Golf Club in Kappa, Ill., including two on the same day. Now, there's something for Tiger Woods to shoot at.

Lorenzo Knight of Tampa, Fla., a burglar, hid in the portable toilet on a construction site to escape the police when a couple of his victims tipped it over, covering him with . . . well, you know what.

Bobby Guffey of Roanoke, Ind., always played the same number in the Hoosier Lottery but this day he forgot his bifocals, entered a "48" instead of the usual "46," and the ticket won him $3 million.

Benjamin Boukpeti was ranked only 56th in the world but he won the bronze medal in the men's single kayak slalom in the Beijing Olympics, the first ever medal won by an athlete from Togo. Another medal goes to the guy who can show us Togo on a map.

Brother Cesare Bonizzi, a Capuchin monk living in a monastery near Milan, Italy, was discovered moonlighting as the lead singer in Brother Metal, a heavy metal band. Ever hear sex, booze and drugs in a Gregorian chant?

James Colliton of New York, indicted for raping two teen-aged girls, sued American Express for violating his privacy by telling the authorities where his credit card had been used, leading to his arrest.

Not to be outdone, Keith Hempstead sued the Raleigh, N.C., News & Observer, claiming it was not the paper he paid for after it laid off 70 members of the staff and cut the number of news pages. Right on, Ken.

Ashley Martinez was given a prize by the Chicago Public Schools for her perfect attendance record — a brand new $15,000 Dodge Caliber — but she can't drive it for at least another four years. Ashley is only 12.

Bennett Christianson, age 6, of Illinois filled out an application for a credit card, listing his birth date as 2002 and his income as $0, got one with a $600 limit anyway. The kid's real name isn't Madoff, is it?

Appa Sherpa, a 48-year-old Nepalese guide, climbed Mount Everest, the highest mountain in the world, for the 18th time in 18 years. So much for Sir Edmund Hillary and Tensing Norkay.

Dale Davis, 78, of Alta, Iowa, bowled 12 consecutive strikes for a perfect 300 game, despite the fact that he is legally blind.

And lastly, Edith Pittenger likes the Indianapolis 500 so much that her relatives gave her a gift certificate for the "Indy Racing Experience," two spins around the track at 180 miles an hour.

"I don't know how I can top this," she said. She'd better hurry. Edith is 96 years old and a great-great-grandmother.

'Our Town' to focus on Cohasset Conservation Trust

On "Our Town," viewers can watch a new show detailing the work of the Cohasset Conservation Trust. Co-host Mark DeGiacomo, a trustee with the group, sits down with fellow board members Debbie Shadd and Gary Vanderweil to discuss the efforts of the group to protect and preserve some of Cohasset's most beautiful landscape.

Co-host Pat Martin goes behind the camera to film the trustees touring and highlighting six of the 18 properties the trust maintains.

Tune in starting Monday, at 9 p.m., or Tuesday or Thursday, at 9 p.m., all on Comcast Channel 10.

Roadside safety gains House OK

State Rep. Garrett J. Bradley has announced the House of Representatives recently approved legislation that will improve roadside safety by requiring drivers to clear the right lane when emergency vehicles displaying flashing lights are parked along highways. The goal of the "Slow Down, Move-Over" legislation is to provide roadside safety professionals, including state troopers and emergency responders, with a safe margin as they assist motorists in trouble.

"Too many times we hear of injuries, or worse, to our state troopers and emergency personnel, who risk their own lives when assisting motorists in need of help," said Bradley. "I am hopeful that this important legislation will become law and will make our roadways a safer place by providing an additional measure of protection to our troopers and first responders as they do their jobs."

Bradley opens district office on Fridays

State Rep. Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham, has opened a new district office at the Sons of Italy Hall, 88 Chief Justice Cushing Highway in Hingham.

The office will be staffed most Fridays, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., with the exception of the third Friday each month when the office will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Precinct 3 residents in Hingham, Hull, Cohasset and Scituate are welcome to visit or call the district office at 781-749-3331. An appointment is not necessary.

Additionally, residents are reminded that they may call Bradley's State House office at 617-722-2460 Monday through Friday.

Free legal clinics

The Bar Association of Norfolk County will sponsor free evening legal clinics as a public service to the community. A panel of attorneys experienced in all areas of the law will be available for a one-on-one consultation to discuss legal questions. All consultations are confidential.

Legal clinics will take place from 6 to 8 p.m., on Tuesday evenings, in Quincy District Court as follows: April 7, May 19, June 2, July 7 and Aug. 4.

For more information, call Adrienne C. Clark, Bar Association of Norfolk County, at 617-471-9693.

Food pantry items needed

The Cohasset Food Pantry is need of the following items:

Cereal, spaghetti sauce, mayonnaise, mustard, ketchup, tuna, peanut butter, jelly, canned vegetables, canned fruit, juice, sugar, paper towels, kleenex, bar soap, dish detergent, laundry detergent, shampoo, and canned hash.

Anyone wishing to make a food donation can drop it off at 9 Black Horse Lane on the front porch. The Food Pantry thanks you in advance for your continued generosity.

Standard procedure

Form requested for capital budget petitions

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"There is now a structure in place that can be replicated and hopefully improved upon."
— Steve Gaumer, Capital Budget Committee

To ensure all departments and committees are on the same page, at least when it comes to capital budget requests, the Capital Budget Committee has instituted a standard request form for the upcoming budget season.

For all capital project and equipment requests a page and a half form must be submitted to the committee. Departments and boards will begin to meet with the Capital Budget Committee in late January and February in preparation for Annual Town Meeting in March.

"We consistently ask the same questions of everybody," said Steve Gaumer, chairman. "We know what we're going to ask, but the petitioners don't always know…to some degree different parties are more or less not prepared for our questions."

The process can be frustrating for both the committee and the petitioner.

"We looking at improving the practice," said Gaumer, in a phone interview.

The request form asked the department for essential details they feel they need to make an informed recommendation to Town Meeting. The Capital Budget makes recommendations for capital expenditures, but Town Meeting has the ultimate authority over how the money is spent. Equipment/project description, fiscal year of the request, cost estimate, estimated useful life, what the equipment is replacing, justification of expenditure, future maintenance costs, and if alternatives have been explored are all asked of the applicant.

Gaumer said the committee is not looking to burden the departments with an additional task, but look at addressing capital in a consistent and coherent way.

"We are a town with limited resources and with that as a backdrop we have to be careful how money is spent," said Gaumer. The Capital Budget Committee twice annually in anticipation of Annual or Special Town Meeting hears requests for upwards of $2 million needs across all town departments. Historically, the committee has only a few hundred thousand dollars to dole out. They have had to prioritizing the most immediate needs of the town.

Departments were charged with not only completing the forms for the upcoming round of capital requests, but also their capital needs through 2014.

To develop a more streamlined methodology, members of the Capital Budget Committee and Town Manager Bill Griffin looked to other communities that are successfully in capital planning.

"The best of the bunch had, at the very least, a preliminary sheet of information," said Gaumer. The form ensures basic information about the request is available and the department has given serious thought to the request.

Gaumer hopes the practice outlives the current board. "There is now a structure in place that can be replicated and hopefully improved upon," he said.

The Capital Budget Committee is attempting to be less reactionary and more proactive in planning for capital needs. At the 2008 Annual Town Meeting, voters authorized the creation of the capital stabilization fund.

The capital stabilization fund serves as a mechanism to fund future capital purchases. The plan is to put future debt service roll-off into the stabilization fund and use it to maintain and replace the town's capital assets. The success of the stabilization fund will rely on an annual vote at town meeting to move the debt service over to the stabilization fund.

Before the stabilization fund, free cash was used. The amount of free cash available during any given year fluctuated making it difficult to plan ahead.

"The town has begun paying in cash for known expenses rather than living on a hope and prayer," said Gaumer.

Capital requests for schools

After the holidays, budget and Town Meeting season will kick into high gear. School administration and committee are preparing to present multiple requests to the Capital Budget Committee in early February.

The schools will be seeking funding for a three year lease-to-buy purchase plan for two new school buses and a special needs van. For fiscal year 2010, the cost would be $70,415. The current high maintenance cost of the aging vehicles and safety concerns make this request a top priority for the schools. If no money is available in the capital budget, the schools have made room in their own operating budget for the items.

The schools are also making a request for replacement of classroom computers at an estimated cost of $100,000.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' and senators' votes on two roll calls from prior legislative sessions. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

$100,000 FOR PROGRAM TO MONITOR PRIMARY STROKE SERVICE HOSPITALS (H 5000)

House 137-19, Senate 38-0, overrode Gov. Deval Patrick's veto of $100,000 to oversee the operation and administration of the Massachusetts Primary Stroke Service Designation Hospital program that was established in 2004. This program certifies and designates qualified hospitals as Primary Stroke Service Hospitals if they meet strict guidelines for treating individuals with stroke symptoms. To obtain state certification, hospitals must meet various standards including the ability to provide immediate emergency treatment by a medical staff trained in stroke treatment and with experience in administering tissue plasminogen activator (tPA) - a clot-busting drug. Emergency vehicles transporting patients with stroke symptoms are automatically directed to one of these certified hospitals. Supporters of keeping the $100,000 said that administration of the drug in the first crucial hours can save lives and prevent brain damage and disability. They noted that the $100,000 for the administration of this program is needed in order to monitor these hospitals and ensure that they are keeping up with the standards of the certification. In his veto message, the governor said, "I am striking language which earmarks funding for Mass Primary Stroke Service not recommended." (A "Yes" vote is for overriding Patrick's veto and for keeping the $100,000. A "No" vote is against overriding Patrick's veto and against keeping the $100,000).

$360,000 FOR FAMILY HEALTH AND PLANNING SERVICES (H 5000)

House 131-25, Senate 38-0, overrode Gov. Patrick's $360,000 veto reduction (from 7.62 million to 7.26 million) in funding for the division of family health services including comprehensive family planning services. According to the state's website, these planning services include complete gynecological and breast exams; diagnosis and treatment of sexually transmitted diseases; HIV counseling and testing; emergency contraception; pregnancy testing and birth control including all contraceptive methods.

Supporters of keeping the $360,000 said that this funding is essential to these important health programs that help thousands of low-income women, men, and adolescents across the state. In his veto message, Patrick said that he is "reducing this item to the amount projected to be necessary." Some opponents said that they oppose the $360,000 because some of these programs are pro-abortion, encourage emergency contraception and distribute condoms. (A "Yes" vote is for overriding Patrick's reduction and for keeping the $360,000. A "No" vote is against overriding Patrick's reduction and against keeping the $360,000).

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

REQUIRE SPRINKLERS IN COMMERCIAL BUILDINGS (H 4969) - The House approved and sent to the Senate a proposed statewide law requiring that an automatic sprinkler system be installed if any addition to a commercial building results in the entire structure totaling more than 7,500 square. Current law is an optional one that communities can choose to adopt. It is also weaker and requires sprinklers only if the addition itself, not the entire building, is more than 7,500 feet. Supporters of the statewide law said that it will save lives and injuries and noted that with the exception of the 911 tragedy, there have never been multiple deaths from a fire in a commercial building with an automatic sprinkler system. They noted that the current local option law is ineffective and contains a giant loophole. They argued that it allows builders to add thousands of square feet to a building through a series of separate projects over a period of years without ever being required to add a sprinkler system because each addition is less than 7,500 feet.

GIVE GRANDPARENTS DECISION MAKING AUTHORITY (H 4718) - The Senate approved a House-approved bill allowing parents or legal guardians of minor children to give grandparents and other caregivers who are living with and caring for the children on a day-to-day basis the authority to make decisions about their health care and education. The authority would be granted through a written affidavit signed by the parents or legal guardians and would specifically state the authority and the length of time that it is granted to the caregivers. Supporters said that an estimated 3,500 children are essentially being raised by grandparents and other relatives who do not have legal custody. They argued that this pro-child bill would give parents the right to grant these caregivers important decision-making authority while not revoking legal custody from the parents. Only final House and Senate approval are needed prior to the measure going to Gov. Patrick.

HOME OIL SPILLS (S 2404)- The Senate approved legislation requiring homeowner insurance policies sold in Massachusetts to include coverage for the cost of cleaning up home heating oil spills. The measure also requires homeowners who have oil tanks to upgrade their systems by January 2010 in order to help prevent spills. Supporters said that there are some 400 home heating oil spills annually in Massachusetts and noted that cleanups cost an average of $50,000. They argued that many homeowners cannot afford the costs and are surprised to find out that their policies do not cover them. The House has already approved its own version of the bill. The Senate version now goes to the House for consideration.

ISS helps families stay Homesafe, make a Fresh Start

By Maureen Walsh
CORRESPONDENT

This is the fourth in a series of articles highlighting the work of Interfaith Social Services, this year's beneficiary of your donations to the "Gifts of Hope" campaign.

STAFF PHOTO/TOM GORMAN

Jan Stewart is the manager of financial assistance for Interfaith Social Services.

"Home" is supposed to be a place of comfort and security. But for people living on the edge, often paying 50 or 75 percent of their income for rent, home can be a constant source of stress, anxiety and fear.

Every year, about 250 individuals and families turn to Interfaith Social Services for short-term assistance to remain in their homes or to obtain more affordable housing.

"When clients come to us and they're faced with losing their home, it's a fear for many that is greater than any fear they have ever experienced," said ISS director Laura Stracco. "When we are able to offer assistance, you can just see the incredible weight of this huge fear lift off their shoulders."

Interfaith Social Services is a private, nonprofit agency that aids the people of 10 South Shore communities: Braintree, Cohasset. Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

From its offices at 105 Adams Street in Quincy, ISS provides food, clothing, counseling and financial management assistance to individuals and families in need.

"Most people want to pay their bills and are very distressed when they know they are falling behind," said Jan Stewart, LSW, manager of financial assistance. "We help people in crisis by suggesting strategies they may consider, rather than getting into the nitty-gritty of budgeting."

The agency's Homesafe program helps clients remain in their homes by negotiating with landlords and utility companies and providing moderate assistance with unpaid bills, fuel oil and some medical and dental expenses.

"We attempt if at all possible to get rental help if one-time help will allow the client to go forward and sustain the situation," said Stewart. "The most important thing is to prevent homelessness."

For clients living in shelters or forced by circumstances to move, Stewart counsels clients on affordable alternatives and helps with upfront rental expenses through the Fresh Start program.

"They find the place, and I negotiate with the landlord," said Stewart. "The big dilemma is first and last month's rent and the security deposit. I will negotiate to lower the cost and spread it out over monthly payments."

Clients are often afraid to ask for concessions for fear of losing the apartment, she said. "It's easier for me as a neutral party. Then I ask the landlord to put the agreement in writing for everybody's protection."

"It's a hard choice for people to make, to leave the place where they are living," said Stewart, "but once you get in significant arrears in rent, that's a sign you're at risk for homelessness."

People who have lost jobs may not realize how quickly they have to cut living expenses, she said, and seniors who struggle to pay market rent may have to apply for subsidized housing.

"If you can make a move and get some place that's sustainable, once it's done, it's a huge relief."

Stewart said Homesafe and Fresh Start have helped a cancer patient pay his gas bill and provided a "good faith" rent payment for an unemployed man with an eye disease. The victim of an apartment fire was able to pay an old bill and move on with her life, and a homeless mother and son, living on disability income, were able to move from a campsite to their own apartment.

"Oftentimes it gives them a renewed courage and renewed hope that they will be able to keep their families safe," said Stracco. "Sometimes it's just the boost they need to get through one month, and then they themselves are able to get through future months."

Stracco said some clients are unaware of fuel assistance, reduced utility rates and even unemployment benefits that may be available to them. One charitable trust in Boston, for example, helps ISS clients with medical and dental expenses, such as hearing aids and dentures, that are not covered by any other source.

"We can steer them in the right direction and help them be advocates for themselves," she said.

Give the Gift of Hope

The season of giving is upon us. For 16 years Community Newspaper Company's Gifts of Hope program has helped connect you to those in need in your own community. Each year, a local charity is selected to be the beneficiary of the Gifts of Hope donation campaign. And each year, your generous donations have helped feed the hungry, shelter the homeless and bring joy to the faces of young children across Massachusetts.

How can you help this year? Please join your local Community Newspaper in supporting Interfaith Social Services in its efforts to help those in need this holiday season. A donation of any size goes a long way.

Make your tax deductible check or money order payable to Interfaith Social Services. Mail to: Gift of Hope Program; c/o Anne Rodwell; Community Newspaper Company; 165 Enterprise Drive; Marshfield, MA 02050.

In addition to your Gifts of Hope donation, you can drop off food and unwrapped children's gifts for the Interfaith Social Services Pantry Shelf and Adopt-a-Family programs at the ISS offices, 105 Adams Street in Quincy, weekdays, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., or call 617-773-6203 ext. 19 for alternate arrangements.

Please check toys for safety before donating. Food items must be nonperishable. No expired date, damaged or open containers. For donations of fresh, refrigerated or frozen foods, call 617-773-6203 ext. 19.

What you need to know about safe ice

By Ted Carroll,
Recreation Director
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

With the winter season upon us, residents of all ages look for outdoor areas for ice skating. When we start getting consistently cold weather Elm's Meadow, located at Cushing Road and Spring Street, will be prepared by the DPW for skating, and lights, until 9:30 p.m., are also on for night skating. Elm's Meadow offers a regulated, shallow area for safe skating.

However, as with any outdoor skating area, the ice should be tested before venturing on it. There are specific ways to test ice safety, which do not include throwing debris such as rocks, sticks, etc. on the ice making it hazardous for everyone.

Rather, test the ice by the edge of a skating area by carefully stepping out 6- to 8-inches, proceeding carefully to about 2 feet out from the edge only if the ice appears to be safe under your weight. Chip the ice with a tool or stick until you can ascertain a rough idea as to the thickness of the ice. You should always have another person with you when doing this.

Many outdoor skating areas do not have the same thickness of ice universally over the area. Always be on guard for soft spots or thin ice that manifest from underground springs, drain pipes, etc. This is especially true at Elm's Meadow by the Spring Street/Cushing Road corner of the area due to drains off the hillside.

General safe ice standards

Ice safe for:	0-30 degrees	30-40 degrees	40-50 degrees
Single skaters:	1-3/4 inches	2-3/4 inches	6 inches
Couples:	2 –3/4 inches	3 –3/4 inches	8 inches
Crowds:	3 –3/4 inches	4 _ inches	12 inches

Stay off salt water ice completely!

These figures are for clear, fresh water ice only; for snow ice, add 2 inches; for waterlogged ice, add 3 inches; if skates cut it, go home! Saltwater in mild climates is always treacherous - keep away from it. Also, thickness in the 40-50 degree column are safe depths for short periods of time only.

'Sweet Charity' auditions

Cohasset Dramatic Club will host auditions for its spring musical, "Sweet Charity," the story about a down on her luck dance hall girl, Charity Hope Valentine, who's always looking for life's silver lining. The show contains such songs as "If My Friends Could See Me Now," "I'm a Brass Band" and "Big Spender" to name a few. The original story was brought to life in the late 60s with Gwen Verdon creating the title role of Charity on Broadway. Shirley MacLaine recreated the title role in the movie version of "Sweet Charity," which was released in 1969, receiving three Oscar nominations.

Show dates will be March 13, 14, 20, 21, 27 and 28, at 7:30 p.m., and March 15, 22 and 29, at 2 p.m. Auditions are scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 4, at 6 p.m., and Monday, Jan. 5, at 7 p.m., with callbacks if necessary, on Tuesday, Jan. 7, at 7 p.m., at Cohasset Town Hall auditorium, 41 Highland Ave. People auditioning should prepare 16 bars of the song of their choice and bring sheet music. An accompanist will be provided.

The directors request that no one sing a capella. Dress appropriately, there will be a dance/movement audition. Tap experience a plus but not a necessity. Some auditioners may be asked to read from the script.

For more information, call Lisa Pratt at 617-852-0091.

Cohasset residents raise money for Jimmy Fund

The 30th annual PMC is set for Aug. 1 and 2, 2009. Registration opens online on Jan. 12 for alumni, and Jan. 20 for newcomers.

The Pan-Massachusetts Challenge raised a record-breaking $35 million for cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its August cycling event – $2 million more than the organization raised last year. The total sum is more than twice the amount ever raised for charity by any other athletic fundraising event. It is the single largest contribution made to the Jimmy Fund.

Eleven PMC cyclists, who reside in Cohasset, raised $40,981.27 of the $35 million.

The contribution represents 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar, a charity pass through rate nearly unparalleled within the $1.64 billion athletic fundraising event industry. Since its 1980 inception, the PMC has raised nearly $240 million for the Jimmy Fund.

"That the PMC exceeded its fundraising goal in this very troubled economy is a tribute to PMCers' commitment to raising money for cancer research and care," said Billy Starr, PMC founder and executive director. "It also shows that the importance of public and corporate funding for cancer research is widely understood."

In 2008, the PMC attracted 5,232 cycling fundraisers, about 300 more than last year. Riders came to Massachusetts from 36 states and eight countries. Each cyclist was required to raise between $1,300 and $4,000 to participate, depending on the chosen route. More than 90 percent of PMCers raised more money than they were required to, according to Starr. "Almost one-third of the pack raised twice as much, which is a testament to the PMC's fundraising culture," Starr said.

Founded in 1980 when 36 cyclists rode across Massachusetts and raised $10,200 for the Jimmy Fund, the PMC is known today as the "gold standard" of athletic fundraising events, due to the unprecedented sums it raises and its consistently efficient charity pass-through rate.

The PMC was among the very first athletic fundraising events in the nation and it was a pioneer in the way it focused on raising money for charity.

While a handful of walks and rides were held to raise awareness about a cause, the PMC put fundraising first and continues to do so. Registrants must back their applications with credit cards to ensure their contribution commitments are met, whether they ride or not. The fundraising minimum increases considerably each year, yet the ride's most sought-after routes sell out by the first week in February, just weeks after registration opens.

This is the second straight year the PMC has been able to contribute 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar to the cause. Presenting sponsors, Boston Red Sox Foundation and Overstock.com, along with 200 other corporate sponsors, underwrite the cost of producing the event and provide in-kind contributions of goods and services. In addition, 2,800 volunteers work throughout the year and during PMC weekend, fulfilling many roles that are typically paid positions.

The 30th annual PMC is set for Aug. 1 and 2, 2009. Registration opens online on Jan. 12 for alumni, and Jan. 20 for newcomers. For more information about the Pan-Mass Challenge, visit the Web site at pmc.org.

— CONCERT REVIEWS —

Holiday concerts are musical delights

By Kathryn Hillman
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Cohasset was privileged to enjoy, not one, but two, holiday concerts this past week- one at the Deer Hill School and the other at the High Schc ¼. The Deer Hill presented two choruses and the fifth Grade Band. Mrs. Claassen directed both choruses. The third grade chorus performed four songs, including A Perfect Winter Day, in which the chorus sings about mixed feelings about winter, between loving the snow and having a cold. The audience found it extremely amusing. The chorus also presented S'Vivon, a fast paced traditional Hebrew folk song. The fifth grade band performed next, directed by Mr. Biagini. The band played three songs, including Trepak from "The Nutcracker". It was quite well played. They also played a Chanukah themed song, and a medley of Christmas songs. Finally, the Advanced Chorus preformed. Most of their songs featured soloists, all of whom sang their parts quite well. The Advanced Chorus presented a wide variety of songs, such as Just One Candle, expressing a nice message about the Christmas season, Kindled by the Flame, an older, familiar Chanukah song, and Masters in the Hall, which had a distinctly Irish ring to it. The two choruses sang two songs together: Winter Walk and the old classic White Christmas. The entire performance was extremely well received.

They also sang Silent Night, and continued a 31-year-long tradition by inviting alumni to sing with them.

That same night, about an hour later, was the High School Winter Concert. The High School Concert Band, directed by Stephanie Moriarty, played four songs. The band opened with a brisk Portrait of a Clown, followed by Kaleidoscope. This was followed by a set of songs called Three Ayres from Gloucester. Another impressive piece was Apollo: Myth and Legend. The High School Chorus performed next, conducted by Bryan Marks and accompanied on the piano by Rosemarie Gentile. They sang six songs, including How Can I Keep From Singing; an American folk hymn. Following a long-held tradition, the chorus performed Carol of the Bells with spot-on harmony. They also sang Silent Night, and continued a 31-year-long tradition by inviting alumni to sing with them.

The final group to perform was the High School Jazz Ensemble, conducted by Mrs. Moriarty. The band opened with American Patrol, a jazzy march, featured Andrew Littauer on drums and Ian Porter on percussion. Baby, It's Cold Outside featured August Oddleifson on clarinet and Conor Ofsthun on trumpet. Both have been with the Jazz Ensemble since it was founded and will be graduating at the end of this year. Abracadabra, an impressive upbeat jazz-rock piece, featured Conor Ofsthun and Garret Canney, both trumpet players. To round off the evening, the ensemble played a Holiday Trio, which included jazz versions of God Rest Ye Merry Gentleman, Let It Snow, and Jingle Bell Rock. The whole concert was an overwhelming success.

Cohasset Punch makes a splash

The cocktail has made reappearance on the Chicago bar scene of late as a themed drink to "commemorate" the current situation with Illinois Governor Rod Blagojevich and the allegations he accepted bribes for a senate appointment.

How does our little town of Cohasset end up in the Wall Street Journal? By being the birthplace of a signature cocktail originally mixed along the rocky shores of Cohasset at the turn of the century.

In Saturday's edition (Dec. 20) of the Wall Street Journal, writer Eric Felton goes into great detail about the origin and history behind Cohasset Punch, a drink that became popular in Chicago in post-prohibition.

The cocktail has made reappearance on the Chicago bar scene of late as a themed drink to "commemorate" the current situation with Illinois Governor Rod Blagojevich and the allegations he accepted bribes for a senate appointment.

Cohasset Punch contains syrup from canned peaches and half a canned peach as garnish making it the ideal drink for those calling for the governor to be "impeached."

The story of Cohasset Punch has been known locally for some time and is included as one of the many stories in Jackie Dormitzer's "Treasury of Cohasset History."

In an interview before the books was released in early 2005, Dormitzer names the story of Cohasset Punch as one of the most interesting tales. A Cohasset resident used to make batches of Cohasset punch, which became a popular drink. People would serve it at local parties. However, when its inventor moved to Chicago, they brought the secret recipe with them.

In addition to being available in various restaurants and bars, Cohasset punch was also distilled and bottled for a short time. It became one of the signature cocktails of the mid-west city.

With a comeback in Chicago, why not mix it up in its hometown (and namesake) of Cohasset?

Cohasset Punch

1-1/2 oz dark rum
1 oz sweet vermouth
juice of 1/2 lemon
1/2 oz syrup from canned peaches
1/2 oz Grand Marnier
2 dashes orange bitters

Start by putting half a canned peach in the bottom of a saucer champagne glass; then half-fill the glass with shaved ice. Put all the liquid ingredients in a shaker with ice. Shake and strain into the glass.

Note: This recipe appeared in the Dec. 20 Wall Street Journal.

Skipper stars looking to bright futures

Foursome headed to college careers

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

With a more than successful soccer season behind them, four members of the Cohasset girls soccer team, Maggie McGoldrick, Torey Hart, Sarah Coggins and Sammi Lehr, along with coach Deb Beal, team took a few moments to reflect on their accomplishments and their futures.

Starting with accomplishments, there are a long list, including South Shore League All-Star bids, Eastern Massachusetts All-Star spots, Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic namings a Boston Globe Div. Coach-of-the-Year and a Massachusetts Premiere Soccer National Championship for a couple of players.

It gets better.

All four are members of the National Honor Society.

Looking ahead three of the four players, who accounted for 112 goals and 96 assists over four seasons, will be headed to Division 1 soccer schools, a remarkable number for a small school like Cohasset.

McGoldrick, an All-Scholastic with three local papers, is planning to play at the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, while Hart is on her way to the University of Rhode Island.

Coggins, is headed to Burlington, Vt. and a spot with the Catamounts.

Lehr, meanwhile, is still mulling her options while she helps lead the defending champion girls basketball team to more victories.

"I have a lot of schools in mind," Lehr said. "I'm looking at Wesleyan, Central Connecticut and a few schools in New Hamshire. My sister goes to the University of New

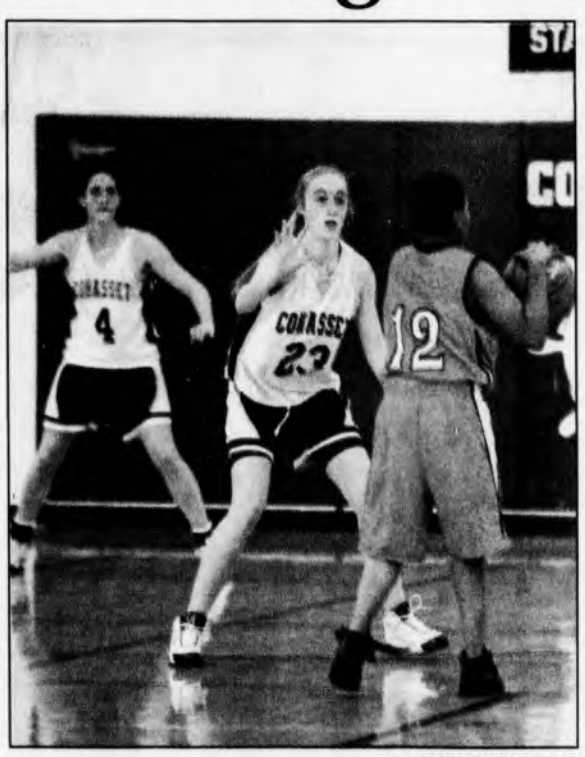
Cohasset girls off and running

Team taking it one at a time

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

Listening to her speak about this year's Cohasset girls basketball team, you might think you were listening to Tom Brady, Bill Belichick, or maybe Celtics coach Doc Rivers, not Sammi Lehr, high school senior.



Lehr has joined the Boston bandwagon when it comes to looking ahead. One game at a time. That's all that matters who's up next and what can we do to beat them.

Want to talk about defending a state title. No way. How about the next team on the schedule.

"We don't want to jinx ourselves by talking about it," Lehr said Monday. "We're definitely looking to do well. We have everybody back from last year. We work hard and we're determined to do our best."

This week, however, there was a little time to look back when

Skippers defeat East Bridgewater

Strong offensive boards drive points

By Susan Franklin

The Cohasset girl's varsity and junior varsity squads hosted East Bridgewater Tuesday afternoon and both teams came out victorious. The Varsity squad took the lead early and never let go, on the way to a 41-23 win. Kayla Farren started things off with a shot deep from the corner off an inbound play. It appeared that East Bridgewater's strategy was to shut down the inside game so Cohasset answered with a flurry of accurate shots from the outside by Lindsay Davis, Carly Salerno and Rachel Freedy. Cohasset spent the majority of the half in an aggressive 1-2-2 defense. Playing with intensity and anticipating East Bridgewater's offense, Meredith Kelly forced numerous errors and came away with a number of steals. At the end of the half, Cohasset led 20- 6.

East Bridgewater came out in a full court press in the second half and racked up the first six points of the half bringing the score to 22-15. Carly Haggerty iced a free throw and a block by Lindsay Davis kept Cohasset in command. The quarter ended with the score 25-17.

East Bridgewater came out in the fourth and immediately sank a three pointer bringing the score to 28-20. Errors generated by the full court press created additional scoring opportunities for the Cohasset squad. Sammi Lehr and Tori Lehr were on fire in the final quarter, dropping in nine

CHS skaters edged by Norwell

Young Skippers give defending SSL champs a scare

By Mike Spellman
MSPELLMAN@CNC.COM

Just how long has it been since Norwell lost a South Shore League hockey game?

First year Clippers coach Jim Casagrande proved little help in answering that question, and third year Cohasset coach Bob Walsh knew only that his team has never come close to beating the Clippers and that they have coasted to the league title every year in recent memory.

This background is offered up to explain why Walsh sounded a lot like a winning coach after his team was edged by the powerhouse Clippers, 2-1, this past Wednesday night.

"The way I look at it is we might win that game if not for a penalty inside the last two minutes," said Walsh. "You're never happy with a loss, but I still feel like this is a game we can build off of. Our collective confidence has to be us a little. I'm very curious to see how we come out next game and also in the next one against Norwell (January 21)."

This one started out like so many recent Clippers-Skippers showdowns. Norwell's Garrett Duffy was set up by fellow senior James McAteer on the game's first shift, putting the Clippers out in front just 49 seconds in.

However, that is right where the score would stay for the next 43 plus minutes of the 45 minute contest.

New guy finding his way around

POPPIN' OFF

WILLIAM WASSERSUG

Well, it's been almost three weeks since I've been back in New England and I'm still cold. Not as bad as two weeks ago, but still cold. I guess wearing 20-year old Desert Storm boots wasn't a great idea. Oh well, enough about cold.

I'd like to say thanks to everyone who has made my return so enjoyable, and to everyone who read my first column recently.

I have to admit I was pretty shocked to find someone reading it all the way in sunny California.

Not just California, but Camp Pendleton. Yes, Lance Corporal Shannon E. McMillan, one of our fine Marine Corps journalists sent me mail. In fact it was the first response I had.

But she wasn't the only one.

Over in Pembroke the wrestlers were reading too.

That was a great thing to hear after the adventure I had on my first trip to Pembroke High School.

With notebook in hand I decided to track down the wrestlers before a road match, knowing when their bus was leaving.

Great plan, right.

Almost.

When I got there, with only one wrong turn on the way, I couldn't find any wrestlers. After asking a staff member if he knew where they were, I decided to look for them. The cafeteria was the best guess.

Nope.

Did I forget to mention my two kids were in the car with my wife?

That of course is a recipe for disaster, so my seven-year old, Katy, decided to help me look.

As we walked in we chatted with a couple of basketball players on the girls team and a couple of indoor track girls. While we were talking the fun started when a few of the elusive wrestlers walked by.

Yup, noticed their jackets a bit after they rolled by. My little one said we should try to catch them.

Somehow they disappeared around a corner.

We were back up front when another wrestler rolled by.

Katy followed.

Katy lost him around a corner.

CNC VOLLEYBALL SUPER TEAM

NAME: Berkeley Hall
SCHOOL: Pembroke
GRADE: Junior
POSITION: Outside hitter
STATS: A phenomenal athlete, Hall is becoming a regular on CNC Super Teams. The Patriot League All-star was an absolute machine for the Div. 2 South semifinalists (19-3), notching 296 kills, 177 digs, and 37 aces. Hall became the first Pembroke athlete to make a state team when she was named to the Div. 2 All-State squad this fall. Also excels in gymnastics and track at PHS.

NAME: Samantha Sherlock
SCHOOL: Braintree
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Setter
STATS: Ran the Braintree offense with ease this season for the Bay State Conference Carey Div. champions (13-6). Career stats find the three-year starter with 727 assists. Highlight of this season included a 30-assist performance against Newton North. Her play helped guide the Lady Wamps to the Div. 1 South quarterfinals. Also plays softball for BHS and hopes to continue her volleyball career in college.

NAME: Sarah Coffey
SCHOOL: Hanover
GRADE: Junior
POSITION: Outside hitter
STATS: The lone returning starter from last year's squad, Coffey carried the Lady Indians on her shoulders with her solid play on the front line. The Patriot League All-star is stellar at all positions, recording 96 kills, 163 digs, and 53 aces for the 9-12 Hanover squad. Coffey will return to the Lady Indians team next fall and is already considering playing volleyball in college.

NAME: Chelsea Covitz
SCHOOL: Marshfield
GRADE: Junior
POSITION: Middle hitter
STATS: An Honorable Mention last season Covitz emerged as one of the best players on the South Shore this year. The junior Atlantic Coast League All-star put her 6-3 stature to good use for the 10-9 Lady Rams, leading the squad with her solid all-around play. Season stats find her with 155 kills, 73 aces, and 52 blocks. Also plays on the Mass. Patriots Under-18 club team. Covitz is a captain elect for next season.

NAME: Rachele Burnside
SCHOOL: Rockland
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Libero
STATS: Recorded more than 100 digs from Rockland's backline this season, anchoring the Lady Bulldogs' defense. Shined in a pair of games against rival Hanover, helping to knock off the Lady Indians in a pair of meetings this fall. Also did her part in hanging with a tough Pembroke team 3-1, 3-0 losses. The PL All-star helped

NAME: Nicole Wetherbee
SCHOOL: Pembroke
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Outside hitter
STATS: Another strong player on the Patriot League Fisher Div. runners-up, Wetherbee teamed with fellow Super Teamer Berkeley Hall in providing one of the most impressive front lines in the area. Whetherbee's play was essential in Pembroke's run to the Div. 2 South semifinals. Notched the match-winning kill in a 3-0 win over Apponequet in the South quarters. Pembroke finished the fall at 19-3.

HONORABLE MENTIONS:
Liz DiMascio – Sr. – Outside hitter – Braintree
Becky Hayes – Jr. – Libero – Hanover
Shannon Nagle – Marshfield
Lauren Mulkern – Sr. – Setter – Pembroke
Erica Hicks – Weymouth

CNC GOLF SUPER TEAM

NAME: Jon Stoddard
SCHOOL: Duxbury
GRADE: Sophomore
STATS: Was a standout golfer on a very strong Dragons team that won the Patriot League Keenan title (14-1) and went 18-2 overall. Stoddard shot a 76 at the Div. 2 South Sectional tourney, helping the Duxbury boys qualify as a group for the Div. 2 State Championships. There, Stoddard shot a team-best round of 80. Already has aspirations of playing golf in college.

NAME: Matt Montt
GRADE: Sophomore
STATS: Just a sophomore, Montt had a tremendous season this fall, highlighted by his first place finish in the Div. 3 State Individual championship. The two-time Patriot League All-star shot a 3-over 74 at Shaker Hill Golf Club to win the title. He was sixth at the Div. 3 South Sectionals. Compiled a 10-2-2 record in match play for the 8-6 Indians this season, and was second at the New England Open at Newport National Golf Club.

NAME: Brendan Medeiros
SCHOOL: Pembroke
GRADE: Junior
STATS: Greetings from Texas. Medeiros burst onto the South Shore golfing scene this season after transferring to Pembroke from down South. The junior was an essential part in Pembroke's run to a second-straight, Patriot League Fisher Div. championship, knocking off rivals Hanover and Hingham along the way. Shot under par three times this season at Waverly Oaks, Ridder Farm, and Widow's Walk. The PL All-star is the current club champion at Harmon Club in Rockland and was a medalist at the Mass. Junior Qualifier.

NAME: Mark Tedeschi
SCHOOL: Duxbury
GRADE: Senior (captain)
STATS: Another standout on the Dragons' talent-loaded squad, Tedeschi saved some of his best golf for last, shooting a team-best 74 to finish fourth overall at the Div. 2 South Sectionals and helping his team qualify for the Div. 2 State Championships as a team. He was also instrumental in a one-point win over BC High this season, hitting a 20-foot putt for birdie on the final hole.

Hampshire and I like Colby-Sawyer (New London, N.H.)."

Lehr still hasn't decided which sport to play.

The players are all excited to move along, but know they're going to miss each other.

"We've been playing together since we were five," McGoldrick said. "I know I'll miss high school."

McGoldrick and Coggins were both members of the MPS team that won a national title this season.

The team, a regional club squad, played its regular season against teams from New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Canada before heading to the national tournament in Tampa, Florida courtesy of a first-place league finish.

"It was so much fun," Coggins said. "It was like a last hurrah for us. It was pretty cool to end it like that. Going into it we went in with injuries, just off the high school season. We only had 15 or 16 players. Last year we went in playing crazy good soccer and didn't go that far. This time we went in not expecting anything, but we kept winning."

Coggins didn't mind.

"It was an amazing feeling when we won it," she said. "We've played club soccer so long and it's taken so much of our time. Winning was such a relief. The hard work paid off. The team was great. We're all best friends, like a second family."

Adding to the fun of winning was a trip to Busch Gardens.

"That," she said. "Was a lot of fun."

For Hart, picking a school was as much about academics as sports – from both sides.

"They (URI) contacted me about a club tournament I was going to," Hart said. "But then I decided to go on a biology trip. When I told them that they said they have a good bio program. My getting recruited there was as much academics as anything. I was missing soccer and they were more interested."

Hart plans to study Marine Affairs.

Beal credited her players for her award.

"The Coach-of-the-Year is very nice, a once in a lifetime honor," she said. "I credit these guys and their teammates. They did the work. I just made sure they had everything they needed. I told them that because they do their jobs every day it makes mine that much easier. It's all about teamwork. That's what we had in every sense of the word."

Skippers defeat East Bridgewater

points unanswered points. When the buzzer rang the board read 41-23 in favor of Cohasset.

The junior varsity successfully defeated East Bridgewater's squad 36-24. Playing an aggressive 1-2-2 defense, Cohasset was sparked early by a basket by Isabel Robinson off a broken play. East Bridgewater used a full court press from the get go, but Cohasset handled the pressure well. After a trip to the charity strip by Isabel Franklin, Anna Seraikas stole the ball and drove past the surprised defenders for a score.

The second quarter was dominated by Cohasset, which posted 13-2 advantage in the frame. The Cohasset defense worked hard to generate steals and loose balls. Many players contributed to the point tally and most of the points were not generated from set offenses. East Bridgewater did a good job of collecting rebounds and getting multiple shot opportunities on basket, but the ball did not fall in their favor.

East Bridgewater made a play for the win in the second half, mounting an 18-9 run. Cohasset's defense was tough and some truly memorable offensive plays kept the win out of East Bridgewater's reach. Recognition goes out to the entire squad, many of whom have played together in travel basketball for a number of seasons.

The varsity will face off against Nantucket in the Holiday Tournament at Cohasset High School on December 29 and 30. Both the varsity and junior varsity will play away in Harwich on Friday, January 2.

Cohasset girls off and running

Friday's scheduled game against Carver was postponed.

"We were really looking forward to Carver," Lehr said. "They're a good team."

After two games, Cohasset is 2-0, beating Dorchester and East Bridgewater.

Cohasset hopes to improve on that with this weekend's Cohasset Holiday Basketball Tournament that starts with a 7:30 p.m. game against Hull Monday night.

The consolation and championship games are Tuesday.

The boys team opens Monday at 6 p.m. against Sacred Heart.

Lehr said Cohasset will be ready.

"Our coaches work hard to scout other teams and get us an edge," she said. "It helps because teams are all trying harder to beat the state champs. People are out to get us."

Not that it matters.

Like the Celtics and their 27-2 start on the heels of a championship, Cohasset is focused. If the championship does anything, it motivates.

"When I got my ring (before the season opener against Dorchester) I was trying hard not to cry," Lehr said. "It brought back memories of all the emotions we went through. That team was real special. Nobody thought we'd even make the tournament and we won it. It was a long crazy ride."

Playing at the BankNorth Garden was also a feeling to remember.

"That's a once in a lifetime thing," Lehr said. "I got to play with the same hoops as the Celtics. Before the game I was shaking. We got there really early before the game and were taking pictures, checking out the court. We got to lie on the floor. It's a feeling you can't really describe."

And then we get back to the mantra.

"We'd love to do it again," Lehr said. "But we know we have to take it one game at a time. We can't look past the next game. Coach (John LeVangie) won't let us. If we start thinking ahead he'll just be saying Dorchester, or whoever we're playing next. We know we have to play that team and make plays. I know if I look ahead it gets too intimidating. I get anxious easily."

With the title and strong start, Lehr has noticed one thing.

"Last year we may have had just parents at the games, and maybe a few boys players if they weren't playing," she said. "This year I think the whole town was there for our rings and the Dorchester game, and at the Garden."

With luck there may be a repeat performance, but don't start looking ahead. You don't want to jinx them.

CHS skaters edged by Norwell

The Clippers (2-0-1) dominated the territorial struggle throughout the first period and most of the second, but could put nothing else behind Cohasset netminder Johnny Wade (29 saves).

"There's no doubt that Johnny stopped this from becoming a blowout early," conceded Coach Walsh, whose team fell to 0-2 with the loss. "But our guys seemed to feed on that, and we got better as the game went along."

A penalty inside the game's final two minutes put the Clippers on the power play, and McAteer took advantage of the opportunity, punching one home in a scrum with just over a minute to play.

"James was sticking his nose in the middle of things all night, so I was happy to see he was the one who had the goal that made the difference," said Casagrande.

Wade was pulled a few seconds after the ensuing face-off. Cohasset dumped it in, and pounded the net. A scrum resulted and Anders Goetz got a stick on a bouncing puck sent in by fellow sophomore Brian Scott, tapping it past Ferguson to again make it a one goal game. However, only for seconds remained on the game clock at that point. Cohasset had run out of time.

The Skippers had better than half of their 16 shots in the final period.

Walsh was somewhat disappointed in his upperclass leaders for taking so long to get untracked, but had high praise for his all-freshman third line of Johnny Collins, Alex Evans and Brendan Kearney, as well as first year varsity defensemen Eric Bartucca and Sam Leahy, both sophomores.

"It was nice to see the next generation of players really stepping up and making an impact in a big game like that," said Walsh. "Now we just need our upperclassmen to step up their level of play too."

Snow, snow, go away

The Skippers were forced to postpone two games and cancel a practice due to snow and dangerous driving conditions at the end of last week.

This past Saturday's scheduled game vs. SSL rival Abington-East Bridgewater was postponed to Christmas Eve. No makeup date for Monday's cancellation with Mansfield had been worked out at the time of this writing.

The Skippers' next scheduled game is this coming Saturday vs. South Shore Regional (5:20 p.m., Pilgrim Arena)

New guy finding his way around

The next try worked better when we saw them disappear into a door we missed in the gym and ended up with a nice story.

Then, on my way back I remembered I also wanted to catch the girls basketball team.

Speaking of Pembroke basketball, I got to watch the boys team play Hanover, Monday.

They are as advertised.

Matt Devine and Sam Nagle are both a lot of fun to watch.

Then there was James Coner, who had 12 points, all on the long balls. Gotta love that.

Here's a big thank you to the kids of the Scituate Basketball Association for helping with a food drive recently.

When I look around and see kids playing sports, doing positive things in the community, especially something so important as helping the needy it just shows that there is plenty of good around us. Give credit to the parents and other role models as well.

Great job kids.

It really is fun re-learning my way around the area.

On my way to Cohasset I only took one wrong turn, on the way back, and also realized that it's further away from my new home than Scituate.

The things you learn.

Did Norwell hockey really beat Hull 11-0, and that was taking it easy. Amazing. I thought I was seeing the score from a Red Sox-Pirates game.

Final thought. If anyone wants to see the greatest holiday special ever, it's Santa vs. the Snowman. Take my word for it and track it down. You won't regret it.

Birthday parties at Su Escuela give kids new reasons to celebrate!

Su Escuela is helping kids celebrate language and learning – all wrapped up in the fun of a birthday party. The song may be "Happy Birthday to you," but many kids are thinking beyond themselves – and finding new reasons, and new ways to celebrate their special day.

Birthday parties should be all about fun, but today's kids are passionate about making a difference in the world, and they hope to give more than they receive. With a birthday party at Su Escuela they can have their cake – and eat it too.

"I wanted to give my friends something special for my birthday," says Holly Van Etten, a second grader, who participates in the Spanish language immersion program at Cohasset's Su Escuela.

"I love learning Spanish. It's really fun to be able to say things in another language … it makes me feel smart. I wanted all of my friends to come to Su Escuela. They think it's hard to learn Spanish. Most of them don't know how fun it is!"

"Learning language is fun and natural," says Sandra Baldeon, founder and director of Su Escuela. She is passionate about the importance of being bilingual – or even multi-lingual – in today's increasingly global society. While many countries require students to learn multiple languages, the U.S. is lagging.

Baldeon adds, "Language learning is critical to helping children understand the world in which we live. Children are naturally curious and voracious learners. The power to communicate is essential to help break down cultural barriers. With language we can relate and make connections to our world."

In addition to learning language, Su Escuela helps kids redefine birthday giving. Instead of getting lots of toys, some kids are choosing to help charities instead. "This year I really wanted to do that too," adds Holly.

"Teaching empathy – as well as teaching language – is vital to help children connect to others and to the world," says Baldeon.

Baldeon cares deeply about children – especially children from her native Chile. "In Chile, there are many children who face medical challenges and life altering conditions as victims of severe burning." Baldeon and Su Escuela support Coaniquem, a charity in Chile that helps these children. After talking to Baldeon and learning about the work of Coaniquem – todo por el Nino Quemado, Holly was inspired to help.

(Above) The following note was given to each child invited to Holly Van Etten's birthday party, "In the spirit of giving this holiday season, Holly would like to help children in need. In partnership with Su Escuela, we would like to help support Coaniquem, a charity in Chile dedicated to helping children who have been severely burned. In lieu of a birthday gift, a small donation will be much appreciated. Thank you!." Holly presented Sandra Baldeon, Founder of Su Escuela with the donations from the children.

Instead of buying gifts, Holly asked her friends to make a small donation to help the children in Chile. "I feel so sad for children who have very bad burns, and who need doctors and operations. Helping each other is the best kind of present to give I think." Holly and Baldeon thank her friends for their combined gift of $150 for Coaniquem.

According to Baldeon, Su Escuela's mission is to create an interactive, fun environment in which children learn Spanish naturally. This is not about structured study of grammar rules and vocabulary lists; kids learn Spanish the way they learned English – through everyday interactions with their parents and peers. It's through this exploration, interaction and fun that children learn best, says Baldeon.

Party guests are immersed in Spanish language and culture the moment they arrive. It is amazing to see how quickly children learn when learning is a game. Even children with no prior exposure to foreign language can speak and understand Spanish almost immediately because they are learning naturally through fun and interactive play. Su Escuela birthday parties get kids singing and dancing, playing games and working together – all while learning another language. Even the party menu has a Spanish theme: cheese quesadillas! And of course – a candy-filled Pinata!

Su Escuela is located at 760 Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Rt. 3A) across from Shaw's plaza. To book a birthday party or to find out more information call (781) 383-2585 or visit www.suescuela.com.

Ian Dunkelberger and Maeve Humpfrey frost the Ginger Bread House along with the rest of the birthday guests.

Su Escuela Instructor, Maribel, teaches the birthday guests how to say Happy Birthday Holly in Spanish. In addition to the traditional kids' birthday celebrations, the party also teaches guests a little bit of the Spanish language, culture and customs.

(Above center) Bella Sestito enjoys a mini quesadilla at the birthday party, along with mini quesadillas there were also mini pizzas and mini tacos.

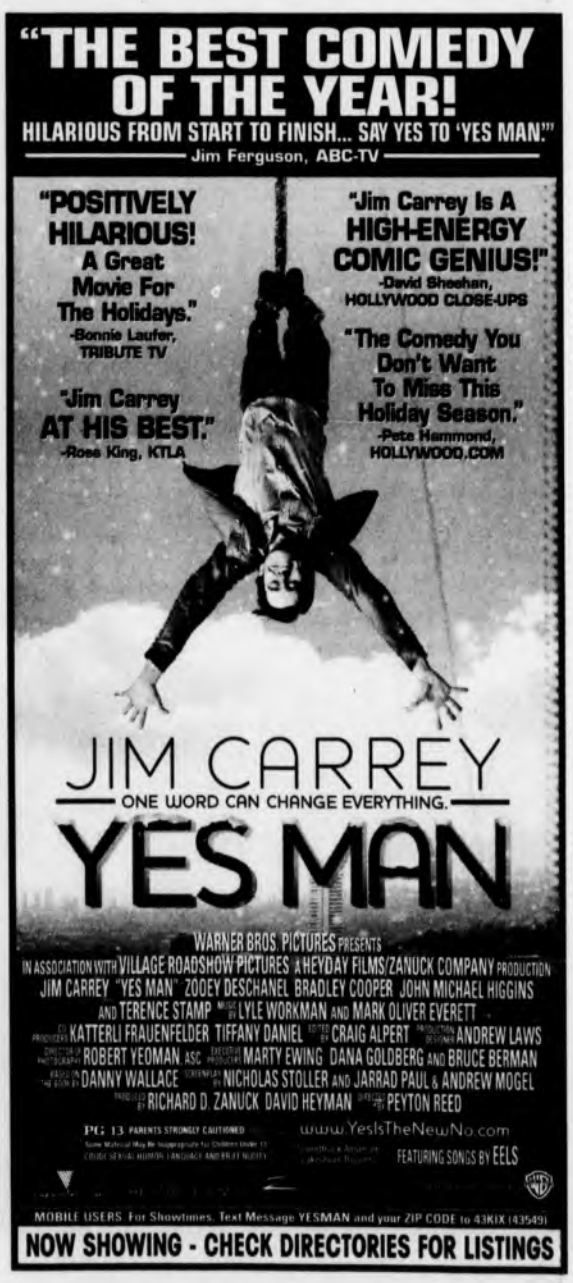
The Seraphim Singers are coming to St. Stephen's

Celebrating its 17th year, St. Stephen's Concert Series in Cohasset will be presenting the Seraphim Singers, directed by Jennifer Lester, in a concert on Sunday, Jan. 18, 2009, at 4 p.m., instead of the usual 3 p.m. time for St. Stephen's concerts.



Since its debut performance in 1997, The Seraphim Singers has created a special niche among Boston's performing elite with sensitive and probing performances of sacred choral music. Founded and directed by Jennifer Lester, the ensemble consists mostly of organists, composers, and other professional musicians whose vast knowledge and experience nourishes a passion for arresting and demanding repertoire. In residence at the Basilica of Our Lady of Perpetual Help (known fondly among Bostonians as "Mission Church"), The Seraphim Singers has honed refined interpretations of Roman Catholic masterworks, from Monteverdi and Byrd in the Renaissance to Poulenc and Durufle in the twentieth-century.

The church is located at 16 Highland Avenue in Cohasset, is handicap accessible, and plenty of parking is available at the village car park. Admission is free, but donations will be accepted. For information call 781-383-1083.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
DEC. 22, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The arts are a strong part of the Arian aspect, with music becoming more dominant. An important decision looms as a longtime relationship takes an unexpected turn.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Surrounding yourself with beautiful things helps restore the Taurean soul. Enjoy an art exhibit, for example. Or redecorate your personal space with something truly splendid.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Some colleagues might try to talk you out of what they insist is a risk, but which you consider an opportunity. As usual, follow your own good sense when making your decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A workplace change you might have worried about soon proves to be highly favorable for the clever Crab who is ready to take advantage of new opportunities opening up.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Congratulations. Your Leonine pride is polished to a dazzling new brilliance thanks to your success in winning support for your new project from even the most doubtful of detractors.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An unsettling rumor about a colleague's apparently regrettable behavior is soon proved groundless, allowing you to enjoy the upcoming end-of-year festivities in a happy mood.

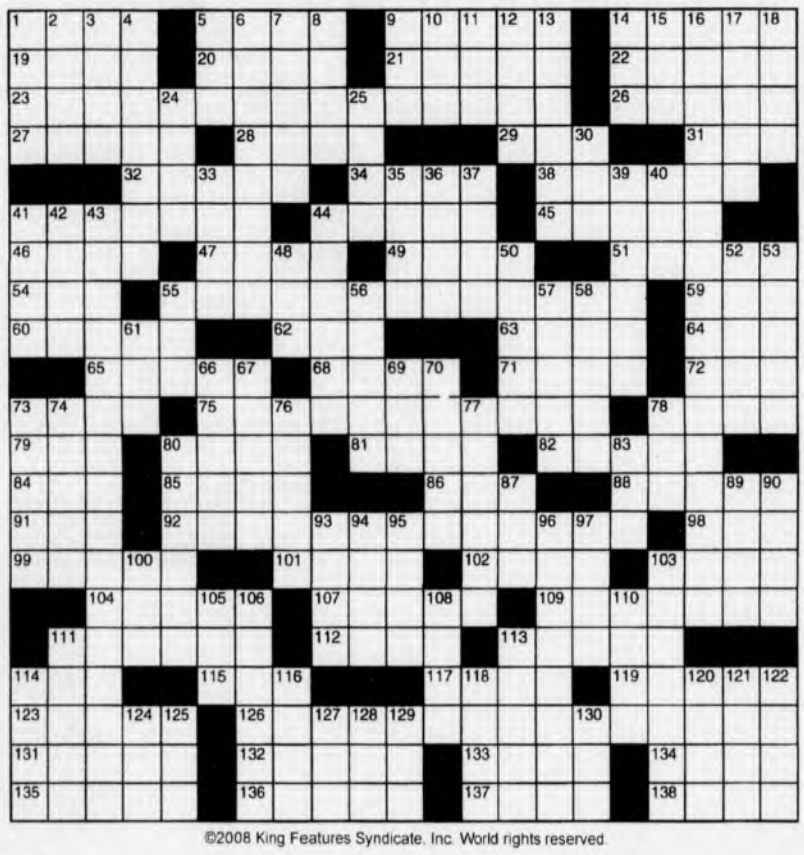
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your success in helping to create a harmonious environment out of a chaotic situation earns you the admiration of someone who could become an important new presence in your life.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your Scorpion's sense of loyalty could find you leading a passionate defense of a loved one you feel is being unfairly treated. The week's end brings long-awaited family news.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your keen instincts are once more on high alert as you find yourself being pressured to make a quick decision about a certain matter. More facts come to light by week's end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) An unexpected workplace development could disrupt some family plans. A full explanation, however, averts domestic discord. A financial matter continues to need attention.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Spend time away from distractions to reassess some recent moves that might not have worked out as you had hoped. What you learn could be invaluable for future decision-making.



PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A recent act of kindness is a reminder of how important your friends are to you. You might want to show your appreciation by hosting a special pre-New Year's party just for them.

BORN THIS WEEK: You always try to do your best, which sometimes causes you to be critical of those who don't live up to your standards.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

35th Annual Town Fair Tire World of Wheels Show, Jan. 9-11.

As usual, the Town Fair Tire World of Wheels will attract the creators of more than 300 dazzling custom vehicles of all types, representing millions of dollars worth of one-of-a-kind hot rods, customs, street rods, collectibles, race cars, antiques, restorations, tuners and more

Every year for more than three decades, thousands of people have lined up to see hundreds of bobbed, chopped, channeled, frenched, cherried and otherwise re-styled, highly chromed and brilliantly painted custom vehicles at the Town Fair Tire World of Wheels show, which makes its thirty-fifth annual run at Boston's Bayside Expo Center the weekend of Jan. 9-11, 2009.

But what does "frenched" mean when applied to an automobile? Here are definitions of some terms that are part and parcel of the art of automotive customizing and that spectators "auto" know to enhance their car show experience:

- Blower – Supercharger to force air and fuel into an engine for high performance.
- Bobbed – Shortening fenders.
- Bored and Stroked – Increasing diameter of cylinders and length of crankshaft stroke.
- Channeled – Reducing height by lowering the body over the frame.
- Cherried – Extensive surface finishing of frame, engine block, etc., to a glass-like appearance.
- Chopped – Reducing height by cutting out a section of the top.
- Decked – Removing emblems and chrome from trunk lid.
- Dumped – Drastically lowering front end.
- Frenched – Molding headlights into fenders and eliminating trim rings and seams.
- Filled – Filling body seams to create seamless, smooth body surface.
- Nosed – Removing chrome trim from hood.
- Raked – Lowering the front more than the rear.
- Sectioned – Reducing height by removing section in body's middle.
- Slammed – Drastically lowering front and rear.
- Coupe – Car with front seat only.
- Phaeton – Open car with canvas top and removable windshield, also known as a touring car.
- Roadster – Front-seat-only body with removable windshield, canvas top and no roll-up windows.
- Sedan – Closed body with two or four doors, front and rear seats and roll-up windows.
- Custom – Post-1949 vehicle with exhaustive body modifications.
- Competition – Vehicle built for racing.
- Rod – Pre-1948 cars or trucks modified significantly in performance and/or appearance.
- Street Rod – Pre-1948 modified vehicle
- Street Machine – Post-1949 vehicle modified for performance.

As usual, the Town Fair Tire World of Wheels will attract the creators of more than 300 dazzling custom vehicles of all types, representing millions of dollars worth of one-of-a-kind hot rods, customs, street rods, collectibles, race cars, antiques, restorations, tuners and more, and will offer spectators the chance to meet and get autographs from celebrities, to see specialty vehicles and to be entertained by many other attractions for the whole family.

Slated for personal appearances to meet spectators, sign free autographs and pose for picture with them are Red Sox pitcher Justin Masterson (Sunday, Jan. 11, 1 to 3 p.m.), New England Patriots Cheerleaders (Friday, Jan. 9, 5 to 10 p.m.), Jason Earles, who plays Hannah's brother Jackson on Disney's "Hannah Montana" television show (Saturday, Jan. 10, 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m.), Kaycee Stroh, who is Martha Cox in Disney's "High School Musical" feature film (Sunday, Jan. 11, noon to 4 p.m.), Chip Foose from TV's "Overhaulin'" (Saturday, Jan. 19, 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m.), Wolf and Venom from TV's "American Gladiators" (Saturday, Jan. 10, 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.) and Academy Award-nominated actress Candy Clark, who played Debbie Dunham in the classic movie "American Graffiti" and will be at the show at all weekend.

Attractions at this year's event include the Atomic Punk bubble-top hot rod featured on the cover of Rod & Custom magazine, Super Rod magazine's Hemi Nation, a display of hemi-powered vehicles ranging from street rods to fully restored Mopar muscle cars, New England's largest automotive memorabilia show and an action arena with unicycle stunts, East Coast Championship wrestling and live music.

Thirty-fifth annual Town Fair Tire World of Wheels show hours are Friday, Jan. 9, 2009, 5 to 10:30 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 10, 2009, 10 a.m. to 10:30 p.m., and Sunday, Jan. 11, 2009, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Admission is $15 for adults, $5 for children 6-12, free for children 5 and under. Advance tickets are available online at www.worldofwheels.com. Discount coupons for $2 off adult and children's tickets will be available at participating Town Fair Tire stores.

Boston's Bayside Expo Center is located off I-93, exit 15, and at the MBTA Red Line's JFK/UMass stop, and free shuttles will run to and from the T stop during show hours.

For information, call 617-474-6000 or visit www.worldofwheels.com.

The Town Fair Tire World of Wheels holds the weekend attendance record of more than 100,000 spectators at Boston's Bayside Expo Center and is part of the GM Performance Parts Show Car Series sanctioned by the International Show Car Association custom competition and produced by Championship Auto Shows, Inc. More than a million spectators annually attend more than 20 Championship Auto Shows motorsports events under the Autorama, World of Wheels and Cavalcade of Customs names.

Film Review
AL ALEXANDER

Seven Pounds (B)

The title may say "Seven Pounds," but Smith acts up a ton, tilting the scales decidedly in his — and our — favor.

There are some mighty weighty issues in "Seven Pounds," but all its heft can be traced directly to another super-sized performance by Will Smith.

As a brooding mystery man in search of atonement, Smith lifts a pedestrian script by Grant Nieporte on to his broad shoulders and carries it all the way to a sappy finish that will either leave you swimming in tears or drowning in laughter.

Not for a second, though, does Smith falter, fearlessly tackling a character in Ben Thomas who actively works both ends of the demon-saint spectrum.

Who is this Ben Thomas, a man of considerable wealth and intelligence who gets his jollies taunting a blind man (Woody Harrelson) one minute and donating marrow to a juvenile cancer patient the next? And what's with his growing infatuation with jellyfish and the beautiful engraver with the bad heart (Rosario Dawson) and failing business?

Patience, Grasshopper. All will be revealed in the film's powerful final act, when Ben's true motives and identity emerge from a labyrinth that's cleverly constructed by director Gabriele Muccino.

The two last teamed memorably on the box-office smash "The Pursuit of Happyness," and the unmistakable chemistry between actor and director is so palpable again, you wouldn't be disappointed if the two decided to make all their movies together.

Their most impressive gift is their refusal to rush things. It's a simmering pot of plot, acting and ideas that slowly — some might say, too slowly — build to a boil. It's all cooked up with more than a pinch of grace.

Still, the cynic in you is not totally buying it. You want to believe, but the film is built on too many manipulations and coincidences. There's also a hint of manufactured goodness at play that keeps you from fully embracing "Seven Pounds."

Yet, we've all reached the point where we're willing to follow Smith just about anywhere, including into ridiculousness, as was the case with last summer's "Hancock." Like that film, "Seven Pounds" plays the suspense game with its cards close to the vest, building toward what we now commonly call the big reveal. Smith is no worse for the makeover that takes his character from sulking Samaritan to unselfish saint. But excuse me for liking him better when his heart was darker.

That guy is an affront to political correctness and truth, operating around the edges of morality. He claims to be an IRS agent but his auditing may be closer to stalking.

He's now taking stock in his own life, recounting his mistakes and trying to atone for them before the Lord calls him home. Think of him as a deeper, smarter version of Jason Lee's character on "My Name is Earl," telling each of his "clients" that he has the power to "drastically change their lives" for the better.

How he plans to do that remains an intriguing mystery through the first two-thirds of the story, although seasoned moviegoers will know where this bus is headed much sooner, especially once Ben decides to give his heart to Dawson's impossibly sweet Emily.

Luckily, Smith's performance transcends the script's predictability. The star is as intense and complex as he was in last year's sci-fi thriller, "I am Legend."

Amazingly, he makes it all look easy, using his trademark blend of charm and intelligence to maximum benefit.

The title may say "Seven Pounds," but Smith acts up a ton, tilting the scales decidedly in his — and our — favor.

Rated PG-13. "Seven Pounds" contains thematic material, some disturbing content and a scene of sensuality.

Magical Morocco

GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

FES, MOROCCO — When exploring Northern Morocco, you sometimes have to pinch yourself as a reminder you're in the 21st century. That is certainly the case in the historic city of Fes and the tiny mountain town of Chefchaoun.

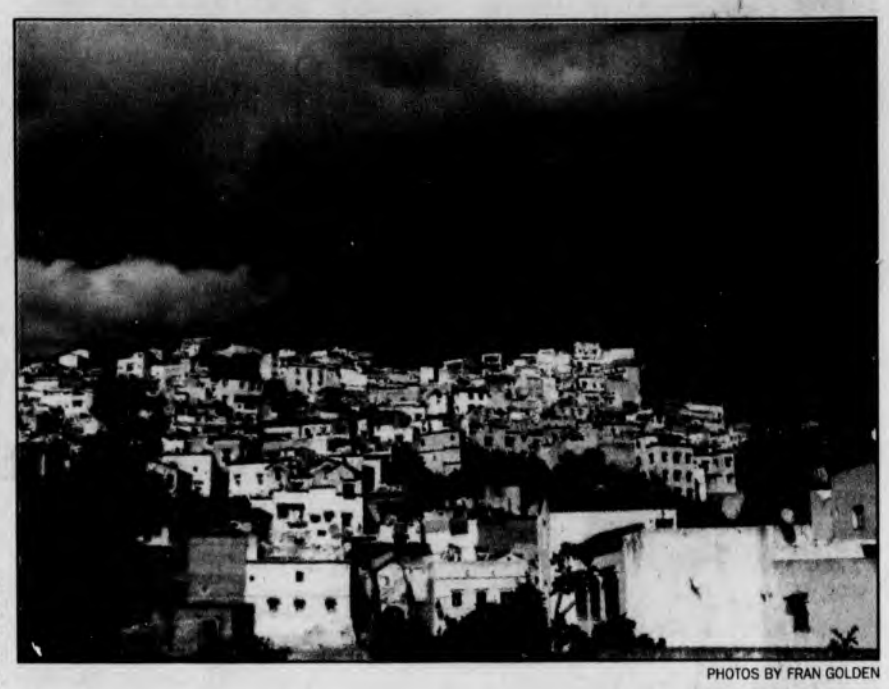
The north may not be as frequented by travelers as places like Casablanca and Marrakech, but it's certainly a region where you'll witness how modern rubs shoulders with medieval in this North African kingdom.

Fes is the oldest city in Morocco — dating to the 700s — and the country's spiritual, artistic and intellectual capital.

Now a protected UNESCO World Heritage site, the Fes—al—Bali medina (old Arab quarter) is the most intact medieval city in the world, an amazing maze of more than 9,000 narrow, car—less streets and alleys and flat—topped sandstone buildings. There's a mosque at its center, as is traditional. The medina is a place where people live, work, study, pray and shop — home to more than 156,000.

At first the place seems chaotic but it's really an ordered chaos. Near the mosque are schools and bookstores. Food items are on one edge of the medina, smelly tanneries on another. Metal workers clang away on designs that look ancient, with tools that look ancient. You feel like you're in a Monty Python version of a medieval village — watching the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker.

A child plays on the historic streets of the medina in Chefchaouen.



On the streets you pass people in traditional robes and a few women with their faces entirely covered. But at the same time little girls walk by with pink Barbie backpacks. And on the rooftops you can see rows of satellite dishes. Men, but few women, sit in cafes drinking coffee or mint tea. Nearly everyone seems to have a cell phone.

"Balek"people shout as a donkey is led by and you push your back against an ancient doorway to get out of the way. "Watch out"someone adds in English. And then you notice the donkey is carrying Coke bottles — it's the Coke "delivery truck."

Shopping is what makes the medina tick. Haggling is an art form that's been practiced here for more than 1,200 years. This is especially clear at the many rug shops — rugs being a prized Moroccan souvenir and Fes the place to buy them.

At his family's shop, Abdul Boude gave my companions and me an "A thousand times welcome,"and a broad smile. We knew we were goners. Mint tea was served, as is traditional, as Boude and his assistants displayed new silk rugs and silk and wool combos, wool Berber rugs and 100—year—old antiques, "reversible, so you pay for one side, the other is free."

After many minutes, and many samples, I started inquiring about a rustic Berber rug from the Atlas Mountains. I can be tough. Boude is tough too. "I am giving you a shocking price,"he said. I offered him 80 percent less. An assistant stepped in an we tossed numbers at each other. After about 20 minutes, Boude came back as the stakes got raised. More negotiating and I got a price I could live with — with a small silk rug thrown in for good measure. But it was hard work.

View of historic Chefchaouen.

Less taxing was exploring Chefchaouen (Chaouen for short) about 120 miles north of Fes in the Rif mountains, near the border with Spain.

Located between two sharp peaks, the town is scenically stunning, white— and blue—washed houses against a mountain backdrop. There is a fairy tale quality, or maybe it's a purple haze. Historic Chefchaouen is in the center of Morocco's kif (cannabis) trade.

You wouldn't know about the industry wandering the quaint streets. You don't see people smoking or selling (although I'm told some shopkeepers will selectively share their supplies).

But kif is indeed the mainstay of the nearby mountain villages, much of it turned into hashish, which is sold to European drug lords. Kif is illegal in Morocco and the government has announced plans to stop the growing; stop the trade. But the isolated villages are some of the poorest in the country and the trade continues.

"If the government stopped it, the people would be starving,"said guide Achmed Azemat. "But they close one eye and keep the other open, as in everywhere."

Tourists hiking the mountains in warm weather months will see fields of green — hiking paths right from town lead between rocky cliffs and the valley. Any time of year it's a beautiful scene.

The town itself is a fascinating place, founded by Arabs and Jews fleeing Spain's Andalusia during the Christian reconquest of the late 1400s. The former Spaniards brought with them Moorish architecture, very much evident in the cobblestone streets of the old medina.

The unusual history includes the fact Westerners (Christians) were locked out of the medina until 1920. One of the few who tried to sneak in, a missionary, was poisoned. Today the town of 40,000 is nearly entirely Muslim.

Today's attitude towards Westerners is one of welcome. Locals gave me smiles and greetings on the street. One fellow wearing a traditional robe even did a thumbs up.

Chefchaouen is a place where you can still watch women washing clothes in a stream and families bringing their bread dough to a communal woodburning oven for baking (they tip the baker a loaf). Some women wear colorful cotton—striped Rif blankets as skirts. Yet modern outdoor cafes face the mosque in the main square and what looks like a sizeable youth population wears blue jeans. Cell phone ads are everywhere.

You're in the 21st century, but tradition lives.

GETTING THERE: Royal Air Maroc flies nonstop from JFK to Casablanca. Roundtrip fares from about $799; www.royalairmaroc.com.

MONEY: Morocco is inexpensive in many respects — food, lodging, even souvenirs. But you have to be a smart consumer. Stay away from tourist traps and negotiate any chance you get — including with guides.

GROUP TRAVEL: Several tour operators offer Morocco itineraries. G.A.P. Adventures (www.gapadventures.com) has tours that combine Fes and Chefchaouen with Tangier, Casablanca and Rabat.

GETTING AROUND: There are indeed trains to Marrakech, but if you're not joining a group you may want to consider hiring a guide and driver. You can also rent a car (from any of the major firms). Highways between the major cities are modern and easy, but be aware country roads can get steep and Moroccan drivers are generally crazy.

STAYING THERE: In Fes, Les Merinides is a modern three—story hotel on a hilltop above Fes—al—Bali. Rates are from about $187 per night (www.expedia.com). In Chefchaouen, Riad Atlas Chaouen offers comfortable rooms in a hilltop setting above the town. Rates are from about $60 (www.asiarooms.com).
